NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Something Unique

is Picturesque Canada bound in Alligator skin. Makes a superb looking volume. To be seen at the EXAMINER Office.

Phaeton for Sale.

For sale, cheap, a good phaeton, canopy top, good size, run slightly one summer. Repainted and as good as new. Apply to Porter Bros.

The Band in the Park.

The Fire Brigade Band will give one of its charming concerts in the Court House Park this evening. It is only necessary to state this fact to crowd the park with auditors.

Joint Excursion.

The Y.M.C.A. and St. John's Church, of Port Hope, will run a joint excursion to Orillia to-morrow, taking in Peterborough and Lindsay. The tickets will be good for two days.

Musical.

Mr. J. S. Parker will be at his rooms, Lynch's Block, Hunter street, 3rd floor, from August 1st to August 16th, to make arrangements for lessons. He has four vacancies for private pupils.

No Meeting.

There was no meeting of the Board of Education last night, owing to a misunderstanding between the Committee and the Board. It is probable the meeting will be called later on in the week.

Company Drill.

Companies No. 1, 2, 4, and 5 held drill yesterday evening. The members are becoming proficient in the exercise and go through their movements with ease and precision. They enjoy the exercise immensely.

Military Camp.

The third military district, including the right wing of the Durham Field Battery, will go into camp at Kingston on September 7th. The 57th Battalion, having been elevated to the rank of a city battalion, will not be required to attend, but will continue to drill at home.

Ottawa Next.

The P. A. A. A. Cricket Club, though elated with its victory of Saturday, is not satisfied by a large majority, and will try the Capital cricketers next, on the Association grounds, Ashburnham, on August 5th. Ottawa has a splendid team and no doubt will make the game interesting.

For all kinds of fine fruit—call at Ostrom's, George street.

Millbrook Excursion

A large excursion from Millbrook, the annual one in connection with the Church of England of that place, passed through town this morning en route for Sturgeon Point. The Millbrook brass band was along and gave several lively selections while waiting at the station.

The Golden Eye

Will leave the Locks at 7 a. m., Wednesday, instead of regular time, 7.30 a. m. A bus will leave Snowden's Hotel at 7 a. m. to take passengers free of charge to this boat. The reason for leaving so early, is to convey the St. Andrew's pic-nic, of Cobourg, to Idyl Wild.

Lecture on Home Rule.

The Rev Dr. Burns, of Hamilton, will lecture on Home Rule at the Opera House, on Wednesday, the 4th of August, commencing at 8 p. m. Don't fail to hear this eminent Wesleyan minister's views on the Irish question. Admission 25 cents; reserved seats 50 cents.

Compliment to the P. A. A. A Cricket Club.

The Mail's report of the cricket match, played here on Saturday, between the Torontos and the P. A. A. A. team, concludes with the following remarks:—"Peterborough was thus left victorious by an innings and 32 runs, and also gained the distinction of being the first club to lower the colors of Toronto during the present season. They are now entitled to rank as one of the best teams in Canada, and would doubtless make a very good show against any club on this side of the Atlantic. The bowling of Logan must not be forgotten, as he secured 11 wickets for only 53 runs."

P. A. A. A. Excursion.

Wait for the excursion of the P. A. A. A. to Orillia and Sturgeon Point, on the Civic Holiday, August 2nd.

Garden Party and Sale of Work at Hazel Brae.

The Ladies' Committee (Mrs. Capt. Wallis, President,) Hazel Brae, are holding a sale of work and garden party at Hazel Brae, on the evening of the 5th of August. Refreshments extra.

FRESH WHITE FISH, Trout and Bass, arriving daily at Ostrom's, George St.

The Gun Club.

The Gun Club held its regular Monday pop and made the following scores:—

H. T. Strickland	0 0 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1—7
R. Tivey	1 0 0 1 1 0 1 1 0 1—6
H. Calcutt	1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 1 1—6
E. J. Hartley	1 0 1 0 0 0 0 1 0 1—4
C. M. Cable	1 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 1 1—5
H. Nott	0 1 0 0 1 0 1 0 1 0—4
H. W. Kent	1 0 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0—4

Hard to Please.

Mr. E. J. Hartley wishes us to state that he, in giving evidence in the Chandler-Lahey case on Saturday, did not say that he heard word "rats" shouted from Cavanagh's. It came from all around, but he did not know any particular spot that could not say it came from Cavanagh's.

A Forger's Flight.

The Warden of Haliburton county and the jailor of Minden asylum, for jail birds, jointly offer $30 reward for the capture of Wm. J. Farewell, who was incarcerated in the Minden jail on a charge of forgery, and who unlawfully farewelled the premises some days ago, without settling up his account.

Theft of Tools.

Messrs. John Smith and William Johnston, workmen employed by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald, builder, at a new house being constructed north of the Barnardo Home, had their tool chests broken open between Saturday night and Monday morning, and two fine saws, square, and chisel taken. As the parties are known, if the articles are not returned at once, the law will interfere in an unpleasantly summary manner.

Entertainment.

A vocal and musical entertainment for the benefit of the library of the Roman Catholic Separate School, will be given at the Murray Street School grounds on Thursday evening, the 29th inst., in which the leading amateurs of the town will take part. The band will also be present. Refreshments can be obtained on the grounds. Admission 25 cents, children 10 cents.

"Rats."

"Rats" seems to be the favorite sleep disturbers, and the city was full of them last night. It would also seem that they rejoice in being like their appearance, the streets, and have been "provoking" merchants. This morning Mr. John Craig placed on the sidewalk in front of his shop a wire rat trap, baited with a piece of cheese, and in vain waited for an innocent rat to walk in and bite. They are not biting yet.

Evening Lacrosse Match.

The members of the Riverside Lacrosse Club, in order to increase the interest in the game generally and to specially interest the members of the club, by testing their metal, have arranged for a match to be played on the Riverside Park, on Wednesday evening, between teams picked from the club. A barrel of flour seems to be about the best thing in the market to make a man exert himself, and the game will be played for one, to be donated to some charitable institution, the losing side to pay for the flour. An entrance fee of 10c. will be charged.

A Pleasant Affair.

The Pensacola (Florida) Gazette has the following in reference to Mr. John Curran, son of Mr. Owen Curran, town:—"Mr. John Curran, who has for some years been general foreman of shops and roadmen of the L. & N. R. R. at this place, was yesterday presented by Division No. 275, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, with a handsome gold finger ring, as a token of their respect and esteem. The ring is broad and heavy, with an exquisite cameo set and bears the inscription, "J. C., from Div. 275." Mr. Curran leaves this place for Palatka, where he will enter the service of the Florida Southern R. R. He carries with him the good wishes of all who have been connected with him, and prizes highly the souvenir above referred to."

For the Benefit of the Band.

There is, by no means, a surplus in the coffers of the treasurer of the Uniform Fund of the Fire Brigade Band and there is still opportunity for the exercise of the public generosity. There seems to be a probability that the various churches which have received musical favors from the band, will unite for the purpose of giving practical expression to their gratitude. It is understood that Rev. Mr. Beck, rector of St. John's, has kindly offered the use of St. John's school room and the beautiful and commodious church lawns, for the holding of a social for the benefit of the band and that Mrs. Beck is willing to co-operate with the ladies of the other churches concerned, in making the social a success. It has been suggested that a committee of two ladies from each congregation, unite to form a general committee to have charge of the matter. If the committee were strengthened by two ladies or more, representing the corporation and two or more, representing the citizens generally, the result would be the formation of a committee that would embrace a representation of all the various interests in the town and the result would be a pan-social gathering of unusual importance. It is to be hoped that action will not be delayed.

Gen. Van Allen, an aged American millionaire, was lost overboard from the Umbria during her late passage from Liverpool.

Sunday School Teachers' Examination.

The Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, local secretary of the London Sunday School Institute, has just received particulars from England of the last teachers' examination held here on the 31st of May. Four candidates entered and all succeeded in passing. All belong to St. Luke's School, Ashburnham. Two received second class certificates, one first class, and one carries off honors. The names of the successful candidates are Mrs. Jackson, Messrs. W. Wallbrook, J. J. Keeney and W. Pakenham. The certificates are signed by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York.

On Electric Light.

The corporation of the city of Guelph has under contemplation the establishing of an electric light system, to illuminate their city, both for public and private use. Yesterday evening a deputation from Guelph, composed of Ald. W. H. Catten, Corporation Finance Minister, Ald. Geo. Bruce, Chairman of the Water Works, Ald. F. B. Skinner, Chairman of the Fire and Gas Committee, and Mr. A. A. Fitzgerald, manager of the Federal Bank, arrived in town, with the object in view of ascertaining the efficiency of our electric light system. These gentlemen in company with Mayor Stevenson, visited the electric light works and walked around the town to see how it was lighted. They expressed themselves as well satisfied with Peterborough system, and hope to see Guelph lighted by the same system shortly. They feel confident they can maintain it at less expense per lamp under the corporation's management and at the same time keep the lights burning all night. They are pleased with the appearance of Peterborough and think it is about equal with Guelph, except in the matter of electric light, but they hope soon to be equal on this score.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines,—hundreds like it:

St. CATHARINES, Sept. 30th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two "principles" trusses made in New York, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. * * I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. D. KING.

This Cut Shows one Style only.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child born; and 99 out of every 100 of adults. If returned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address,

CATARRH CURED—25 YEARS STANDING.

St. Thomas, June 28, 1886.

THE JOURNAL.

Allow me through your paper to thank Dr. Washington, throat and lung surgeon, for his great skill in curing me of catarrh which had greatly troubled me for years, also an exceedingly bad form of ulcerated throat. My throat for weeks was so badly ulcerated that it was almost impossible for me to swallow, the left palate being eaten through, a hole big enough to pass a large goose quill through. It is now entirely healed, and as I am now able to attend to my work once more, I wish to thank the doctor, and also to recommend any who may be affected with catarrh or any disease of the throat.

Yours truly,

W. H. COX.

A GENUINE SMOKE.

A GENTLEMAN who has just returned from Cuba has left with us a sample of what he took his whisky. The cigars are of a reasonably size, being 4½ inches long and 1½ inches thick. The interesting point about them is that when one of them is lighted the wrapper may be taken off and half a cigar cigars, each cut odd lighted, are found inside. Some of the larger size contain six to fourteen cigars. They are of Canadian manufacture, being made in the Reliance Clear Factory of this city. The exhibit such a price at $400.—Montreal Gazette of July 23rd, 1868.

THE TORIES IN COUNCIL.

LORD SALISBURY TAKING HIS FOLLOWERS INTO HIS CONFIDENCE.

The Attitude of the Unionists Towards the New Government—Lord Harrington and Mr. Goschen Decline to Enter a Coalition on Any Terms.

LONDON, July 27.—Long before the time appointed for the meeting of the Conservative members this afternoon, the Carlton Club building was surrounded by large crowds, strong sympathizers with the dominant party, who cheered each leader as he appeared. Lord Iddesleigh, Lord John Manners and Lord Charles Beresford were welcomed with applause that was specially enthusiastic. The Right Hon. W. H. Smith, who was Chief Secretary for Ireland for a fortnight preceding the close of Lord Salisbury's last Government, was cheered heartily when he arrived, and the applause which greeted the Marquis of Salisbury amounted to an ovation.

The new Premier was even more heartily received by the meeting inside. Lord Salisbury having formally announced that he had accepted the office of Prime Minister, said he had, on behalf of the Conservative party, offered the premiership to Lord Harrington and that the Queen had approved the proffer. Lord Harrington, however, saw fit to decline the task of forming the Government, but he promised for himself and his colleagues that they would loyally support the Government formed by the Conservatives. Lord Harrington had given assurances that the Liberal Unionists would support the Conservative Government "on every question concerning the maintenance and integrity of the Empire." So far as the Irish policy of the Government was concerned, Lord Hartington had promised that the "Liberal Unionists would give any measure proposed by the Government for the redress of Irish grievances most careful consideration." "Concerning this subject," said the Premier, "I would inform the meeting that in any scheme of reform contemplated in the machinery of the Irish question, I will do my best to obtain the co-operation of the Marquis of Hartington." (Cheers). "The Liberal Unionists," continued Lord Salisbury, "have reserved to themselves freedom of action outside these limits, but I need scarcely say that we can reckon on their support against vexatious and frivolous opposition or obstruction without the giving of distinct pledges."

Reverting to the Irish question at the conclusion of his speech, the Marquis said: "I might say also that the ministry will forthwith prepare a bill to grapple with the Irish difficulty in the direction of extended local self-government."

Arthur Peel, of Tottenham, Tory member for Winchester, here asked what protection would in the meantime be afforded to "the Loyalists in Ireland, whose lives were becoming a burden to them."

The Marquis of Salisbury replied that the Government meant to "rigorously enforce the existing laws, and apply for additional powers if necessary." "Then," he added, "it is obvious to discuss these matters before the estimates are finished." Parliament would be at once summoned, and Lord Salisbury announced, and would continue during August for the purpose of passing the estimates. He then asked those present to preserve absolute secrecy concerning all the statements of the government policy he had made, and requested the meeting to approve this decision taken by himself and colleagues respecting the line of proposed mutual action between the Conservatives and Liberal Unionists. The request was received with deafening applause.

The Earl of Iddesleigh, the Right Hon. Henry Cecil Raikes, member for Cambridge; the Right Hon. Sir John A. Mowbray, Sir Henry Thurston Holland and others followed Lord Salisbury, all warmly praising and endorsing his efforts to effect a coalition with the Liberal Unionists, and speaking with enthusiasm of the new government's prospects. Lord Iddesleigh was accorded an ovation when he arose to address the meeting. Over 400 Tory peers and Conservative members of the new House of Commons were present at the meeting.

LONDON, July 27.—The Marquis of Salisbury, Lord Randolph Churchill and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach had a long conference this afternoon. It is reported that Lord Salisbury is having great difficulty in the work of filling the post of Chief Secretary for Ireland, no suitable man desiring to take office. Lord Hartington had been consulted about the Secretaryship before to-day's conference, and the hitch which has occurred over the question may necessitate his return from Goodwood, whither he has gone to attend the races.

LONDON, July 27.—Mr. Goschen has finally declined to coalesce with the Conservatives on any terms. A report is current in the Army and Navy Club that the Government's first measure will be the appointment of a commission to inquire into the charges of corruption that have been brought against the War Department.

THE CARDINAL AT MONTREAL.

Enthusiastic and Imposing Reception to His Eminence.

MONTREAL, July 27.—The street demonstration in connection with the Cardinal's reception were very elaborate. The procession by Seminary Hall and Bonsecours Market was headed by Cardinal Taschereau, the various hierarchal dignitaries, Papal Zouaves, Grand Marshal and Aides, Band of Hibernian Knights, and Band of Young Canada. Then came the Cardinal and party preceded in carriages by the city hall, followed by a number of the catholic societies in regalia of Louis XIV., where a levee was held at 4 o'clock. An address was also presented to the Cardinal from Laval University. The City Hall was profusely decorated, especially the grand staircase in the Council Chamber being the arms of the Pope, Cardinal and Archbishop Fabre. The city was illuminated to-night, and a display of fireworks in Dominion Square took place.

FRAUD IN GRAIN.

Serious Charges Against Two Members of the New York Produce Exchange.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Hillhouse & Day, a reputable firm of grain exporters, charge that two members of the Grain Committee of the Produce Exchange took advantage of their positions to order the improper grading of 300,000 bushels of corn of which they were the owners, thereby causing inferior grain to be classed as of better quality, and inducing buyers of many thousands of dollars on persons who bought corn. The loss of Hillhouse & Day is alleged to be $37,000. Two board of managers have referred to complaint to a special committee for investigation.

AT A PLACE CALLED SINK HOLE.

A C. P. R. Freight Train Smashed and Badly Wrecked.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., July 27.—About 3 o'clock this morning a C. P. R. special freight train going north from Orangeville, consisting of twenty-two cars, was wrecked about four miles south of Chatsworth, at a place called Sink Hole, about eighteen miles south of Owen Sound, causing a several smash-up. The cars were loaded with steel rails, ten of which went over the embankment, twisting the rails in every possible shape. The accident was caused by a broken axle. No person was injured, but traffic was delayed, passengers and freight having to be transhipped from the various trains over the wreck.

The Drinking Water Poisoned.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., July 27.—Heavy rains recently washed a large amount of refuse into a spring from which the employees of the Glasgow Iron Company at Pottstown procured drinking water. In consequence an epidemic of fever has broken out and over forty men are stiffening with typhoid fever in its worst form, many of them being in a critical condition. The works are an dreaded that the company is unable to man its furnaces.

Fire in a Knitting Mill.

PERTH, Ont., July 27.—A fire broke out in T. A. Cudes' knitting and carding mill about 3 o'clock this afternoon. The stock was mostly saved and the fire confined to the upper flats. The loss on machinery and buildings will be heavy, but covered by insurance in the Commercial Union.

HE ONLY SAID "THE DEVIL"

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP PRINCE LEOPOLD OF BRAZIL.

A Bomb Discovered on the Starboard Side of the Cabin Directly Over the Engine—An Employe Fiendishly Picks Up the Explosive and Throws it Away.

NEW YORK, July 27.—It is said an attempt was made last evening to blow up the steamer Sylvan Stream, which had on board Dom Augusto Leopoldo, Prince of Brazil, the Commendant and officers of the Brazilian warship Bararoa, General-Governor Menedosa and other attaches of the Brazilian legation. The party with other guests had been invited by the officers of the Sea Beach Railroad Company to take a trip to Coney Island. Yesterday morning the manager, Mr. A. H. Maw, of the Sea Beach Company, received a threatening letter signed by order of a Social Revolution Committee. A special boat left the foot of Whitehall-street at 6.30 yesterday afternoon with the Brazilian flag floating at the peak. Nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the party until the return guests had been safely transferred to the boat at Bay Ridge, and were seated on the upper deck enjoying themselves, when Coroner Messemer, who was seated in the cabin, noticed a faint odor of sulphur. Suddenly there was heard a hissing sound from beneath a bench on the starboard side of the cabin directly over the engine. At the same time a little fountain of sparks was thrown for a distance of two or three feet. Coroner Messemer rushed from the cabin, exclaiming "There's a bomb in here." At the same instant, George Brown, an employe of the company, rushing from the cabin carrying a dark object, which still emitted sparks. The report examined the carpet where the bomb is said to have been placed, and found a scorched spot six inches square, in the centre of which a hole had been burned through to the floor. Prince Leopold was not informed of the peril in which his life had been placed until he was ashore. He was evidently startled, but only said, "the devil."

THE CARDINAL AT MONTREAL.

Enthusiastic and Imposing Reception to His Eminence.

MONTREAL, July 27.—The street demonstrations in connection with Cardinal Cullen's reception were very elaborate. The procession by Seminary Hall and Bonsecours Market was headed by Cardinal Taschereau, the various hierarchal dignitaries, Papal Zouaves, Grand Marshal and Aides, Band of Hibernian Knights, and Band of Young Canada. Then came the Cardinal and party preceded in carriages by the city hall, followed by a number of the catholic societies in regalia of Louis XIV., where a levee was held at 4 o'clock. Accident on the Grand Trunk.

MONTREAL, July 27.—On Monday night as the Cornwall Vermont train was here at 11.30 was nearing Waterloo Junction, the train ran over a man who was lying on the line. The body was terribly mutilated, he had been killed and the head was severed from the body. The arms and legs were broken off. Search was made for the head, but could not be found. The remains were left in charge of Section Master Dicky.

How to Keep Spirituous Liquors Sweet.

A German writer recommends the use of paraffine in place of corks or other stoppers for bottles containing liquids which have a tendency to ferment or otherwise deteriorate by coming in contact with the air. This, he says, is particularly applicable to saccharine juices of all kinds. These are poured, while hot, into perfectly dry bottles, which are filled nearly to the lip, they are then allowed to stand and cool until cold, during which time all air bubbles will rise to the surface, finally a small quantity of melted paraffine is poured over the top, when it forms a firm, solid coat on cooling about the tenth of an inch thick. Such a paraffine stopper has the advantage of being easily removed when the contents of the bottle are required for use, and the paraffine can be used again.

Nervousness Betrayed in Penmanship.

The condition of a man's nerves is often portrayed in his writing, and also the fire of his temper. If he is slow and methodical, he seems a page with character laboriously drawn out and a appearance of ink that is lifeless. A nervous man will either contract his signature into the smallest place possible or scrawl it out in flowing lines and big letters or write it phonetically. In either of the three cases it is generally impossible to decipher it. Business men to a certain extent cultivate an original style of writing. Their correspondence is very large and their names often attached to valuable papers. A style peculiar to themselves, if rigidly followed out, is one of the safeguards against forgery. But there are forgers so clever as to assume men who devise strange styles of penmanship.

Books of the Bible.

The books of the Bible, says the Louisville Courier-Journal, in answer to a correspondent, were written at dates far apart. For instance, Genesis is supposed to have been written by Moses B. C. 1541, while the book of Esther—whose author is unknown—was composed in B. C. 312. Malachi was written B. C. 410. Ezra collected the books of the Old Testament about B. C. 446, and Simeon the Just, who died about B. C. 291, added the books of the Chronicles, Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther and Malachi, and this closed the canon of the old testament. The book of Matthew, in the new testament canon, was written A. D. 37 or 38. This canon was probably closed by St. John, who died nearly seventy years after the ascension of Christ.

Always Say Yes to Your Wife.

Half a century ago one of our former meek and harmless citizens had a virago for a wife. Being asked how he was able to live with her, he answered: "I have no trouble. When she says 'yes' I say yes. When she says it would I say 'yes, mother, it is cold.' Often she woke me up in dark and stormy nights and would say: 'Just see how bright the moon and stars are.' I always said 'yes.' She would then turn over perfectly satisfied, go to sleep, and be happy." Many a husband can learn a lesson from this example.

Why Men Should Wear Corsets.

We think we violate no confidence in saying that there are even in Buffalo a few men who wear corsets, because leaning over high desks all day long, they find that the corset supports the body as no other contrivance will.—Buffalo Express.

Off Duty.

Have you ever noticed that if a car driver has a holiday, or "day off," as they say at the stables, he will do nothing on that day but ride up and down the road and talk "shop" all day to the driver, and he is one of the first to board an early car? Give a night watchman a "night off" and as sure as fate he will go and sit up all night, smoke and chat with the watchman on duty, and say next day, with a dignified air: "I was not 'on' last night."

The Difficulties of Prohibition.

From the Milwaukee Wisconsin.

To outwit a woman intent upon having her way is believed by every husband to be one of life's arduous tasks. It is often very difficult. But it is the merest pastime, after all, in comparison with the task of circumventing a sooper who lives in a prohibition state and wants his ogular bitters.

Great Danger in Cigarette Smoking.

Detroit Free Press.

The great danger of cigarette smoking arises from the fact that the cigarette is so mild that the smoker uses one after another, smoking almost continually, and so gradually poisons himself with the nicotine. Cigarette smokers use the vile little tubes from morning until night except during meal time. Besides generally the worst tobacco is used in making up cigarettes. Excessive cigarette smoking causes palpitations of the heart, and finally kills the user of the weed. Two deaths occurred in New York last week that were directly traceable to the cigarette vice. One of the deplorable features of the use of the cigarette is the fact that so many boys smoke them. France has a law preventing the sale of cigarettes to boys. The United States should have a similar law.

The Scared Man.

From Wilmington [Del.] Home Weekly.

Nobody loves the scared man. He is not an agreeable companion; his sympathies have been warped, his temper made surly, his disposition embittered—he is at outs with the world. No one very well remembers what he once was. All have forgotten the time when his pulse beat warm and high, when his hand had a firm and hearty grasp, when he loved and hoped. Everybody knows that he is cold, cross-grained, thy actical and cynical now. The world pushes him aside, society votes him a bore, and his best friends shake their heads and wonder that they ever supposed that he would amount to anything. He is a failure, and everybody knows it as well as he does himself.

A Hint to Smokers.

From the London Lancet.

In Cuba, where smokers are probably better acquainted with the methods of manufacture than elsewhere, and where the number of operatives afflicted with the scrofulous and other maladies is fully 37 per cent., it can be almost invariably noticed that a smoker before lighting his cigar will, instead of taking off the tip, carefully cut away half an inch of the end of the weed. The obscene, which is made with cut a tip, is in more general use in Cuba than anywhere else in the world. General Grant, after visiting Cuba, never again bit off the tip of a cigar. He cut away a noticeably large section of the end.

How to Make Good Coffee.

One-half pound of the best golden Rio, one-quarter of Java and one-quarter pound Mocha. Take an old-fashioned coffee-pot; have it thoroughly cleansed and scalded each time. Have your coffee mixed as described, finely ground. Put in a "table-spoonful for each person and one for the coffee-pot." Beat an egg until it froths and stir well into the coffee. Pour upon the mixture cold water enough to make about a third of the quantity of liquor required; with it, well and your pure water of course. Set it where it will come to the boiling point slowly. As soon as it comes to the boiling point stir it down, take it up from the fire, let it stand a minute. Its ready to serve. The whites of the eggs and shells give you the black, latter clears, leaves the coffee from the sediment which is liable to be made. Follow directions and you will have a delicious beverage. It is for the best men or women in America.

A CHANCE FOR CHARITY.

A few days ago we published a report of the terrible destitution and state of famine prevailing in Newfoundland among the fishing population and among the inhabitants of Labrador. Now a gentleman on a visit to Ottawa furnishes further heartrending particulars: In the White Bay region, along Cape Bauld, Newfoundland, there is hardly a family that is not in danger of starvation. The seal catch, which runs from March to May, was very small, and so the fishermen have nothing to exchange for food or clothing. He says that out of 2,500 persons no less than 1,000 are in a starving condition, and many more will be reduced to the verge of starvation. On the Labrador coast the ice has not yet broken up, and the Esquimaux families are suffering greatly. There is no fishing except along Hamilton Inlet, from Cape Mugford to Cape Charles. Terrible destitution prevails, 100 families having died outright in this vicinity. Parties were arriving at St. John's before he left, from Indian Harbor, Webeck Harbor, Nain, Hopedale and Okapak with terrible stories of suffering from lack of food and clothing. On July 10 there was no sign of the ice breaking up, and the thermometer registered eight below zero. Winter set in the 1st of last October. To illustrate in a small way the suffering that is prevalent, he said that on the Labrador coast, at one place of forty-two inhabitants, no fewer than twenty-four deaths had occurred during June. In another settlement of fifty three persons eleven persons had died. In another of seventy-two inhabitants twenty-two had succumbed to hunger. This is a most dreadful state of affairs and one that certainly cannot exist among our fellow colonists without exciting among charitable Canadians a desire to succor their perishing and suffering fellow subjects. While the duty of the Newfoundland Government in the premises is plain, it is also plain that we in Canada, under a more favored climate, with a bountiful harvest ready for the garner, and with a population hardly knowing what the sensation of extreme hunger—not to speak of starvation—means, have also a duty to perform in the circumstances. If some leading citizen would take the initiative, no doubt the people would heartily respond to the urgent call made upon their liberality, by the extraordinary destitution prevailing at the doors of the Dominion. The Toronto World suggests that Newfoundland be abandoned and the inhabitants deported to the Northwest. There is something to be said in favor of this proposal, but the first and most urgent call is for immediate assistance. After the pressing wants of the terrible present are provided for, it will be time to consider the best course to be pursued in the future.

THE Brockville Recorder wants to know why Sir David Macpherson is not included in the Northwest amnesty. Can't he return to Canada as well as Dumont and Dumas?

ALTHOUGH in the elections already decided in British Columbia, the Government have carried 18 out or 25 seats, the Ministerialists received only 5,495 votes as against 5,431 given to the Opposition candidates.

MR. ALLISON, the Tory M. P. for Hants, Nova Scotia, contends that the repeal question is not seriously entertained by the electors in his constituency, but that it was the unpopularity of the Dominion Government that was the issue.

MR. CHAPLEAU, Secretary of State, has telegraphed from Chambly ordering a number of civil service employees to go to his assistance and canvass for the Government candidate. The Minister feels that he is being hardly pressed and is by no means confident of carrying the county in which his candidates had over 500 majority in 1883. He is determined to make the civil service employees earn their bread and butter by trying to secure the ministry which gives them their situations. If they wish to share the spoils they must share the labour of winning them.

THE Dominion Government has the grace to be ashamed of its immigration policy, but it still clings to it. To catch the labour vote Minister Carling recently took occasion to deny that immigrants were assisted in the general meaning of the term. He explained that an arrangement had been made with steamship lines for reduced fares which were paid by the immigrants and not by the government. Yet on page 137 of the report of the Minister of Finance, we find this entry: "Allan, H. & A., Assisted passages—$62,575.80." Either Minister Carling evolved a whopper or the blue book is a typographical Ananias.

There is an increase in the number of emigrants leaving Great Britain during the six months ending June 30th. The total number of natives of the British Isles, which in the six months ending June 30th, 1885, was 106,354 was for the six months of this year 112,227. Of these there were English, 35,745 Irish, and 11,845 Scotch. The number of foreigners, which in the six months of 1885 was 20,520, was this year 47,731. Of the increase in the number of emigrants from the British Isles, Canada received more than the usual proportion.

Home and Foreign News.

Great distress from floods is reported in the rice districts of South Carolina.

The graving dock at Esquimault, B. C., has been completed. The last stone was laid on the 25th June.

Storms in Dakota last Friday and Saturday are said to have destroyed a million and a half bushels of wheat.

In Tatnal Co., Ga., a colored woman is charged with murdering a child, cooking half its remains and serving it up at a colored picnic, and salting down the remainder. On the deed being discovered the negroes burnt the woman at a stake.

Mr. T. H. Lloyd, V. S., states that hog cholera is spreading to an alarming extent in Simcoe County. Many of the farmers do not understand what is the matter with the hogs, and after the animals are dead they leave them lying around, thus spreading the disease far and near. Among those who have suffered most heavily is Mr. W. D. Stoddart, who has lost between sixty and seventy hogs.

The Butler and the High-born Maiden.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

It would seem as if there were no satisfying the changeful mind of woman. Everybody knows the disastrous effect produced on the simple village maiden when the versatile Lord of Burleigh dropped the role of painter and showed himself in his true colors. Taking warning by this young lady's sad fate, Mr. Conway, a thoughtful butler, determined to reverse the order of things in the Lord of Burleigh's cruel proceedings. So he went to America, called himself Hon. Seymour Conway, and wooed and won a high-born maiden to his wife. He then brought his wife to his battery in England, where he, of course, dropped the Hon. Seymour part of himself and prepared to settle down to domestic life. But instead of being delighted at this little surprise the lady is terribly annoyed. It is true she has not died, but she has done the next best thing, and instituted divorce proceedings. Courting in fancy dress seems not to be a success whichever way it is tried.

Those Outcast Greeks.

LIVERPOOL, July 27.—The English steamship companies refused to accept as passengers on any terms the Greek gypsies who came here recently with the intention of emigrating to America. The Greek Consul is trying to arrange for the shipment of the gypsies to New York via Antwerp.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 30th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two springless trusses made in York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. * * I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.

This new Spirial Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child born; and 99 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our "review"; it contains full information, your neighbours' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address,

LOVE'S VICTORY.

BY BERTHA M CLAY

The general paused for a while before some of Horace Vernet's battle-pieces; they delighted him. Pauline had walked on to the end of the gallery, and Lady Darrell, always anxious to conciliate her, had followed. The picture that struck the general most were the two ladies as they stood side by side—Lady Darrell with the sheen of gold in her hair, the soft lustre of gleaming pearls on her white neck, the fairness of her face heightened by its dainty rose-leaf bloom, her evening dress of sweeping white silk setting off the graceful, supple lines of her figure, all thrown into such vivid light by the crimson carpet on which she stood and the background of crimson velvet; Pauline, like some royal lady in her trailing black robes, with the massive coils of her dark hair wound round the graceful, haughty head, and her grand face with its dark, glorious eyes, and rich, ruby lips. The one looked fair, radiant, and charming as a Parisian coquette; the other, like a Grecian goddess, superb, magnificent, queenly, simple in her exquisite beauty—art or ornaments could do nothing for her.

"Look," said the general to Sir Oswald, "that picture surpasses anything you have on your walls."

Sir Oswald bowed.

"What a beautiful girl your niece is!" the old soldier continued. "See how her face resembles this of Lady Edelgitha Darrell.

Pray do not think me impertinent, but I cannot imagine, old friend, why you married, so devoted to bachelor life as you were, when you had a niece so beautiful, so true a Darrell, for your heiress. I am puzzled now that I see her."

"She lacked training," said Sir Oswald.

"Training!" repeated the general, contemptuously. "What do you call training? Do you mean that she was not experienced in all the little trifling details of a dinner-table—that she could not smile as she told graceful little untruths? Training! Why, the girl is a queen among women; a noble soul shines in her grand face, there is a royal grandeur of nature about her that training could never give. I have lived long, but I have never seen such a woman."

"She had such strange, out-of-the-way, unreal notions, I dared not—that is the truth—I dared not leave Darrell Court to her."

"I hope you have acted wisely," said the general; "but, as an old friend and a true one, I must say that I doubt it."

"My wife, I am happy to say, has plenty of common sense," observed Sir Oswald.

"Your wife," returned the general, looking at the sheen of the golden hair and the shining dress, "is pretty, graceful, and amiable, but that girl has all the soul; there is as much difference between them as between a golden buttercup and a dark, stately, queenly rose. The rose should have been ruler at Darrell Court, old friend."

Then he asked, abruptly,—

"What are you going to do for her, Sir Oswald?"

"I have provided for her," he replied.

"Darrell Court, then, and all its rich revenues go to your wife, I presume?"

"Yes, to my wife," said Sir Oswald.

"Unconditionally?" asked the general.

"Most certainly," was the impatient reply.

"Well, my friend," said the general, "in this world every one does as he or she likes; but to disinherit that girl, with the face and spirit of a true Darrell, and to put a fair, amiable blonde in her place, was, to say the least, eccentric—the world will deem it so, at any rate. If I were forty years younger I would win Pauline Darrell, and make her love me. But we must join the ladies—they will think us very remiss."

"Sweet smiles, no mischief, amiable manner, no intellect, pretty as After the fashion of a Parisian doll, is far preferred to that noble, truthful, queenly girl? Verily tastes differ," thought the general, as he watched the two, contrasted them, and lost himself in wonder over his friend's folly.

He took his leave soon afterward, gravely musing on what he could not understand—why his old friend had done what seemed to him a rash, ill-judged deed.

He left Sir Oswald in a state of great discomfort. Of course he loved his wife—loved her with a blind infatuation that did more honor to his heart than his head—but he had always relied so implicitly on the general's judgment. He found himself half wishing that in this, the crowning action of his life, he had consulted his old friend.

He never knew how that clever woman of the world, Lady Hampton, had secretly influenced him. He believed that he had acted entirely on his own clear judgment; and now, for the first time, he doubted that.

"You look anxious, Oswald," said Lady Darrell, as she bent down and with her fresh, sweet young lips, touched his brow. "Has anything troubled you?"

"No, my darling," he replied; "I do not feel quite well, though. I have had a dull, nervous heaviness about me all day—a strange sensation of pain too. I shall be better to-morrow."

"If not," she said, sweetly, "I shall insist on your seeing Doctor Helmstone. I am quite uneasy about you."

"You are very kind to me," he responded gratefully.

But all her uneasiness did not prevent her drawing the white lace round her graceful shoulders, and taking up the third volume of a novel in which she was deeply interested, while Sir Oswald, looking older and graver than he had looked before, went into the garden for a stroll.

The sunbeams were as rich to see; they lingered even now on the tips of the trees and the flowers; they lingered on the lake and in the rippling spray of the fountains. Sir Oswald sat down by the lake-side.

Had he done wrong? Was it a foolish mistake—one that he could not undo? Was Pauline indeed the grand, noble, queenly girl his friend thought her? Would she have made a better mistress than Lady Darrell? Would she have been more suitable as the young wife? What would she do with Darrell Court if he left it to her? The great wish of his heart for a son to succeed him had not been granted to him; but he had made his will, and in it he had left Darrell Court to his wife.

He pressed to his lips the hand he loved so well. Ah, true death! If he could but have taken it with him, or have snatched over it from another world! But when death came he must leave it, and a dull, uneasy foreboding came over him as to what he should do in favor of this idolized house.

As he looked at it, tears rose to his eyes; and then he saw Pauline standing a little way from him, the proud, beautiful face softened into tenderness, the dark eyes full of light, the whole expression more affectionate than it had ever been during his life; she knelt on the grass by his side.

"Uncle," she said, softly, "you look very ill; are you in trouble?"

He held out his hands to her; at the sound of her voice all his heart seemed to go out to this glorious daughter of his race.

"Pauline," he said, in a low, broken voice, "I am thinking about you—I am wondering about you. How I do wonder, have I done wrong?"

A flush passed over the proud face.

"Do you refer to Darrell Court?" she asked. "If you do, you have done wrong. I think you might have trusted me. I have many faults, but I am a true Darrell. I would have done full justice to the trust."

"I never thought so," he returned, feebly; "and I did it all for the best, as I imagined, Pauline."

"I know you did—I am sure you did," she agreed eagerly; "I never thought otherwise. It was not you, uncle. I understand all that was brought to bear upon you. You are a Darrell, honorable, loyal, true; you do not understand anything that is not straightforward. I do, because my life has been so different from yours."

He was looking at her with a strange, wavering expression in his face; the girl's eyes, full of sympathy, were turned on him.

"Pauline," he said, feebly, "if I have done wrong—and, oh, I am so loth to believe it—you will forgive me, my dear, will you not?"

For the first time he held out his arms to her; for the first time she went close to him and kissed his face. It was well that Lady Hampton was not there to see. Pauline heard him murmur something about "a true Darrell—the last of the Darrells," and when she raised her head she found that Sir Oswald had fallen into a deep, deadly swoon.

Backache.

What does that spell? Why, "backache," of course, though you would not suspect it at the first glance. It spells what hundreds and thousands of women are suffering from every day of their lives, but what they need not suffer from, if they know the virtues of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." All those "dragging down" pains and sensations of nausea and weakness, peculiar to women, can be cured by this same boon to womankind. It is almost magical in its results. d&w-6t

"Does it give satisfaction?"

We cannot point to one instance where it did not.

Right in the city of Hamilton, where it is manufactured, there has been over one thousand dollars' worth sold in the last year retail, and the great majority of the sales are by one recommending it to another. For sale at 50c, and $1.00 per bottle by J. McKee, druggist. d21-eod-w30

BANKERS—Bank of Toronto and Canadian Bank of Commerce.
SOLICITORS—Dumble & Henry.

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200, $500 and $1000 each, transferable by endorsement, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first claim or mortgage on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The annual statement shows that the amount so invested was over $300,000, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgage may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon, the interest ceasing at once on all amounts paid on account of the sum borrowed.

Applications may be made either to the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

A Holiday Tour.

This morning Messrs. George A. Cox, D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate, John Bertram and Aaron Cox, took the train for a trip to Parry Sound and the points of interest in that vicinity. They will be absent several days.

Lecture on Home Rule.

The Rev Dr. Burns, of Hamilton, will lecture on Home Rule at the Opera House, on Wednesday, the 4th of August, commencing at 8 p. m. Don't fail to hear this eminent Wesleyan minister's views on the Irish question. Admission 25 cents; reserved seats 50 cents.

A Novel Slide.

A number of little girls had a novel slide in operation near the top of the park last night. The slide consisted of a long board with one end resting against the fence near the Court House, and the other in the hollow below. The patrons got aboard at the top and slid to the bottom a la toboggan—minus the toboggan.

Cricket.

The Lakefield cricketers hearing of the victory of the Peterborough team over the Torontos, and probably desiring to win fame for themselves, have challenged the P. A. A. A. team to play at Lakefield to-morrow. The challenge has been accepted and the local club will send a solid eleven out to Lakefield, to morrow.

Entertainment.

A vocal and musical entertainment for the benefit of the library of the Roman Catholic Separate School, will be given at the Murray Street School grounds on Thursday evening, the 29th inst., in which the leading amateurs of the town will take part. The band will also be present. Refreshments can be obtained on the grounds. Admission 15 cents, children 10 cents.

By Rail and Boat.

The grand feature of the Civic Holiday, August 19th, will be the great excursion to Sturgeon Point and Orillia, under the auspices of the P.A.A.A. Everything the Triple A's attempt is of the best, and doubtless this excursion will be no exception to the rule. The excursion train of first-class coaches will leave the Midland station at 7.30 a.m., and other points in due course. Tickets, from Peterborough to Sturgeon Point and return, 90 cents; to Orillia and return, $1.10; from other points in proportion. For further particulars see bills.

The Park Promenade Concert.

A promenade in the park was in order last night, when the Fire Brigade Band played in the park pavilion. The night was most favorable and a large audience was the result. The several walks were thronged with the light hearted youth and beauty of the town, while every available spot suitable for a seat was occupied, the whole north-east section presenting the appearance of an opera house parquette. His Worship the Mayor, apparently well pleased, stood near the fountain and looked upon the scene with a fatherly smile. The music provided by the band was of the usual splendid class. The programme opened with "Swanee River" and, of course, concluded with the National Anthem.

The Fruit Canning Season.

Housekeepers will find the finest and cheapest stock of sugars for the preserving season, at Morrow, Tierney & Co's, as well as a splendid stock of the best groceries.

A Good Point.

[illegible] been posted, breathing out slaughter (through the police) against all dogs not provided with the corporation tag. Admittedly worthy of the severest strictness, this proclamation is puzzled to know whether the dog of a minister whose salary is exempt, is also exempt—whether the statute recognizes the principle, love me, love my dog.

The Port Hope Excursion.

This morning the regular express on the Midland brought a respectable number of excursionists from Port Hope. These were joined here by a few Peterborough people and went on to Orillia. Shortly after a special train arrived en route for Sturgeon Point. A few more Peterborough people boarded the [illegible] and in the two hours they had a fairly good excursion generally.

Fresh White Fish, Trout and Bass, arriving daily at Ostrom's, George St.

Market Notes.

The market this morning was bright and active. Produce was offered in abundance and sold well. Prices remain about the same and were quoted: Butter, 12c. to 15c.; eggs, 10c. for shipment and 11c. to 12c. for local use; chickens, 50c. per pair; ducks, per brace, 75c.; raspberries, $1.25 per pail; huckleberries, 10c. per quart; peas, shelled, 10c. per quart, in pod, 20c. per peck; potatoes, 20c. per peck; cabbages, 10c. per head; cauliflower, 25c. per head; celery, 10c. per bunch; cucumbers, 3 for 5c.; carrots, onions, radishes, beets, turnips, etc., 5c per bunch.

University Examinations.

The following students of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute took high standing at the recent Matriculation examinations of Toronto University, as shown below: F. C. Armstrong, first class honors in English, History and Geography and German; second class honors in French. Miss L. Gardiner, second class honors in English, History and Geography, French and German. H. C. T. Hault ain, high first class honors in Mathematics. This record is a credit both to the students themselves and the institution which prepared them.

A Race Runaway.

A young man of the north ward, yesterday afternoon, started out for a drive in company with a young lady. In going down Hastings street, between London and Dublin streets, the horse, probably getting alarmed because it was not receiving the much attention, ran away, throwing the occupants out. The young lady alighted gracefully on the side of the road, while the driver was thrown almost under the wheels—but still he held bravely on to the lines. The vehicle collided with a crossing, which brought the equipage to a standstill. The rig was badly bent and otherwise used up, but the driver and his fair partner, escaped with a few bruises and a scare.

The "Canadian Florist."

The midsummer number of Mason's handsome and attractive quarterly, the Canadian Florist and Cottage Gardener, is issued, and it is in all respects the best number yet published. It appears with a beautiful new cover of exceedingly neat device, especially designed and engraved for this magazine, by the Toronto Engraving Company. This number is, as usual, neatly and clearly printed on fine toned paper, and has a table of contents which makes it of practical use to those engaged in the culture of flowers, or vegetables or the smaller fruits. It is a beautiful and useful compendium of floral knowledge which should be in the hands of every lover and cultivator of flowers. Peterborough: published quarterly by Francis Mason, florist and seedsman, at 25 cents per year.

An Electro-Magnetic Well.

Mr. Thomas Leary is sinking a well for Mr. J. W. Flavelle, Queen street. He bored into the bosom of the earth sixty-five feet, through very hard hard-pan, interspersed with boulders. At this depth he struck a strong stream of water which possesses peculiar properties. He found that by holding the blade of his knife in the water, the blade became magnetised to such an extent that it would pick up by the force of attraction a needle or pin to which it might be applied. This well may prove to be a veritable bonanza. In these days of scarcity of beverages that contain a sufficient supply of electricity and magnetism, the water that will pick up a needle might be in demand to "pick up" a convival citizen after a too liberal course of "Mozie" the previous night. The water from such a well would come cheaper than "electrified" lemonade or soda water.

The Way It Was Done.

Miss Jones, Juniper street, has been wanting to take a summer trip down the St. Lawrence for a long time, but the question of funds always stood in the way. Yesterday she was greatly surprised at her father giving her his permission and a well filled purse for the longed-for trip. She was also alarmed, fearing that he had robbed a bank or a newspaper office, but was happy when he explained that he had saved enough money the last few months to warrant the pleasure trip. The way he did it was by buying clothing for himself and the boys at Gough's the Wonderful Cheap Man. "What a dear good man he is," the artless girl exclaimed. "Is he handsome, papa?" "Yes." "O, how jolly! Is he married?" "Yes." "O-o-o-h!—but never mind, I owe my pleasure trip to him and I will always speak a good word for Gough, and when I get married, if my husband doesn't go there for his clothing, we'll need mighty little fuel to keep the house warm."

Mr. W. Coulter, formerly a druggist of Peterborough, but now of Kansas, is in town. Mrs. Coulter accompanies him.

Mr. Thomas Maguire and family left for Toronto this morning, whither he goes to attend the annual meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Mr. H. B. Carter, one of Peterborough's most enthusiastic cricketers, has left town, having secured a situation in Midland. Mr. Carter was one of the best cricketers in the local club and will be greatly missed on the field and at the bat.

The Cheese Market.

The Cheese Boarded at the Last Market Again Offered—All Sold at 7 5-8 Cents—A Lively Market.

The adjourned market of the Peterborough and Victoria Cheese Board, was held in the Old Music Hall here, yesterday.

The cheese boarded was the same as that offered last week, in all amounting to 2,110 boxes. The English market was quoted at 41s.

The buyers present were Messrs. W. H. Wrighton, J. W. Flavelle, and B. Green, of town, R. Leary, of Lindsay, Warrington and Cook, of Belleville, and Hodgson, of Montreal.

Mr. Wrighton opened the market by bidding 7⅞c. for the board. Mr. Leary, offered 7½ for the board. Mr. Hudgson bid 7⅞ for selections and Mr. Cook 7⅞ for selections of 500.

This offer was accepted and Mr. Cook bought the cheese boarded by the Norwood, Westwood, and Warminster factories.

Mr. Flavelle offered 7⅞c. for the Lindsay section, when Mr. Leary increased his bid to 7⅞ for the whole board. Mr. Flavelle asked if his offer for the Lindsay section would not be given precedence over that of Mr. Leary, as it was equal to Mr. Leary's and was made first. The Board considered that it would be unfair to Mr. Leary and to the Board to accept Mr. Flavelle's bid for the one section, when Mr. Leary offered the same for the whole board. Mr. Leary's bid of 5⅞c. for the whole board, with the exception of that sold to Mr. Cook, was accepted, and the market closed.

Mr. Drummond, president of the Board, announced that a blackboard would be provided for the next market to chronicle the cable, prices secured at other markets, and the bids made. He also announced that the next market would be held on August 10th, and subsequent markets each succeeding fortnight till the close of the season.

A Piscatorial Pic-nic.

A member of the party sends us the following notes of a Smith pleasure party:

We, as a pic-nic and a fishing party, went very early to Burleigh on Friday morning to enjoy the day and to see the Trent Valley Canal in progress. All the party were from the country except Mr. Tobias Fitzgerald, who was on hand to show us how to catch fish. We cannot say too much in his favor for he was kind enough to take our party to all good fishing points. His ability for catching fish is like magic, it seems as if the fish cannot resist his bait; he just takes them as fast as he likes. His jolly and cheerful manner made the day very enjoyable.

It seems as if the power of charming fish belong especially to the Fitzgerald family, for there was one young lady of that generation caught a very large and liberal string of fine fish. The party consisted of Joseph Trennum and family, T. E. Fitzgerald and family, James McKibbins and family, Simeon Cullene and family, John S. Fitzgerald and family, and Samuel McKee and wife.

It is but justice to state that all the people at the canal works were kindness itself. They furnished us with ice and this part of a cool reception was counterbalanced by their great kindness in showing the party all there was to see, nor is it right not to mention the ladies of the party whose capital cooking of the spoil of this rod and line, added so immensely to the enjoyment of the outing. Altogether a most enjoyable time of pleasure was experienced.

"Early Closing Question."

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner:

SIR,—Expect you thought your columns to ask what has become of the Saturday night early closing question? Monthly since you [illegible] with [illegible] pilgrim on the subject, and fairly expected that something would be done. Then comes [illegible] and [illegible] and nobody, as yet, knows the [illegible] of moving. The question is merely of too much importance, not only to the storekeepers and their assistants, but to the whole community in view of a right and proper preparation for keeping the Sabbath, to be allowed thus to go by default.

And now, when the people are crying out for short services on the Sabbath—can scarcely stand an hour—would it not be a good time to move, and to ask those in power [illegible] Saturday night be very exhausting.

HUMANITAS.

Peterborough, July 22nd, 1886.

The Challenge Accepted.

Second Vocalist Crosby.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I am sorry to trouble you Mr. Editor, but right must triumph. Please insert in your most excellent paper the following and oblige:—

[COPY.]

This certifies that Messrs. Smart and Martin brought an R. S. Williams piano to my house a short time ago, asked permission to leave it. The piano was in my house about one week, during which time several agents tried to sell it. When they found I was favorably impressed with the Stephenson piano. Mr. R. Smart called with a Stephenson catalogue. Said he had gotten the agency away from Mr. Crosby. Said it was a good piano, and offered style 17 at a low figure. By Mr. Crosby's advice I waited several weeks to see if he would bring one on trial. Mr. D. Smart told me that his son would bring one all right. This he failed to do. I then permitted Mr. Crosby to put in style 18, and next day Mr. Hartley put in a Heintzman piano. A day was appointed to open actions and prove which was the best instrument. Both parties came at the appointed time. Mr. Crosby showed the action of his piano, but Mr. Hartley refused to do so, but wanted to show a better piano. I purchased from Mr. Crosby, as I believe he had by far the best instrument. I found Mr. Crosby to be a straightforward, honest, truthful man, and as such recommend him to any one respecting my opinion.

R. NELSON,
George Street.

Peterborough, July 27th, 1886.

[COPY.]

This certifies that I was induced by Mr. F. Martin, who assists Mr. Smart to sell the R. S. Williams pianos here, to countermand an order I had given Mr. Crosby for a Lansdowne piano, by affirming solemnly that he, Mr. Crosby, was a thief, liar, swindler, etc. This I afterwards ascertained to be untrue, accepted his piano which I find is a very excellent one, and recommend Mr. Crosby to be a man of honor, and wish I could say so much about the Williams agents who pretended that they had selected me the best upright piano out of one thousand then in stock.

JANE WEBSTER.

I shall now leave the public to judge whether I am worthy of the blackmail I have received from Mr. Smart's foul tongue. He called on Mr. Nelson and begged of him not to give me any evidence against him. He has also tried to induce the young man, by offering back the organ on easy terms of payment, who lost his organ and $45 after a few months use of it, not to sign any papers for me.

I shall be happy to tell where he did some more underhand work, if necessary.

I remain,
Yours truly,
J. W. CROSBY.

Fraserville.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. A. Strike, the popular teacher who has so long been amongst us, has left this part of the country, to the regret of all who enjoyed his acquaintance, leaving a place that will with difficulty be filled. He was a host at every gathering, a brother in every household and a true friend to all who by any peculiarity in circumstances, whatever, might need assistance of any kind.

On Tuesday evening we all assembled at the school-house, where he had taught so long, when the following programme was gone through: Games of all descriptions, free ice cream, provided by the ladies of the section. Readings, recitations and songs followed, after which two of his old pupils appeared on the platform, one bearing a most elaborate dressing case, the other a roll of writing paper. At their request, the chairman summoned Mr. Strike from the audience, when he was formally presented with the above mentioned dressing case and the following address:—

Mr. Strike deeply appreciating the occasion replied as follows:—

Mr. Strike,

DEAR TEACHER,—We, the scholars of your school, hearing of your departure from us, for another sphere of duty, are moved that such ligaments as bind us to you, should be broken. We cannot expect in this land of transitoriness that acquaintances and associations should be lasting. They cannot be; circumstances prevent this. But the circumstances would indeed be forced and irregular which would change the feelings of our hearts toward you. These feelings remain untouched by the ordinary routine of life's actions.

Dear teacher, by your kindness and geniality you have gained our affections and we think we would indeed be lax in our duty, should we allow you to separate yourself from us without some token of the esteem in which you are held, both by children and parents. Kindly accept this dressing case as a souvenir of your stay and association with us and may the Divine Creator grant you health and prosperity, which even we in our humble desire, most sincerely hope for you.

Signed on behalf of the scholars,
HANNAH CAMPBELL,
LENA EMERSON,
GRACE EMERSON,
ADA RAE.

MY DEAR FRIENDS,—I feel my inability to reply to the address, laden with kindness with which you have seen fit to present me, the sentiments in which I feel unworthy of but for which I sincerely thank you. You well know that there are times in life when the emotions are stirred to such a depth that it's difficult to give utterance in words. The present occasion is such in my life, and I must say least on that I feel most. And I can only say I do deeply thank you for the presentation you have just made me. I prize it much for its intrinsic value, more because it's a lasting memento of your kindness and good will towards me, and rest assured that this present will always call up before me sweet recollections of the people of this vicinity and the many happy and joyous hours spent during my stay with you. Here I have made many and [illegible] friends, as this occasion testifies. Here through the blessing of a kind Providence I have prospered both temporally and spiritually, therefore, it is with mingled feelings of joy and sadness I take my departure. Not only have I enjoyed myself while performing my duty as teacher, but also found pleasure in associating myself with the young folk as well as the parents in this community. In conclusion I would urge upon you all, and more especially upon the children and young people present, to shun not only evil but the very appearance of it. Live unselfish lives. Try to do some good to your fellow man and for that God who has given His only son to die for you. Be proud to belong to that class called the righteous, for they are the jewels so precious in God's sight. And now, thanking you again for your kind address, your beautiful gift, and your respect in coming to spend an evening with me previous to my leaving the place which is so dear to me, I would commit you to the keeping of Him "who slumbers not nor sleeps," and should it be His will that we never again meet in this vale of tears, may He bring us all in that sweet bye and bye to meet with joy and not with grief, round His throne in heaven.

A GENTLEMAN who has just returned from the Colonial Exhibition has brought with him some remarkable papers which took his fancy. The cigars are of extraordinary size, being 6½ inches long and 11 inches thick. The interesting point about them is that when one of them is lighted the wrapper may be taken off and half a dozen cigars, each cut and lighted, are found inside. Some of the larger size contain six 10 Spartan cigars. They are of Canadian manufacture, being made in the Reliance Cigar Factory, of this city. The exhibit took a prize of $50.—Montreal Gazette of July 23rd, 1886.

A MANIAC WOMAN'S DEED.

LEFT IN CHARGE OF A CHILD, SHE KILLS AND ROASTS IT.

The Terrible Dish Served Up to Pickaninnies, Who Become so Enraged on Learning the Truth That They Burn the Murderess Alive.

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 28.—The full account of the Tatnall County cannibal affair is as follows:

A few days ago some of the colored people in the lower end of the county held a picnic. They had engaged as cook and general overseer of the culinary department an old negro woman. Great preparations had been made for the festivities, and the sport ran high. It was a hungry band that gathered for dinner and awaited the summons. It was served at last, and the merry-makers fell to with a will.

Hardly had the edibles begun to disappear when a strange hush fell upon the boisterous group. One had been served with a piece of meat that clung to a small jointed bone. It did not look like anything he had ever seen come from a frying pan before, and he showed it to his neighbor. The other looked at it attentively for a moment. "It is the finger of a child," he said.

There was a sensation which quickly spread into a panic. A hasty examination of other plates was made. Other fingers were found and pieces of meat that were evidently human flesh were held up on forks and gazed at by the now thoroughly excited negroes. They gazed at each other in a frightened way, and then there was a simultaneous break for the cabin in which the cook had prepared the meal. She met them at the door, brandishing a long knife. A wild fight—that of a maniac—gleamed from her eyes. The crowd paused as the knife was flourished over their heads; all but one, a woman who rushed forward with a shriek: "My child! what have you done with my child?"

There was no answer from the old cook.

"I left it here in her charge," cried the excited mother, appealing to the friends about her. "Whose is it! She has killed it."

With fiendish yells, the dusky army, fired by her agonizing cries, bore down upon the cook, and in spite of her frantic struggles tore the knife from her grasp. Evidence of the murder were about them. There was blood on the floor, and a table was smeared with it. The living child was nowhere to be seen, but in its place was a portion of a little human body which had been taken from the oven. Pieces of flesh had been carved from it.

The excitement among the searchers was of the wildest kind. They tore everything to pieces in the cabin in their fury. It was plain enough that the old woman had murdered the child there and had cooked half of the body. Where was the other half? There were drops of blood across the floor. Some one less excited than the rest, followed the tell-tale trail. It led to a barrel just outside and behind the shanty. A shout informed his companions that the missing portion had been found. They rushed out to find him pulling it from the barrel, where it had been salted down.

Then there was a general cry for vengeance, and the frenzied shouts rang through the trees. Some suggested lynching, but there was no rope. Others wanted to hack her in pieces with the same knife that took the life of the little child. Still another cried "Burn her!" and the cry was taken up and repeated until all in the excited crowd were crying "Burn her!" "Burn her!" She fought like a wild beast. She crouched and struggled and used her teeth and hands. But her captors were too many to cope with successfully, and she was led out to the slaughter kicking and shrieking. They dragged her to a tree and bound her tightly to it. Then they heaped brush around her and fired it in a dozen places.

A circle of fire surrounded her and from the midst of it she begged for mercy one moment and shrieked her imprecations the next; and around her stood the excited negroes watching the flames as they scorched her flesh and burned upon her clothing and enveloped her in a sheet of fire. It was a scene too terrible to paint, but not one of them took their eyes from her until she fell into the ashes a blackened corpse. The woman was undoubtedly insane.

GOING FOR AN EDITOR.

Some Temperance Women Make it Hot for a Tradesrer.

BUTLER, Pa., July 28.—Peter [illegible], an editor of the Millerstown Herald, was forcibly horsewhipped Monday night by ten or twelve of the leading women of the Royal Templars of Temperance. Last Tuesday the Millerstown branch of the Templars had a picnic at Shippery Rock, and in the next issue of Rattigan's paper a description of the society's members and their talk was given. The good women of Millerstown were spoken of as "tower-headed, red-nosed female men," and in holding the men of the party under strict slavery hour, while the women vocalized, were made arrangements to go for Rattigan. On Saturday last Rattigan, who is a bachelor also, was absent from town, and did not return until Monday night. At an appointed time Mrs. Murphy, Miss Bell and others appeared at the postoffice, armed with gum whips, and when Rattigan appeared they assaulted him and whipped him until the gum stuck and blue foam lined his mouth. Yesterday he was hung in effigy by the women. Rattigan is seriously injured.

THE SALISBURY CABINET.

A NUMBER OF APPOINTMENTS MADE AT A CONFERENCE.

Lord Randolph Churchill Chancellor of the Exchequer—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach Chief Secretary for Ireland, and the Duke of Londonderry Viceroy—A Joint Committee on Irish Affairs.

LONDON, July 28.—Mr. Goschen has been offered the office of Chancellor of the Exchequer and the leadership in the House of Commons. It is stated Mr. Goschen will not seek to re-enter Parliament at present, and that when he does he will stand as a Conservative and join the Tory party.

The following appointments have been made and accepted:

Home Secretary—Lord George Hamilton.

Chief Secretary for Ireland—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach.

Lord President of the Council—Lord Iddesleigh.

Secretary for War—Viscount Cranbrook.

The Right Hon. Wm. Henry Smith, Sir Richard Assheton Cross and the Right Hon. F. A. Stanley will enter the House of Lords.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach accepted the post of Chief Secretary for Ireland with reluctance, and only under pressure from Lord Salisbury, who held that the Irish office during the coming session would be the most important after that of Premier. Lord Randolph Churchill's not regard the appointment as the shelving of Sir Michael and as a triumph for the younger militant Conservatives. Both the Liberal and Conservative Clubs question the wisdom of the appointments. The Parnellites are incensed at the selection of Sir Michael for the Chief Secretaryship, as they recall his recent speech in favor of coercion.

The Duke of Argyl declines to take office. Mr. Chamberlain, through Lord Hartington, has promised Lord Salisbury a qualified support.

Lord Ashbourne has been entrusted with the work of drafting a scheme for the reform of the Irish administration. A private committee, including Lord Hartington, Mr. Goschen, Sir Henry James and Mr. Chamberlain will co-operate with Lord Ashbourne. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Lord Randolph Churchill and Lord Salisbury are preparing a Local Government Bill for Ireland.

It has been officially announced that the Marquis of Londonderry has been appointed Viceroy of Ireland.

It has just been decided that Lord Randolph Churchill shall have the office of Chancellor of the Exchequer and the leadership of in the House of Commons.

Lord Salisbury's Coalition.

LONDON, July 28.—The London Standard thinks that the Marquis of Salisbury's position is a safe one so long as Mr. Gladstone heads the opposition. It was noticeable at the meeting at the Carlton Club Tuesday that while Sir Michael Hicks-Beach occupied a seat at the table near the Marquis of Salisbury, Lord Randolph Churchill sat in one of the front rows with the rank and file.

The Old Ministry.

LONDON, July 28.—A hastily summoned cabinet council is in session at Lord Granville's house. It is believed that some foreign difficulty has suddenly arisen.

The Liberal ministers have decided not to shape their tactics until the Queen's speech has been read in Parliament. The meeting was informal and did not refer to foreign matters. It was decided to assist Lord Salisbury in obtaining supply.

The Tory Irish Policy.

LONDON, July 28.—The Exchange Telegraph Company announces that it is informed on high authority that Lord Salisbury's Irish policy will include a proposal to lend to Ireland the sum of £5,000,000 to enable her to establish local banks on the Scotch system and lend money at nominal interest to farmers and manufacturers in order to stimulate and develop trade.

A Tory Send For Mr. Goschen.

DUBLIN, July 28.—The Evening Mail says one of the seats for Dublin University will be secured for Mr. Goschen as Hugh Holmes, one of the present members of parliament for the University, will shortly be promoted the Lord Chief Justiceship vice the Right Hon. G. A. May, who retires.

SCANDAL AT HAMILTON.

Mrs. E. J. Duggan Seeks for a Divorce From Her Husband.

HAMILTON, July 28.—The following appeared in a local paper to-day for the first time:

Notice is given that application will be made to the Parliament of Canada at the next session thereof by me, Elizabeth Virginia Duggan, nee Elizabeth Virginia Tuckett, of the city of Hamilton, in the Province of Ontario, for a bill of divorce from my husband Richard John Duggan, formerly of the said city of Hamilton, (present residence unknown) on the grounds of adultery, desertion and cruelty.

Mrs. Duggan is the daughter of Geo. E. Tuckett, the tobacco manufacturer of this city, and has two lovely young children which are now in her custody. Duggan was a barrister here and captain of a volunteer company. He made a savage attack upon his wife one day, when her father appeared on the scene and Duggan who had a revolver discharged it at him. The ball missed Mr. Tuckett but entered his boot heel. Geo. Tuckett, jr. jumped in to the fight and Duggan was severely handled. He then disappeared from the city, and the Duggan house was broken up. He was heard of in Buffalo where he is supposed to have gone to the consoling arms of a lady wit whom he was formerly intimate here.

THE MAYOR IN THE ARMY.

The Fourth Dragoons Could to Play "God Save the Queen" at a Concert.

LONDON, July 28.—The witness of Dublin are indignant at the action of the band of the Fourth Dragoons omitting to play "God Save the Queen" at the conclusion of a public performance. This is the first time in the annals of the British army that the National Anthem has been expunged from the musical program. The bandmaster is charged with purposely omitting the hymn to please the disloyal crowd. An enquiry will be made into the matter.

The Cardinal at the Capitol.

OTTAWA, July 28.—An immense number of people assembled at the Basilica to-day at the reading of addresses to Cardinal Taschereau. Dr. St. Jean read the address of welcome from the French branch of the Reception Committee and Mr. P. Shakerville, M.P.P., that from the Irish branch. At 7 o'clock the decrees from Rome were read in the Basilica and at 9 o'clock a grand display of fireworks took place on the river.

The Riots at Amsterdam.

AMSTERDAM, July 28.—Further attempts at rioting were made last night, but the police dispersed the mobs before any serious disturbance occurred. The total casualties resulting from the outbreak are 25 killed and 40 wounded. About 50 persons have been arrested, including Mrs. Katzpin, president of the Women's Socialist Society. Only one policeman is mortally wounded. A fund is being opened for the benefit of the injured officers.

A REVOLTING MURDER.

An Old Soldier Kills and Dismembers His Mistress and Burns Her by a Stove.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 28.—Wm. B. O'Connor is under arrest for a revolting murder. He came from Ireland and in '61 went to the front and served 3 years. For several years he lived at the poorhouse. At the poor farm he took the widow of a street piper named Longyal and they lived together in Starvation alley, though O'Connor had a wife and children living. His wife had left him about three years ago because of his dissipation. Hannah, the piper's widow, left with a fish peddler last January, but has made occasional visits to O'Connor. Last Saturday, just after O'Connor had received his State aid money, the woman made one of these visits and locked on, intending with him, on seeing she would be true to him. They had a drink and all was apparently serene. Sunday morning O'Connor again treated to her remaining money, and as he says, decided that he had done enough for her desertion. Without warning he seized the woman, stripped off her clothes and pushed her into an adjoining shed. She fell, face downward, on the earth floor. Seizing an axe he dealt her a terrific blow on the head, smashing her skull. "When I gave her the first blow," he said to the marshal, "I was afraid she'd recover, and so I gave her two more. That finished her; and then I dug a hole in the shed and buried her."

During the day two or three companions of O'Connor called and they had some beer together. Sunday night after the man had gone O'Connor went to the shed, took the body out, and being unable to get it into the narrow aperture he had dug he cut off both legs with an ax, then wrapping the trunk and its members in the matting of a tea chest, he threw them into the excavation and covered them with some loose earth and then went to bed. Monday morning he went down town and made several purchases. During the afternoon he began to give away his property. He met a companion on the street and said jokingly: "I have some flour that I don't need. My State aid has been stopped. We killed Hannah and buried her in the shed and I am going to give myself up to-morrow."

The first one reported to City Marshal O'Sullivan who, accompanied by several officers, went to O'Connor's house. They burst open the door and found the murderer in bed. He stretched himself out and said: "Hello, marshal; did you come after me?"

"Where's Hannah?" asked the marshal.

"Well, she's where she'll do no harm. You'll find what's left of her there in the woodshed."

The officers pushed open the door, which was partly ajar, and looked in. Nothing was visible except a lot of wood split and a quantity of coal. "We don't see her; where is she?" asked an officer.

O'Connor, who was dressed, gave a fiendish chuckle. "You won't find her unless you dig for her," was the reply. Soon the earth was removed to-day, and the remains of the body of the victim into the bedroom of her murderer. He calmly surveyed the ghastly spectacle and simply remarked, "I told ye if ye dug for her ye'd find her." This morning when he was arraigned he pleaded "guilty."

"You had better plead 'not guilty,'" said the judge.

"What do I want to do that for? I killed her and I'm guilty, and that's all there is about it. I don't want to get out of this. I want you to hang me, and I don't care how soon."

Upon hearing this the court remanded him to jail to await trial without bail.

THE PAPAL ABLEGATE.

A Man of Extreme Wealth and Intense Devotion.

QUEBEC, July 28.—Rev. Dr. Kilroy of Stratford, Ont., who went up the Saguenay the other day with Bishop Racine of Chicoutimi, and the Ontario bishops, has furnished the following unpublished facts regarding the Papal Ablegate. He states that Mgr. O'Bryen is but 42 years old, though he has been represented at from 50 to 60. He was not born in England but in France. His father and mother were Irish, his father being a captain of great wealth in Cork. While they were traveling in France young O'Bryen was born. He was educated in England, and for some years was a priest in Liverpool. Some ten years he has removed to Rome, studying to fit himself for the duties devolving upon the Camariera. He has never left the Holy City, and stands in the very highest favor of the Vatican, being a chamberlain of the Pope, and enjoying very intimate relations with the Holy Father. He inherited the vast wealth of his father, and is one of the best known and most highly respected monsignours in Rome.

OF TEMPERATE HABITS.

An Australian Without Warning Kills Three Relations and Himself.

LONDON, July 28.—At Peage to-day, a man named Hawke shot and killed his sister, her husband, another woman and himself, a fifth person, who was present, narrowly escaped. Hawke was from Australia and was a man of temperate habits and social disposition. No motive can be assigned for the crime. He was chatting pleasantly with his relatives when he suddenly drew a revolver and fired with the above result.

Horrible Butchery.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 28. Ben Hicks and Tom Hayes, negroes of Jasper, Marion County, got into a difficulty yesterday over a quarrel between their wives. Hays attacked Hicks with a razor, when upon Hicks drew a large pruning knife and cut Hayes, severing his jugular vein. He then cut several ribs entirely in twain, divided his heart, opened his stomach and bowels, cut a portion of one ear off, and cut one leg nearly off at the hip. Hayes died instantly. The murderer escaped.

Murdered With a Hatchet.

LONDON, July 28. A farmer named Whelan has been murdered near Callan in Kilkenny County, Ireland. The deed was committed with a hatchet and was the result of Agrarian troubles. One arrest has been made.

A Big Swim.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Miss Sundstrom, champion swimmer, swam from Governor's Island to High Bridge on the Harlem river, a distance of about eleven miles in four hours this afternoon.

The Emperor is Not Dead.

PARIS, July 28. A great sensation was caused in the bourse and boulevards to-day by a report that the Emperor William was dead, and crowds of excited men could be seen everywhere discussing the rumor. Rentes fell to 82 francs, 75 centimes, but on the report being officially denied the market recovered.

No Concern of the Ottawa Government.

OTTAWA, July 28.—Despatches having appeared in several United States and some Canadian newspapers stating that the Government had, in response to appeals for assistance, despatched a vessel bearing provisions for the distressed fishermen in Newfoundland and Labrador, the officers of the Marine and Fisheries Department have been interviewed concerning the matter. They state that no vessel has been sent, and that the department must have no official knowledge of the matter, which is beyond their jurisdiction, the Canadian Government, of course, having nothing to do with Newfoundland. The mayor of Toronto having written to the department enquiring what steps were being taken received an answer to the above effect.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER'S MISSION.

Sir Charles Tupper, is announced as being on the point of leaving England for Canada "on important public business." The "important business" alleged to be the cause of his return to Canada, is in connection with the family quarrel in the Conservative ranks in Nova Scotia. There are several applicants for the late Judge Rigby's place on the Supreme Court bench. Mr. Townshend, Mr. Daly, and Mr. Wallace are said to be pressing their claims, and Sir Charles expects to arrange matters so that his son's partner will get the appointment. In assuming this role our Lord High Commissioner, will be acting in character, and it shows that he has not forgotten the lessons he learned in looking after the spoils while he was a member of the government. But it would seem that the real cause of his mission home, is of a more general political nature. The news of his proposed return to Canada revives the rumour that Sir John intends to resign on his return from his trans-continental tour and that Tupper is to be placed in the position of leader of the party. It must be acknowledged that when Sir John ceases to be leader, the party in the squabble for the leadership, between half a dozen ambitious incompetents, will stand in danger of tumbling to pieces. Sir Charles Tupper is largely a man after Sir John's own heart, who takes more kindly and intelligently to the crooked character of Sir John's policy and possesses more ability to carry out his plans, than any of the ministerial mediocrities Sir John gathers to his council board. In the past Sir John was jealous of Sir Charles' influence and ambition, which largely accounts for the latter being in the position he now occupies. When Sir John concludes to retire, it is only natural that he should select, as a worthy successor, the man who was the only one whose ambition and ability the Premier held in fear. Sir Charles Tupper is a man of great energy but he lacks the personal qualities that make Sir John the autocrat of his party. Sir Charles is able but not astute. He is a great stretcher, but he lacks the ability to bribe one man by a promise, while he satisfies another with its fulfilment. Sir Charles, in fine, is not the "man for Galway." He is the best that can be got, perhaps, but he will not be able to keep the party together. The Conservative party in Canada, as far as its leading members—professional politicians—are concerned, is a heterogenous aggregation of personal ambition, whose only common interest is the prospect of plunder, and Sir John is the bond that unites them. Sir Charles is not the cement.

SOME newspapers are expending considerable ink and indignation over Sir John's inconsistency in delaying the Haldimand election till after the Dominion voters' lists were completed, and bringing on the Chambly election at once. There is no occasion for surprise; Sir John would not be Sir John if he were not Sir John. He would not be honest (to his character) if he were not dishonest in his political methods; he would not be consistent if he were not inconsistent.

THE Toronto World thus hits the Tory organ between wind and water:—

"The esteemed Mail warmly approves of President Cleveland's endeavors to stem the tide of extravagance at Washington. This is right. There is perhaps nothing next to the approval of his own conscience, that affords Mr. Cleveland so much pleasure as the distinguished approval of the esteemed Mail. Still Canadians have reason to regret that so powerful an advocate of virtue and economy should be so fully engaged in purifying the political atmosphere of Westminster and the Capital, that it finds no time to turn its fumigator Ottawawards.

Keene.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The great bulk of the fall wheat in this locality is safely stored, and the farmers are very busy with the barley, much of which is already secured.

Joseph Canean, Esq., of Seymour, son of Captain Canean, paid our village a visit on Tuesday. We had the pleasure of a call from him.

The "Water Belle," a valuable skiff belonging to the family of Dr. Massie, was burned to the water's edge by some drinking night prowlers in the early hours of Sunday morning last. They filled the boat with dry rails and other combustibles, so there would be no chance of the fire failing to do its destructive work, and left the hapless thing to her fate among the reeds near the first bend. Truly a deed to be proud of. What with the smashing of windows, girdling of fruit trees, burning of pleasure boats, and assaulting officers of the law, the Antis have reason to exult in their achievements.

Personal.

Mr. John McCaw, boot and shoe merchant, Welland, Ont., and a prominent member of the crack cricket club of the Niagara district, is in town on a short visit to friends.

Mr. J. L. Margach, late of Brockville, but who has been in this city for some time past in the position of general manager of the Dominion Organ and Piano Co., Bowmanville, was in town on Tuesday, and favored us with a call to-day.

Mr. John Weir, of Stratford, M.W.G.P. of I.O.O.F., arrived in town to-day and registered at the Oriental. A special meeting of the Mount Hebron Encampment will be held this evening to receive him.

Mr. D. H. Wright, travelling auditor for the Rathbun Company, Deseronto, has been in town the past day or two, on official business. He has actuarial oversight of the accounts of the different agencies of the company, which extend from Peterborough in the west to Ottawa in the east. This enterprising firm commands an immense business. In addition to their numerous agencies their pay roll at the home office, Deseronto, amounts to $4,000 per week. The local agency, under the careful and business-like management of Mr. W. B. Ferguson, is daily increasing in importance, and promises, at no distant day, to be one of the most important agencies of the company.

Dummer.

Mr. Wm. R. Howson, of Dummer, left at the office of the Norwood Register, on Tuesday, the finest sample of fall wheat, that paper says, we have ever had the pleasure of seeing. It measures five feet in height and the heads are well filled with beautiful, plump grain. He has fifteen acres, same as sample shown us, and challenges "the world" for a better exhibit.

"Monarch" Crosby.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to this alleged challenge claimed to be accepted, Mr. Crosby, with all his "evidence," has failed to substantiate any of his statements about the "great competition" he says he had with me and the R. S. Williams and Marshall & Smith pianos. The statement of Mr. Nelson respecting Mr. Martin and myself putting a piano in his house, refers to a time long past. Mr. Martin, about three months ago, placed a piano at Mr. Nelson's. Refusing to sell it on Mr Nelson's terms, the piano was removed—Mr. Nelson strongly objecting to it, as his wife alleged that Mr. Martin agreed to leave it six months—a time that would permit of two quarter's practice, without any guarantee that the instrument would be bought at the end of that time.

Mr. Nelson then asked Mr. R. L. Smart, who was then traveller for D. W. Karn, wholesale agent for the Stephenson piano, to bring in one of these instruments on trial. This he at first consented to do for the sum of $225, but I advised him to have nothing to do with Mr. Nelson. Now, where does Mr. Nelson show a competition between me and Mr. Crosby? As regards honesty and truthfulness, I don't have to get a recommend from Mr. Nelson.

In the second place, Mr. Crosby claims competition in the house of Jane Webster. This lady I don't remember to have spoken to for about a year. Her evidence goes to prove that the assertion of Crosby in a former letter that I called him a thief, liar, swindler, etc., is false. It was T. Martin, of Toronto, according to her, that spoke in such plain terms. If there is no truth in the statements, why don't he, with such strong evidence as Jane Webster's, prosecute his slanderer. But she gives no evidence of a competition with me, and the "competition" is the essence of Crosby's original statement.

Now, sir, the following will show the truthfulness of Mr. Crosby respecting the "poor woman and little boy," he alleges I took an organ from. The same young man—not "little boy"—told me last night that Mr. Crosby offered him an organ at a great reduction, if he would allow him (Crosby) to use the young man's name to prove his statement, which he refused to permit. He also told me that he made no statement to Mr. Crosby to the effect that I asked him not to sign any papers for Crosby.

Now, sir, the following will show how truthful the man Crosby is, and how much honor he has got:

I am prepared to testify on oath that D. Smart had no pianos in competition in either of the above named places, and that I was offered an inducement by one of the Crosby clique if I would go to Mr. Nelson and recommend the Stephenson piano to be better than the Heintzman.

PROF. J. A. DOUCET.

I submit this evidence to the interested public to judge for themselves.

Important Information to the Trade.

We have received information from a reliable source that some of the wholesale dealers are endeavoring to injure our brands by representing "that they are not as good as they used to be." This is done for the sole purpose of foisting upon the retailer and the consumer, private and unknown brands, that pay them (the wholesalers) a large profit. It is a well-known and indisputable fact that for the past twenty-five years the reputation and the quality of the justly celebrated and popular brands, CABLE, EL PADRE, and others of our manufacture, have been and always will be maintained, the statements of interested parties to the contrary, notwithstanding. We respectfully beg to impress upon smokers the importance of their insisting upon having our reliable and well known brands, if they desire to avoid smoking cheap trashy cigars, when a little thoughtfulness would have obviated the annoyance and disappointment consequent upon taking whatever is handed to them. Retailers would do well to avoid the persuasive and oratorical jobber, that endeavors to impress upon them the importance of trying private and unknown brands in preference to the CABLE and EL PADRE that have outlived the thousand and 1 brands that have been introduced since the introduction of the CABLE and EL PADRE. Our (5c) CABLE is put up in two sizes, the CONCHA and IMPERIAL QUEEN cigar, has a narrow red band with the word CABLE on it. None other genuine. Our new brand MADRE E HIJO is exceptionally fine and well worth a trial. S. DAVIS & SONS, Factories, Montreal, Toronto branch, 34 Church street.

Ladies troubled with Pimples, Blotches, Rough Hands or Face, or Sores of any description, should use McGregor & Parke's Carbolic ceratc. LOVE'S VICTORY.

BY BERTHA M CLAY

CHAPTER XXVII.

READING OF THE WILL.

Assistance was soon procured, and Sir Oswald was carried to his room; Dr. Holmstone was sent for, and when he arrived the whole house was in confusion. Lady Darrell wrung her hands in the most graceful distress.

"Now, Elinor," said Lady Hampton, "pray do not give way to anything of that kind. It is a fortunate thing for you that I am here. Let me beg of you to remember that, whatever happens, you are magnificently provided for. Sir Oswald told me as much. There is really no need to excite yourself in that fashion."

While Lady Darrell, with a few graceful exclamations and a very pretty show of sorrow, managed to attract all possible sympathy, Pauline moved about with a still, cold face, which those best understood who knew her nature. It seemed intensely to the girl that anything unexpected should happen to her uncle. She had only just begun to love him; that evening had brought those two proud hearts closer together than they had ever been; the ice was broken; each had a glimmering perception of the real character of the other—a perception that in time would have developed into perfect love. It seemed too hard that after he had just begun to like her—that as soon as a true and genuine sentiment was springing up between them—he must die.

For it had come to that. Care, skill, talent, watching, were all in vain; he must die. Grave-faced doctors had consulted about him, and with professional keenness had seen at once that his case was hopeless. The ailment was a sudden and dangerous one—violent inflammation of the lungs. No one could account for the sudden seizure. Sir Oswald had complained of pain during the day, but no one thought that it was anything serious in its nature. His manner, certainly, had been strange, with a sad pathos quite unlike himself; but no one saw in that the commencement of a mortal illness.

Lady Hampton frequently observed how fortunate it was that she was there. To all inquiries as to the health of her niece, she replied, "Poor, dear Lady Darrell is bearing up wonderfully;" and with the help of pathetic little speeches, the frequent use of a smelling-bottle, a few tears, and some suitable self-condolence, that lady did bear up.

Suffice to say, the one who felt the heaviest blow, the deepest regret, the truest pain, was the niece with whom Sir Oswald had continually found fault, and whom he had disinherited. She went about with a sorrow of her face more eloquent than words. Lady Hampton said it was all assumed; but Lady Darrell said, more truly, that Pauline was not a girl to assume a grief she did not feel.

Sir Oswald died after a week of severe illness, during which he never regained the power of speech, nor could he make himself intelligible. The most distressing thing was that there was evidently something which he wished to say—something which he desired to make them understand. When Pauline was in the room his eyes followed her with a wistful glance, pitiful, sad, distressing; he evidently wished to say something, but had not the power.

With that wish unexpressed he died, and they never knew what it was. Only Pauline thought that he meant, even at the last, to ask her for forgiveness and to do her justice.

Darrell Court was thrown into deepest mourning; the grave, solemn tread about with hushed footsteps and sorrowful faces. He had been kind to them, the stately old master; and who knew what might happen under the new reign? Lady Hampton was, she assured everyone, quite overwhelmed with business; she had to make all arrangements for the funeral, to answer all the mourning, while Lady Darrell was composed to the verge of tears with sorrow at the retirement of her husband.

One bright spring morning, while the pretty flowers were carrying in the wind, a noble day for sun was shining pitilessly on the budding trees, while the birds sang and the sun shone, Sir Oswald Darrell was buried, and the secret of what he had wished to say or have done was buried with him.

At Lady Darrell's suggestion, Captain Langton was sent for to attend the funeral. It was a grand and stately procession. All the elite of the county were there, all the tenantry from Audleich Royal, all the friends who had known Sir Oswald and respected him.

"Was he the last of Darrell?" one asked of another; and many looked at the stately, dark-eyed girl who bore the name, wondering how he had left his property, whether his niece would succeed him, or his wife take all. They talked of this in subdued whispers as the funeral cortège wound its way to the church, they talked of it after the coffin had been lowered into the vault and they talked of it as the procession made its way back to Darrell Court.

As Lady Hampton said, it was a positive relief to open the windows and let the blessed sunshine in, to draw up the heavy blinds, to do away with the dark, mourning aspect of the place.

Everything had been done according to rule—no peer of the realm could have had a more magnificent funeral. Lady Hampton felt that in every respect full honor had been done both to the living and the dead.

"Now," she wisely remarked, "there is nothing to be done, save to hear up as well as it is possible."

Then, after a solemn and dreary dinner, the friends and invited guests went away, and the most embarrassing ceremony of all had to be gone through—the reading of the will.

Mr. Saunders, the family solicitor, was in attendance. Captain Langton, Lady Darrell, Lady Hampton, and Miss Darrell took their seats. Once or twice Lady Hampton looked with a smile of malicious satisfaction said there was not one who did not wish in his heart that Pauline might have Darrell Court.

Lady Darrell, clad in deepest mourning, was placed in a large arm-chair in the center of the room, and looked extremely [illegible] in black sweeping [illegible].

Pauline, who evidently thought the ceremony an empty one, as far as she was concerned, stood near the table. She declined the chair that Captain Langton placed for her. Her uncle was dead; she regretted him with true, unfeigned, sincere sorrow; but the reading of his will had certainly nothing to do with her. There was not the least shadow on her face, but there was a composure in her [illegible] that at first would perplex Lady Darrell and at last alarm the sentence of distinct [illegible].

Lady Darrell did not look quite so tranquil—everything was at stake for her. She held her dainty handkerchief to her face lest the trembling of her lips should be seen.

Mr. Saunders read the will, and its contents did not take any one much by surprise. The most important item was a legacy of ten thousand pounds [illegible] Audley Langton. To Pauline [illegible] an annuity of five hundred pounds per annum, with the strict injunction that she should live at Darrell Court until her marriage; if she never married, she was to reside there until her death. To all his faithful servants Sir Oswald left legacies. To his well-beloved wife, Elinor, he bequeathed all else—Darrell Court, with its rich dependencies and royal revenues, his estate in Scotland, his house in town, together with the valuable furniture, plate, jewelry, pictures, all the moneys that had been invested during [illegible]—all to her, to hold for her own [illegible]; there was not [illegible] to [illegible] near the [illegible].

To the foregoing Sir Oswald had added a codicil; he left Miss Hastings one hundred pounds per annum, and begged of her to remain at Darrell Court as companion to Lady Elinor and his niece.

Then the lawyer folded up the parchments, and the ceremony was ended.

"A very proper will," said Lady Hampton; "it really does poor dear Sir Oswald credit."

They hastened to congratulate Lady Darrell; but Captain Langton, it was observed, forgot to do so—he was watching Pauline's calm, unconcerned departure from the room.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first claim or mortgage on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The annual statement shows that the amount so invested was over $386,681, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgage may be repaid by yearly instalments, either wise as may be agreed upon, the interest coming at once on all amounts paid on account of the sum borrowed.

Applications may be made either to the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

"Who Said Rats?"

A red flag floated from a tree box on the corner of Hunter and Water streets, near Cavanagh's hotel, yesterday afternoon, calling attention to a well executed crayon portrait of a terrier dog, under which appeared the suggestive words: "Who said rats?" A poem on the "Blue Law" was tacked alongside.

Entertainment.

A vocal and musical entertainment for the benefit of the library of the Roman Catholic Separate School, will be given at the Murray Street School grounds on Thursday evening, the 29th inst., in which the leading amateurs of the town will take part. The band will also be present. Refreshments can be obtained on the grounds. Admission 15 cents, children 10 cents.

No Spectators, No Match.

The game of lacrosse for a barrel of flour, which was to have been played yesterday evening on the Riverside Park by pick-up teams of the Riverside club, did not take place. Not that the players were not present or the barrel of flour forthcoming, but the spectators were not numerous enough to warrant such an expenditure of strength, skill and breadstuff as the match would necessarily involve.

Bon Marche.

This is French for Big Bargains, and Carton intends to translate it into plain English—Big Bargains—which he will be ready to offer the public beginning next Saturday. On Friday stock-taking will be finished, and on Saturday the work of rushing off the stock at prices never before heard of, will be begun. The present stock of the Bon Marche was bought at a big sacrifice and it must be run off as rapidly as the lowest prices will do it. There will be a big rush, but there is a big staff of clerks, and everybody will be served. First come, first served. Be on hand in time and secure the best bargains. This is a bona fide big bargain sale, and the public must not neglect it.

Preparing for Winter Sports.

Mr. H. Calcutt has taken time by the forelock, and during the past two weeks has had a force of men employed in moving the toboggan slide on the Riverside Park about a hundred feet south and east. The slide now stands close to the river's edge near the millrace. In addition to the change in position, which will increase the runway about one hundred feet, the slide has had an extension of over thirty feet added to it, which makes it about twenty feet higher. It now stands about fifty feet high, with a run of over eighty feet. The slide was a success last winter, and Mr. Calcutt is determined that it will also be next winter, and to insure success has made the above improvements.

The Rev. Dr. Burns, is said to be one of the most eloquent speakers in Canada. He discusses the Ideal Sunday from a Christian standpoint, in the Opera House, this Wednesday, 4th of August. Admission, 25c., reserved seats, 50c.

Vandalism.

During last week a number of river drivers broke into Mr. Harry Cluttons hunting lodge, on Pigeon Lake, by forcing open the door, and amused themselves by breaking furniture, etc., to the extent of about $20 or so. Chief Cooper went down to Bobcaygeon on Monday to ferret out the vandals. It is likely they will be brought to justice.

Creditable.

The reports in connection with the recent matriculation examination for Toronto University, show that Mr. F. C. Armstrong stood in the first-class honor list in English, and Mr. H. E. T. Haultain, second in the first-class honor list in Mathematics. The high standing of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute pupils at these examinations is very creditable to the Institute as well as the pupils.

Cricket on Civic Holiday.

Mr. J. E. Hammond, Secretary of the P. A. A. A. Cricket Club, has received notice from the Secretary of the Orillia Club, accepting the Peterborough club's challenge to play a match in Orillia, on August 19th, Peterborough's Civic Holiday, the date of the P. A. A. A.'s excursion to that town. A lively game may be expected, as Orillia has a good team.

Dog Days.

Untagged dogs were not numerous on the streets to-day and have evidently been shut up till after the close season. A number of persons called on the Town Clerk during the day and showed bruises heard, which insure their dogs against, sudden and dangerous death. The pop of the policeman's pistol accompanied by the yell of dying dogs has not yet been heard. One policeman avers that he will not shoot a dog. He carries a club, which he claims will kill at the first stroke, any dog untagged.

Almost an Accident.

A party of four young men who paddled down the river yesterday evening were within a stroke of going over the slide at the locks. After portaging on the home stretch, the steering of the canoe was entrusted to a verdant paddler, who ran it to the edge of the slide. At this critical moment one of the party snatched the paddle from his hand and by a few vigorous strokes prevented the craft and party from going over. Had the boat gone over it would have, in all probability, been a serious affair—and at the least would have furnished a good item.

From Stony Lake.

The Great Past, Present and Future Grand Angler of Crescent Camp, Gin Island, Stony Lake, sends home word that the Crescent Camp Coterie, is having a glorious time, and all are enjoying themselves to their heart's content, with the exception probably of the cook, whose work is never done. The G. P., P. F. G. A. reports fishing excellent and adds that his canoe has had more fish hauled into it than any boat on the back lakes, during the past week. The statement no doubt is correct, but the evidence though scaly is not scaly enough. It would be better to send substantial proof, not necessarily for publication, but as an evidence of good—fishing.

Midnight Murder Sensation.

Last night a young gentleman was returning home from an evening conference with his inamorata. He was light of heart—and head, too, for the matter of it—and strode along whistling merrily, for there lingered in his brain the memory, and in the strands of his seal brown moustache, the amorous aura of the good-night osculatory farewell performance across the front gate. As he drew near to his hotel he saw an excited crowd collected. On entering his hotel he met his landlord coming down the stairs, struggling in the throes of making a moving toilet, the bottoms of his pantaloons clustering in rugose rings around his ankles and his suspender buckles beating a metallic tattoo on the steps. "There's been a murder committed" he shouted as, regardless of broken bone possibilities, he ran down the incoming guest, "I heard some one shout 'murder'." He rushed into the street and became leader of the crowd that set out to find the scene of slaughter. Round square, after square, the crowd which grew larger at every corner, rushed without finding the object of their search. At length, after covering a mile or two of street, they brought up at No. 1 police station. Here it came out that a moxified citizen, in the exercise of a Briton's inalienable right, had been beating his wife, and that a neighbor, had rushed down street shouting "police." This was the origin and essence of the murder sensation.

Dropped Dead.

Mr. Alfred Brown, of Havelock, Expires at the Residence of Mr. Hurd, of Smith, While Eating Breakfast.

Mr. Alfred Brown, of Havelock, agent for Mr. Washington Irwin, tinsmith, of Peterborough, fell dead this morning at the residence of Mr. Hurd, 7th line, Smith, while at breakfast. Mr. Brown called at Mr. Hurd's last night and offered his wares for sale. He asked Mr. Hurd permission to remain all night, which request was granted. Before going to bed he complained of rheumatism, which he said affected him in the region of the heart. In the morning he again complained of a severe pain over the heart. While at breakfast he was seized with a fit and expired immediately. Dr King was summoned, but his services were not required, as the deceased was beyond medical aid. Heart disease was the cause.

Mr. Brown is well known around this neighborhood as a quiet and industrious man of honest and upright principles. He leaves a wife and family, who reside in Havelock. They have the sympathy of the whole community in their sad bereavement.

Mr. Irwin, who received notice of Mr. Brown's death, had his remains coffined and prepared for burial. They will be taken to Havelock this evening.

Band Uniform Fund Social.

A meeting of the ladies representing the different church congregations in town, is called for Friday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, for the purpose of making arrangements for the social for the benefit of the Fire Brigade Band uniform fund. It is to be hoped that the meeting will be largely attended, and be as harmonious as the music of the organization in whose interests it is held, and that the result will be as satisfactory as the music dispensed so freely by the band at church socials.

Boycotting the Billows.

The supernumerary at to-day has no opportunity to prove his value to his employer, says W. J. Florence, in "Confessions of a Supe," in the Brooklyn Eagle. How can a supernumerary advance in the profession when such lengthy plays occupy the American stage? There are no spearmen, no Roman victors, in "Ten Nights in a Railroad Car," in "The Musical Cockroaches," or the "Roller-Skater in Bucktown." Who could play the dead Cæsar as I used to do it? To be sure, I used to suffer on account of my long hair, I remember once I was to play the dead Cæsar. The bier, a long, two-handled stretcher, had but two cross-bars for me to rest on, and my legs hung over the end. But, as I was a dead man, of course I had to hold them out stiffly. Well, the position was painful. Stiff, as I was covered with a pall and dead Cæsar's toga, I did not mind. But oh! my agony from having nothing to rest my back on—literally supporting my entire weight on the back of my head and the calves of my legs. The gentleman who was delivering the oration over me—Marc Antony—was very slow and long-winded. So that when he came to the lines: "See what a rent the envious Brutus made," I suddenly collapsed. I bent up like a jack-knife and slumped through the bier with my knees glued to my chin. I appeared like a sack of oats fallen through a broken wheelbarrow. But did I move? No! I stood it as a dead Cæsar should, although the nasty stage carpenter did me prod with sharpened knitting-needles through the stage flooring. I have acted the waves of the ocean, covered overhead, when covered with green cloth, in company with other supers. We had to rise up and down on our knees to imitate the billows. I remember one night we were playing "Flying Dutchman" waves. They were strong, and we had to skirmish around under the sea-cloth waiting to begin "the stormy ocean," the captain of the supes said: "Boys, old Vanderdecker, the manager, is going to cut down our wages. Let's fix him. No waves tonight." "Good!" exclaimed the remainder of the billows. The prompter's whistle sounded. The scene opened. The ocean remained tranquil. The Flying Dutchman cussed and swore—to no purpose. Not a billow waved. They boycotted the ocean. I was discharged for that, though I had no hand in it. I was discharged just once before for a slight mistake. I had to announce: "Diana de Portier and Le Gen. Melieux." I simply said: "Dennis Porter and Gen. Miller." The audience gave me away and I was discharged. I could get along better if I was not compelled to talk. I am out of a situation now, though a Syracuse manager has offered me position as understudy for a lamp post.

An Indian Millionaire.

A somewhat notable character has died in Bombay, says the Times of India, in the person of Mr. Kessowjee Jadowjee, a wealthy Bhattia merchant, who was popularly spoken of during life as a "millionaire." The amount of property he has left behind him does not probably fall far short of 90 lakhs of rupees. Although one of the wealthiest men in Bombay, he lived in very humble style at Mandvie, in the native town, and affected no greater display than a man earning a small salary might have done. His dress differed in no respect from that of his fellow-countrymen of low degree, and he drove about in a broken-down one-horse shigram. Like many other wealthy men of penurious habits he was extremely litigious. His disagreements with his son, owing to the dissolute and extravagant habits of the latter, will be fresh in the recollection of many in Bombay. The son fell into the hands of the money-lenders and others, who expected that the father would, as he had done on numerous occasions previously, discharge his debts, but the old man seems to have determined that he would no longer minister to his son's extravagances, and he refused to lift a finger to save him from jail. Lilladhur Kessowjee, the son, was on the debtor side of the jail for some time, and eventually died from disease aggravated if not brought on by his excesses. Owing to the notoriously evil life of the son, and his flagrant breaches of caste rules, Mr. Kessowjee and his family were excommunicated by their caste until they had made a pilgrimage to Benares to expiate their sins by the course of religious discipline prescribed on such occasions. The old man was too feeble to undertake this journey, and died under the ban of his caste. As a consequence, enormously wealthy as he was, his funeral ceremonies were only attended by about ten or a dozen persons. It is believed that the bulk of the deceased's immense property will go to a nephew, a lad some eight years of age, whom he had some intention of adopting, although he did not live long enough to have the necessary adoption ceremonies performed.

DR. WASHINGTON, Throat and Lung Surgeon, 324 Yonge St., Toronto:

St. Thomas, June 28, 1886.

THE JOURNAL.

Allow me through your paper to thank Dr. Washington, throat and lung surgeon, for his great skill in curing me of catarrh which had greatly troubled me for years, also an exceedingly bad form of chronical thrush. My throat for weeks was so badly ulcerated that it was almost impossible for me to swallow, the inner palate being eaten through, a hole big enough to pass a large pease quite through. It is now entirely healed, and as I can now [illegible] to my work once more, I wish to thank the doctor, and also to recommend any who may be afflicted with catarrh or any disagreeable disease.

Yours truly, W. H. DAY.

A GENUINE SMOKE.

A Cigar manufactured from the Colonial Exhibition has brought with him some remarkable cigars which took his fancy. The cigars are of extraordinary size, being 6½ inches long and 1¼ inches thick. The interesting point about them is that when one of them is lighted the overpoor may be taken off and half a dozen cigars cut and lighted. are found inside. Some of the larger size contain six to fourteen cigars. They are of Canadian manufacture, being made by the Reliance Cigar Factory, of this city. The exhibit took a prize of $400.—Montreal Gazette of July 22nd, 1886.

EXTRAORDINARY CAREER OF A NEW YORK NEWSPAPER MAN.

His Victims Scattered all Over Europe—A Retinue of Forty-eight Servants in Rags—He Served in New York for Passing Worthless Checks.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Ross Raymond, formerly a newspaper reporter, who has figured frequently in Police Courts as a swindler, was arrested to-day at the Hotel St. George for passing worthless checks. On June 24th and 25th Raymond had cashed by the manager of the Belvidere Hotel two checks made to his (Raymond's) order by "George Fairchild" on the banking firm of Spencer, Trask & Co. of Albany. Spencer, Trask & Co. repudiated both checks. The prisoner was remanded until to-morrow. Raymond is about 35 years old, and has victimized people all over the world. In Europe and the East Indies he swindled various consuls and hotel men, claiming to be the correspondent of the London Standard, New York Times and New York Herald. While in Calcutta he lived with a beautiful woman, whom he passed for his wife, and it is said has a retinue of forty-eight servants. Once when in Paris Raymond claimed to have an important commission from Chinese Gordon. He invited a company of dignitaries to a lavish banquet at a hotel and borrowed 50f francs from the proprietor.

UNION VS. K. OF L.

Progress of the Cigarmakers' Trouble in New York City.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The trouble between the Knights of Labor, represented by District Assembly 49, and the Progressive Cigar makers, has now assumed a serious aspect and any day may witness a lockout of those made of cigarmakers, male and female, in the eleven factories of the Manufacturers' Association. Yesterday a committee from District Assembly 49 called on the firm of Levy Bros., and a member of the committee named Wolf said: "All persons employed in this factory who are and intend to remain Knights of Labor can continue work; all others must seek employment elsewhere. The first shall guide this statement." A scene of excitement followed, and 400 male and female hands put on their hats and marched out. They held a meeting in Avenue and girl penned resolutions declaring the right of the Knights of Labor to interfere with them, and protesting against their action. A committee was sent to the firm and informed them that the employes would only return as union hands. A member of the committee said that he had discovered a regular conspiracy between the Knights of Labor and the manufacturers to wipe out the cigarmakers' unions.

Two Rural Youths Fight For a Girl.

BELLEVILLE, July 20.—An interesting episode occurred in the southern part of Rawdon Township Sunday evening. On leaving church a young man from Marmora attempted to escort a young lady to her home. A Rawdon admirer interfered and a fight ensued. Rawdon assaulted Marmora, but the combatants did not settle their differences at that time. Arrangements were made for a meeting Tuesday afternoon for final settlement. A select party accompanied the combatants to the appointed place, one of the number being the girl's father. He directed that they should have a rough-and-tumble fight, the victor to have the girl. Marmora won.

What Can St. Shun?

ST. PAUL, July 20.—A secret meeting of Irish Nationalists from all parts of the country was held in St. Paul and adjourned Tuesday without anybody finding it out. In fact the meeting was held here in order to be secret, and the few in St. Paul who were there refuse to say anything about it. It is supposed to have been preliminary to the Chicago Convention. Among those present were: Alex ander Sullivan, M. Bowland of New York, J. J. Mareny of Philadelphia, P. Walker of Dubuque and Judge Brophy of Quincy.

He Couldn't go to the Circus.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, July 20.—Emanuel Chiares, a boy of 15, early this morning slew his stepmother with an axe while she was sleeping. Her head was almost severed from her body. The boy was found by her corpse weeping. He said he had become enraged because she would not let him go to the circus, and that when he awoke this morning the devil told him to cut her head off. He is now in jail.

A Defaulter Owns Up.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—Edward P. Pierson, the defaulting cashier of the American Sunday Publication Society, has confessed, and states that Benj. Felsberg, an employee of the Society, was associated with him. Felsberg left the city a week ago. Pierson paid $17,000 of the stolen money back to the Society. The amount of the loss is $30,271. Pierson is under $20,000 bail.

The Scheme of the Doughty.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 20.—The Americans have filed their defence in the case of the Rev. M. Doughty seizure in May last at St. Anne. The document admits the making of the treaty in 1818, but contends that its provisions must be construed in connection with the treaty of 1823 and more particularly article B thereof. The contention is that these acts do not prohibit the purchase of bait or ice.

A GOVERNMENT FORMED.

LORD SALISBURY ABOUT COMPLETES HIS DIFFICULT TASK.

Lord Randolph Churchill Leader of the Commons—Opinions of the Irish Press on the Marquis of Londonderry's Appointment—Gordon Hotarthy on the Situation.

LONDON, July 20.—The following appointments are officially announced:
Secretary for Foreign Affairs—The Earl of Iddesleigh.
Chief Secretary for Ireland—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach.
Chancellor of the Exchequer—Lord Randolph Churchill, who, by virtue of his appointment, becomes the recognized leader of the Conservatives in the House of Commons.
Secretary for War—Right Hon. W. H. Smith.
First Lord of the Admiralty—Lord George Hamilton.
Lord High Chancellor—Baron Halsbury.
Secretary for India—Right Hon. Frederick Arthur Stanley.
Prime Minister and first Lord of the treasury—The Marquis of Salisbury.
Lord Lieutenant of Ireland—The Marquis of Londonderry.
Lord President of the Council—Viscount Cranbrook.
President of the Local Government Board—Right Hon. Henry Chaplin.
President of the Board of Trade—Right Hon. E. Stanhope.
Commissioner of Works—Right Hon. D. Plunket.
Attorney-General—Sir R. Webster.
Lord Chancellor of Ireland—Lord Ashbourne.
The Right Hon. Henry Cecil Raikes has declined to accept the office of home secretary which Lord Salisbury pressed on him. He will probably be nominated by the Conservatives for the office of deputy speaker and chairman of committees in the House of Commons in opposition to Mr. Leonard Henry Courtney, Radical, the Liberal candidate.
Home Secretary—Henry Matthews, Q.C.
Secretary for Scotland—Right Hon. Arthur Balfour.
Postmaster-General—Right Hon. Henry Cecil Raikes.
Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster—Lord John Manners.
Patronage Secretary to the Treasury—A. Akers Douglas.
Attorney-General for Ireland—Right Hon. Hugh Holmes, Q.C.
Solicitor-General of Ireland—John Gregory Gibson, Q.C.

Justin McCarthy's Views.

NEW YORK, July 20—Justin McCarthy in his cable to the Herald quotes the concluding words of an article "On the prospects of the Cabinet of the Union," in the Pall Mall Gazette as follows: "The test of Lord Salisbury's statesmanship will be the closeness with which he perceives the greatness of his advantages, and the firmness with which he seizes the opportunity offered to him of effecting a patriotic and impartial solution of the perennial problem of Irish discontent."

After stating that the Gazette now gives a sort of general support to the Salisbury administration Mr. McCarthy says "I don't agree with the general argument of the Pall Mall, but I quite admit that Lord Salisbury has great advantages just now, and that if he can really effect a generous and impartial solution of the problem of Irish discontent, he will have proved his statesmanship. But most of the volunteer advisors of Lord Salisbury in the London press seem to take no account of the Irish people in their suggestions as to the management of Ireland.

"Parliament will be called together in a few days, and as we now hear, will not be a mere formal gathering, but will go through a good deal of money business if it can, and then adjourn at the ordinary time, with a session in the early part of February. There is a good deal of reckoning without one's host in all this. What Salisbury wishes to do is to get the whole winter to think over his policy for Ireland, and to come before parliament next year with some distinct scheme. Thus he would escape the necessity of saying anything for the present about concessions that would take over the general Irish question for some months more.

"If the radicals and the Irish see good reason to let him have his own way, of course he can have it. If he were to announce positively that he had no thought of coercion in the present condition of Ireland, and that he was determined to come forward next session with some scheme or other for the settlement of the Irish question, then indeed, it is quite possible that it might be the policy of the radical and the Irish party to give him an interval of time. But it seems to me hardly probable that he will be allowed to come before parliament next week merely to declare the want of certain sums of money to be voted, and get all he asks for without being called upon for any explanation on the course he intends to take in dealing with Ireland. I doubt much whether the voting of supplies would be quite so short and as formal a process under such circumstances as Salisbury and some of his friends seem to believe."

An Irish Opinion of the New Viceroy.

DUBLIN, July 20—United Ireland says: "The rule with the landlords is shattered, but the Irish people have not the least intention to estrange the English masses. It would be impossible to produce a more eloquent example of the policy of ramming English rule down Irish throats than is afforded in the Marquis of Salisbury's appointment as Irish Viceroy of the Marquis of Londonderry, inheriting, as he does, the blood and the name of the cut-throat and hideous Castlereagh.

The Freeman's Journal says the appointment of Lord Londonderry to be Viceroy of Ireland, and of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach to be Chief Secretary, is emblems of coercion. Irishmen must be prepared for this. The Loyalist press is delighted over the appointment of Lord Londonderry.

An Auspicious Appointment.

LONDON, July 20.—The Pall Mall Gazette, commenting on the Marquis of Londonderry's appointment, says that in 1878 he defeated the Liberal candidate in County Down by supporting with the Nationalists, and giving them to understand that he had no objections to supporting a movement favoring a proposed enquiry into the merits of the Irish demand for Home Rule, and that he favored a new land law. The Gazette looks upon the appointment of such a man to the Irish viceroyalty by a Conservative Premier as an act auspicious for the Irish people.

Proposed Ovation to Lord Aberdeen.

DUBLIN, July 20.—The city is placarded with appeals to Irishmen to assemble in their thousands to make the greatest demonstration possible on the occasion of the departure of Lord-Lieutenant Aberdeen and his wife from Ireland next week. The call is signed "By order of the Citizens and Trades Council Committee."

A Corner in Whisky.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 20.—A syndicate has been formed with a capital of $1,000,000 to corner the market for Kentucky and Bourbon whisky. Senior & Son, Cincinnati, and E. H. Taylor of Frankfort, are named as the organizers of the syndicate, and it is said they have bought up nearly all the whisky of the years 1879 to 1883, inclusive, some 77,000 barrels.

PROCLAMATION OF BELFAST.

[illegible] Proclamation [illegible] because they were not Considered.

BELFAST, July 20.—The action of the Government in proclaiming Belfast under the provisions of the arms clause of the Peace Preservation Act is strongly denounced. The authorities complained to Right Honorable Hamilton, Irish Under Secretary, that they had never been consulted in the matter, the Belfast regiment [illegible] had applied for the proclamation of the Belfast justices and police officials. The mayor of Belfast protested to the secretary and expressed the hope that in future the government would display more courtesy to the Belfast municipal authorities.

Collision Off Dover.

LONDON, July 20.—Chinese pirate attacked and took possession of the Dutch steamship Hak-ping, bound for Penang from Acheen. The [illegible] escaped, the first mate and [illegible] remainder of the crew were made prisoners by the pirates, who demanded $7,500 ransom for [illegible] Dutch gunboat [illegible] and the arrest and punishment of the pirates.

They Settled it Therm.

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va., July 20.—Seldon Burns called at the house of his sweetheart, Mollie Bailey, last night, and found his cousin, Elbert Burns, there. He said they might as well settle it then and there, and asked him out to fight with revolvers. Burns complied, in spite of the woman's entreaties, and the men began firing at each other in the front yard. Seldon was killed at the second shot, and Elbert was mortally wounded. The [illegible] almost demanded over the affair.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE Reformers of Essex are very [wicked. They even refused to allow the janitor of the Customs House to be put on the voters' list, as owner of the buildings. One might mildly deprecate the claims of the Tory party that they own the country, public buildings included, but that becoming out a public building gives a janitor proprietary rights when he will vote Tory, is either too sweeping a principle to so knowledge.

THE New York World proposes a monster subscription for a Gladstone testimonial. While this is very flattering, it is also thoroughly Yankee. The gratitude, hereafter transmitted from generation to generation, of the millions of millions whom Gladstone has fought so nobly to enfranchise, and the victory of his magnificent statesmanship, which will be graven deep on the indestructible page of history, will constitute a monument more enduring than brass or Vermont marble.

A TAXATIONIST contemporary triumphantly points out the alleged fact that while slavery flourished at the South, free trade principles flourished there also, but since the abolition of slavery the Southern States become mainly protectionist, and thrusts it between the molars of free traders with an invitation to crack it. This is, by no means, a hard-shell nut. The spirit of slavery is not abolished. The Southerners still cling to servitude, quite indifferent whether it takes the form of Simon Legree and a cowhide or a monopolist wielding a customs officer. A rose by any other name is just as full of thorns.

THE Toronto News, in a spasm of ultra local patriotism, pointed out with triumph how the city of Toronto had vastly improved in moral condition under Mayor Howland's administration. The statement per se, to any one reading the city papers, was hard enough to believe, but one's scepticism is greatly encouraged when one sees the other city papers exultingly denying the fact for the sake of getting in a dig under the belt of a contemporary. It can easily be believed that the ethics of the newspapers has not improved. Brown, the blacksmith, would hardly call Jones a liar for saying that Brown's wife was not a common scold, simply because Jones also made horseshoes.

IF Sir John has sinned much he has to suffer much. Here is a sample of what the old man has had to stand. The Conservatives of Calgary had the heartlessness to fire the following at the h lpless old gentleman, with an address as wadding:

"The circumstances of our existence here are so peculiar, being in fact, a missionary association, and an outpost of the party that we feel you will understand and pardon us if, instead of confining ourselves to superfinous complaints, we claim your assistance in our sincere and heartfelt efforts for the progress of our cause."

HON. Mr. Chapleau, Secretary of State, has got it down thin. He asserted in a stump speech, in Chambly, that he was offered something like $35,000 or $40,000 in "solid gold," if he would assume the leadership of the "National" party, in Quebec and head a crusade against the Dominion Government. Mr. Chapleau got off this lot of solid rot to make himself solid with the electors of Chambly. It is the thinnest attenuation of wool that ever a Tory stretcher attempted to pull over the eyes of his auditors. The strongest evidence against the offer mentioned by Mr. Chapleau, not having been made, is his assertion that he refused it.

No Uncertainty

About Dr. Dorenwends' "Hair Magic." It does its work every time. It has done more good and saved more heads of hair, than any other preparation in the world. It has produced good crops of hair on bald heads, where every other remedy failed. It restores gray hair to its youthful color and vigor, and eradicates every trace of dandruff, for sale everywhere, THEY DON'T FAIL. A. Dorenwend, Sole Agent, Toronto. J. D. Tully, Agent for Peterborough.

Three hundred and five hundred car loads of square timber, representing two million feet, have been shipped this season by rail from the Nipissing district for Quebec.

Reasons why you should purchase Hagid Lightning in preference to all other remedies are: Rapid result—cures instantly. It is easily applied—no trouble—no lost time. It does not require constant use—one application is sufficient. One bottle will remove more pain than any other remedy in existence. Try it for Neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, Rheumatism. Sold at 25c. a bottle at J. McKee's Drug Store. 1771-eod-w-30

From the above list it will seen that 35 candidates passed, out of 114 who wrote, which in comparison with the other schools throughout the Province, is very creditable. Of the successful candidates, 17 were from the Peterborough Public Schools; 5 from the Convent School; 3 from Lakefield; 3 from Otonabee, 2 from Monaghan; 1 from Eenismore; 2 from Smith; and 2 from the Separate School, town.

Of those who were unsuccessful, 78 failed in English Grammar, 15 in Orthography and Orthoepy, 48 on the drawing paper, 10 in History, and 6 in Composition.

Penmanship is reported not average, while in drawing book work an improvement was made, but not in drawing paper work.

The difficulty of the papers in Grammar and Orthography and Orthoepy was very much complained of by the pupils.

Important Information to the Trade.

We have received information from a reliable source that some of the wholesale dealers are endeavoring to injure our brands by representing "that they are not as good as they used to be." This is done for the sole purpose of foisting upon the retailer and the consumer, private and unknown brands, that pay them (the wholesalers) a large profit. It is a well-known and indisputable fact that for the past twenty-five years the reputation and the quality of the justly celebrated and popular brands, CABLE, EL PADRE, and others of our manufacture, have been and always will be maintained, the statements of interested parties to the contrary, notwithstanding. We respectfully beg to impress upon smokers the importance of their insisting upon having our reliable and well known brands, if they desire to avoid smoking cheap trashy cigars, when a little thoughtfulness would have obviated the annoyance and disappointment consequent upon taking whatever is handed to them. Retailers would do well to avoid the persuasive and oratorical jobber, that endeavors to impress upon them the importance of trying private and unknown brands in preference to the CABLE and EL PADRE that have outlived the thousand and 1 brands that have been introduced since the introduction of the CABLE and EL PADRE. Our (5) CABLE is put up in two sizes, the CONCHA and IMPERIAL QUEEN cigar, has a narrow red band with the word CABLE on it. None other genuine. Our new brand MADRE E HIJO is exceptionally fine and well worth a trial. S. DAVIS & SONS. Factories, Montreal, Toronto branch, 31 Church street.

MR. WILLIAMSON'S DIAMONDS.

Their Seizure at Rimouski—Did the Collector Overstep His Duties?

MONTREAL, July 29.—A rather peculiar seizure of unset diamonds is reported to have been made by Mr. J. G. Martin, the French-speaking Customs house officer at Rimouski. Mr. J. B. Williamson, jeweler, of Notre Dame-street, was a passenger by the steamer Parisian, from Europe, and while across the Atlantic he purchased about $7000 worth of diamonds. These are supposed to be non-duty goods, but they require a free entry paper and invoice. At Rimouski Mr. Williamson was examined by the officials and found correct. Taking a small box containing the diamonds from his pockets, he said to the official, "here are some diamonds and their invoice." Mr. Martin not understanding English and Mr. Williamson being an fait in the French language, some misunderstanding ensued about the diamonds and the customs official was about to seize them, when Mr. Warmsley, British mail officer, was asked to interfere. At the suggestion of Mr. Warmsley, the diamonds were placed in a sealed envelope, with the mail seal, and addressed to the collector of customs at Montreal. The envelope lay on a desk in the mail car; the customs official then seized the package, and leaving the car, jumped off, the train slowing into Riviere de Loup at the time. Mr. Williamson came on to Montreal, and reported the matter to Mr. M. P. Ryan, the collector here. The latter telegraphed to Rimouski, and received a reply this morning from Mr. Martin, to the effect he had reported the seizure to the authorities at Ottawa. Mr. Ryan said that a man could import five million dollars' worth of unset diamonds free of duty if he wanted to, and that Customs Officer Martin had been over-zealous if the facts were as represented.

The C. P. R. Telegraph Co.

MONTREAL, July 29.—Gen. Manager Hosmer, of the Canadian Pacific Telegraph Company, states that his Company has made a twenty-five year contract with the Postal Telegraph Company and the Mackay-Bennett Cable Company, and that arrangements have also been made to connect with the Baltimore and Ohio system throughout the United States.

Utilization of Natural Gas.

MONTREAL, July 29.—A company of Montreal gentlemen has been formed under the name of the Combustible Gases Company, with a capital stock of $250,000, for working up and using the natural combustible gasses which are given off in various parts of the Province of Quebec.

Another U. S. Vessel Seized.

OTTAWA, July 29.—The Customs Department have received a telegram from the Collector at Hopewell Cape Station that the American schooner Miller had been seized by him for breach of customs regulations.

End of the Chess Tournament.

LONDON, July 29.—In the chess game between Blackburne and Burns to-day the result was a draw. These gentlemen were awarded the first and second prize respectively. Taubenhaus and Gunsberg also played drawn games in attempting to settle their tie, and divided the third and fourth prizes between them.

The Lake Yacht Sailing Regatta To-Day.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., July 29.—The following yachts have arrived for the regatta to-morrow: Aileen, Verve, Cygnet, Escape and Mischief, Toronto; Ariadne, Oswego; Atalanta, of Brighton; Garfield, Laura and Gracie, Kingston. The weather promises for a fine regatta. Besides the craft mentioned there will compete the Neath, Iolanthe and White Wing.

Trotting at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 29.—Eight thousand people attended the races at the Cleveland Driving Park to-day. The 2.23 class, four heats of which were trotted yesterday, was finished to-day, Bells Hamlin winning the fifth heat and the race, with Kitefoot second, Orange Boy third, Maganita fourth; time 2.19¾.

The Consolation, 2.23 class, purse $1,500, was won in three straight heats by Centella, with Echo Chief second, Reveille third, Mambrinette fourth, Mary Powell fifth; Katy Ishler sixth and Stranger seventh; Time 2.27, 2.21¾, 2.22¾.

2.20 class—Stakes $6,000, divided. George Forbes' Oliver K. won in three straight heats, Albert being second. Reference third, Lady Barefoot fourth, Bessie Morrison fifth, Millbury sixth, Oration seventh, Santina eighth, Bob Hunter ninth; time 2.18¾, 2.18¾, 2.19¼. Free-for-all trotting purse of $1500. Harry Wilkes won in three straight; Ohmie G. being second and Phyllis third; time 2.16, 2.14¾, 2.15¾.

LOVE'S VICTORY.

BY MERTHA M CLAY

CHAPTER XXVII.

WAITING FOR REVENGE.

There was a slight, only a very slight difference of opinion between Lady Darrell and her aunt after the reading of the will. Lady Hampton would fain have given up the Elms, and have gone to live at Darrell Court.

"Sir Oswald's will is a very just one," she said, "admirable in every respect; but I should never dream, were I in your place, Elinor, of keeping that proud girl here. Let her go. I will come and live with you. I shall make a better chaperon than that poor, faded Miss Hastings."

But Lady Darrell was eager to taste the sweets of power, and she knew how completely her aunt would take every vestige of it from her.

She declared her intention to adhere most strictly to the terms of the will.

"And, aunt," she continued, with firmness quite new to her, "it would be so much better, I think, for you to keep at the Elms. People might make strange remarks if you came here to live with me."

Lady Hampton was shrewd enough to see that she must abide by her niece's decision.

The Captain was to remain only two days at Darrell Court, and Lady Darrell was anxious to spend some little time with him.

"I like the Captain, aunt," she said; "he amuses me."

Lady Hampton remembered how she had spoken of him before, and it was not her intention that her beautiful niece should fling away herself and her magnificent fortune on Aubrey Langton.

"She is sure to marry again," thought the lady; "and, dowered as she is, she ought to marry a duke, at least."

She represented to her that it was hardly etiquette for her, a widow so young, and her home being so recent, to entertain a handsome young officer.

"I do not see that the fact of his being handsome makes any difference, aunt," said Lady Darrell; "still, if you think I must remain shut up in my room while the captain is here, of course, I will remain so, though it seems very hard."

"Appearances are everything," observed Lady Hampton, eagerly; "and you cannot be too careful at first."

"Does he seem to pay Pauline any attention?" asked the young widow, eagerly.

"I have never heard them exchange more than a few words—indeed the circumstance has puzzled me, Elinor. I have seen him look at her as though he worshiped her and as though he hated her. As for Miss Darrell, she seems to treat him with contemptuous indifference."

"I used to think he liked her," said Lady Darrell, musingly.

"He likes the future heiress of Darrell Court," returned Lady Hampton, "and his lord has some wife-her prospects, you may rely upon it."

Lady Darrell, brought up in a school that would sacrifice even life itself for the sake of appearances, knew there was no help for her enforced retirement. She remained in her rooms until the young officer had left the Court.

Lady Hampton was not the only one who felt puzzled at Pauline's behavior to the captain. Miss Hastings, who understood her well perhaps better than any one else, was puzzled. There was somewhat of a calm, unutterable contempt in the manner of treating him. He could not provoke her; no matter what he said, or how he tried, he could not provoke her to retort. She never appeared to remember his existence. No one could have been more completely ignored; and Captain Langton himself was too cognizant of the fact. If he could have but piqued or aroused her, have shown her into a exhibition of feeling, he would have been content; but no feeling could have calmer, no queen could have colder. A little after he was required at Darrell Court she paid it, but what was no secret to the fact that it was rendered in such a manner that the omission would have been perfection.

On the evening of his departure Lady Hampton went down to the library with Pauline; she conveyed to him Lady Darrell's regret at not being able to see him.

"I am very sorry," said the captain; "though, of course, under the circumstances, I could hardly hope for the pleasure of seeing Lady Darrell. Perhaps you will tell her that I shall hope to revisit the Court."

Lady Hampton said to herself that she should take no such message. The dearest wish of her heart was that the gallant captain should never be seen there again. But she made some gracious reply, and then asked, suddenly:

"Have you seen Miss Darrell? Have you said goodby to her?"

Lady Langton looked slightly confused.

"I have not seen her to-day," he replied.

Lady Hampton smiled very graciously.

"I will send for her," she said; and when, in answer to her summons, a servant entered, she asked that Miss Darrell might be requested to favor her with her presence in the library. It did not escape her keen observation that Captain Langton would rather have avoided the interview.

Pauline entered with the haughty grace so natural to her; her proud eyes never once glanced at the captain; he was no more to her than the very furniture in the room.

"You wished to see me, Lady Hampton," she said, coldly.

"Yes—that is, Captain Langton wishes to say good-by to you; he is leaving Darrell Court this morning."

There was the least possible curl of the short upper lip. Lady Hampton happened to catch the glance bestowed upon Pauline by their visitor. For a moment it startled her—it revealed at once such hopeless pain almost despair and such strong passionate hate

"Good-by, Miss Darrell," he said; "this has been a very sad time for you, and I deeply sympathize with you. I hope to see you again in the autumn, looking better—more like yourself."

Like herself! Little did he dream that that self had ever existed. Pauline looked him full with that straight, clear, calm gaze of hers, so terribly searching and strict.

"Good-by," she said, gravely, and then, utterly ignoring the outstretched hands, she swept haughtily from the room.

Lady Hampton did not attempt to conceal her delight at the captain's discomfiture.

"Miss Darrell is very proud," he said, laughing to hide his chagrin; "she have been unfortunate in her birth."

But Lady Hampton saw his confusion, and in her own mind she considered that there was between these two—why he should appear at this hand take to love and to hate her—above all, why she should treat him with such sovereign indifference and contempt.

"It is not natural," she argued to herself; "young girls, as a rule, admire—nay, take an uncommon interest in soldiers. What reason can she have for such manifestations indifference?"

How little she dreamed of the storm of rage—of passion—of anger—of love—of fury, that warred in the captain's soul!

He was ten thousand pounds richer, but it was as a drop in the ocean to him. If it had been ten thousand per annum he might have been gratified. Ten thousand pounds would discharge every debt he had in the world, and set him straight once more; he might even lead the life he had always meant to lead for two or three years, but then the money would be gone. On the other hand, if that girl—that proud, willful, defiant girl—would but have married him, Darrell Court, with all its rich dependencies, would have been his. The thought almost maddened him.

How he loathed her as he rode away! But for her all this grand inheritance would have been his. Instead of riding away, he would now be taking possession and be lord and master of all. These stables with the splendid stud of horses would be his—his the magnificent grounds and gardens—the thousand luxuries that made Darrell Court an earthly paradise. All these would have been his but for the obstinacy of one girl. Curses deep and burning rose to his lips; yet, for his punishment, he loved her with a love that mastered him in spite of his hate—that made him long to throw himself at her feet, while he could have slain her for the wrong he considered that she had done him.

Lady Hampton could not refrain from a few remarks on what she had witnessed.

"Has Captain Langton been so unfortunate as to offend you, Miss Darrell?" she asked of Pauline. "I thought your adieus were of the coldest."

"Did you?" I never could see the use of expressing regret that is not really felt."

"Perhaps not; but it is strange that you should not feel some little regret at losing such a visitor.

To this remark Pauline deigned nothing save an extra look of weariness, which was not lost upon Lady Hampton.

* * * * *

"Pauline," said Miss Hastings, one morning, "I do not think you are compelled by the terms of Sir Oswald's will to reside at Darrell Court whether you like it or not. There could be no possible objection to your going away for a change."

The beautiful, restless face was turned to her.

"I could not leave Darrell Court even if I would," she returned.

"Why not? There is really nothing to detain you here."

"I am waiting," said the girl, her dark eyes lit by a fire that was not pleasant to see —"I am waiting here for my revenge."

"Oh, Pauline!" cried Miss Hastings, in real distress. "My dear child, you must forget such things. I do not like to hear such a word from your lips."

Pauline smiled as she looked at her governess, but there was something almost terrible in the calm smile.

"What do you think I am living here for—waiting here in patience for? I tell you, nothing but the vengeance I have promised myself—and it shall be mine!"

Boo-hoo-be.

What does that spell? Why, "backache," of course, though you would not suppose that the first glance. It spells what thousands and thousands of women are suffering from every day of their lives, but what they need not suffer from, if they knew the virtues of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." All those "dragging down" pains and sensations of nausea and weakness, peculiar to women, can be cured by this same boon to womankind. It is almost magical in its results. adw 64

For all kinds of fine fruit—call at Ostrom's, George street.

Garden Party.

A pleasant social and garden party will be held at the residence of Mrs. C. B. Orde, Robinson street, Ashburnham, next to Mr. Harry Calcutt's, on Thursday evening, August 12th. The band will be in attendance and the proceeds are for St. Luke's Church.

The License Commissioners.

At the meeting of the West Riding License Commissioners held yesterday afternoon, it was decided that the amount required from the Government for the enforcement of the Crooks Act would be $1,125, from which will be deducted the sum of $150 received for druggists' licenses, leaving the bal amount $975.

Open Air Entertainment.

A gay gathering of upwards of two or three hundred persons assembled in the Murray Street Separate School grounds yesterday evening, on the occasion of the open air entertainment for the benefit of the Separate School library. The grounds were gaily lighted by means of Chinese lanterns suspended in festoons from the boughs of the whispering pines that adorn the park. The Fire Brigade Band occupied a central position, and during the evening discoursed sweet music that charmed the hearers, materially assisting in filling up the programme of the entertainment. From an elevated platform a number of young ladies at intervals gave vocal and instrumental musical selections, which, under the pleasant circumstances, so different from the Opera House these sultry evenings, were especially appreciated. Miss Laplante and Miss Loch, this year's gold medalists in music at the Convent, contributed the Notre Dame, gave several [illegible] duets and Miss Tiney a recital piano solo, while Miss Annie Dunn contributed two charming vocal solos. From half a dozen different tables, placed where they would be the most good, each presided over by several young ladies, refreshments, such as fruits, lemonade, ice cream, etc., were sold. The tables were well patronized by the audience between the musical selections. The merry throng wandered through the dimly lighted grounds with evident satisfaction, until about ten o'clock, when the assembly dispersed, after the band played the National Anthem. Rev. Father Conway was present during the evening and was diligent in his efforts to entertain. The success of the entertainment is greatly due to Miss Kate Ruttkin, librarian of the school, under which management it was conducted. The proceeds amount to slightly over $30.

A Malicious Act.

During Wednesday night, some parties entered the orchard of Mr. D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate, located in Ashburnham, and wantonly and maliciously mutilated [illegible] or twenty fine [illegible] bark from the trees. Mr. W. E. Hill, [illegible] party, made the discovery yesterday morning. The act is a contemptible one and [illegible] the police will do their utmost to discover the perpetrators.

A Rare Opportunity Occurs.

To-morrow Mr. Gillies will begin to mark off at prices that beat the record and paralyze competition, the immense stock of the Sun Mantle, which he has purchased. He intends closing Mr. Lambert's order, and to [illegible] and to sell the whole block, bargains over offered in Peterborough. The goods were bought dirty and will be sold clean. Let [illegible] all kinds of goods.

This morning early, Mr. E. C. Hill, bill poster, placed on one of his boards, a poster of the Toronto Industrial Exhibition, the visiting the place annually. It has been torn down. [illegible] going on too long. It injures the good name of the town, which is considered so good as advertising plans that Mr. Hill constantly receives orders from abroad to post bills. When he posts the bills he has fulfilled his contract and the destruction of them is no loss to him, but he dislikes to see his patrons' property destroyed. He has offered a reward of $5 for the conviction of persons caught destroying any bills or any of his bill boards and the proprietor of the EXAMINER hereby offers a reward of $10 for the convictions of any persons who may destroy posted bills printed at this office.

The Lawless Element.

The malicious [illegible] Dumble, on his Ashburnham property, indicates the presence of an element of lawlessness in the community which is a disgrace to our town and a danger to the property of our citizens. The outrage is generally conjectured to be an expression of malice towards Mr. Dumble in his capacity of [illegible] and to [illegible] take in prosecutions for infraction of the Scott Act. This may or may not be the case. The wrecking of the contents of the lodge at Mary Clarence at Pigeon Lake [illegible] may [illegible] connection with [illegible] question, and if [illegible] knowledge of the indentity and motives of the parties who destroyed Mr. Dumble's orchard trees, be positively asserted that his course on the bench is at the bottom of the [illegible] has suffered. Whatever the motive, the perpetrators of the cowardly outrage must be sought out and punished. The safety must be assured of the property, and persons of our citizens—persons—because the miscreant who would destroy a fruit tree, would [illegible] a dwelling and [illegible] its owner, if he though himself secure from detection. All good citizens will frown down such lawlessness, and unite in calling upon the authorities to exercise the most unremitting diligence to secure the identity and conviction of the perpetrators of the outrage.

Fresh White Fish, Trout and Bass, arriving daily at Ostrom's, George St.

Oddfellowship.

Yesterday afternoon and evening Mr. John Walsh, M.W.G.P., of the Grand Encampment of Ontario, I.O.O.F., was in town. He was met at the station by a deputation consisting of R. W. Bell, M.D., J. C. T. Lacey and D. H. Moore, of Mount Herbon, and driven round to the chief points of interest in town. In the evening, a special meeting of the encampment was held, with the object of receiving the Grand Patriarch, with the honours due to his office. During the evening one candidate was advanced to the Golden Rule degree, and four other "exalted" to the R.P. degree. The work was performed in an admirable manner by the officers of the encampment. Then the Grand Patriarch exemplified the secret work perfectly as laid down by the Sovereign Grand Body. At the close of the session, the M.W. G.P., delivered an excellent address, complimenting the local Encampment on their proficiency in the work, their excellent equipment and the esprit du corps and enthusiasm shown in this branch of the order. To conclude, a splendid spread was prepared in the encampment by Messrs. Long Bros. An effort is to made in connection with Mount Hebron Encampment to secure the elevation of the camp to a canton militant (a uniformed semi-military degree). The uniform pertaining to this degree is said to be the most superb and striking of any society of this description, and when the members become proficient in their drill, they will attract great attention and admiration. The enthusiasm of the members points to the speedy organization of a uniformed encampment.

Mr. E. B. Stone, barrister, leaves to-day to join his family in a summer outing in Percy township, Northumberland.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. [illegible]

The police court [illegible] of special [illegible] yesterday [illegible] boys having [illegible] to hear evidence in a charge of larceny preferred against a juvenile quartette.

In the absence of P. M. Dumble, His Worship Mayor Stevenson, occupied the bench.

William, Thomas and George Bradley, and Ernest Johnston were arraigned before the court charged by John Smith with the larceny of a nail set and saw, on Sunday last.

John Smith, the complainant, testified that he left his chest of tools in a house north of the Barnardo Home, which he was assisting to build for Mr. G. A. Cox. The chest was nailed down on Saturday night, and when he came Monday morning he found that it had been broken open and the tools complained of removed. He ascertained that the boys charged with the larceny were in the house on Sunday, and subsequently found his nail set in the possession of one of the boys. The boys told him they knew nothing of the saw, and said the tool chest was open when they went to the house first on Sunday evening.

Sidney Manning and Wm. Metherall testified that they saw the defendants playing in front of the house from which the tools were taken.

William Johnston testified that four saws a chisel, square and nail set of his had been taken from the chest referred to during Sunday last. He knew that the little brother, one of the defendants, was one of the party who had broken open the chest. On threatening his brother with jail, he admitted that he was at the house on Sunday, and saw the Bradley boys take away the nail set. He said the chest was open when they arrived at the house. At first he denied being at the house, but finally admitted that they were—and at the tool chest too.

His Worship found the witness and joint complainant if he wished to have the boys punished. It was only shown that they had taken a few nails, which a boy might be expected to do when he found the box open.

The complainant said he only wanted to get his tools returned. He thought if the boys did not take the tools, he might find out through them who did.

His Worship thought it would be well to allow the case to stand for a while, and with the consent of the complainant, enlarged it till Monday.

Railway Encroachment.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Allow me through your columns to voice the grievances of the residents along Bethune street, arising out of the encroachments of the G. T. R. The attention of the civic authorities is called to the gradual manner in which the railway company is raising the track on this street at certain points. Week before last it was raised 2½ inches, and now another raise is in progress. This is very annoying—constantly disturbing the comparative level of the street and the entrances of private premises, making ingress and egress difficult, when not impossible. There are two or three injunctions against the company for similar encroachments on private rights, and the parties aggrieved naturally look to the Town Council for protection in this matter. They have control of the streets, and it is to them private parties must look for redress. The matter must be attended to.

Yours, etc.,
[illegible]

Peterboroughs Play Lakefield and Wins by Six Wickets.

The match played yesterday, between the Peterboroughs and [illegible] grounds of the [illegible] victory for the Peterborough team. Although the local team was not represented by its best men, yet it was a strong team and played a good game. The game was won by six wickets, but at the request of the Lakefield captain it was played to a finish.

The bowling [illegible] was very good. Max Hamilton got 7 wickets for so many runs, while Atwood, for Lakefield, took 7 wickets for 14 runs. Hugh Ray played a splendid game, as did also Sadsbury, who scored 17 runs in fine form.

The following is the score:—

Presentation of a Watch.

The Superintendent of the Midland Division Presented With a Watch and Address.

A few days ago Mr. J. G. Macklin, Chief Engineer of the Midland Division of the G. T. R., returned home from his wedding journey. Last night those associated with him on the division waited on him at his residence, namely:—Mr. T. Hay, assistant engineer; Mr. R. Tivey, bridge inspector; Mr. R. Stewart, roadmaster, and Mr. T. Lloyd, bridge foreman, Toronto & Nipissing division; Mr. John A. Cheer, roadmaster, and Mr. J. Leggett, bridge foreman, Midland division; Mr. Jas. McNab, roadmaster, and Mr. J. McWilliams, bridge foreman, Gould Junction division; Mr. H. Ferguson, roadmaster, and Mr. W. J. Cairns, bridge foreman, Whitby and Port Perry division; Mr. S. F. Hill, engineer's secretary; Mr. W. Logan, office clerk; and Mr. John Rear, general bridge foreman.

Mr. Hay read a congratulatory address accompanying it with the presentation of an elegant gold watch, bearing the following engraving:

"Presented to J. G. Macklin, Esq., chief engineer of the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway, by his office staff, roadmasters, and bridge foremen, on the event of his marriage; Peterborough, July 6th, 1886."

THE JOURNAL.

Allow me through your paper to thank Dr. Washington, throat and lung surgeon, for his great skill in curing me of catarrh which had greatly troubled me for years, also as a remedy my last form of ulcerated throat. My throat for weeks was so badly ulcerated that it was almost impossible for me to swallow, the ball seems being eaten through, a hole big enough to pass a large goose quill through. It is now entirely healed, and as I am now able to attend to my work once more, I wish to thank the doctor, and take pleasure to recommend any who may be afflicted with catarrh or any diseases of the throat.

Yours truly,
WM. E. COX.

A STORM IN NEW ENGLAND

MUCH PROPERTY DESTROYED AND SEVERAL LIVES LOST.

A Man Struck Dead in His Bedroom—Narrow Escape of a Widow and Three Children—Many Barns with Live Stock Consumed—The Crops Very Seriously Damaged.

BOSTON, Mass., July 30.—There was a severe thunderstorm in this section this morning. B. F. Packard a young man residing at Attleboro, became frightened, and jumping from bed was instantly killed by a bolt in the middle of the room. His body was terribly scarred. The house was consumed.

At Randolph lightning struck the house of Mrs. Roby, a widow. She and her three children were in bed. The bolt struck the bedstead, splintering it to pieces and setting the clothing on fire. The mother seized her children and staggered into the streets. The house was burned.

At Mansfield two barns were set on fire and consumed.

At Middleboro two barns were burned and eight horses killed.

The tobacco throughout the Connecticut Valley was beaten down and destroyed by the rain.

At Taunton lightning struck the house of George Dean and ripped the floor and scattered the plastering in all the upper rooms.

At Norton a barn was struck and set on fire. The flames quickly communicated to the dwelling adjoining, and both buildings were destroyed. The animals in the barn, consisting of horses and cattle, were lost. The inmates of the house escaped.

At Leominster lightning danced around the cottage of Oliver Putnam, smashing everything and snapping huge rafters square off. Mr. Putnam rushed upstairs to his child's room. A huge rafter weighing over 300 pounds had fallen beside the child in bed, but fortunately had not injured it. Along the streets trees were torn up by the roots. Hundreds of acres of corn were destroyed.

The barn of the Calumet Mills Company at Uxbridge was struck by lightning and the hostler Henry Anthony and two valuable horses were killed. Numerous other houses and barns were struck in the localities visited by the storm.

In East River a bolt struck a cottage and passed into a room where Michael Toomey and his three children were sleeping. One side of the bed and the foot-board were shattered and the clothes [illegible] but none of the occupants were hurt. Several houses were slightly damaged and two ladies were prostrated.

The tempest was especially severe in Worcester County, where the wind was almost a cyclone. Trees were torn up and twisted. Orchards of green fruit were shaken down, acres of corn laid low, and houses rocked fearfully.

The storm was equally severe in Connecticut. In East Hartford two large barns were struck and burned with heavy loss. In Wethersfield a vigorous cyclone tore up large trees and prostrated the growing crops.

ELIJA ARMSTRONG AGAIN.

The Pall Mall Gazette's Lily Proposes to Sue for Forty Thousand Dollars.

LONDON, July 30.—The Evening News says the parents of Eliza Armstrong, the young girl who figured so conspicuously in the Pall Mall Gazette exposures, have arranged to bring a suit for $40,000 damages against Mr. Stead, the former editor of the Gazette, its publishers, and General Booth, of the Salvation Army. The claim will be for libel on the girl's parents and for assaulting the child. The defendants, it is said, are endeavoring to compromise.

The action threatened by the Armstrongs embraces six suits. Eliza proposes to sue Mr. Stead for $5000 for libel, assault and false imprisonment, and Mr. Thompson, the proprietor, and Mr. Lambert, the printer of the Gazette, together, for $5000 for libel. The parents of the girl threaten to sue Messrs. Thompson and Lambert for $7500 for libel, and Mr. Stead for $3000 for libel and the loss of the daughter's services. Mr. Armstrong and Eliza will jointly sue Bramwell Booth for $5000 for assault and wrongful detention or imprisonment of the girl and for loss of her services. Then Eliza will sue Dr. Smith for $5000 on a charge of assault and causing distress both of mind and body. The preliminary steps in the suits have all been taken.

The Ballot-box Losses Commission.

MONTREAL, July 30.—The Royal commission on claims for rebellion losses met in the presidency of Judge Outhet has just entered in the city hall will sit in the Court House for some time to come to complete its labors and prepare advice for the Government. Besides Judge Outhet the members of the commission are Thos. McKay, Mayor of Prince Albert and Henry Munro, of Dundas, with Captain Geo. H. Gray, of Winnipeg, as secretary.

Ferguson's Sit-Lock Furnace Men.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 30.—Ferguson's circus train broke in three parts between Folly Bridge and Londonderry, on a steep grade. A collision occurred, throwing three flat cars off the track and overturning several cages of wild animals. Adam Ferguson's private sleeping car was badly injured. One man was hurt, but not seriously. Several cars were damaged.

LORD CHURCHILL'S RISE

THE YOUNGEST COMMONS LEADER SINCE PITT.

How the New Ministry is Viewed—Additional Appointments—Mr. Matthews's Appointment to the Home Secretaryship—The Supporting Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The Times' London cablegram says: In comparison with the appointment of the Marquis of Londonderry to be Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, everything else that England has done in Ireland for the past score of years appears judicious and statesmanlike. In this selection Tory denseness and malevolence have equally come to a climax. What the name of Judas Iscariot was to the early Christian, what the name of Benedict Arnold was to the continental patriot, the name of Castlereagh is to the ears of every Irish Nationalist. In the scores of the remote bogs, on the crags of the isolated mountains where the rude natives never heard of Gladstone and scarcely know the name of the Queen who has ruled them for half a century, the word Castlereagh is like the breath of the plague in the nostrils of the meanest peasant.

Why in remarkable for such a cruel blunder as this" everybody is asking, and the invariable answer is "Churchill," whose mother is a sister of Londonderry's father. Explanations of, or rather speculations in regard to, the motive for the appointment are as thick as blackberries. One is that Londonderry's wife, who is a sister of the congenial Shrewsbury, is a highly beautiful and charming woman, who, backed by the great wealth which her husband got out of his Durham collieries and immense Down estates, can establish a dazzling court at Dublin and induce the Irish to forget their hunger and serfdom by the splendor of her entertainments. Another is that Churchill is seeking deliberately to provoke the Irish into demonstrations of disloyalty. Still a third is that Churchill desires, through his weak cousin and the almost equally weak Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chief secretary, to keep the control of the Irish Government in his hands. Probably the true explanation lies in a mixture of all three of these theories.

To tell the truth, the English mind is far more occupied with Lord Randolph Churchill's new fortunes than with the Irish appointments. Surprise at his leap to the chancellorship of the Exchequer mingles with gratitude that he did not receive the Foreign Office instead. He is less pronounced than Dorsell was when he became Chancellor, and the youngest leader of the House of Commons since the time of Pitt. There is much doubt if his health will stand the strain of his difficult duties, and still more doubt whether he will get on with Lord Hartington, who holds the Tory Ministry in the hollow of his hand. There is some comment on the fact that Lord Churchill was an ardent protectionist last fall and committed to the wholesale reform of all government departments. But it is impossible to awaken interest here over his failure to be consistent. Nobody longer expects that or anything else from him but exhilaration. Not much interest is taken in the rest of the appointments. Lord Iddesleigh will be groaned over as a duplication of Earl Granville's pottering weakness, if it is not understood that the Marquis of Salisbury is to be real Foreign manager. The failure to shove Sir Amberton Cross, Lord Manners and Col. Stanley out of the way into the Lords is taken resignedly, as what might after all be expected of a class party. The most unpopular selection is that of Col. Stanley for the Colonies. It is the understanding in Liberal circles that Mr. Gladstone intends to force the fighting from the start and keep the session going until October.

The Chronicle says: "Mr. Matthews will doubtless make a good Home Secretary, but the passing over of Mr. Plunkett in favor of Mr. Matthews will make people doubt the stability of Lord Salisbury's position. They will be apt to think that the unruly element has the upper hand of the Tory party."

The appointment of Henry Matthews to the Home Secretaryship was due to the suggestion of the Queen, who was charmed by his vindication in the Crawford trial of the sanctities of English home life.

The Catholic Press is gratified at Mr. Matthews' promotion as it indicates a departure from the Tory tradition that no Catholic should be placed in office.

Additional Appointments.

LONDON, July 30.—The following additional appointments have been announced:

Attorney-General—Sir R. E. Webster.
Lord Chamberlain—Earl of Athol.
Judge Advocate General—Right Hon. W. Marriott.

Mr. Gladstone's Honor List.

LONDON, July 30.—The following gentlemen have been recommended to the Queen by Mr. Gladstone for elevation to the peerage: Sir Thomas Brassey, Mr Michael Bass, Bart, the well-known brewer; Sir Iohn Gionsdrn, Carter Hamilton who failed of re-election to Parliament from South Lanarkshire in the late contest and Mr Henry Thring of the Treasury Department. Mr. Gladstone has also recommended that the following gentlemen be made Baronets; Messrs. Frederick Tharps, Mappin and Charles Mark Palmer, members of Parliament: Thomas D. L. Jose Parry and Mr. Kinsan, the defeated Gladstonian candidate in Leeds.

An Address to Lord Aberdeen.

DUBLIN, July 30.—The Municipal Council has adopted a farewell address to the Earl of Aberdeen. The retiring lord-lieutenant. The address expresses the belief that a Home Rule measure, similar to that introduced in parliament by Mr. Gladstone, will soon satisfy Ireland. The Conservative members of the council left the chamber in a body before the address was adopted.

A Popular Appointment.

LONDON, July 30.—The appointment of Henry Matthews to be Home Secretary caused more general surprise than any other appointment made by the present Government. The Pall Mall Gazette welcomes the appointment. It says Mr. Matthews is a pronounced anti-coercionist and a Roman Catholic. The Globe pronounces Mr. Matthews one of the ablest men in the United Kingdom—a man who possesses unusual eloquence.

One More Gladstonian.

LONDON, July 30.—Mr. Leonard Lyell (Gladstonian) has been reelected for the House of Commons for Orkney and Shetland, and polled 3743 votes, his Unionist antagonist, Mr. Hourie, obtaining 1321.

The Post's Opinion.

LONDON, July 30.—The Post says that, with two obvious exceptions, nobility rather than brilliancy is the leading characteristic of the new cabinet.

Cholera Reports from Europe.

LONDON, July 30.—The cholera reports from Austro-Hungary for 24 hours ending Friday, 9 new cases, 4 deaths: Fiume, 1 new case, no deaths. The Italian returns are: Mondavia, 26 new cases, 6 deaths; Bologna, 15 new cases, 8 deaths; Ravenna, 10 new cases, 2 deaths; Reggio emilia 23 new cases and 7 deaths elsewhere.

Welsh Demands Home Rule.

LONDON, July 30.—Hand bills demanding Home Rule are being circulated throughout Wales. The circulars say: "The time has arrived when Welshmen should have the right to govern themselves. The parliament at London makes laws not for the benefit of Welshmen, but for the enslavement of landlords and idlers. Welshmen demand the privilege of making their own laws. They demand free education, the abolition of landlordism and the disestablishment of the church."

THE LIBERAL ELECTED

A BIG REFORM VICTORY IN THE COUNTY OF CHAMBLY.

Alderman Prefontaine of Montreal Returned by a Majority of 68—A Turn of Over Three Hundred Votes Out of Seven Hundred Compared With the Previous Election.

LONGUEUIL, Que., July 30.—The election for Chambly to-day resulted in the return of the Liberal candidate, Ald. Prefontaine of Montreal, who took a prominent part in the late Liberal convention, and is a pronounced [illegible]. Jos. J. A. Chapleau established this a county in which his personal influence was particularly strong and the result is, therefore, hailed as a serious blow against the government. In fact it is held to be the death-knell of existing Conservatism in the province of Quebec. The election was caused by the appointment to a government office of Mr. Benoit, the former member, who was returned in 1882 by 232 to 203 for his Liberal opponent. The result is, therefore, a turn of over 200 votes out of about 1200. It is thought that this means the postponement of the Dominion general election until after next session, when the present Parliament constitutionally expires. Following are the majorities to-day:

	Jodoin, C.	Prefontaine, L.
Chambly	12	21
St. Hubert	23	4
St. Bruno	1	———
Longueuil Village	———	42
Longueuil Parish	———	11
St. Basile	———	3
Boucherville	———	1
St. Lambert	a tie	———
Totals	79	171
Majority for Prefontaine		92

Grounds for a Protest.

MONTREAL, July 30.—The facts in connection with the St. Lambert poll in the Chambly election appear to be about as follows: Mr. Renaud, the deputy returning officer, found he had no poll clerk, and Mr. Prefontaine's scrutineer offered his services, which were accepted but he was not sworn. At 4.30 the gentleman acting as clerk happened to say to Mr. Champagne, Mr. Prefontaine's representative, that he had not been sworn, whereupon a protest was handed in and at 5 o'clock objection was made to the ballots being counted, when they were all put back in the box and sealed.

EX-PRES. ARTHUR'S CONDITION.

A Wreck of His Former Self and Tottering to His Grave.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 30.—Eli Perkins writes as follows concerning Ex-President Arthur:—

"When I went to call upon the Ex-President in his cottage last night I could not recognize the handsome general who was Governor Morgan's state quartermaster. As we were classmates in Union College and I have followed him for twenty-five years, I was shocked at the terrible wreck before me. His hair had turned thin and grey. His cheeks are hollow and his whiskers have turned thin, and white and straggling. He trembles when he rises from his chair and totters when he walks. He has gained a little here at Pequot, but it is the opinion of every one that he cannot recover. I do not wish to write this but it may as well come out now as later. Ex-President Arthur's brain is weakening like John McCullough's, Charles Francis Adams' and Bartley Campbell's. A physician, who has examined Ex-President Arthur's disease, says he has the old Bright's disease and indigestion.

POISON AT A PICNIC.

Fifty People Taken Ill at a Band of Hope Turn-out.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 30.—Twelve hundred people, including 200 children, attended a Band of Hope picnic at McNab's Island to-day. An hour after dinner men, women and children took seriously sick, and fifty of them had to be taken to the hospital. It is not known whether it was the meat, which had been kept a day owing to a postponement, ice-cream or the water. Most of those who are ill are adults. None are expected to die, but some are terribly exhausted by vomiting.

The Case of Sproule at B. C.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 30.—On Monday next A. F. McIntyre, barrister of this city, will present an application to the Exchequer Court, asking for the discharge of the American Sproule, now under sentence of death at Victoria, B.C. This move is in consequence of the sheriff having no disposition to obey the writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Henry some time ago, ordering the prisoner to be brought to Ottawa. If the order applied for be not obeyed, an application will be made for an attachment of the sheriff.

The Yachting Regatta at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., July 30.—The Lake Yacht Racing Association regatta, and also the seventh annual regatta of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, here to-day resulted as follows:

First Class, thirty miles, course ten miles:

Place at finish.	Yacht.	Where owned.	Length.
First.....	Norah	Belleville	86 feet.
Second.....	Atalanta	Brighton	69.8 ft.
Third.....	White Wings	Trenton	———
Fourth.....	Aileen	Toronto	87 feet.
Fifth.....	Cygnet	Toronto	48.3 ft.
Sixth.....	Ariadne	New York	55.9 ft.
Seventh	Gen. Garfield	Kingston	———
Eighth.....	Verve	Toronto	39.8 ft.

Second Class, twenty miles, course ten miles:

First.....	Minnie A.	Gananoque	36 feet.
Second.....	Lavra	Kingston	———
Third.....	Iolanthe	Belleville	37 feet.
Fourth.....	Gracie	Kingston	———
Fifth.....	Mollie	Hamilton	25.39 ft.

The regatta was the finest ever seen on Canadian fresh water. Eight first-class yachts started. The wind was very light, and the chief racing was between the Aileen, Cygnet, Arietas and White Wings for third place. The Norah was in her element, and easily led the fleet, the favorite the Atalanta, being only a third second. All the boats carried every stitch of canvas, and no change was made through the whole race. Spinakers were not used. The regatta was watched by large numbers from Messasaga Point. The yachts leave for Kingston to-morrow.

Trotting at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., July 30.—There was a good attendance at to-day's Cleveland Driving Park races. The track was in prime condition.

Trotting, 2.19 class unfinished from yesterday; purse $1500, divided—Mambrino Sparkle won, Kentucky Prince second, Prince Arthur third, Nutwood fourth; time 2.18¾, 2.18¾, 2.19¼, 2.22¼, 2.24.

2.30 class, purse $1200, divided—Palo Alto won, Mabel second, Clipper third, Calmus Hambletonian fourth, Kenny Fifth, Broughton sixth; time 2.23¾, 2.23¾, 2.24¼, 2.27¼, 2.24.

Free-for-all, pacing, purse $1000, divided—Gossip won, Jim D. second, Viscount third, Richball fourth; time 2.15¼, 2.14¾, 2.16¼, 2.15¼.

2.17 class, purse $1200, divided—Arab first in three straight heats, Russia second, Jerome Turner third, and Joe Davis fourth; time 2.18¼, 2.18¾, 2.19¾.

A Green Canadian Victimized.

BOSTON, July 30.—M. Hayward, of Prince Edward Island, arrived here from New York yesterday, and went to the express office and got a valise which he had sent him from Boston. He expected to find $300 in United States bills in it. Instead it was a brick. Steward went to New York as agent for several young men of his native town who had conspicuously him to get "green goods" from parties who advertised in the Canadian papers. He arrived in New York with $2,000 in gold and dropped at the Bunnell House. Shortly after he met the man advertised with him. Steward is now chagrined.

FREE EDUCATION OF THE BLIND.

From a humanitarian point of view, the liberality of the expenditure made by the Ontario Government, on behalf of the unfortunate and afflicted of the Province, is worthy of the highest praise. Although its opponents carp at it, yet the expenditure may be well defended on economic grounds. In different parts of the Province are situated asylums and institutions, maintained by state aid, for the benefit of the unfortunate and afflicted, whose condition renders them unable to maintain themselves and whose helplessness appeals strongly to the sympathy of the more fortunate. The lunatic receives care and treatment, the imbecile is educated where possible and in all cases provided for. The deaf mute is taught to be a useful member of society, instead of remaining a burden to his relatives and the blind are also educated and made self-supporting. Attention is called to the fact that the Ontario Institution for the Blind, at Brantford, re-opens for its next session on the 1st of September. As there are always a number of pupils graduating at each vacation, applications to the Principal for the admission of new-comers are now doubtless in order. Considering the utmost utter helplessness and dependence of an uninstructed blind person in after life, no arguments should be needed to induce all who have blind children under their care to avail themselves of this opportunity of obtaining for them a thorough education, with instruction according to the pupil's capacity, in music, in industrial work, and in fact, everything by which the blind may be made useful and happy. When, too, it is remembered that board and education are provided for by a legislative grant and so cost the friends of pupils not one cent, the last shadow of an excuse is removed for keeping a blind child at home in idleness and thus losing a golden opportunity of acquiring inestimable permanent benefits. We strongly advise all who are interested in this matter to communicate at once with Principal Dymond who is always ready to give full information to inquirers. It may be as well to mention that the Institution is not for for those who are totally blind only, but for all young persons resident in Ontario, between seven and twenty-one years of age, who by reason of impaired or defective vision, are unable to be educated at the public schools.

Lindsay.

On Wednesday morning about ten o'clock a sad accident occurred in the east ward by which Mrs. Laxton, wife of Mr. George Laxton, sustained injuries which resulted in her death. It seems that Mr. Laxton had some work to do in the garden and went out, leaving his wife, who was about seventy-five years of age and partially crippled, sitting in the kitchen. In a short time he was alarmed at the sight of smoke issuing from the doors and windows, and upon rushing in found his wife lying upon the floor terribly burned. Dr. Merriman was immediately summoned, but the old lady was past all human aid and died a few hours afterwards. It is supposed that as the old lady was addicted to smoking, she had attempted to light her pipe from the stove and that her clothing had caught fire, and being decrepit was unable to reach the door or call loudly enough to attract attention.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS
Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St. Catharines,—hundreds like it:
ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 20th, 1885.
GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two springless trusses made in York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my liberus. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even so badly as it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.
This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child in 3; and 20 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. LOVE'S VICTORY.

CHAPTER XXIX.

WILL FATE AID PAULINE?

Six months had passed since Sir Oswald's death, and his widow had already put away her cap and heavy weeds. Six months of retirement, she considered, were a very handsome acknowledgment of all her husband's love and kindness. She was in a state of serene and perfect self-content—everything had gone well with her. People had expressed their admiration of her devotion to his memory. She knew that in the eyes of the world she was esteemed faultless. And now it seemed to Lady Darrell that the time was come in which she might really enjoy herself, and reap the reward of her sacrifice.

The "armed neutrality" between Pauline and herself still continued. Each went her own way—their interests never clashed. Lady Darrell rather preferred that Pauline should remain at the Court. She had a vague kind of fear of her, a vague dread that made her feel safer where Pauline was, and where she could know something of her. Whole days would pass without their meeting; but, now that there was to be a little more gayety at Darrell Court, the two must expect to be brought into daily communication.

Lady Darrell was an amiable woman. It was true she had a small soul, capable of maintaining ideas only. She would have liked to be what she called "comfortable" with Pauline—to live on sisterly terms with her—to spend long hours in discussing dress, ornaments, fashionable gossip—to feel that there was always some one at hand to listen to her and to amuse her. She, in her turn, would have been most generous. She would have made ample presents of dresses and jewels to such a friend; she would have studied her comfort and interests. But to expect or to hope for a companion of that kind in Pauline was as though some humble little wood-blossom could hope to train itself round a grand, stately, sad passion-flower.

Lady Darrell's worldly knowledge and tact were almost perfect; yet they could never reveal to her the depths of a noble nature like Pauline's. She could sooner have sounded the depths of the Atlantic than the grand deep of that young girl's heart and soul; they would always be dead letters to her—mysteries she could not solve. One morning the impulse was strong upon her to seek Pauline, to hold a friendly conversation with her as to half-mourning; but when she reached the door of the study her courage gave way, and she turned abruptly, feeling rather than knowing why, the discussion of dress and mere personal appearance must prove distasteful to Miss Darrell.

Little by little Lady Darrell began to take her place in the grand world; she was too prude and wary to do it all at once. The degrees were almost imperceptible; even Lady Hampton, one of the most fastidious of critics, was obliged to own to herself that her niece's conduct was highly creditable. The gradations in Lady Darrell's spirits were as carefully regulated as the gradations of color in her dress; with deep lavender and black ribbons she was mildly sorrowful, the lighter grew the lavender the lighter grew her heart. On the first day she wore a silver gray brocade she laughed outright, and the sound of that laugh was the knell of all mourning.

Visitors began to arrive at Darrell Court, but Lady Darrell still exercised great restraint over herself. Her invitations were at first confined to matrons of mature age. "She did not feel equal to the society of gentlemen yet."

There was a grand chorus of admiration for the nice feeling Lady Darrell displayed. Then elderly gentlemen—husbands of the matrons—were admitted; and, after a time, "braw grooms" began to appear at the hall," and then Lady Darrell's reign began in real earnest.

Those admiring matrons, enthusiastic daughters, ardent lovers, and flattering friends Pauline found aloof. How she despised the whole of them was to be gathered only from her face; she never expressed it in words. She did not associate with them, and they repaid her behavior by the most hearty dislike.

It was another proof of "dear Lady Darrell's sweet temper" that she could live in peace with this haughty, abrupt, willful girl. No one guessed that the bland, suave, graceful mistress of Darrell Court stood in awe of the girl who had been disinherited to make room for her.

"Pauline," said Miss Hastings, one day, "I want you to accustom yourself to the idea of leaving Darrell Court; for I do not think there is any doubt but that sooner or later Lady Darrell will marry again."

"I expect it," she returned. "Poor Sir Oswald! His home will go to strangers, his name be extinct. How little he foresaw this when he married!"

"Let it take place when it may, the Court can be no home for you then," continued Miss Hastings.

Pauline raised her hand with a warning gesture.

"Do not say another word, Miss Hastings; I cannot listen. Just as criminals were fastened to the rack, bound to the wheel, tied to the stake, I am bound here—awaiting my revenge!"

"Oh, Pauline, if you would but forego such strange speech! This longing for vengeance is in your heart like a deadly canker in a fair flower. It will end badly."

The beautiful face with its defiant light was turned toward her.

"Do not attempt to dissuade me," she said. "Your warning is useless, and I do not like to grieve you. I acquainted Lady Darrell with my determination before she married my uncle for his money. She persisted in doing it. Let her take the consequences—bear the penalty. If she had acted a true womanly part—if she had refused him, as she ought to have done—he would have had time for reflection, he would not have died—"

"I cannot—it is part of my life now. I saw two lives before me once—the one made noble, grand, and gracious by this inheritance, which I should have known so well how to hold; the other darkened by disappointment and revenge. You know which I have chosen. I have sacrificed my fair fruition—the sunshine of perfect prosperity; so do I wait for my revenge. We Darrells never do things by halves; we are not even moderate. My heart, my soul, my life—which might have been, I grant, filled with high impulses—are concentrated on revenge."

Though the words she spoke were so terrible, so bitter, there was no mean, vindictive, or malign expression on that beautiful face; rather there was a bright, almost divine light. Miss Hastings looked at her, and Pauline evidently deemed herself one chosen to administer justice.

Miss Hastings looked at her.

"But, Pauline," she said, gravely, "who made you Lady Darrell's judge?"

"Myself," she replied. "Miss Hastings, you often speak of justice; let me ask, was this matter fair? My uncle was irritated against me because I would not marry a man I detested; and instead of making me be formal the match, or instructing to punish me. He proposed to Eleanor Rochford, and, without any love for him, she agreed to marry him. I went to her, and warned her not to come between me and my rightful inheritance. I told her that if she did I would be revenged. She laughed at my threat, married my uncle, and so disinherited me. Now, was it fair that I should have nothing, she all—that I, a Darrell, should see the home of my race go to strangers? It is not just, and I mean to take justice into my hands."

"But, Pauline," replied Miss Hastings, "if Lady Darrell had not married Sir Oswald, some one else would."

"Are such women common, then?" she demanded, passionately. "I knew evil enough of your world, but I did not know this. This woman is sweet-voiced, her face is fair, her hair is golden, her hands are white and soft, her manners caressing and gentle; but in her soul she is sordid—it was not large enough to prevent her marrying an old man for his money. Something tells me that the vengeance I have promised myself is not far off."

Miss Hastings wrung her hands in silent dismay.

"Oh, for something to redeem you, Pauline—something to soften your heart, which is hardening into steel!"

"I do not know of any earthly influence that could, as you say, redeem me. I know that I am doing wrong. Do not think that I have transformed vice into virtue and have blinded myself. I know that some people can rise to a far grander height; they would, instead of seeking vengeance, pardon injuries. I cannot—I never will. There is no earthly influence that can redeem me, because there is none stronger than my own will."

The older lady looked almost hopelessly at the younger one. How was she to cope with that strong nature—a nature that could call a fault, yet by strength of will persevere in it? She felt that she might as well try to check the angry waves of the rising tide as try to control this willful, undisciplined disposition.

How often in after years these words returned to her mind; "I know of no earthly influence stronger than my own will."

Miss Hastings sat in silence for some minutes, and then she looked at the young girl.

"What shape your vengeance take, Pauline?" she asked calmly.

"I do not know. Fate will shape it for me; my opportunity will come in time."

"Vengeance is a very high-sounding word," observed Miss Hastings, "but the thing itself generally assumes very prosaic forms. You would not descend to such a vulgar deed as murder, for instance; nor would you avail yourself of anything so commonplace as poison."

"No," replied Pauline, with contempt; "those are mean revenges. I will hurt her where she has hurt me—where all the love of her heart is garnered; there will I wound her as she has wounded me. Where she can feel most there I mean to strike, and strike home."

"Then you have no definite plan arranged?" questioned Miss Hastings.

"Fate will play into my hands when the time comes," replied Pauline. Nor could the governess extract aught further from her.

Bac-kay-be.

What does that spell? Why, "backache," of course, though you would not suspect it at the first glance. It spells what hundreds and thousands of women are suffering from every day of their lives, but what they need not suffer from, if they know the virtues of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." All those "dragging down" pains and sensations of nausea and weakness, peculiar to women, can be cured by this same boon to womankind. It is almost magical in its results. d&w-6t

Sure in Rheumatism, neuralgia, bruises, colds, headache. Nervilline has quite appropriate rule. All druggists sell 25 cents a bottle. d21-6t-w30

Important Information to the Public.

We are endeavoring to injure our trade by representing "that they are not as good as they used to be." This is done for the sole purpose of foisting upon the retailer and the consumer, private and unknown brands, that pay them (the wholesaler) a large profit. It is a positive fact that the quality of the well known and popular brands, CABLE, EL PADRE, and others of our manufacture, have been and always will be maintained, the interests of interested parties to the contrary, notwithstanding. We respectfully beg to impress upon smokers the importance of their insisting upon having our reliable and well known brands, if they desire to avoid smoking cheap grassy cigars, adopt a little thoughtfulness would have shielded the annoyance and disappointment spoken of, on taking whatever is handed to them. Retailers would do well to avoid the persevering and unprincipled jobber that endeavors to impress upon them the importance of trying private and unknown brands in preference to the CABLE and EL PADRE that have outlived the thousand and 1 brands that have been introduced since the introduction of the CABLE and EL PADRE. Our (So) CABLE is not an 8 two-cent, but CONCHA and [illegible] CABLE. Narrow red band with the CABLE. None other genuine. Our new brand MADRE E HIJO is exceptionally fine and well worth a trial. S. DAVIS & SONS, Factories, Montreal, Toronto branch, 34 Church street.

Reasons why you should purchase Fluid Lightning in preference to all other remedies are: Rapid results—cures instantly. It is easily applied—no trouble—no lost time. It does not require constant use—one application is sufficient. One bottle will remove [illegible] for Neuralgia, Toothache, Rheumatism, Sciatica. Sold at 25c. a bottle at J. McKee's Drug Store. d21-eod-w30

BANKERS—Bank of Toronto and Canadian Bank of Commerce.
SOLICITORS—Dumble & Henry.

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200, $400 and $1000 each, transferable by endorsement, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first claim or mortgage on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The annual statement shows that the amount so invested was over $900,000, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

By Acts in force in Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgage may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon, the interest coming at once on all amounts paid on account of the sum borrowed.

Applications may be made either to the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

The Fruit Canning Season.

Housekeepers will find the finest and cheapest stock of sugars for the preserving season, at Morrow, Tierney & Co's, as well as a splendid stock of the best groceries.

For all kinds of fine fruit—call at Ostrom's, George street.

Accident.

On Thursday evening Mrs. McGrath, mother of Mr. T. B. McGrath, painter, in leaving her son's house after dark, missed her footing on the steps and fell, breaking her right collar bone. Dr. King was called in and set the break, and the sufferer is doing as well as could be expected.

A Dangerous Leap.

Kissing is always a pleasant but sometimes a dangerous game, to wit, yesterday morning a young lady boarded the Toronto express to bid good-bye to another young lady who was going to spend the day in Omemee. The parting was to be so long—12½ hours—that the farewells were protracted and the farewell kiss hung on with such affectionate glutinosity, that the train was in motion before the young lady realized the fact. With a scream and a hop, step and jump, she landed on the platform. The laws of momentum and gravitation not having entered into her calculations, she fell in a heap, making several undignified, not to say ungraceful, revolutions on the unsympathetic boards of the platform. Several severe, but not serious, bruises resulted.

For the Band's Benefit.

A meeting of ladies representing the several churches in town, was held in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, Friday afternoon, to arrange for an entertainment or social to be given in aid of the Fire Brigade Band Uniform Fund, on August 12th. The meeting was not nearly as large as the cause called for and in consequence was adjourned till Tuesday afternoon, when it is hoped there will be a large gathering of those who will lend their assistance in promoting the project. As the band has been very liberal in giving gratuitously its services on the occasion of church socials, it is but reasonable that the ladies representing the churches, enter heartily into the scheme. Let us see which church will send the largest number of representatives.

Useless Now and Dangerous.

The old tank for fire purposes at the corner of Charlotte street and Park Place—the intersection of Downie and Park streets—is, now that the water mains are advanced so far up Charlotte street, therefore, useless, and not only that, it is dangerous. The children of the neighborhood are constantly playing on top of the tank, the cover is rotten and broken away, so that a child is in danger of falling in, and once in, and under the planking, no assistance could save it from drowning as the tank is full to the brim and several feet deep. It is proposed to do away with the tank, level the ground, and plant the little triangular piece of ground, formed by the intersection of two streets, with trees—and a very pretty spot Park Place can be made. The tank, however, needs immediate attention. It is a most dangerous place. Not only is the cover unsafe, but the beams supporting the planking are rotten and liable to collapse at any time. It may be said; keep the children away from it, but let any one who may strike an idea how to keep children away from a forbidden spot, patent it at once—there would be money in it.

Veterinary Dentistry.

Prof. R. Watkins, Veterinary Dentist, will be at the City Hotel, on Monday, August 23rd, and remain five weeks. The best of city references given.

The Marquis of Salisbury has intimated his determination to settle the Irish question is still the most important topic of Monday. Hear what Chalmers' great orator, the Rev. Dr. Burns, has to say about it at the Opera House next Wednesday evening.

Coloring the Town.

Forepaugh's advertising car arrived in town this morning, under the charge of Mr. H. Davis, advertising agent. About a dozen men with four teams immediately started to bill the town and county, and have succeeded in painting the town pretty well. Nearly all the bill boards and shop windows are arrayed in gorgeous lithograph, and Forepaugh's show is coming.

Peterborough Presbytery.

A special meeting of Peterborough Presbytery was held in St. Paul's Church here yesterday afternoon, to consider a call from Warsaw to Rev. Mr. Howard, of Toronto, a last year's graduate of Knox College. There were present Rev. W. Bennett, of town; Rev. Mr. McEwen, of Lakefield; Rev. Mr. White, of Warsaw, (retired), and J. D. Tully, elder. The call was considered and sustained, and will be forwarded to Rev. Mr. Howard immediately.

Holiday Hegira.

Rev. A. H. Munro, pastor of the Murray Street Baptist Church left town on Wednesday for Portland, Maine, where he will spend a week or so holidaying.

Mr. H. Grundy, left on Wednesday on a trip to Portland Maine.

Mrs. R. E. Wood, left town on Friday for Portland, Maine, on a visit to the seashore.

The pleasure seekers travelled by the C.P.R., having secured tickets at Alex. Elliott's up town agency.

Match Postponed.

Mr. J. E. Hammond, Secretary of the P.A.A.A. has received word from the Secretary of the Ottawa Cricket Club, to the effect that the Capitals will not be able to play here on Thursday next, several of the best men being absent from the city. The Ottawas evidently have no desire to be treated to a defeat similar to that of the Toronto team, and will bring their best eleven when they come. It is probable that the match will be played during August.

Died in British Columbia.

Col. Poole, of town, yesterday received information from Mr. Edward J. Connell, of Kamloops, British Columbia, stating that his brother, William Thomas Poole, who left here 23 years ago for the mining districts, had died in that place on the 19th of July. He was unmarried, 52 years of age, and had been engaged in mining up to the time of his death. No particulars were given, except that he died suddenly. Col. Poole has communicated with Mr. Connell, to ascertain further particulars.

A Successful Student.

Miss L. Gardener, of Cavan, of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, who passed the Toronto University examinations recently, took an exceedingly creditable standing, considering the short time in which she prepared the work. She had only attended the Institute about eight months, and was successful in taking honors in every subject in which she tried, viz: English, History and Geography, French and German. This speaks well for Miss Gardinier's high abilities as a student.

Fruits of Good Farming.

Last year, Mr. P. G. Walker, Lot 27, 1st Con., of Otonabee, carefully summer fallowed 18 acres of ground and sowed it with Clawson wheat. This harvest he gathered from the field 749 stooks (of 12 sheaves each,) besides half a dozen loads of loose grain. The sheaves are large, the heads well filled with bright plump grain and the yield will be large. Surrounding farmers estimate the yield at from 25 to 35 bushels per acre. At any rate, the crop produced is an evidence of the wisdom of thorough farming and careful tillage such as Mr. Walker is noted for practising.

Work Progressing.

Mr. D. Belleghem's furniture business is rapidly expanding and to meet its growth he is doubling the size of his manufactory. He is extending it to cover the entire size of his lot. The new building will be exceedingly substantial, with a fourteen inch wall. The old shop will continue to hold the machinery, while the new portion will be devoted to the bench work, etc. The additions to premises, when finished, will make D. Belleghem's manufacturing facilities complete and the public will gain the advantage his increased facilities for turning out the best furniture made, will afford. The brickwork of the new building is rapidly rising.

Hymeneal.

The residence of Mr. Wm. Yelland, on Wednesday afternoon, was the scene of an interesting and happy event. Miss Yelland, only daughter of Mr. Wm. Yelland, was united in marriage to Dr. Graham, of Fenelon Falls. Miss Laura Branch was bridesmaid and Benjamin Yelland supported the groom, while Rev. A. H. Munro, performed the ceremony. The presents were handsome and numerous, evidence of the high esteem in which the contracting parties were held by their numerous friends. The happy couple left town on the evening express for their new home at the Falls. The EXAMINER extends its congratulations.

Return of Campers.

Crescent camp, on Gin Island, Stony Lake, was disbanded yesterday, and the jolly party returned home by the camping steamer [illegible]. Healthy and vigorous, after spending a glorious ten days' outing and ten nights under canvass. The Peterborough detachment remained at the station until [illegible] Hope [illegible] boarded their train and were carried homeward. The Arabs of the lake, attired in their gorgeous camp costumes, presented a pretty picture, that would give a faint idea what they were like out south. The whole party were loud in their praises of Captain Charlesworth, of the Fairy, who, in transferring them from Lakefield to the wilderness and vice versa, was most obliging.

Blue Nose Blooms.

There was a large and active market this morning. The offering of produce, especially vegetables, exceeding any previous day this season. Prices were slightly lower and were quoted as follows: Butter, 13 to 15c.; eggs, 11c. for shipment and 12c. for local use; chickens, alive, 40c. per pair, dressed, 50c.; ducks, alive, 30c. per pair, dressed, 75c. per pair; veal, 5 to 6c.; lamb, 9 to 10c.; potatoes, 20 to 25c. per peck, and $1.60 per bag; apples, 20 to 25c. per peck; onions, carrots, beets, parsnips, radishes, turnips, etc., 5c. per bunch; celery, 10c. per bunch; cabbages and cauliflower, 10c. per head; squash, 10c.; beans, 25c. per peck; peas, in pod, 20c. per peck, shelled, 10c. per quart; raspberries, 90c. to $1.10 per pail; huckleberries, 10c. per quart. Hay, $9 per ton.

Evidence of Efficiency.

Compared with the indifferent success of the pupils of the Public Schools, in different parts of the Province, in passing pupils at the entrance examinations for admission to High Schools, the record of Peterborough Public Schools is exceedingly creditable to those concerned and satisfactory to the ratepayers. All the figures are not available for comparison, but there is little doubt that in percentage of success, Peterborough Public Schools will rank among the highest. Mr. Smith, headmaster and his staff of associate teachers are to be congratulated, upon the evidence of teaching ability and attention to duty, afforded by the success achieved. The pupils succeeding are also worthy of praise for their success in grappling with papers, generally conceded to be of phenomenal difficulty.

A Lady in Flames.

There are numerous camping parties from town at the back lakes, and a day or two ago, a small party went out from town on a day's visit. On returning the visitors boarded the steamer, and although a young lady of the party had spent fifteen minutes in saying good-bye at the wharf, she stood on the deck, waving her handkerchief at her friends, and, so intently was she engaged that she did not perceive that her clothing had caught fire, till her skirts were trimmed with an irregular ruching of flame. The young man accompanying her, at once sprang to the rescue, and not being afraid of fire risks, was soon engaged in a "hand-in-hand" struggle with the devouring element. He clutched the conflagrating calico in his hands and thus, by excluding the supply of oxygen from the points of ignition of the blazing garments, succeeded in extinguishing the fire. The young lady showed great coolness in spite of her warm surroundings. She was calmer on the occasion than most young ladies would have been under the circumstances. It is supposed that a spark from the smoke stack of the steamer set fire to her dress, and she was so absorbed in the farewell signal service that she did not notice the progress of the fire, and seriously, if it had not been for the prompt and gallant action of her companion, the incident might have had a more serious termination. This affair, taken in connection with the mishap to the young lady, whose too long good-by on the train resulted in a dangerous tumble at the Midstation, would indicate that it was unlucky to say "good-bye"—better say "ta-ta," "so long," or some such classical euphemism.

Church Chimes.

The pulpit of the George street church will be occupied to-morrow morning by the Rev. G. H. Davis, and in the evening by Rev. J. W. Annis, B.A., pastor of the First Methodist Church, Barrie. Mr. Annis is one of the ablest members of the Toronto Conference, and will, no doubt, be listened to with great pleasure and profit.

Rev. I. Tovell will conduct the services in the Charlotte street Methodist Church in the morning, and Rev. J. C. Wilson, pastor of the Mark street Methodist Church, Ashburnham, in the evening.

Rev. W. M. Roger, of London, will conduct the services in St. Paul's Church to-morrow.

The following formula for preparing a tonic to prevent the falling out of the hair is highly recommended by a well-known chemist: Quinine sulphate, 20 grains; glycerine, 1 fluid ounce; cologne 2 fluid ounces; bay rum, 2 fluid ounces; rose water, 11 fluid ounces. Rub the quinine with the glycerine, and add the other ingredients in order named. The addition of fluid extract of jaborandi is recommended to stimulate the growth.

The Piano Controversy.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Absence from town prevented me from answering D. Smart's libellous letter of the 29th inst. In his letter of 22nd inst. he says: "I had no competition in either case mentioned by Crosby. If I had had he would have fared the same as in several other cases that I could mention, etc." I now challenge him to give names, dates, and signatures of purchasers in such cases of competition. He says he has not spoken to Mrs. Jane Webster for a year. How short his memory is. He and Martin were seen at Mrs. Webster's door talking with her, on Wednesday morning, July 14th, 1886. This I can prove by three responsible persons. He also carried a letter written by Martin same day to Mrs. Webster. Such wholesale fabrications are disgraceful. To screen himself, he comes out over the name of Professor J. A. Doucet. Doucet was never offered an inducement to recommend a Stephenson piano. His guardian—Mr. Smart—told him to try the piano and decide against me. Any man who would sell a piano with a split lid and ask for a glass of water in order to deceive the purchaser, is capable of doing many things unbecoming a gentleman. I shall conclude by giving you the names of the talented men employed to sell a Williams piano, in Peterborough:

Mr. D. Smart, Mr. R. L. Smart,
Mr. Wm. Moore, Mr. F. Martin,
Mr. Canningham, Prof. J. A. Doucet.
Prof. F. C. Hyde.

Who pays the salaries and expenses of such men? It's no wonder that Mr. Smart complains that I sell pianos so cheap that I am ruining the business. I think very little of any piano that requires seven men in one town to sell.

The Williams pianos must be very hard to sell, or else it takes seven men of Mr. Smart's stamp to make one decent, respectable, honest, upright, square, truthful man. I find very little trouble to sell my pianos, and am prepared to double the dose I have given the above named agents.

Yours truly,
J. W. CROSBY.

A GENUINE SMOKE.
A GENTLEMAN who has just returned from the Colonial Exhibition has brought with him some remarkable cigars which took his fancy. The cigars are of extraordinary size, being 6½ inches long and 1½ inches thick. The interesting point about them is that when one of them is lighted the wrapper may be taken off and half a dozen cigars, each cut and lighted, are found inside. Some of the larger ones contain six to fourteen cigars. They are of Canadian manufacture, being made in the Dominion Cigar Factory, of this city. The cigars took a prize of $400.—Montreal Gazette of July 22nd, 1886.

THE TORY IRISH POLICY.

THE WHOLE EMPIRE WAITING FOR ITS DEVELOPMENT.

The First Cabinet Council to be Held on Wednesday—A Comprehensive Measure of Local Government Expected—Attitude of the Gladstonians and Parnellites.

LONDON, July 31.—Everybody is a tip-toe for some hint as to the new government's Irish policy. It is noteworthy that all the men now living who have held the position of Viceroy of Ireland, except Earl Cowper, are more or less committed to Home Rule. Lords Kimberly, Spencer, Aberdeen and Carnarvon all are as much Home Rulers as Mr. Gladstone or Mr. Morley. The Marquis of Salisbury in his appointment to that office has chosen a man who, when he was Lord Castlereagh, was elected to the Commons in the spring of 1878 by the Home Rule vote in County Down. The others were partly for Home Rule and against Lord Beaconsfield's insufficient measure of land reform. But Londonderry's past record will render him a suitable tool in Salisbury's hands, should the latter, as far from possible, desire to execute a strategic movement to the rear. Home Secretary Henry Matthews, besides being a Roman Catholic was elected for Dungannon in 1868 as a Liberal by strong support from the Fenian Brotherhood, whose aim, it is true, was to overthrow a personal enemy by making use of Matthews, but the fact remains that he also was borne into political life by Liberal and Home Rule votes. His selection by Lord Salisbury to fill this most important post marks an epoch in English history. It is the first occasion since the Reformation that a Roman Catholic has been entrusted with one of the secretaryships by a Tory Premier. The only other Catholic who has held office since the Emancipation is the Marquis of Ripon, who was First Lord of the Admiralty in Gladstone' Cabinet. Up to the time when Sir Robert Peel passed the Catholic Emancipation Act in 1826, the members of that sect were not only prohibited from entering Parliament, but were also debarred from holding any of the higher appointments in the civil service or staff appointments in the army.

More Appointments.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The following appointments are officially announced:
Secretary of State for India—Sir R. A. Cross.
Lord Privy Seal—Earl Cadogan.
Colonial Secretary—Right Hon. E. Stanhope.
President of the Board of Trade—Right Hon. Edward Stanley.
Lord Advocate—Right Hon. J. H. A. Macdonald.
Solicitor-General for Scotland—J. P. Bannerman Robertson.
Master of the Horse—The Duke of Portland.

An Address to Lord Aberdeen.

DUBLIN, July 31.—The Mayor and members of the corporation of Limerick presented to the Earl of Aberdeen, the retiring Lord-Lieutenant, in this city to-day, an address thanking him for his support of the Home Rule project, and hoping that Mr. Gladstone's statecraft would soon bring peace and prosperity to Ireland. Lord Aberdeen in returning thanks said he hoped a satisfactory adjustment of Irish affairs would soon be effected.

The Two Parties.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The first council of the new Cabinet will be held on Wednesday next. It has been decided that the Queen's speech from the throne will not be read in Parliament until after the House of Commons is completely organized. According to reports current in Churchill circles, and which are accepted as semi-official, the speech will promise a comprehensive measure of local government for Ireland. It will announce the intention of Her Majesty's government to depend upon the laws at present in existence and to administer them with whatever vigor may be demanded by circumstances relying upon the Irish people themselves to prevent the necessity of resorting to extraordinary measures to preserve order. The Irish policy of the cabinet will be completely dominated and moulded by Lord Churchill and his personal friends, Lord Ashbourne and Henry Matthews. The rest of the ministers, not excepting Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, are mere ciphers so far as concerns the shaping of Lord Salisbury's policy.

It was resolved at a recent conference of the Liberal chiefs to await the Queen's speech before deciding what course the Opposition should adopt. It is now further understood that if the opening assurances of the Government in regard to the Irish question are at all favorable, the Gladstonians and Parnellites will refrain from factious opposition and give the ministry ample time to mature an Irish bill embodying its views.

Policy of the Parnellites.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Parnellites have decided to give the Government time to prepare an Irish bill, but they will demand a measure for the suspension of evictions. Owing to the fall in prices numerous tenants in Ireland are in arrears and are unable to pay their rents. If the introduction of the Irish bill be postponed until spring the landlords will in all likelihood resort to wholesale evictions unless restrained from doing so.

CAPSIZED IN A SQUALL.

LOSS OF A YACHT WITH SIX LADIES AND ONE GENTLEMAN.

Terrible Termination to a Pleasure Trip—The Ladies Imprisoned in the Cabin—All the Bodies Recovered Excepting One—Nine Persons Rescued.

NEW YORK, July 31.—In the terrible gale which swept over the bay on Friday night the schooner Sarah Craig, which was bringing a party of sixteen ladies and gentlemen from Atlantic City to this port, was capsized off Sandy Hook. Seven of the 16 perished. The party were Philadelphia people and consisted of Joseph F. Jordon, head of the real estate department of the Girard Life and Trust Company; Morris Buckley, Pennsylvania railroad operator, son of Marcellus Buckley, of the firm of Southworth, Buckley & Co., of that city, Chester Clark, a Pennsylvania railroad telegraph operator; Alfred Potter, paying teller of the Commonwealth Bank; J. M. Stevens and wife and his two daughters, Miss Mary Stevens and Mrs. H. Askin, Mr. Frank Hall, Misses Beade and Emma Merritt, Maud Retten and Miss Jessie McClure. On the vessel were also two female cooks, Capt. E. A. Rutland, Mate C. Ferguson, Stewart L. Bowman, with the women, Sam Jones and W. Paris. The schooner was hired by the party for a pleasure trip to New York by the sea, stopping on the way at Cape May and Atlantic City.

The party left the Spruce-street wharf, Philadelphia, on Tuesday morning in the schooner. At Atlantic City Miss Jessie McClure left the schooner on account of seasickness. The vessel was just outside Mr Sandy Hook Friday evening when the storm broke. The captain took in his foresail at once and furled it. Mr. Clark was suffering from seasickness and had gone down to the cabin. The ladies went below when the storm began and were much frightened. The captain endeavored to beat up into the bay. The schooner was working along slowly with mainsail and jib set. About 6.30 p. m., when about 600 yards below the Sandy Hook buoy outside and the same distance from the beach, a terrible squall struck the vessel and she was forced completely over on her beam ends, throwing those on deck into the water. The schooner filled very rapidly, but was kept afloat by her sails and the air imprisoned cabin. The passengers and crew in the water reached the boat and clung desperately to the planks. The occupants of the cabin were still alive. The imprisoned ladies in heartrending tones screamed and piteously begged for help. Their anguished friends were helpless and could do nothing to save them. One of the young ladies reached up to the window, which was under water, and one of the men caught her hand, but it slipped, leaving one of her rings in his hand. She fell back and was not seen again. The others were in a part where the air kept the water down. Their agonizing cries continued for a while, then all was still. Some perished by suffocation, for their faces when found were black as from choking. Others held on to the sides of the cabin as long as they could and then let go to drown. A pilot in a skiff came out and saved the other passengers and the crew.

Three tugs came out to the wreck, but nothing could be done to save the unfortunates in the cabin. One of the tugs tried to tow in the wreck to the government wharf at Sandy Hook. The force of the storm caused a high sea, and the tide was too strong to do much, but they persevered in the teeth of the storm. All night long they worked until 5 a. m., when they reached the wharf. The work of raising then began. While it was proceeding, the body of Mrs. Stevens floated out of the cabin and was secured. After the wrecked schooner was partially raised Capt. Gully began diving for the bodies. He was three hours in the water and recovered all the bodies but that of Miss Retten.

The wrecked schooner lies on her beam ends near the government wharf at Sandy Hook. There is no damage done to her beyond the soaking of the cabin furniture and the broken rigging and rails.

The following is a list of the dead:
Mrs. Cora E. Askin, aged 24 years.
Mrs. Stevens, aged 55.
Miss Mamie Stevens, aged 21.
Emma Merrit, aged 21.
Chester Clark, aged 21.
Miss Maud E. Retten, aged 17.
The body of Rebecca Merrit, aged 22 years, was not recovered.

LONG BRANCH, N.J., August 1.—The body of Miss Bessie Merrit was recovered from the yacht Sarah Craig to-day.

PROTECTING THE FISHERIES.

More Rigorous Measures to be Put Into Force.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 31.—During his visits to the Maritime Provinces, Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, spent his time mainly in a personal investigation of the complex fisheries question in the Bay of Fundy. As a result of the investigation several measures will at once be put into operation for the more thorough enforcement of the law upon the border waters of New Brunswick and Maine. The people of the Maritime Provinces are loud in their praises of the vigorous and efficient policy of the Government. Mackerel have been plenty, and with little exception have kept close in shore. The United States schooners give the cruisers a wide berth. The purchase of bait and supplies has been effectually stopped, and no transhipment of cargoes has been allowed.

The Seizure of the Miller.

HALIFAX, July 31.—United States Consul-General Phelan to-night received an affidavit from Capt. Dickson, of the schooner N. J. Miller, which was arrested at Hopewell Cape, N.B., on a charge of smuggling. Dickson says he belongs to Boston and is part owner of the vessel, and denies the charge of smuggling or evasion in any manner of the Canadian customs regulations. The captain's statement is accompanied by an affidavit made by one of the crew who landed a trunk of clothing, and who also denies the alleged smuggling. Consul-General Phelan wired instructions to the consular agent at Moncton, through whom the documents were forwarded, that he had nothing to do with the N. J. Miller case if, as stated, the vessel was owned in New Brunswick.

Not Cholera but Typhoid.

MONTREAL, July 31.—The reported case of cholera on board the steamer Circassian, which was investigated by the Secretary of the Central Board of Health and Dr. Laberge, City Medical Officer, turned out to be a case of typhoid fever. At the suggestion of these officers the man was sent to the hospital and has since died.

Achieve With a Circus.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 31.—The steam tug Storm King, of St. John's, N. B., is reported ashore at Western Head, Queen's County. She sailed from Lockport for Liverpool early this morning with Robert & Gardner's circus on board. The circus company and horses are reported safe, but the extent of the damage done to the steamer is not yet known.

The Tide Water Pipe Co. Bradford, Pa., also keep a supply of Sulphur Iodide Ammonia Liniment on hand. It is a necessity and achieves wonders in all forms of horse troubles. Sold by all druggists.

BY BEARS AND WOLVES.

FURTHER REPORTS OF THE RAVAGES OF LABRADOR.

Good Reason to Believe the Whole Story False—A Telegram From the Premier of Newfoundland to the Colonial Office in England.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 31.—Fresh reports of starvation horrors in Labrador have reached here. It is said that in one settlement of about twenty-eight families the inhabitants had been rendered so weak by forced short rations that there was hardly a man who was strong enough to raise a spear in self-defence against a bear. About 150 bears made a clean sweep of the place, devouring every man, woman and child, excepting four young men, who succeeded in chambering to some neighboring rocks. Here they remained forty-eight hours watching the bears at their horrible repast. After the bears moved away a pack of wolves, which had been following behind, finished what the larger animals had left. By the time the forty-eight hours had elapsed two of the young men had perished from cold, while the third died shortly afterwards. The fourth succeeded in reaching the deserted houses, and the terrible sepulchre which had once been his home. He found there other articles of clothing and a few scraps of food which had been stowed away. Armed with these he reached White Bear, a neighboring settlement twenty-three or twenty-four miles away. The very lowest estimate of those who perished from starvation and exposure places the number at 3500. All these have died since June 1. The mortality is increasing.

Is the Whole Yarn False.

LONDON, July 31.—In answer to a telegram from the Colonial office proffering aid to the inhabitants of Labrador, the governor of Newfoundland telegraphs: "I have reason to believe that the report of the starvation in Labrador is absolutely unfounded."

The Reports are False.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 31.—The Rev. Moses Harvey, one of the best informed and most trustworthy men in Newfoundland, telegraphs: "The reports of starvation in Labrador and Northern Newfoundland are false. No such reports have reached St. Johns, although vessels are arriving from those places daily. The fisheries are improving."

SIR CHARLES IN RETIREMENT.

His Luxurious Home on the Banks of the Thames.

LONDON, July 31.—Sir Charles Dilke has disappeared, leaving his address with his lawyers only. He is believed to have left the country. This is a mistake. On one of the prettiest parts of the Thames, half way between Shipperton and Chertsey, in the middle of the famous Chertsey Meads, is a small, red brick summer house, which was built on arches because the ground was swampy. For half a mile it is surrounded with a thick growth of tall rushes. The house consists of two sitting-rooms, kitchen and bedroom. It is beautifully constructed and palatially furnished with old oak furniture. Half hidden by trees from the river, which is only a few feet away, is a tiny red boat house with a little boat landing just big enough to hold one person at a time. The old name of this spot is Tuckett Eddy. The house was built by Dilke a few years ago as a little pleasure resort close to London, yet assuring extreme privacy. Here Sir Charles and Lady Dilke are keeping themselves in retirement.

Contrary to what has been publicly stated, Dilke does not desire a prosecution for perjury. He and Lady Dilke are deeply attached to each other. A separation for seven years, he believes, would kill her in the present state of the public temper about him. He fears it would be impossible for him to get a dispassionate trial, and if found guilty he might get even a longer sentence than seven years penal servitude. He would not accept a ticket-of-leave, because the conditions of it presuppose guilt. In a fortnight's time he and Lady Dilke go to Royat. He will leave his address with the Attorney-General, promising to return instantly if any steps toward prosecution are taken. It is, however, improbable that they will be thus summoned, in spite of the fact that Mr. Matthews, Crawford's counsel, has been made Home Secretary. Mr. Matthews would then have to direct the prosecution.

THE PASSPORT COMES TO GRIEF.

She Runs up on the Canal Wall at Cornwall—Getting off the Passengers.

At 10.30 Saturday night the steamer Passport, Capt. Irwin, up from Montreal, as she entered the eastern end of the Cornwall canal ran up on the southern wall, through careless, and stuck there, one side however at once sinking. Her position is that she is hung up on the wall at one side and in the water on the other. About one hundred passengers were on board, and though they were tossed about by the sloping floors they were all got off on to the wharf without confusion There was some quick dressing and snatching of divested clothes. The passengers were sent to the hotels; a few got the 2 o'clock train and came on to Toronto, where they arrived yesterday forenoon. A lot of baggage is ruined by water. The Passport is 39 years old.

ANARCHY IN CARDIFF.

Fears of a Desperate and Fatal Encounter.

LONDON, July 31.—The whole of England seems in a very disturbed, even a riotous mood. Anarchy prevails in Cardiff and only slightly less exaggerated symptoms are evident in several other parts. The Chief Constable of Cardiff has an unpleasant work in hand. The people have demolished the toll gate at Grangetown and are using the bridge without payment. In the event of the police attempting force to the collection of tolls the Chief Constable says that he has private information to the effect that 200 navvies armed with iron bars are prepared to attack the constables and pitch them into the river. It is hoped that no sort of collision between the people and the police will occur, because loss of life is almost inevitable. It is hinted that policemen have refused to go on duty as the bridge in face of almost certain severe injury and possible death.

Canadian Interests to be Protected.

NEW YORK, July 31.—An Ottawa despatch says: "Official intelligence has been received here that the action of Newfoundland in warning American vessels off the coast was undertaken in consequence of the advent to power of Lord Salisbury. It is also said the fishery regulations will be enforced by British men-of-war, with a view of effecting a speedy settlement of the fishery question. Fishery officials here admit that Gladstone urged the Imperial authorities to be careful about making seizures, and only to make out cases for violation of the customs laws. They think greater activity will now prevail owing to the admitted determination of the Tories to protect Canadian interests."

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

(No. 2.)

Edward A. Sutton.

What is poetry? Why, sir, that is not so easy to say. We know what light is, but it is not so easy to say what it is.

—Dr. Samuel Johnson.

On the 20th of September, 1865, the remains of the greatly beloved and talented young man, whose name appears at the head of this article, were laid to rest in the beautiful St. Charles Cemetery at Quebec.

His was but a short and uneventful life, yet few in the same sphere have ever passed away amid more general regrets, or left behind them more fragrant memories. He was born at Chomel, Ireland, on the 16th of July, 1848, and received his education at St. John's College and the High School at Waterford. Among his most noted school-fellows there were Thomas Sexton and Edward Lysmy, the one, the great orator of the Irish Nationalists, the other, one of Parnell's able and trusty lieutenants.

From an early date Sutton was passionately fond of music and showed a taste for poetry, but his humble and unassuming manners contrived to hide his predilections for verse, even from some of his most intimate friends. These early productions have been lost, but enough still remains to attest his powers as a true poet and to mark his genius as a devoted friend of Ireland and a writer of simple and pathetic verse, equal to any of the stirring poems and lyrics of his native land.

We understand only about thirty of his best poems remain in the possession of his brother, Mr. John P. Sutton, organizing secretary of the National League movement in Canada.

It is to be hoped these will be given to the world as a lasting memento of an earnest and attached friend of Ireland and a gifted warm-hearted and impulsive poet.

In the year 1865, accompanied by his brother, Edward, A. Sutton emigrated to the United States and four years afterwards they rejoined their family at Quebec, where the head of the family occupied a position of trust in the Union Bank of Lower Canada. In the ancient city Sutton found a home and hosts of friends. He identified himself with various Irish societies, national and religious, and took a deep interest in all the musical unions and associations of the capital. For two years prior to his death he was obliged to withdraw from active life owing to his failing health, but his pen still found employment in tracing those beautiful lyrics, so pathetic, so affecting and so simple and unpretentious, as to mark the character of the man and prove the intensely poetic and ardent nature of their composer.

For over a decade young Sutton filled an important office in the Crown Lands Department of the province of Quebec, and by his amiable character, blameless life and genial disposition made troops of fast friends. It was truly said at his funeral, "he never made an enemy in his life." His poetry is of the simplest character, full of pathos, vigorous, powerful and affecting. Every line is pure, and almost all his pieces attest an affection for his native land,—witness, "The old Boreen," "The St. Patrick's Cross," and "My Native Hills."

As his poems have not yet been issued in book-form we take this opportunity of publishing one of his simplest ballads, which, in every public gathering of his countryman for the past five years, has always produced a perfect furore of feeling and applause:

"A LITTLE GIFT FROM IRELAND."

"Here, gran'ma, here's a present; it has come a distance, too;
'Tis a little pot of shamrocks, and, it comes addressed to you—
Yes, all the way from Ireland, and the card here mentions more—
They were gathered at your birthplace, on the banks of Avonmore."

"From Ireland, do you tell me? O darling, is it true!
Acushla, let me "feel" them and say 'twas there they grew!
Well, I can scarce believe it; is it really what you say?
From my birthplace in old Ireland—poor Ireland far away!

"I'm old and stiff and feeble, and in darkness, God be praised!
Yet, Katy, how it stirs me, how my poor old heart is raised,
To feel it here so near me, the soil that gave me birth,
The very clay of Ireland—let me kiss the holy earth.

"These blessed little shamrocks! I can't see them, yet I know
They bring me back the eyesight of the happy long ago;
And gleaming through the darkness comes the vision that I love,
The dear green fields of Ireland and the sunny sky above.

"I see as once I saw them, when a girl like you I stood
Amid the furze and heather. There's the chapel, hill, and wood;
There's the abbey clad with ivy, and the river's winding shore,
And the boys and girls all playing on the banks of Avonmore.

"God bless the little shamrocks, then, for calling back the scene,
The beauty of the sunshine, the brightness of the green;
Through long, long years to see it, and to see it all so plain—
Ah! child, I'm sure you've smiled, but I'm feeling young again.

"And though I'm truly thankful for the blessings God has brought around me, Katy, in this great and happy land,
I wish I were, the old spot under the shadow of the new;
My heart is three parts buried where those little shamrocks grew."

Fine Boulevarding Enterprise.

Rubidge Avenue.

On Saturday evening Mr. John Doherty, market clerk, and retired member of the Town Council, completed one of the best constructed and longest stretches of boulevarding in town. Earlier in the season he put down boulevarding on the Rubidge and Simcoe fronts of his property, and the appearance was so vastly improved that he could not bear the unsightly look of the opposite side of the street. He therefore opened negotiations with the property-owners opposite, and the result was that he was retained to build boulevarding from the corner of Charlotte street to Kirk street on the fronts of the following property on Rubidge street: Mrs. J. Whyte, Mr. Jas. Stenson, Mr. John Sargeson (not a stockholder, however), C. W. Sawers, Geo. A. Cox (Clinton property), Convent front, Cathedral square front, and Mrs. Nicholls. Considerable difficulty was experienced on account of the variation in grade of the street, but it has been successfully overcome, and the work has been done in an exceedingly creditable and workman-like manner, and the improvement is so great that the residents are moving to have the name changed to Rubidge avenue as more in keeping with its improved appearance. Incited by what has been done, Mr. Ullyott intends to do the Brock and Rubidge street fronts of his residence and Mr. Lech will follow suit on the latter street. Then both sides of Rubidge street—beg pardon—Rubidge avenue, will be under boulevard, from Charlotte to Kirk street, besides, the boulevards of Messrs. R. B. McKee and P. Simons on one side and that of Mr. Geo. Edmison, on the other at the respective ends of the limits mentioned. Viewed in another way boulevarding extends on both sides of the street on Charlotte from Reid and up Rubidge to Kirk street. Altogether Mr. Doherty has put down new boulevarding on account of self and others of a length of over 1600 feet. In addition he has improved the road bed of Rubidge street, cutting down Scott street and placing the material where it would do the most good, on Rubidge street. This street would now be in good shape if the Council would supplement Mr. Doherty's enterprise by applying a good dressing of gravel to the raised portion of the road. Mr. Doherty's past experience has stood him in good stead; he does his street work well, and men and teams under his charge do a full day's work in ten hours. The residents along Rubidge owe a debt of gratitude (the other kind of debt is a private arrangement) to Mr. Doherty, whose public spirit and enterprise has resulted in so greatly beautifying one of the finest residence streets of the town.

ABBE LISZT DEAD.

End of a Famous and Somewhat Eccentric Career.

BAYREUTH, Aug. 1.—Abbe Liszt died at midnight last night.

Abbe Franz Liszt, the celebrated pianist, who was received with such tremendous enthusiasm when he visited Paris and London last spring, has just lived long enough to be present at the wedding of his grand-daughter, Daniela Von Bulow, Mme. Wagner's child by her first marriage. He made his appearance as a pianist in 1820, being then only in his ninth year. After eighteen months of zealous study in his native country, Hungary, he proceeded to Paris, where he performed before the Duke of Orleans, and to London, where he became a great favorite of King George IV. His youth was one of wild adventure. At the age of 23 he eloped with the young Countess D'Agoult and lived with her during several years in a pretty villa on the shore of the Lake of Geneva. She bore him several children, among others Cosimo, who married firstly the pianist Hans Von Bulow, from whom she obtained a divorce to marry Richard Wagner. Another daughter, now dead, married M. Emilie Olivier, the Prime Minister of France at the time of the declaration of war with Germany in 1870. The Countess D'Agoult, who is better known by her nom de plume of Daniel Stern and who is reported to have been the most utterly depraved woman of the century, suddenly left him to become the mistress of Emile D'Girardin. Liszt, almost heart broken by her desertion, recommenced his travels, giving performances in all the capitals of Europe. Being, however, of a very impressionable nature, he was deeply attached to two married ladies one of whom was a Russian and the other a German princess, Sagno Witgenstein. The latter after a great deal of difficulty, obtained a divorce from her husband, which was granted on the very day on which the Russian lady became a widow. Liszt having solemnly promised marriage to each of them separately was now at his wits end and in despair appealed to his friend and patron, Cardinal Hohenlohe, for assistance. Acting on the latter's advice he solved the difficulty by entering the priesthood, and probably with a view of escaping from the vengeance of two deeply wronged ladies. He took up his residence in the Vatican, where he remained until 1872. Since then he has lived mostly in Germany and has been the recipient of honors from almost every sovereign in Europe. He was covered with decorations, possessing close upon sixty, and was proud of them. His vanity was beyond all belief and hundreds of anecdotes are related of his extraordinary behavior in society.

Lachine Canal Bridge Left Open.

MONTREAL, July 30.—The Southeastern, Boston and Portland express, containing four passenger coaches, had a narrow escape from a very serious accident this morning. The Lachine Canal bridge was partly open and the Westinghouse brake gave out. The engine was precipitated into the water first and the car, containing a few passengers, went on until its front wheels rested on the back of the tender. The rest remained on terra firma, and the passengers, though much frightened, were Extraordinary Prolongation of Life.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 31.—An extraordinary case of prolongation of life exists near Dartmouth. Last evening a 4-year-old lad named Horton was running through a field when he was kicked in the head by a horse and fell insensible to the ground, a portion of his brain being knocked out and scattered around his body. During the night the boy recovered consciousness and up to a late hour this evening was still living. He talks freely and sensibly and gives no appearance of being in a dying condition, but the doctors declare he cannot live.

Important Information to the Trade.

We have received information from a reliable source that some of the wholesale dealers are endeavoring to injure our brands by representing "that they are not as good as they used to be." This is done for the sole purpose of foisting upon the retailer and the consumer, private and unknown brands, that pay them (the wholesalers) a large profit. It is a well-known and indisputable fact that for the past twenty-five years the reputation and the quality of the justly celebrated and popular brands, CABLE, EL PADRE, and others of our manufacture, have been and always will be maintained, the statements of interested parties to the contrary, notwithstanding. We respectfully beg to impress upon smokers the importance of their insisting upon having our reliable and well known brands, if they desire to avoid smoking cheap trashy cigars, when a little thoughtfulness would have obviated the annoyance and disappointment consequent upon taking whatever is handed to them. Retailers would do well to avoid the persuasive and oratorical jobber, that endeavors to impress upon them the importance of trying private and unknown brands in preference to the CABLE and EL PADRE that have outlived the thousand and 1 brands that have been introduced since the introduction of the CABLE and EL PADRE. Our (5c) CABLE is put up in two sizes, the CONCHA and IMPERIAL QUEEN cigar, has a narrow red band with the word CABLE on it. None other genuine. Our new brand MADRE E HIJO is exceptionally fine and well worth a trial. S. DAVIS & SONS, Factories, Montreal, Toronto branch, 34 Church street.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 28th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN.—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two springless trusses made in York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down. It holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child sure; and 95 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and question for you to answer. LOVE'S VICTORY.

CHAPTER XXX.

FATE FAVORS PAULINE.

Autumn, with its golden grain, its rich fruits, and its luxuriant foliage, had come and gone; then Christmas snow lay soft and white on the ground; and still Captain Langton had not paid his promised visit to Darrell Court. He sent numerous cards, letters, books, and music, but he did not appear himself. Once more the spring flowers bloomed; Sir Oswald had been lying for twelve months in the cold, silent family vault. With the year of mourning the last of Lady Darrell's gracefully expressed sorrow vanished—the last vestige of gray and lavender, of jet beads and black trimmings, disappeared from her dresses; and then she shone forth upon the world in all the grace and delicate loveliness of her fair young beauty.

Who could number her lovers or count her admirers? Old and young, peer and commoner, there was not one who would not have given anything he had on earth to win the hand of the beautiful and wealthy young widow.

Lady Hampton favored the suit of Lord Aynsley, one of the wealthiest peers in England. He had met Lady Darrell while on a visit at the Elms, and was charmed with her. So young, fair, gifted, accomplished, so perfect a mistress of every art and grace, yet so good and amiable—Lord Aynsley thought that he had never met with so perfect a woman before.

Lady Hampton was delighted.

"I think, Elinor," she said, "that you are one of the most fortunate of women. You have a chance now of making a second and most brilliant marriage. I think you must have been born under a lucky star."

Lady Darrell laughed her soft, graceful little laugh.

"I think, auntie," she returned, "that, as I married the first time to please you, I may marry now to please myself and my own heart."

"Certainly," said her ladyship, dubiously; "but remember what I have always told you—sentiment is the ruin of everything."

And, as Lady Hampton spoke, there came before her the handsome face of Aubrey Langton. She prayed mentally that he might not appear again at Darrell until Lord Aynsley had proposed and had been accepted.

But Fate was not kind to her.

The next morning Lady Darrell received a letter from the captain, saying that, as the summer was drawing near, he should be very glad to pay his long-promised visit to Darrell Court. He hoped to be with them on Thursday evening.

Lady Darrell's fair face flushed as she read. He was coming, then, this man who above all others had taken her fancy captive—this man whom, with all her worldly scheming, she would have married without money if he had but asked her. He was coming, and he would see her in all the glory of her prosperity. He would be almost sure to fall in love with her; and she—well, it was not the first time that she whispered to her own heart, how gladly she would love him. She was too excited by her pleasant news to be quite prudent. She must have a confidant—she must tell some one that he was coming.

She went to the study, where Miss Hastings and Pauline were busily engaged with some water-colors, and held the open letter in her hand.

"Miss Hastings, I have news for you," she said. "I know that all that interested Sir Oswald is full of interest for you. Pauline, you too will be pleased to hear that Captain Langton is coming. Sir Oswald loved him very much."

Pauline knew that, and had cause to regret it.

"I should be much pleased," continued Lady Darrell, "if, without interfering with your arrangements, you could help me to entertain him."

Miss Hastings looked up with a smile of assent.

"Anything that lies in my power," she said, "I shall be only too happy to do; but I fear I shall be rather at a loss how to amuse a handsome young officer like Captain Langton."

Lady Darrell laughed, but looked much pleased.

"You are right," she said—"he is handsome. I do not know that I have ever seen one more handsome."

Then she stopped abruptly, for she caught the gleam of Pauline's scornful smile—the dark eyes were looking straight at her. Lady Darrell blushed crimson, and the smile on Pauline's lips deepened.

"I see my way now," she said to herself. "Time, fate, and opportunity will combine at last."

"And you, Pauline," inquired Lady Darrell in her most caressing manner—"you will help me with my visitor—will you not?"

"Pardon me, I must decline," answered Miss Darrell.

"Why, I thought Captain Langton and yourself were great friends!" cried Lady Darrell.

"I am not answerable for your thoughts, Lady Darrell," said Pauline.

"But you—you sing so beautifully! Oh, Pauline, you must help me!" persisted Lady Darrell.

She drew nearer to the girl, and was about to lay one white jeweled hand on her arm, but Pauline drew back with a haughty gesture that was no mistaking.

"Pray understand me, Lady Darrell," she said—"all arts and persuasions are, as you know, lost on me. I decline to do anything toward entertaining your visitor, and shall avoid him as much as possible."

Lady Darrell looked up, her face pale, and with a frightened look upon it.

"Why do you speak so, Pauline? You must have some reason for it. Tell me what it is."

"No one but you could help Lady Hampton more effectually than I could," she replied, and her very heart was in the words.

"Tell me?" she repeated, and her very heart was in the words.

"Pardon me if I keep my own counsel," said Pauline. "There is wisdom in a few words."

Then Miss Hastings, always anxious to make peace, said:

"Do not be anxious, Lady Darrell; Pauline forgets the rudeness of the unpleasantness she had with Sir Oswald was owing to Captain Langton. Perhaps that fact may affect her view of his character."

Lady Darrell discreetly retired from the contest.

"I am sure you will both do all you can," she said in her most lively manner. "We must have some charades, and a ball; we shall have plenty of time to talk this over when our guests arrive." As it appears to be behind Pauline as in any other more, Lady Darrell quitted the room.

"My dear Pauline," said Miss Hastings, "if you would——"

But she paused suddenly, for Pauline was sitting with a rapt expression on her face, deaf to every word.

Such a light was in those dark eyes, proud, triumphant, and clear—such a smile on those curved lips; Pauline looked as though she could see into futurity, rapture though, while the view half frightened, it pleased her.

Suddenly she rose from her seat, with her hands clasped, evidently forgetting that she was not alone.

"Nothing could be better," she said. "I could not have asked of fate or fortune anything better than this."

When Miss Hastings, wondering at her strange, excited manner, asked her a question, she looked up with the vague manner of one just aroused from deep sleep.

"What are you thinking of, Pauline?" asked Miss Hastings.

"I am thinking," she replied, with a dreamy smile, "what good fortune always attends those who know how to wait. I have waited, and what I desired is come."

Thursday came at last. Certainly Lady Darrell had spared neither time nor expense in preparing for her visitor; it was something like a warrior's home-coming—the rarest of wines, the fairest of flowers, the sweetest of smiles awaiting him. Lady Darrell's dress was the perfection of good taste—plain white silk trimmed with black lace, with a few flowers in her golden hair. She knew that she was looking her best; it was the first time that the captain had seen her in her present position, so she was anxious to make a favorable impression on him.

"Welcome once more to Darrell Court!" she said, holding out one white hand in greeting.

"It seems like a welcome to Paradise," said the captain profoundly; and then he bowed with the grace of a Chesterfield over the little hand that he still held clasped in his own.

Church Chimes.

Rev. W. M. Roger, of London, conducted the services morning and evening, in St. Paul's Church.

In the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, in the morning, Rev. I. T. Tovell conducted the services, and in the evening Rev. J. C. Wilson, of Ashburnham, occupied the pulpit.

Rev. Mr. Wilson, pastor of Mark Street Methodist Church, Ashburnham, filled the pulpit as usual Sunday morning, and in the evening Mr. Wm. Camming conducted the services.

Rev. Father Condon, of Minnesota, preached the sermon in St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday in the morning. He was once a resident of Doure, but has now charge of a parish in Minnesota.

In the George Street Methodist Church in the morning, Rev. G. H. Davis, occupied the pulpit. In the evening there was an overflowing house to hear Rev. J. W. Annis, of Barrie, who preached an eloquent and effective sermon, and as regards eloquence and earnestness fully met the expectations that had been formed of him.

Whether or Not

you believe that consumption is an infectious disease, transmitted tubercular parasites, the fact that Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is capable of restoring a healthy condition condition of the lungs however affected, is one which does not admit of question. At the very first intimation of consumptive tendencies, whether in the form of a presistent cough, general debility, loss of appetite, night-sweats or frequent and depressing chills you should secure a bottle of the "Golden Medical Discovery." It will purify the blood, tone up the system, and remove consumptive symptoms by removing their cause. d27-6t-w31

Yesterday afternoon the Salvationists held a Grand Gospel Parade in the Central Park. There were large numbers present, interested one way or the other in the proceedings.

Park Preaching.

The Y. M. C. A., held their usual afternoon open air services in the Court House Park yesterday afternoon. There was a very large attendance of more or less attentive auditors.

Fire Brigade Band.

This week Mr. Miller, leader of the Fire Brigade Band, will be absent from town. Any person having business with the band, can be served by applying to Mr. E. McCabe, President, at the EXAMINER office.

The Burning Question of the day is, "Has Ireland a Right to Self-Government." The address of the Rev. Dr. Burns on this important subject is reported by the Toronto papers to be remarkably eloquent and convincing. Don't fail to hear him at the Opera House Wednesday evening.

The P. P. Home.

The Ladies' Committee of the P. P. Home thankfully acknowledge the following donations for July :—Mrs. Wm. Walsh, parcel clothing; Mr. Greenhow, curran's; Mr. Hamilton, Douro, bag potatoes; Mrs. Wm. Hamilton, spring mattress; Ladies, Baptist Church, bread, cakes, etc., Mrs. John Breckenridge, Westwood, 10 lbs. cheese.

Our "Boys" Camp.

This morning, a party consisting of Masters (we say "Masters" because they haven't begun to bother the barber yet) —Stanley Rubidge, W. Bates, Geo. Cox, jr., J. Allison and — Murray, went to Burleigh neighborhood for a week's sport—camping probably on Hurricane Point.

Improved in Appearance.

Messrs. Schubert Bros. are now engaged in tuck-pointing the building occupied by Mr. John Clarke, jeweler, Simcoe street. With the completion of this they will have finished a stretch of buildings, reaching from and including the Mechanics' Institute buildings, Water street, to and including the premises occupied by Mr. J. White, as a boot shop, George street. The work has been done and in external appearance the repointed piles look as well as new.

Fresh White Fish, Trout and Bass, arriving daily at Ostrom's, George St.

Bridge Building.

Mr. W. H. Law, of the Central Iron Works, shipped this morning to Themesville, Kent county, a low truss iron highway bridge, 68 feet [illegible], 16 feet roadway. He has nearly completed which will be shipped to the same county during the week. While [illegible] Mr. Law has shipped a number of the patent double-cable hydrants to Three Rivers, P. Q. That corporation arranged several hydrants, and after thorough testing, are so pleased with their working, they want more of them.

The Mitchell's Hospital.

The Lady Superintendent acknowledges the following donations to the hospital, for July :—Mrs. D. Smart, Mrs. Alexander Smith, Mrs. Valentine Best, Mrs. George Barnham, old linen and cotton; Mrs. Brown, of Gobdwood, 2 parcels of books and papers; Mrs. Morrow, milk and lemons; Mrs. Weller, 4 jars of preserves; Mrs. T. U., Bowtle, Wesley.

Hunter Street Bridge.

Messrs. Craig and Dobbin have secured the contract for re-planking the bridge leading from town to the "Scotch village." They begin work this evening. To impede traffic as little as possible the work will be largely done at night, and to admit of this, the bridge will be closed to the public from 7 o'clock in the evening to 5 o'clock in the morning every evening, beginning to-night, and ending Saturday, August 7th. The bridge will be provided with new joists, and the planking will be slightly raised in the middle line across the bridge, to form a water shed.

Death of a Former Resident.

Intelligence was received in town on Saturday, that Mrs. J. J. Middleton, formerly of Smith, but lately of Minneapolis, Minnesota, U.S., died on the previous Saturday. She was a daughter of Mrs. John Galvin, Smith. She was in her forty-second year. A large family is left bereaved by her death. It will be remembered that the husband, Mr. Middleton, some years since, taught school on the Commercial Line, Smith, but removed to Proton, where he was post-master and proprietor of a general store at Dundalk. He filled the office of Reeve of Proton for several terms, finally removing to Minneapolis, where he conducts a merchantile business.

P. A. A. A. Civic Holiday Excursion.

The attention of the public is again called to the excursion of the P. A. A. A. to Sturgeon Point and Orillia on Civic Holiday, Aug. 19th. At Orillia a fine programme of sports, cricket, lacrosse, lawn tennis, etc., will be carried out, and there are splendid facilities for boating. The new steamer "Orillia" has been chartered to carry passengers around lake Couchiching and lake Simcoe, a delightful stream of 20 miles. Another steamer will make continuous trips during the day to Couchiching Park. Train of first-class coaches leaves Peterborough at 7.30, return fare, $1.10. Those so wishing, can stop at Lindsay and spend the day at Sturgeon Point, return tickets to the latter place, only 85 cents. The P. A. A. A. make everything first-class they touch, and this splendid excursion will be no exception.

Central Exhibition.

At a meeting of the Directors of the West Riding Central Exhibition, held on Saturday afternoon, the resignation of Mr. R. C. Strickland as a director was accepted, and Mr. James Stevenson, Mayor, appointed in his stead. The closing paragraph of Mr. Strickland's letter of resignation, is so timely and to the point, that we take the liberty of publishing it as follows :

"The benefit of a Central Exhibition at Peterborough to the farmers of this county would be very great, and I could not and cannot yet understand why their representatives in the County Council denied them this boon, by refusing the aid asked by the Directors. I have always been anxious, and am still anxious to do anything that will further the interests of the farming community of this county, but as their representatives in County Council have (by their action in refusing a grant), said that a Central Exhibition is not required, and that the farmers of this County do not want it, therefore, as one of the Directors, I do not feel called upon to take any farther action in the matter, and take this opportunity of placing my resignation in your hands.

Yours truly,
"R. C. STRICKLAND."

Lakefield, July 21st, 1886.

Appreciative Oddfellows.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. C. H. Clementi, secretary of Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows, received a communication from the secretary of Warriner Lodge of Oddfellows, Port Perry, enclosing the following resolution which was unanimously and enthusiastically adopted :—"Moved by Bro. J. H. Brown, D.D.G.M., seconded by Bro. Wm. Bond, P. G., of Warriner Lodge, No. 75, I. O.O.F., Port Perry, that the thanks of this lodge be tendered to the brethren of the Peterborough lodges for the grand reception accorded them on the occasion of their recent visit to Peterborough, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the secretaries of the two lodges." In a note accompanying the above resolution, the secretary speaks in glowing terms of the enthusiastic manner in which the Oddfellows speak of the cordial and unremitting hospitality extended them by the Peterborough brethren, and of the enjoyment they experienced from their visit to the beautiful and busy town of Peterborough. They will always have a good word to say for Peterborough Oddfellows and town, and will look forward with pleasure to an opportunity of repeating so pleasant a visit. Come again, you will be always welcome.

A Rattling Race Meeting.

Two Days "Duley" Sport at the Driving Park.

The posters are in hand announcing the two days' race meeting to be held on Peterboro' Driving Park, on Thursday and Friday, Aug. 26th and 27th. The two days' event will constitute the most ambitious sporting programme ever presented in the town or vicinity, and the large amount of prize money will attract some of the best horses in Central and Eastern Canada. No town has the same facilities of access by rail as Peterborough, and the management are determined to make this meeting the finest two days' square sport ever presented here. The following is the programme said down :

FIRST DAY.

1st. THREE MINUTE TROT.—Purse $120. Best three in five, in harness. First horse $65; second horse, $30; third horse, $20.

Police Court.

There was but little business at the Police Court this morning.

John Canton of Nassau, was arraigned, charged with disorderly conduct. He was arrested by P.C. McGinty, on Saturday night. He admitted the charge. $2 and costs or ten days, satisfied the demands of justice.

The case against the four lads, W., T. and E. Bradley and E. Johnston, for purloining tools, was dismissed without costs.

And Still They Go.

Another large party left on the trains this morning for the back lakes, via Lakefield, among whom were Rev. V. and Mrs. Clementi, and in another party for a day's outing were Rev. I. Tovell, Mrs. Tovell, Rev. Mr. Angus, Mr. and Mrs. J. Nugent, Mr. and Mrs. J. Braden and Mrs. Annis, of Barrie.

Another Farewell Accident.

On Saturday afternoon, Mr. T. Flaherty, of the firm of Flaherty & Clark, Clothiers, Peterborough, was thrown from the Haliburton Express when it was passing up Victoria Avenue, Lindsay, and was considerable shaken up. He was farewelling a friend, and in leaning forward waving his hand from the car step, fell off. At first it was supposed he was killed, but he returned to consciousness when taken to the Jewett House. He was all right shortly after, and was walking around to-day.

Reported Gone.

It is rumored that Mr. J. H. Thompson, of Bobcaygeon, has departed for the United States. He was agent for the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company and several insurance companies, among the number of the latter the "Phœnix," of England, and in consequence this company has directed Mr Henderson, general agent, Peterborough, to proceed at once to Bobcaygeon and investigate matters in their behalf, with full power and authority to act as he may see fit in the case. Some people say Mr. Thompson left on account of blackmailing. He was highly respected, and a general favorite in Bobcaygeon. His departure was a great surprise; his friends hope he will return immediately.

On Thursday afternoon a very severe hailstorm visited Hamilton and did much damage to the fruit crop.

The through passenger traffic between Montreal and Vancouver continues to be excellent. Nearly all trains arrive on time.

BIRTH.

MILLAR.—At Peterborough, on Friday, 30th of July, 1886, the wife of Mr. Melville Millar, of a daughter.

DR. WASHINGTON, Throat and Lung Surgeon, 215 Yonge St., Toronto :

St. Thomas, June 23, 1886.

THE JOURNAL.

Allow me through your paper to thank Dr. Washington, throat and lung surgeon, for his great skill in curing me of catarrh which had greatly troubled me for years, also an exceedingly bad form of ulcerated throat. My throat for breaks was so badly ulcerated that it was almost impossible for me to swallow, the fetid palate being eaten through, a hole big enough to pass a large pencil quill through. It is now comfortably healed and as I am now able to attend to my business again, I wish to thank Dr. Washington, and can recommend any who may be afflicted with catarrh or any disease of the throat.

Yours truly,
W. M. COX.

A GENUINE SMOKE.
A GENTLEMAN who has just returned from the Colonial Exhibition has brought with him some remarkable cigars which took his fancy. The cigars are of a straight navy plug shape, 6 inches long and 11 inches thick. The interesting point about them is that when one of them is lighted the wrapper may be taken off and half a dozen cigars, each cut and lighted, are found inside. Some of the larger size contain six to fourteen cigars. They are of Canadian manufacture, being made in the Reliance Cigar Factory, of this city. The exhibit took a prize of $400.—Montreal Gazette of July 22nd, 1886.

ANARCHIST DEVILISHNESS.

How Easeful a Common Syringe Might be Made to Slay Murder.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Supt. Cornish, of the Pinkerton detective agency, furnishes a long expose of the secret workings of the Anarchists of Chicago which, he says, have been thoroughly explored by the Pinkerton force. Parsons, Mr. Cornish says, was one of the first to blossom out as a red-hot anarchist. While in Greif's saloon one night he heard Mrs. Parsons make a violent speech in which she advocated hurling bombs at the residences of the wealthiest citizens of Chicago. Spies told them he had a better plan, which was as follows: Every man arm himself with a little syringe, just large enough to be concealed in the closed hand. The point of the syringe should be as small and fine as that of a needle, so that it can easily penetrate clothing and skin. The bulb must be filled with prussic acid. Armed with this you can walk up alongside of the capitalist to be removed, quickly insert the needle point into his flesh and at the same time squeeze the bulb, sending the prussic acid into his veins. The victim would not mind the attack more than he would the prick of a pin, but the poison would kill him in a very few minutes, and his death would be a horrible one. He would not know, and if he did he could not tell, what had been done to him.

This suggestion was greeted with acclamations of approval and applause by all who were present, including Parsons, Fielden and Dusey. Cornish gives the history of the various groups in the city, details the experiments with dynamite and gives the place of meeting of each of the thirteen regularly constituted groups which, on May 4, were in existence in Chicago and the town of Lake, as well as of the cigarmakers' revolutionary secretary and a half dozen other organizations which he says are anarchist societies.

THE TORY DILEMMA.

I am sure that Salisbury is, personally, a humane and kindhearted man, but I cannot help thinking that he would welcome with certain delight—at all events with a sense of relief—the news of a great outbreak of agarian murder in Ireland that would cut the Gordian knot for him. "Coercion! Yes, of course you shall have it! We meant to give it all through." he could declare to his landlord supporters. "You see, we can't help it. We would gladly have done without it, but here are the murders, here are these outrages. Our hands are forced," he could whisper to his Liberal secessionists.

The Irish people will not help him out of his dilemma. Every Irishman who loves his country will do his utmost to keep order and peace. At such a crisis we shall disappoint our enemies. Salisbury shall have no pretext on which to excuse that policy of coercion about which he bragged so lustily a few months or weeks ago, and concerning which he is so much embarrassed and frightened now.

In any case Ireland would be prepared to meet the threats of coercion, much in the same spirit as Ixion in Disraeli's story meets the menaces of Jupiter—"Do your worst, my memory will outlast your torture." But he will not torture. There will be no coercion this time. Her Majesty's new ministers will soon find—they are already finding—that their own position is tormenting enough. They will have to endure much more than they can inflict—until they find the right policy and act upon it. JUSTIN MCCARTHY.

Sixteen Feet of Honey.

OAKLAND, Ill., Aug. 2.—The Christian church at Harmony has been inhabited by bees for a number of years. The bees took up their abode in the wall behind the pulpit and became so numerous that the church had to be closed. To-day a crowd collected and ripped the siding off from foundation to roof, and found that the bees had deposited their honey in the wall between the studding, which were two inches wide and six inches apart, that space being completely filled with honey to a height of sixteen feet. The honey was carried away in wash tubs and pails and divided among the neighbors.

An Epidemic of Typhoid Fever.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—Five new cases and three deaths from typhoid fever were reported to-day. The disease is spreading rapidly. In the Twenty-fifth Ward there are 121 cases, many of them serious. Five new cases of fever have been developed in West Elizabeth within the last forty-eight hours.

Congress Favors the Embonnieres.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Senator Sherman tried to call up the ratification of the extradition treaty with Great Britain favorably reported from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, but the proposition was voted down by a majority which made it seem improbable that any action will be reached.

A Chinese Decoration Day.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The Chinamen of the city celebrated their decoration day to-day. They filled a wagon with eatables, drove to the cemetery, spread the delicacies out on the graves and then set to and ate them.

The Tide Water Pipe Co. Bradford, Pa., always keep a stock of Pilot Jodide Ammonia Liniment on hand. It is a necessity and achieves wonders in all forms of horse troubles. Sold by all druggists.

RIOTING IN BELFAST.

ONE MAN KILLED AND SEVEN ASSICIOUSLY WOUNDED.

BELFAST, Aug. 2.—The court, after sitting seven hours, disposed of 167 charges growing out of the recent riots, sentencing the accused to various terms of imprisonment and to pay various fines.

There was more rioting here this evening. Crowds assembled on York-street and awaited the return of the Catholic excursionists, upon whom they made a fierce attack. The sufferers were chiefly women. A detachment of police charged the attacking party, who stoned and wrecked a number of houses. The mob rapidly increased and drove back the police. The latter then fired upon the mob, killing a young man and wounding seven more. A detachment of soldiers charged with bayonets and cleared the streets. The police suffered severely. Some shots were fired from the mob but without fatal result.

RETALIATION EXTRAORDINARY.

The United States Propose to Stop Shipments Through its Road.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Relative to the fishery dispute it may be stated that by the comity of the United States Canadian cars are allowed to enter and traverse the United States carrying freight for hundreds of miles. One of the Grand Trunk and other Canadian lines are run down from Montreal to New York, there unload and take in freight which they carry seven hundred miles through Canada; then re-enter the United States and run hundreds of miles through this country to St. Louis and other points, where they unload and take in return cargos, which are again run through Canada to New York.

Now, no foreign vessel is allowed to transport a cargo from one port of the United States to another, and it is suggested that Congress shall authorize the President to enforce the same upon railroad cars. In that case, every Canadian having freight, for instance, from St. Louis or Cincinnati for New York, will have to unload at the great bridge at Montreal, and with a westward cargo will have to unload on the border near Detroit.

Two or three sound lawyers who have been looking at this suggestion are of the opinion that there is not even new legislation needed to authorize the proposed course. They insist that the secretary of the treasury has sufficient authority, and that the question which has grown out of allowing Canadian cars and trains, which pay no duties and no taxes in this country, to take part in the internal transportation is contrary to the policy which excludes foreign vessels from our coasting trade and tolerates in favor of Canadian railroad owners a systematic evasion of duties and taxes which our own car-builders and owners must pay.

The Canadian Government, which is harrying our fisherman, is itself the owner to the extent of about two hundred million dollars in the Canadian railroads, and is therefore daily and largely profiting by their share in our internal commerce, while it is denying to our fishermen the commonest hospitalities. If our fishermen must not be allowed to buy coal, ice or bait, or even to go within three miles of Canadian shores, why should Canadian companies be allowed to take large shares of our inter-state commerce?

Representative Collins of Massachusetts today introduced in the House a Bill authorizing the President to deny all commercial rights, including the right to transport vehicles or cars in the United States, to such foreign countries as may deny commercial privileges to citizens of the United States.

SHOT HER BETRAYER.

A West Virginian Damsel Takes Deadly Aim at Her Dissolute Lover.

ROMNEY, W. Va., Aug. 2.—Miss Ann Offner, the 18-year-old daughter of a farmer living near here, shot and killed Benjamin Brooks, a dissolute fellow 43 years of age. About a year ago Brooks induced the girl to accompany him to Cumberland, Md., where a mock marriage ceremony was performed. The couple returned home and lived together as man and wife until the facts become known, and they were indicted by the Grand Jury for illicit cohabitation. While the case was pending Miss Offner returned to her parents. She says that while riding horseback yesterday she met Brooks, who endeavored to persuade her to dismount. On her refusal he put his hand behind him and threatened to kill her unless she did as he wished, whereupon she drew her revolver and shot him in the forehead, killing him instantly.

More Appointments.

LONDON, Aug 2.—The following appointments under the new Government are officially announced:

Charles Thompson Ritchie, President of the Local Government Board.

Col. W. H. Walrond and Sidney Herbert, Junior Lords of the Treasury.

The Duchess of Buccleugh, Mistress of the Robes.

Baron Henry de Worms has been appointed Secretary to the Board of Trade with the management of the affairs of the department in the House of Commons.

Under Foreign Secretary—Sir J. Fergusou.

Under Secretary for India—Sir J. E. Gorse.

Under Colonial Secretary—Earl Dunraven.

Financial Secretary to the War Office—H. S. Northcote.

Financial Secretary to the Treasury—W. L. Jackson.

The Death of the Abbe Liszt.

BAYREUTH, Aug. 2.—Abbe Liszt died in Herr Frolich's house near Wagner's villa. The abbe was ill when he came here to attend the Wagner festival and had to be carried to the opera house. During the performance of Tuesday last he was nervous and tearful. He contracted a cold which speedily turned into inflammation of the lungs. He lost strength rapidly and on Friday was delirious. On Saturday he had a slight return of reason but he never rallied.

The Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimah has claimed Liszt's remains for burial, besides those of Goethe and Schiller. It has been decided to continue the Wagner festival.

Lord Lonsdale's Impudence.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Lord Lonsdale has been sentenced to pay a fine at Newcastle for assaulting David Debenamide, husband of Violet Cameron, a burlesque actress. The husband had found his wife with Lord Lonsdale in a room at the tavern, and had been kicked out of the apartment by Lord Lonsdale, who otherwise maltreated him.

The Orange Side of the Case.

BELFAST, Aug. 2.—Mr. Kine, Grand Master of Orangemen of Belfast, has issued an address in which he congratulates Orangemen upon the fact that they were not mixed up in the recent riots, urges them to make united efforts to maintain peace, and promises an inquiry by Royal Commission to prove that Orangemen were not to blame for the rioting.

The Elections in France.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The latest returns show the election of 329 Republicans and 220 Conservatives. Second ballots have to be taken for 107 seats. The Republicans have gained 69 seats and lost 33. Republican journals observe that those who expected a Conservative reaction are now disappointed.

THAT LABRADOR BEAR YARN.

Accumulative Evidence That it Was an Absolute Fabrication.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The Governor of Newfoundland, in his despatch regarding the famine and bear story, says that the Hudson Bay Company state positively that the company's steamer will not reach Fort Chimo until August 10, and will not leave that place on her return trip before the end of September, making it impossible that news should have now been received from the Strait. The Strait, the company's officers say, has never been frozen over, and the company's vessels bound for Fort Churchill, York factory, and Moore factory are only now due at the entrance of the Strait.

There is no settlement whatever at Cape Mugford, which is 70 miles from Hudson Strait, and there are no Indians within 300 miles of that place.

Natives and residents of Manitoba, who are now staying in London, are entirely convinced that the story originated with persons interested in preventing the construction of a railroad to Hudson Bay, which is projected with a view to shortening the route from the Northwest to Europe.

BRUTALITY AT SEA.

Outrageous Conduct of the Captain and Officers of the R. C. Smith.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—Three men who worked their passage on the Belfast barque Matilda C. Smith, which left Kingston, Jamaica, for Montreal about June 20 and has just arrived here reports that before leaving Kingston Bay Louis Murphy, seaman, belonging to the France, dislocated his shoulder by falling down the companion way. He complained that he was unable to work and he had to help to raise the anchor with his arm in a sling. He was allowed off duty for two days, but on the third he was put to work. This was July 8. He was ordered up the rigging by the first mate on July 9. He came off a spell of duty at the wheel, and was again ordered up the rigging. He fell from the main-royal, 140 feet, breaking every bone in his body. The other men corroborate this statement, and state that the captain and officers were in the habit of using the foulest possible language to them, and also of striking and abusing them without provocation.

Hosmer Beats Laing.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—The three-mile sculling race on Saturday at Valleyfield between Joseph Laing and George Hosmer, for $250 a side, was won by the latter easily. Hosmer's time was 21.30 and Laing's 21.56. On the start Laing took the water first, and the nose of his boat showed just in front of Hosmer's. They both pulled the same stroke, 36 to the minute, and it looked as if each had made up his mind to win from the start. Hosmer did not appear to be working as hard as Laing, and before fifty strokes had been rowed Hosmer had recovered the distance lost at the start, and for a minute the race was nip and tuck. The stroke of the men were pulling, 36 to 38, seemed to be too much for Laing, and was not apparently as effective with him as a slower, steadier pull, and gradually Hosmer forged ahead. Before half a mile had been covered there was half a length of clear water between the boats, and Hosmer's admirers were getting jubilant, but the friends of the Montreal boy were in nowise discouraged, and a few bets were made at even money, and one or two with the odds still on Laing. About half way to the turning point both men had slackened their stroke and were rowing 29 to the minute, and were pulling splendidly, but Hosmer appeared the steadier of the two, and was gradually increasing his lead, which was now about three lengths. When a mile had been covered Hosmer was still showing the way and Laing was rowing in his opponent's water and getting his wash. About 300 yards from the turning buoys Laing put on a spurt, pulled out from his opponent and gained rapidly, and for a moment it seemed as if both men would turn together. Hosmer, however, got there first, and it was half a minute later when Laing, who lost in turning what he had gained in his spurt, headed his boat for home. From the turn to the finish Laing was not in it. Hosmer took a leg lead at the turn and every stroke showed more water between the boats; he appeared to be working easily and steadily, while Laing's stroke looked as if he was doing what used up, and although when within half a mile of the flags he made a determined spurt, he did not materially decrease Hosmer's lead, and the latter came in [illegible] lengths ahead.

The Arrival at Marblehead.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 1.—The Galatea came to anchor at 7.30 p. m., and was immediately boarded by a reporter who was warmly greeted by both Lieutenant Henn and his charming wife. The lieutenant is a bluff, hearty Englishman, short and stout with bald head encircled by a fringe of brown hair tinged with gray. His complexion is not browned from the exposure of his long voyage. Mrs. Henn appeared to be every inch a sailor and seems to take to the sea as naturally as her husband. She is short, medium ely plump, and her face is as brown as her husband's.

The Galatea dropped anchor at 7.30, and soon after arrival a committee of the Eastern Yacht Club, consisting of David Appleton, chairman of the Regatta Committee, Joseph F. Jackson and another member of the club, went into the cabin of the Galatea, congratulated Lieut. Henn on his safe arrival, welcomed him to these shores, and extended him all the privileges of the Eastern Yacht Club and its surroundings. After Mr. Appleton and his colleagues had performed this pleasant duty the reporter was shown into the cabin and introduced to Lieut. and Mrs. Henn. The lieutenant said: "There is really very little to tell you about our passage, it was so uneventful. We had beautiful weather nearly all the way. In fact, if the boat were to make a dozen trips across the ocean it will not be apt to have one passage as fine as this has been. We left Plymouth July 1, and have proceeded leisurely in light winds and on a smooth sea, arriving at Marblehead to-night as you see. We have carried tri-sail, as we call an English jib, and part of the time jib-top sail. During the past two days there has been a deep fog, but it lifted at about 5 o'clock this afternoon and we sighted Thatcher's Island. If the fog had not lifted we might have run slap bang into the land for aught I know."

Marblehead is ablaze with illuminations to-night, from Newton to Barnegat, in celebration of the arrival of the Galatea.

The Yachting Regatta at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 2.—The regatta here to-day was very successful. The races started in a light wind. The Atalanta led with an early start, followed closely by the Norah and the Aileen, which lost on the start. The Atalanta kept the lead, but, the wind freshening, in setting the jib topsail she lost her topmast. The Norah soon afterwards lay to twenty minutes dinable. As the wind increased the Aileen in setting her jib topsail lost her topmast, but gradually drew ahead and took second place. The Cygnet and Ariadne gave up and made for port. The Garfield and White Wings were far behind. The Atalanta beat the Ail en 26 minutes, the Aileen beat the Norah 13 minutes. On account of bad arrangements in starting the Aileen lost nine minutes.

In the second class Iolanthe was first and the Lizara second, although the Iolanthe lost her top mast.

The yachts leave for Oswego to-morrow. The visiting yachtsmen were entertained at a supper to-night by Commodore Carruthers.

Ice Cream will have to take a rest to-night

Chemong Lake Park.

Peterborough's Prospective Summer Suburb—A Run Over the Ground—A Brief Description of its Advantages—A Charming Summer Resort.

"All aboard!" shriek, snort, and off starts the train with scores of passengers having twenty or twenty-five dollar tickets in their pockets, hampered with endless parcels and baggage, with long, tedious, hot, dusty railway rides before them—changes of cars, busses, bustle, midnight awakenings, overcharges, discomfort, dust. They are on their way to the sea-shore—long stretches of blistering sand, with briny billows tumbling upon them, sand flies, stuffy hotels, crowds, mosquitoes, high prices, thin soups, and—style. While there is this annual pilgrimage to the "seashore," hundreds of citizens never stop to think that they have a thousand times more charming, romantic, pleasant and enjoyable summer resort, almost at their doors—just far enough away from town to be out of town. But they have, however. It is only seven short miles from Peterborough. It is yet undeveloped, but nature has gifted it with magnificent possibilities, crystal water, washing a shore broken and varied into sinuous outlines of little cosy bays and little jutting headlands; a splendid growth of trees from the sturdy oak to the seedling cedar; fine, undulating stretches of park-like down, rising and falling in easy sweeps of verdure. Scooped out of the bold shores, here and there, little shady ravines open to allow the sparkling springs that creep out of the clean, sandy slopes, to trickle cool and crystal clear, through ferny tangle or over emerald sward, down over the smooth, sandy beach to mingle with the wide waters of the lake. Chemong park is not yet developed, but

CHEMONG PARK,

IT IS GOING TO BE LOOKED AFTER.

In this respect. Yesterday afternoon we went out to see about it—that is, Mr. Alex. Elliott, joint proprietor with Mr. R. H. Fortye, of the seventy acres of sylvan beauty composing the park, Mr. J. E. Belcher, C. E., a representative each of the Review and EXAMINER and Mr. Ed. Brown as charioteer, holding the ribbons over a dashing black team of Tierney Bros.' Thus we bowled along over the changing and delightful drive to the park, past fertile farms with waving fields of thrifty oats and spring wheat, rank growing roots, the landscape here and there broken with patches of beautiful woodland or clumps of shade trees; everything green and cool, after the dust and glare of the hot town. Where the road deflects sharply to the right to reach the lake and the floating bridge, is

THE ENTRANCE TO THE PARK.

The western boundary is formed by a road not at present travelled. This road leads directly to the lake and about midway is projected another entrance. The plans at present provisionally approved of for the improvement of the park, contemplate the erection of a fine summer hotel on the highest point in the park, not far from the entrance. This hotel will have a verandah and balcony on all sides and from the latter the view commands the whole of the park and the full breadth of the lake—the farther shore, with its undulating outline of alternate hill and valley, field and farmhouse, forming a beautiful back ground.

In front of the hotel is a turn where the two entrance avenues, which are to be flanked with rows of trees, meet and in the centre of this will be

A ROCKERY WITH FOUNTAIN.

From this the system of romantic drives radiates. The principal one sweeps with broad curve around the western end of the park, skirts the ravines that indent the shore, follows the general line of the shore for about two thirds of the length of lake front, turns on itself and finds its way by various graceful meanderings back to the hotel. In its course it climbs over breezy hills, steals under shady trees, peers over the slopes of ravines, dips into hollows, winds amongst the fragrant greenery of cedar copses, now giving broad view of lake and shore, now allowing broken and rifty glimpses of the fugitive sparkle of crisp clear wave, as the shifting drapery of the boughs opens the mometary vista or close the view, but always charming, always changing. The shore line is of great beauty, not the least being a splendid beach of clean sand, which slopes so gradually that the lake presents the finest imaginable the increase in depth of the clear water being so gradual that the veriest child will weary himself with wading before he gets beyond his depth and into danger. But at other points there are places where the strong swimmer can find depth enough. A system of bath-houses will provide fully for the enjoyment of this delightful and refreshing recreation.

OPPORTUNITY FOR BATHING;

The western half of the shore is bold, with yet, a broad enough beach at the water's edge. The high shore is, however, broken, by the ravines mentioned before. These ravines are well wooded, and those in the eastern end with dry bottoms form charming natural avenues from the higher land down to the water side.

Nearly north of the site of the hotel, a bold projection of the shore juts out, and this is the site selected for the band stand. It also forms a wide expanse of smooth sward, shut in on all sides, except the lake front, with lofty trees. From this point the whole length, from start to finish of that has been laid out, is visible. It accommodates hundreds of spectators.

Further westward, the wharf is situated. At this point the shore declines in height, forming a natural approach to the wharf and easy access from it to the main drive, which at this point skirts the shore closely. Here are two or three of the numerous springs, bubbling and sparkling from beneath the gravelly roots of cedars and elms, which are kept in intense verdure by the water that oozes out from the hill immediately above the roots.

These springs also mark the western limits of the public park, and it is here that begins. It is proposed to divide the land into lots, one of fifty feet frontage, for the purpose of erecting summer cottages. For some distance the fronts of these lots abut on the drive, which parallels the shore for some distance further. All these places can be so arranged that every one commands a view of the lake and the hills and valleys of the farther shore. The shore from here west is much less bold than farther west and it rises up pretty sharply to the southern boundary of the park. This conformation of the ground enables

THE NEWLY LAID OUT AREA

TWO OR THREE STREETS OF COTTAGES

to be laid out, the farthest from the shore overlooking the others and commanding a lake view. As the park extends westward it becomes narrower but increases in beauty. It is impossible to set down in words a description that will even approach doing justice to the beauty of the portion of the park to be devoted to summer cottages. The timber is all second growth, the earth at one time having apparently been swept with fire. This leaves the swards between the irregular clusters of trees, smooth and even as a well-trimmed lawn, and the grass in many places, owing to the rich nature of the alluvial soil, as green. Here there are vertical patches as large as a tennis lawn, walled in by tall evergreens, masses of intensely vivid green. From the emerald sward from which they seem to spring like giant tufts of grass to the feathery tips of their topmost boughs, not a trunk or limb or branch is visible. From these smooth stretches the sward radiates in different directions, winding and twisting in and out and about amongst the shrubbery in the most fantastic manner. Now leading to similar grassy spaces, now sloping into surprising little dingles, down which a spring-fed rivulet wriggles its way, fattening the black loam till the cedars that grow there stand dressed in humid green, almost black in its intensity of color. Many acres of this charming sameness of always changing in clustering and grouping, but ever the same in richness of verdure, and delightful effects of light and shade—semper-idem sed nunquam idem.

INFINITE VARIETY MEETS THE EYE—

A person who has not visited this spot (meaning Chemong Park) can form no idea of its beauty. In adaptability to summer residence, it meets every demand. Shade and seclusion, the waters of the lake washing the shores, and above all, abundance of drinking water. This feature deserves special prominence. Numerous springs of the purest water percolating through the sandy soil, ooze among the resinous roots of pine and cedar, cool and sparkling. In fact water seems to abound everywhere, even where the ground is high the presence of the water fern—osmunda cinglaniana—indicating that water may be got by simply thrusting a tube into the soil. The air is pure, heavy with ozone. Yesterday as she stood on the shores of the lake, he could almost feel it inflate his lungs and put new life into his blood as it blew across the lake, bringing from the wide fields beyond, the fragrant scent of the pine and birch and catching, as it passed, the aroma of the aftermath growing lush in the fertile meadows.

The soil is excellent; it is a sandy loam that quickly absorbs the rain as it may fall, the surface being dry shortly after a pelting shower. The facilities for boating are not to be surpassed, while

THE FISHING CANNOT BE BEATEN,

Chemong lake being one of the chain of lakes noted for their finny treasures. Maskinonge, bass, perch, etc., reward the patience of the fishermen who plies rod and reel.

It is a wonder that this beautiful spot, so well adapted in every way for a summer resort, has been so long neglected. It is within easy reach of the town, the lots will be sold at a reasonable figure and a cozy cottage fit for summer use can be put up for from $75 to $100. The family of many a business man when, at the expense which a trip to the seaside would entail, they might buy a lot, build a cottage and spend the heated term at Chemong Park, which for healthfulness, comfort and positive luxury of enjoyment is equal to any summer resort on the continent. And in no place can there be found a spot where the invalid can encounter the conditions of recuperation; such as rest, quiet, pure water and pure air, so fully as at Chemong Park.

SWELTER IN TOWN DURING THE SUMMER,

This place is singularly free from pests, insect and other. A tramp of three hours over it did not startle a single snake, not a musquito made its appearance nor a single sand fly, nor any other insect pest.

A few hundred yards from the park to the eastward is the village of Bridgenorth, where small shops would supply the wants of those campers not in easy communication with town, while from it to the town lead two delightful drives, that known as the "black road" being especially pleasant in hot weather, the bordering thickets of overhanging trees giving it the coolness and aspect of an old country lane.

The above brief allusion to the adaptability of

CHEMONG PARK AS A SUMMER RESORT,

by no means exhausts the subject; a volume could be written on it. It is to be hoped that the enterprise of the present proprietors of the park will receive the encouragement of the public, so that this beautiful spot at our very doors may no longer be neglected, but speedily become the home of a little summer colony of pleasure seekers, who, in a month or two's residence there will, at a tithe of the expense, meet with ten times the amount of sanitary benefit and perfect enjoyment than can be secured by a month's gilded misery at the so-called watering places abroad.

An Impotent Government.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The situation on the Mexican border is growing somewhat serious. It is a fact that the Mexican Government, through its minister here, Mr. Romero, has promised the release of Editor Cutting, but it seems probable that the Mexican Government cannot fulfil this promise owing to the resistance of the authorities of Chihuahua. The latter are quite willing to embarrass President Diaz and have taken this opportunity to do it.

A Prize Fight at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Aug. 2.—Jack Dempsey, of Toronto, who was recently defeated by Harry Gilmore, fought eight rounds with Prof. Taylor, of this city, at an early hour this morning. The mill took place on the mountain, not far from the city. Dempsey weighed about 130 pounds and Taylor 20 pounds less. After eight rounds, Dempsey's arm being broken and he unable to continue the battle, it was declared a draw for an unknown reason. Dempsey's arm had been broken previously, and it is said that the affair this morning was only a hippodrome to help Dempsey's chances in a match he is trying to make with a man near Caledonia. Thirty-five people attended the fight, and the contestants received $16 each as their share of the gate-money. There was no stake on the fight.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines.—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 29th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN.—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two spring less trusses made in New York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down. It holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.

This new Spirial Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect: is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child and 80 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address

CAPTAIN LANGTON ACCEPTED

Lady Darrell was obliged to own herself completely puzzled. All the girls she had ever known had not only liked admiration, but had even sought it; she could not understand why Pauline showed such decided aversion to Captain Langton. He was undeniably handsome, graceful, and polished in manner; Lady Darrell could imagine no one more pleasant or entertaining. Why should Pauline show such great distaste for his society and such avoidance of him?

There were times, too, when she could not quite understand Aubrey Langton. She had seen him look at Pauline with an expression not merely of love, but with something of adoration in his eyes; and then again she would be startled by a look of something more fierce and violent than even hate. She herself was in love with him; nor was she ashamed to own the fact even to herself. She could let her heart speak now—its voice had been stifled long enough; still she would have liked to know the cause of Pauline's avoidance of him.

On the second day of his visit Lady Darrell gave a grand dinner-party. Lady Hampton, who viewed the captain's arrival with great disfavor, was, as a matter of course, to be present. All the neighbors near were invited, and Pauline, despite her dislike, as a scorn, my contempt, my loathing for you. If know in words in which I can express my many, I would choose death. I had to choose this instant between death and you, I would choose death. I would die a thousand such words to me. If you repeat this insult, it will be at your peril. Be warned."

"You are a beautiful fiend!" he hissed again, his face white with rage, his lips dry and hot.

Pauline stood [illegible] with deep [illegible] upon her lips.

"I love her and I hate her," he said; "I would take her in my arms and carry her away where no one in the world could see her beautiful face but myself. I could spend my whole life in worshiping her—yet I hate her. She has ruined me—I could trample her life out. 'Go and marry Lady Darrell,' she said; 'I will obey her.'

He returned to the house. No one noticed that his face was pale, that his eyes were bloodshot, and [illegible]; no one knew that his breath came in hot gasps, and that his heart beat with great irregular throbs.

"I will woo Lady Darrell and win her," he said, "and then Pauline shall suffer."

What a contrast that graceful woman, with her fair face and caressing manner, presented to the girl he had just left, with her passionate beauty and passionate scorn; Lady Darrell looked up at him with eyes of sweetest welcome.

"You have been out in the grounds," she said, gently; "the evening is very pleasant."

"Did you miss me, Lady Darrell—Elinor?" he asked, bending over her chair.

He saw a warm blush rising to her cheeks, and in his heart he felt some little contempt for the conquest so easily made.

"Did you miss me, Elinor?" he repeated. "You must let me call you Elinor—I think it is the sweetest name in all the world."

It was almost cruel to trifle with her, for, although she was conscious of the last degree, and had but little heart, still what heart she had to call his. It was so easy to deceive her, to make her believe anything that suited his character—her fond affection was almost pitiable. She raised her blue eyes to his; there was no secret in them for him.

"I am very glad my name pleases you," she said; "I never cared much for it before."

"But you will like it now?" he asked; and then, bending over her chair, he whispered something that sent a warm, rosy flush over her face and neck.

Every one noticed the attention he paid her; Lady Hampton saw it, and disliked him more than ever. Lord Aynsley saw it, and knew that all hopes of winning the beautiful widow was over for him. People made their comments upon it, some saying it would be an excellent match, for Sir Oliver had been much attached to Captain Langton, others thinking that Lady Darrell with her fair face and her large fortune might have done better. There was something, too, in the captain's manner which puzzled simple-hearted people—something of fierce energy, which all the softness of word and look could not hide.

"I forget not much [illegible] what's [illegible] news from Darrell Court," said one [illegible] another.

[illegible] turned the [illegible] was full [illegible] but there was a general expression of disappointment that she had not done better.

Those dwelling in the house foresaw what was about to take place. Aubrey Langton became the widow's shadow. Wherever she went he followed her; he made love to her with the most persevering assiduity, and it seemed to be with the energy of a man who had set himself a task and meant to go through with it.

He also assumed certain airs of mastership. He knew that he had but to speak one word, and Darrell Court would be his. He spoke in a tone of authority, and the servants had already begun to look upon him as their master.

Silent, haughty, and reserved, Pauline Darrell stood aside and watched—watched with a kind of silent triumph which filled Miss Hastings with wonder—watched and spoke no word—allowed her contempt and dislike to be seen in every action, yet never uttered one word—watched like a beautiful, relentless spirit of fate.

Throughout the bright, long summer months Aubrey Langton staid on at Darrell Court, and at last did what he intended to do—proposed to Lady Darrell. He was accepted. It was the end of July then, but, yielding to her regard for appearances, it was agreed that no further word should be said of marriage until the spring of the following year.

Whether or Not

you believe that consumption is an infectious disease, transmitted tubercular parasites, the fact that Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is capable of restoring a healthy condition condition of the lungs however affected, is one which does not admit of question. At the very first intimation of consumptive tendencies, whether in the form of a persistent cough, general debility, loss of appetite, night-sweats or frequent and depressing chills you should secure a bottle of the "Golden Medical Discovery." It will purify the blood, tone up the system, and remove consumptive symptoms by removing their cause. d27-6t-w31

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofulous Disease of the Lungs, is promptly and certainly arrested and cured by this God-given remedy, if taken before the last stages of the disease are reached. From its wonderful power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now celebrated remedy to the public Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too limited for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all

Lady Darrell took this opportunity of expressing, for the first time since Sir Oswald's death, an private dislike. She wore a dress of blue brocade, a marvel of color and wearing, embroidered with flowers, her very gold-clasped diamonds, her golden head-dress of which seemed to attract notice. She wore the floral ornaments, and that seemed to suit her best. Pauline looked very lovely in white lace, with a few pearls in her hair. Pauline seemed from the moment she entered the room to be surrounded by an atmosphere of her own. Lady Hampton, who had been prepared to dislike her, was forced to own that she was perfectly lovely. Lord Aynsley was quite fascinated by her beauty, and Captain Langton was more than ever enamored of her. Lady Darrell looked on with pride and pleasure as she saw the admiration her beautiful guest excited. Pauline was the queen of the evening, and all the gentlemen vied with each other in paying her homage

Funds Demanded.

A demand has been made upon Mr. Edg. Pearse, County Treasurer, by the East Riding License Commissioners, for the sum of $620, two thirds of the amount, which, it is thought, will be required for enforcing the Scott Act. The treasurer has deposited the amount to the credit of the commissioners. It is more than probable that a similar demand will be made by the West Riding Commissioners.

Court House Park.

This beautiful resort is kept, as far as the gardener's part, in first-class order and its growth continues to make it surpassingly beautiful. But there is reason to complain of the unsightliness of scattering papers and other litter by boys and others. This makes an otherwise beautiful place unsightly and detracts from its beauty and enjoyableness. If, after fair warning, there is no improvement, an example should be made of two or three offenders.

Surveying the Islands

Mr. T. R. Henderson, D.L.S., and party of twelve, started yesterday morning for Stony Lake, to survey the Islands and Lake for the Indian Department of the Dominion Government. Mr. Henderson expects to be engaged until late in the fall in doing this work. It is estimated that there are over 100 Islands in the Back Lakes that will be surveyed. Parties desiring to secure an Island on which to erect a summer lodge should apply to the Government at once, before the very best ones are taken up.

Brought Home for Burial.

Mr. Martin McFadden yesterday received a despatch from Mr. John Brennan, of Cleveland, Ohio, stating that he would leave that city with the remains of his brother, Mr. P. J. Brennan, whom, it will be remembered by some, was bartender for a number of years with the late Mr. Caissie, and afterwards with Captain Turver. Mr. McFadden attended to the funeral arrangements.

A Big Rush for Bargains.

Mr. M. Carton, on Saturday, opened the large stock of the Bon Marche to the public and the rush for bargains began at once. Remarkable bargains are being given in all classes of goods. This is an opportunity the public cannot afford to miss, as the goods must be rushed, off rapidly, regardless of price and one that will not occur again. Remember that Carton's big bargain sale at the Bon Marche, is now going on and those who call early will get the pick of the biggest bargains ever offered in Peterborough.

For all kinds of fine fruit—call at Ostrom's, George street.

Medals for Merit.

The medals won by the three pupils of the Convent, taking the highest number of marks at the entrance examinations, are ready for presentation. They are two gold medals and one silver medal. The gold medal, given by his Lordship, the late Bishop Jamot, shortly before his death, which has been designed and procured by Rev. Father Conway, was won by Miss Lizzie O'Brien. The other gold medal, presented by Mr. John Hackett, was won by Miss Teresa Kennealy and the silver medal, presented by Rev. Father O'Brien, of the Cathedral, was won by Miss Essie Crummey. The medals are beautiful and valuable and form a handsome reward of diligence and an incentive to as great application in the higher educational sphere, the entrance to which they signalise. The teachers of the Convent, are naturally gratified at the success of the pupils they sent up to the examinations, a very large percentage succeeding. The gold medals were from the jewelry establishment of Mr. R. Manaster and the silver medal from that of Mr. W. A. Sanderson.

Police Court.

Thomas B. Brophy, of Burleigh, was arraigned this morning charged with assaulting Robert Redmond and using threatening language. Mr. John Green, and Mr. J. O'Meara appeared for complainant and defendant, respectively.

The complainant testified that while driving through Burleigh, the defendant rushed out of a blacksmith shop and seized his horse by the head and ordered him to stop; at the time calling on somebody to hold the horse till he took satisfaction out of him, (the complainant). The man called on, held the horse while the defendant ordered him to get out of the buggy as he wanted to get satisfaction. He accused him of killing his dog. He used extremely violent and threatening language. He never knew the man before and knew of no provocation he had given him. Owing to his threats he did not feel sure of his life going back there. He struck the complainant. There was no evidence given in defence. The magistrate adjudged the charge proven and imposed a fine of $5 and costs, and ordered the defendant to be bound over to keep the peace for one year in two sureties of $250 each.

A Rattling Race Meeting.

Two Days "Daisy" Sport at the Driving Park.

The posters are in hand announcing the two days' race meeting to be held on Peterboro' Driving Park, on Thursday and Friday, Aug. 26th and 27th. The two days' event will constitute the most ambitious sporting programme ever presented in the town or vicinity, and the large amount of prize money will attract some of the best horses in Central and Eastern Canada. No town has the same facilities of access by rail as Peterborough, and the management are determined to make this meeting the finest two days' square sport ever presented here. The following is the programme said down:

FIRST DAY.

1st. THREE MINUTE TROT.—Purse $120. Best three in five, in harness. First horse $65; second horse, $35; third horse, $20.

2nd. HALF MILE RUNNING RACE.—Purse $100. Best three in five. First horse, $60; second horse, $25; third horse, $15.

3rd. TWO-THIRTY-FIVE TROT.—Purse $ 200. Best three in five. First horse, $110; second horse, $65; third horse, $35.

SECOND DAY.

1st. TWO-FORTY-FIVE TROT.—Purse $150. Best three in five. First horse, $85; second horse, $40; third horse, $25.

2nd. MILE RUNNING RACE.—Purse $150. Best two in three. First horse, $85; second horse, $40; third horse, $25.

3rd. OPEN RACE. — Purse $300. Best three in five. First horse, $175; second horse, $75; third horse, $50.

4th. CARTERS' RACE. Purse $30. Half mile dash, go-as-you-please, in carts. First horse, $15; second horse, $10; third horse, $5.

Remember the date, August 26th and 27th. Further particulars from day to day.

Names Wanted.

Chief Cooper is in continual receipt of anonymous communications, referring to divers offences, but in the absence of the names of the parties supplying information, he can take no action. If the parties who make complaints will give their correct names, as a guarantee of good faith, Chief Cooper could take action in many of which may prove important cases. The chief will consider the names confidental and will not reveal the identity of the owners in such cases.

Holiday Negtras.

Messrs. Thomas J. Halliway, Wm. Baddock and Francis Williams all leave for New York to-night, to embark by White Star line for Liverpool. They were supplied with tickets by Mr. T. Menzies.

Mr. Thomas Hays, assistant engineer in the Midland Railway engineer department, and Mr. A. J. Dunlop leave to-morrow morning for Vancouver, British Columbia. Miss A. Dunlop accompanies them as far as Winnipeg. Mr. Alex. Elliott, of the C.P.R. uptown agency, supplied the tickets.

Light Wanted.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I want more light in more ways than one. I want to know how it is, that the lamp post has not been placed at Langford's corner, North Ward and at Trembley's Grocery, Rubidge street. These lamps have long since been voted by the brave council, and the council is paying for the one supposed to be consumed. Now, I want to know if the tax-payers can afford to overlook such neglect and extravagance. It is a great public inconvenience, to do without the lights, but it is nothing else than an outrage to be compelled to pay for them without deriving an atom of advantage. It is no wonder that our taxes are several mills higher than they should be, when with a prospective loss of revenue of $6000, we have to pay regularly for a public advantage which exists only on paper. I have had my say, now, let the civic authorities do their do.

Yours truly,
DIRECTLY INTERESTED.

Peterborough, Aug. 3rd, 1886.

Somebody's Permit.

Written for the EXAMINER.

Into a mud-roofed, cotton-wood shack,
Down by the river side away,
On a sandy North-west settler's back,
Somebody's permit was borne one day.

Somebody's permit of brandy brown.
All for "medical purposes bought":
Slowly the settler lays it down,
And eyes his grub as a settler ought.

A tap at the door: lo! somebody comes,
Somebody's permit to sample now—
"Enter!" the one of the thrusted ones,
An inight comes hat shades his manly brow.

Fringed chaparreras his limbs encase,
A forty-five on his hips hangs low,
A belt of cartridges round his waist—
These are the cowboy's pride you know.

In somebody's permit hand, here a hole
Carefully, waste not one precious drop;
What flashes of wit, what a flow of soul,
Somebody's permit may open up.

Somebody's permit is nightly tipped,
Into a cup runs the liquid brown.
The visiter swaereth, "may he be whipped
If more elegant stuff in the west is found."

Quickly they gather from far and near.
Till the shack is filled with neighbors bland;
'Tis a wonderful thing, how the neighbors hear
When somebody's permit has come to hand.

Often the cup is filled and drained,
And jest and song are all the go.
"Success" grow louder, eyes are strained—
And somebody's permit is getting low.

Soon somebody's permits work is done,
The maudlin stage has been reached and past.
The clock has late chimed the hour of one
When somebody's permit is done at last.

At length, the gray clad van of day
Drives back the gloomy hosts of night.
Through the dusty small-paned window play
The first faint beams of the coming light.

They fall on the form of sleeping men
Lying about the littered room,
Somebody's permit headmaster red them,
Somebody's head will be aching soon.

C. M.

Battle River, N. W. T., July 21, 1886.

"Shack."—Log shanty.

All permits are issued ostensibly for medical purposes.

You are not allowed even to give part of your permit and are liable to a fine of $50.00 for so doing.

These hats are worn by cow boys and others who ride much and are broad brimmed, made of leather and sold by the ounce, $1.00 per oz.

"Chaps-ra-ros"—Leather leggings.

"Forty-five"—A large revolver forty-five calibre, the size.

Personal

Dr. Tassie, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, left town this morning for a three weeks visit in the west.

Mr. D. J. King, a reporter of the EXAMINER is doing Sturgeon Point this week.

Mr. A. P. Budd, lately with the Hamilton Bridge Company, but formerly of Buffalo, and now with Mr. Law, left this evening to take charge of the erection of the two bridges, Mr. Law is putting up in Kent county. Mr. Budd superintended the erection of the C.P.R. bridge across the Otonabee river in Peterborough.

Mr. Matthew Lane, of New York, a former resident of Peterborough, is in town paying a visit to his old friends. He is accompanied by Mr. William B. Mason, also of New York, and formerly captain in the U. S Army. They intend paying a visit to our back lakes before returning home.

THE JOURNAL.

Allow me through your paper to thank Dr. Washington, throat and lung surgeon, for his great skill in curing me of catarrh which had greatly troubled me for years, also an exceedingly bad form of ulcerated throat. My throat for weeks was so badly ulcerated that it was almost impossible for me to swallow, the left palate being eaten through, a hole big enough to put a large pea in could be made. It is now entirely healed, and as I am now able to attend to my business, as I wish to thank the doctor, and also to recommend any who may be afflicted with catarrh or any disease of the throat.

TRADE IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Report of the Tory Royal Commission on the Causes of the Depression.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The final report of the commission appointed by the Conservative Government in 1885 to inquire into the causes of the depression in trade will announce that the commission has not found any evidence of depression as regards reduction of trade. The volume of British trade has increased more than commensurately with the growth of the population. Low prices and the consequence of diminished profit constitute the only evidence of depression. There has been a greatly prolonged period of over production owing to a vast increase of wealth in the country. The commission does not believe the legislation regarding trades has injured and deplorate an increase in the number of hours of labor and a distribution of wages. The report distinctly favors trades unions. The commission considers the recent failure of agricultural production the main if not the sole cause of the diminution of the home trade which otherwise the commission believes would be in a satisfactory condition. The condition of the working classes, the report says, has greatly improved in the past twenty years. Competition both in the home and foreign trade is greatly increased, especially as regards Germany, whose trade is improving and pressing England closely at home and abroad. No fiscal alteration is suggested, and no reference is made to protection or reciprocity. The commission urges that British factories adapt their manufactures to the necessities of foreign markets, in which respect the commission says Germany excels.

EMPHATICALLY DENIED.

The Story of Distress and Suffering in Newfoundland.

A despatch received last night from the Attorney-General of Newfoundland emphatically denies the stories about suffering and death among the fishermen of Newfoundland and Labrador. It says the statement is a malicious fabrication. The fishing prospects are improving. Newfoundland can well make provision for any relief required in certain localities. No such person as Widdell is known in St. Johns, Newfoundland. The Government wish to give the statement in the damaging canard an unqualified denial.

Lord Aberdeen's Farewell Levee.

DUBLIN, Aug. 3.—The farewell levee given by the Earl of Aberdeen and his wife at Dublin Castle to-day was attended by a large number of the members of the Irish National League. The streets were profusely decorated in honor of the departing Viceroy, and an enormous crowd is assembling from all parts of the country to tender the Aberdeens a rousing ovation when they take final leave.

The farewell of Lord and Lady Aberdeen was phenomenal. All Dublin was abroad and the enthusiasm was great. The procession was a gorgeous affair, the trade guilds vieing with each other in display. There were numerous bands in the procession and all played National airs, there being a marked absence of British tunes. Lord Aberdeen and the Countess were much affected by the demonstration. Lord Mayor Sullivan asked Lord Aberdeen to describe the scene to the Queen and to tell her that "this was a pale forecast of the reception she will receive when she comes in person to restore to Ireland her ancient right of self government." The address of the corporation to the retiring viceroy declared that nothing short of Mr. Gladstone's measure would satisfy the Irish people. In his speech at Kingstown Lord Aberdeen protested that he and the Countess would fervently pray for the peace and prosperity of Ireland. The farewell levee in the afternoon was less brilliant than that of Earl Spencer, and the attendance was smaller.

The procession was two hours in passing the Castle. Two thousand horsemen were in line. The crowd broke through the ranks of police in their endeavor to shake hands with Lord Aberdeen and his wife. The Viceroy and the Countess were inundated with bouquets.

Shot His Sweetheart.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Aug. 3.—James Quirk was going home with Miss Lizzie Kiernan, aged 20 years, late last night, when they were met by John Kleum, who for two years has paid court to Miss Kiernan. Kleum stealthily approached Miss Kiernan, and, drawing a revolver, shot her at the base of the skull. Miss Kiernan fell unconscious and bleeding from a ghastly wound, but which will probably not be mortal. The bullet glanced, tore the scalp four inches and passed through the lobe of the right ear. Kleum escaped. Miss Kiernan is respectable and Kleum has been an industrious machinist, and has never made work for the police before.

Result of the French Elections.

PARIS, Aug. 3.—Complete returns from the ballots for Conseilers-Generaux show that the Republican and 4th Conservative candidates were successful. In 477 districts second balloting will be necessary. The Republicans made 76 gains and the Conservatives 53.

Irish and Russian Dynamiting Co-operating.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The police have been informed of the existence of extensive intrigues by Irish and Russian dynamiters against the English Government. Detectives will be stationed at the different Russian ports, and all arrivals from Russia to Great Britain will be closely watched and the vessels searched.

HOW OLD TIME TORIES VIEW HIS SUDDEN ELEVATION.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Edmund Yates in a despatch to the World from London says: There has been much heart-burning and friction over the formation of the new government. Lord Salisbury has found himself severely hampered by personal influences, and rival ambitions. Lord Randolph Churchill wished the old lot to be got rid of nearly altogether, but the gentlemen thus designated would not sacrifice them-selves to gratify him. The result is a most incongruous composition. The noble lord agreed to allow some of the old men to come back again. They, on the other hand, consented to accept him as their leader in the House of Commons. It was a keen struggle with Sir Michael Hicks-Beach. The right honorable gentleman is under no illusions as to the change in his position. He does not suppose for a moment that he has been made Irish chief secretary because that office is just now, next to the premiership, the most important post in the government. He knows quite well that he has been dragged from the leadership in order to make way for Lord Randolph Churchill. It is impossible that he can work with him very cordially in the House of Commons.

Probably the chief secretary hopes the new leader will open out into difficulties that will compel him to relinquish his position. The best men in the Conservative ranks view the promotion of Lord Randolph Churchill with doubt. They will, at least, that it had been deferred till the back of the Irish question had been broken and Mr. Gladstone had retired from political life.

They fear that a serious blunder or mistake on the part of their new leader will bring back Mr. Gladstone and the Liberals to power much sooner than they had the slightest reason to anticipate a week ago. On the Liberal side the selection of Lord Randolph Churchill has been received partly with annoyance, partly with disgust. When Mr. Gladstone first heard of it he said something about the degradation of the House of Commons. The rank and file of the party are disposed to treat Lord Randolph's advancement as an affront to themselves. They appear to think it is a kind of political profanation for their own pure and spotless chief to be succeeded by a person whom they have always regarded as a political mountebank of the worst type.

Looking at the matter as it affects their party prospects, they are inclined to regard Lord Randolph's appointment with more approval. When Sir William Harcourt heard of it he chuckled and said: "We shall be back in six months." Undoubtedly the feeling is that Lord Randolph will in a few months ruin the Government and his party. The strongest admirers of the noble lord cannot deny there is some danger. His political capacity is undoubted. He is a brilliant, clever debater, a prompt parliamentary tactician, but has often displayed such rashness and violence unbefitting a British statesman. He has too frequently played with principles to be regarded as a man with ideas of political honor. But in spite of the sins of his past career he may yet, justify the choice.

Lord Harrington was not consulted as to the appointment of Lord Randolph, but I hear that he has expressed to Lord Salisbury grave misgivings as to its propriety.

The front opposition bench in the next parliament will be an extraordinary spectacle. All the men who have ever been in the Liberal Government are to congregate there. Gentlemen who have been fighting each other in the country with excessive bitterness will find themselves cheek-by jowl. Mr. Gladstone will have Lord Hartington beside him. When Sir Wm. Harcourt speaks he will often be answered by Mr. Chamberlain. Sir Henry James will answer Mr. Morley. All the best debating will be carried on between occupants of the front opposition bench. Before long Mr. Goschen and Sir George Trevelyan will be added to the happy family. Then the front opposition bench will find half its prominent members constantly pass over with the nominal leaders of the Liberal party.

Mr. Gladstone does not relish the prospect, and direct intimation will be conveyed to Lord Hartington and Mr. Chamberlain that their presence is not desired. I believe, however, that on public grounds the leaders, both Unionists and Liberals, will stick to their positions and sit on the front opposition bench. This is Lord Randolph's cabinet. Mr. Henry Matthew's elevation is entirely due to Lord Randolph, who is very impulsive and vehement in his likes and dislikes. He has taken on Mr. Matthews as his general legal adviser, and will be guided by him as much as he was in old days by Sir John Gorst.

Possibly a Good Suggestion.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The London Daily News suggests that a committee be formed of the leading statesmen of the Tory, Whig, Radical and Nationalist parties to discuss the best form of Home Rule for Ireland, which the News says, no reasonable person doubts will soon be conceded in some form or other.

Yet Further Appointments.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The following additional appointments have been officially announced: Edward Clarke, Q.C., Solicitor General. Arthur Hower Forwood, Secretary to the Admiralty; Ellis Ashmead Bartlett, Civil Lord of the Admiralty; Lord Harris, Political Secretary to the War Office.

The Old and the New.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The members of the Gladstone Ministry surrendered their place of office to the new ministers. The members of the two ministries lunched with the Queen. Lord Salisbury will remain a guest of the Queen until to-morrow.

The Sentence of the Treaty Loyal.

BELFAST, Aug. 3.—The Mayor of Belfast has sent a circular letter to the different magistrates of the city asking them to actively co-operate in order to promote a better feeling among the people towards the police so that there may be co-operation between the latter and the populace for the prevention of disorder and the suppression of lawlessness. Crowds of men are assembled in different parts of the city evidently bent on fighting the police.

Rioting was renewed here to-day, but the disturbance was slight as compared with the outbreak of Saturday and Sunday. The police succeeded in dispersing the mob.

An Ex-Aldermanic Murderer.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 3.—In a saloon here to-day ex-Ald. John Connelly badgered John Lonahan, a young man of 18, about his inability to drink. Lonahan said he would drink all Connelly would pay for. This was agreed to, and Lonahan emptied twelve large glasses filled to the brim with whisky. He reached the street, staggered along for about a block and dropped dead.

The Night of Why Over Funerals.

HAMILTON, Aug. 3.—A hack-driver was today fined for obstructing a street car. He was driving at the head of a funeral procession. The magistrate decided that street cars had the right of way over funeral processions.

Husband, Wife and Daughter in a Store publicly Whipped.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 3.—Lieut. Foster, Police Clerk Whitten and Officer Carr were seriously injured while making a raid on a disorderly house kept by a man named Carlisle, his wife and two daughters. They refused to admit the officers, and when the latter attempted to enter through the back window they were assaulted and terribly beaten. Whitten had his skull fractured, and will probably die. Foster was beaten over the head and is unconscious. Carr was badly injured but escaped and returned with reinforcements and arrested the assailants. Whitten and Foster are in a precarious condition.

Five Children Drowned.

OTTAWA, Pa., Aug. 3.—Monday afternoon three children of Wm. Hauck, living three miles from Kewanqua, a granchild of Hauck and two children named Gillette went to the Illinois river for a bathe of them went in bathing. One fell in a deep hole in the river, and in trying to extricate the struggling one all five were drowned. The children's ages ranged from [illegible] years.

The Acting Governor-General.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—Mr. John J. McGee, Clerk of the Privy Council, has left for Halifax for the purpose of swearing in Lord Alexander Russell, commander of the forces in British North America, who will act as Governor-General during the absence of Lord Lansdowne. The latter will sail for England by the ss. Parisian on the 5th inst.

The Scourge in Hops.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., Aug. 3.—The utter destruction of the hop plants throughout New York State by lice has created a sudden advance. Growers in this vicinity have refused 35 cents for 50's repeatedly, and yesterday a grower of Meridan sold last year's crop at 40 cents, the highest price paid in three years.

The Scrapes Running the Railways.

DUBLIN, Aug. 3.—The Nationalists of Castle Blayney, Monaghan, are boycotting the recently opened local branch of the Great Northern (Ireland) Railway because the promoter of the league was not appointed station master. The present station master is receiving threatening letters, and the employes are afraid to resume work.

Twins Not the Cygnet.

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 3.—The ... Resolute bound for Dunrobin telegraphed here that he passed a yacht dismasted off Nine Mile Point. Being disabled, he could not render assistance. The schooner Garibaldi reported almost the same thing, but did not go to the yacht's assistance. The Cygnet left here last night, and it is feared it is she. There was a heavy wind and sea. The tug Lily has gone to the relief, and has not yet returned.

All the yachts are laid up here waiting for better weather, but expect to leave for Oswego early in the morning. The yachtsmen are busy repairing yesterday's damages. The Atalanta and Aileen will topmast in Oswego.

A despatch received early this (Wednesday) morning by Commodore McIlree says Cygnet is all right. The craft supposed to be her turned out to be a fishing yawl. The Cygnet will be heard from at her next stopping place, and will be in Toronto To-day or to-morrow.

Latest Swindling Dodge.

One of the latest swindling schemes is for the swindler to get a check for a small amount from a depositor at a bank, and at the same time a blank check exactly like the filled-in check. Laying one check on the other so that the edges are exactly even, the two are torn so that the signature appears on one piece of the filled-in check, and the amount and name of the payee on the other. The blank check having been torn with the good check and in exactly the same way, the swindler can fill in on the large piece of the blank check any amount he desires, and, with the piece of the genuine check containing the signature, is ready to sell how the check became accidentally torn when he demands payment. The fact that the two pieces exactly match is calculated to deceive any bank teller.

Robert Brownlee's Future Bride.

Here is a story of Mrs. Arthur Henson, the lady who is shortly to become Mrs. Robert Brownlee: Mrs. Brownlee, as Miss Ida Kay, was one of the belles of New York. The late Sam Ward, the uncle of Mr. F. Marion Crawford, was in a florist's shop one day, and could not obtain any roses of the kind he wished, the florist remarking that all he had had been ordered to be sent to the young lady, "Ask," sighed Ward, as he met a friend at the door, "those fleeting are the things of this world! The florist says that his very last rose has gone to Ida Kay."

SIR JOHN AND HIS RELIGION.

The public will be greatly interested in the following statement by La Minerve which the Kingston Whig has produced, of what Sir John Macdonald had to say at a pic-nic for the benefit of a Roman Catholic Church, at Carleton, and what La Minerve has to say of Sir John Macdonald's devotion to the church and its institutions. La Minerve, it will be remembered, is edited by Mr. Tasse, one of Sir John Macdonald's most devoted French followers. That portion of La Minerve's article which declares that Sir John denies that he ever set foot in an Orange lodge will be fully appreciated. La Minerve undertakes to contrast the liberality of Sir John Macdonald with the liberality of Orangemen generally, and these observations we commend to the consideration of the brethren:

Father O'Donohue, of Carleton, held on 29th June, a most successful pic-nic for the benefit of a Catholic work, the building of a church.

* * * * * * *

A marked incident of the day was the presence of Sir John Macdonald who had been invited by the reverend father, and eagerly availed himself of the opportunity. The Premier delivered, on this occasion, an address of which we have already spoken and which has attracted much attention.

To the calumnious hypocrites who represent him as the personification of religious fanaticism Sir John replied by saying that "he had never in his life set foot in an Orange lodge."

* * * * * * *

"I am accused," said Sir John, "of being a Protestant, and even of being a bad Protestant. In like manner I have been accused of being an Orangeman, although I have never set foot in a lodge."

* * * * * * *

They (our Rouge-Nationards) will continue to circulate through our country parishes the form of oath by which an Orangeman swears never to marry a Catholic nor allow his children to be instructed in the Catholic faith.

Here are some facts on this subject relating to Sir John Macdonald.

The Premier has an only son, now widowed, who had married a Catholic lady. This lady died some years ago, leaving a little daughter. Who has taken care of the orphan girl? Sir John Macdonald, her grandfather, who has kept her for two years in his own home. Who has begun her education? Lady Macdonald, wife of the Premier, who has taught her carefully the Roman catechism and the Catholic prayers in order to bring her up in her mother's religion, and this under the very roof of Sir John, this fanatical Protestant, to quote our Rouges-Nationards.

Sir John has but one son, and has let him marry a Catholic. Sir John has but one grand-daughter, and has caused her to be brought up in the Catholic faith, in his own house, under his own eyes.

Can the "Nationards" say that Mr. Blake would allow his grandchildren to be instructed in the Catholic faith under his own roof?

For the rest, who does not know at Ottawa that Lady Macdonald is an assiduous friend of the nuns of the capital.

The Kingston Whig says with regard to these denials that the article has excited no small comment among the Orangemen of Kingston.

In regard to Sir John Macdonald's statement the Whig gives the following facts:

"The result of inquiries among the veterans of the Order have resulted in the discovery of the following very remarkable facts, which we feel in duty bound to produce, for the twofold purpose of enabling La Minerve at the earliest moment to correct its error, and to refresh Brother Sir John A. Macdonald's memory, which, owing no doubt to advancing years and infirmities, would seem (as per La Minerve's report) to have played him terribly false at Father O'Donohoe's pic-nic, when he declared 'he had never set his foot in an Orange lodge!' We are aware that our venerable Premier is subject to extraordinary lapses of memory, as for instance when he declared on the floor of Parliament that 'he took God to witness that he was innocent of all the things Mr. Huntington laid to his charge,' and when he subsequently repeated the same declaration to Lord Dufferin 'on his honor as a sworn servant of the Crown.' But both these latter asseverations had reference to events of recent occurrence, whereas what we are about to relate took place in his early life, and it is well known that the memory of the aged is usually more faithful in regard to matters which happen in youth.

"Sir John, however, as his friends often remind us, is an exception to all rules. Anyway we are informed on very high authority that Sir John, though he has no doubt forgotten the circumstance, was actually sworn in as Orangeman in Loyal Orange Lodge No. 352, city of Kingston; that Olge R. Gowan was present on the occasion; that Past Grand Master John Flanagan and Grand Marshal Thomas Robinson know the facts, and have sat in the lodge with Brother Sir John Macdonald; that Brother Jas. Shannon, now postmaster of Kingston, and formerly confidential clerk of Sir John Macdonald for many years, paid Sir John's dues to the Order so as to keep him an Orangeman in good standing."

The Whig calls upon La Minerve to publish in some conspicuous place a correction of its assertion that Sir John Macdonald had never set foot in an Orange lodge. It also calls upon Shannon to say upon what day he last paid Sir John Macdonald's dues as an Orangeman, and whether Sir John has any certificates to show that he retired as an Orangeman in good standing. The Whig goes on to state that it has mailed no less than four copies of this statement to Sir John Macdonald's several addresses, and it has also called attention of Past Grand Master Mackenzie Bowell, Mr. Edward Farrar, and other true friends of the Orange Order to the fact that they may, in pure justice to an absent man, assist in establishing Sir John Macdonald's clear right and title to call himself an Orangeman should party exigency ever make it right and expedient for him to do so.

Board of Education.

Regular Monthly Meeting—A Mathematical Master Appointed—Resignation Accepted.

A regular meeting of the School Board was held on Tuesday evening, Aug. 3rd. All the members present.

After routine

INQUIRIES.

Mr. Errett asked the amount of money received from the town on account of the 5 per cent. debentures.

The chairman stated that Mr. Morrow was not present and no statement could be laid before the Council.

Dr. Burnham inquired if the joint meeting of the Board and Council had been called.

The chairman gave the information that the matter was lying in abeyance.

COMMUNICATIONS

were received

From Miss Fair, asking for an appointment in the Public School in case of vacancy.—Received.

From the Secretary stating that the Collegiate Institute fees for the month of June, were $103.00, and from Public Schools, $12.75.—Received.

From the headmasters of the South and West Ward Schools, enclosing a statement of the average attendance as below: West Ward average attendance, 139, on roll, 188. South Ward average attendance 162, on roll 214.—Received.

Mr. Dumble verbally reported that he had received the resignation of Miss Robertson, as teacher in the High School, on account of her certificate not being up to the standard.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The Inspector presented a verbal report giving a general synopsis of the results of the entrance examinations. A large number of pupils had applied. An improvement was noticeable in penmanship and drawing. The percentage of success was fair, considering the difficulty of the papers. There had not been sufficient time given for some of the papers. He suggested that a day be added to the time of examinations. The town passed 17 pupils, and the success achieved spoke well for the efficiency of the public schools. He also suggested that a new programme of studies be compiled and printed.

By suggestion of Mr. Dumble it was agreed that the Inspector prepare a written report, to be published for the information of the public.

COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Dumble, chairman, presented the report of the Committee on Appointments, as follows:—

The Committee beg to report that they have considered the various applications for the position of teacher in the High School, in the department of Mathematics and Science, and beg to report that Mr. Ellis, having, in his application, stated that he would require a salary of $1,000 per annum, his application was not considered for the purpose of reporting, the Board having fixed the salary at $800.

Your Committee therefore report that Mr. Bean has the required qualifications, and is in every way well fitted to fill the place, and they beg to report in favor of his appointment.

With reference to Mr. Horning's salary, your Committee find that it has been the habit of the Board to pay a retiring teacher for a vacation on seeing a term through, which he has taught. Your Committee, therefore, instructed the Treasurer to pay Mr. Horning the full salary to September 1st, and we have learned that he has been so paid.

Mr. Errett moved in amendment, seconded by Dr. Burnham, that the name of Mr. Ellis be substituted for that of Mr. Bean. The seconder said he had authority for stating that Mr. Ellis was willing to accept $800 per year.

Mr. Rutherford moved in amendment to the amendment, that the name of Mr. Lees, of Lindsay, be substituted for that of Mr. Bean.

Mr. Errett alluded to the certificates of proficiency presented by Mr. Ellis from Mr. Seath, Inspector, and Dr. Nelles, of Victoria College.

The chairman pointed out the long experience of Mr. Ellis, and he added that, judging from personal appearance of the two men, he thought the preference was decidedly in favor of Mr. Ellis.

Mr. Stratton said that Mr. Bean was as highly spoken of by Mr. Hodgson, Inspector, as Mr. Ellis by Mr. Seath, or as Mr. Lees. All three were capable men, and the Board, he thought, would not go astray in the selection of any of the three.

The several motions being put and lost, the report recommending the appointment of Mr. Bean was adopted.

PAYMENT OF FEES.

Mr. Stratton moved, seconded by Mr. Dumble, that the Principal of the Collegiate Institute be instructed to insist on the payment of fees during the first three days of each month. Pupils not complying to be sent home until the fees for the month have been paid, thereby preventing pupils from attending school for a week or more in each month and leaving without paying the month's fees.—Carried.

INTERIM PROMOTIONS.

Mr. Dumble moved, seconded by Mr. Errett, that the sanction of the principals of the several Public School teachers be permitted to allow pupils whose scholarship and abilities warrant it, to be advanced to higher rooms without waiting for the regular promotion. This to be only used when the interests of the pupils would suffer without promotion.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Mr. McWilliams moved, seconded by Mr. Henry, that no special meeting of the School Board be held without three days' notice.—Allowed to stand as notice of motion.

NEW PROGRAMME OF STUDIES.

Dr. Burnham moved, seconded by Mr. Sproule, that the Committee of Supervision be authorized to cause a new programme of studies for the Public Schools, to be compiled and printed.—Carried.

NEW SEATS.

Mr. Wrighton moved, seconded by Mr. Sproule, that the Property Committee be authorized to purchase and procure such seats or desks as may be required for the rooms to be occupied by the Collegiate Institute.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

On motion, the Board accepted the resignation of Miss Robertson, of the Collegiate Institute, and the Committee on Appointments were authorized to advertise for a teacher to take her place.

The Board then adjourned.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS
Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines,—hundreds like it:
ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 20th, 1886.
GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two expensive trusses made in York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. S. KING.
This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child under; and 80 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address,

CHAPTER XXXII.

"I HAVE HAD MY REVENGE!"

It was a warm, beautiful morning, with a dull haze lying over the fair summer earth and Pauline Darrell, finding even the large, airy rooms too warm, went out to seek her favorite shade—the shelter of the great cedar tree. As she sat with her book in her hand—of which she never turned a page—Miss Hastings watched her, wondering at the dark shadow that had fallen over her beauty, wondering at the concentration of thought in her face, wondering whether this shadow of disappointment would darken all her life or if it would pass away, wondering if the vengeance to which she had vowed herself was planned yet; and to them, so silent and absorbed, came the pretty, bright vision of Lady Darrell, wearing a white morning dress with blue ribbons in her golden hair. The brightness and freshness of the morning seemed to linger on her fair face, as she drew near them with a smile on her lips, and a look of half-proud shyness in her eyes.

"I am glad you are both here," she said; "I have something to tell you." The blush and the smile deepened. "Perhaps you can guess what it is, Miss Hastings, you are smiling—Pauline, you do not look at me. Captain Langton has asked me to be his wife, and I have consented."

Then she paused. Miss Hastings congratulated her, and wished her much happiness. Pauline started at first, clasping her hands while her face grew white, and then she recovered herself and kept perfect silence.

"Pauline," said Lady Darrell, "I am very happy; do not shadow my happiness. Will you not wish me joy."

"I cannot," replied the girl, in a trembling voice; "you will have no joy."

Then, seeing Lady Darrell's wondering face, she seemed to recover herself more completely.

"I will wish you," she said, bitterly, "as much happiness as you deserve."

"That would be but little," returned Lady Darrell, with a faint laugh; "I do not hold myself a particularly deserving person."

Then Miss Hastings, thinking they might come to a better understanding alone, went away, leaving them together.

Lady Darrell went up to the girl. She laid her hands on her arm appealingly, and raised her face with a pleading expression.

"Pauline," she said, her lips trembling with emotion, "after all, I was your uncle's wife; for his sake you might show me a little kindness. Marriage is a tie for life, not a bond for one day. Oh, Pauline, Pauline, if there is any reason why I should not marry Aubrey Langton, tell it—for Heaven's sake, tell it! Your manner is always so strange to him; if you know anything against him, tell me now before it is too late—tell me!"

There fell over them a profound silence, broken only by the sweet cheery music of a bird singing in the cedar tree, and the faint sighing of the wind among the leaves.

"Tell me, for Heaven's sake!" repeated Lady Darrell, her grasp tightening on Pauline's arm.

"I have nothing to tell," was the curt reply, "Pray do not hold my arm so tightly, Lady Darrell; I have nothing to tell."

"Do not deceive me—there must be some reason for your strange manner. Tell it to me now; before it is too late."

There was almost an agony of pleading in her face and voice, but Pauline turned resolutely away, keeping her beneath the cedar alone.

"I must be mistaken," Lady Darrell thought, "What can she know of him? I must be wrong to doubt him; surely if I doubt him I shall doubt Heaven itself. It is her manner—her awkward manner—nothing more."

And she tried her best to dismiss all thoughts of Pauline from her mind, and give herself to her newly-found happiness.

"Pauline," said Miss Hastings, sorrowfully, when she rejoined the girl, "I cannot understand you."

"I do not quite understand myself," returned Miss Darrell. "I did not think I had any weakness or pity in my heart, but I find it is there."

"You frighten me," said Miss Hastings. "What makes you so strange? O, Pauline, throw it off, this black shadow that enwraps you, and forget this idea of vengeance which has so completely changed you!"

She looked up with a smile—a hard, bitter smile.

"I shall have had my revenge," she said, gloomily, "when she has married him."

Nor could any entreaties, any prayers of the kindhearted woman move her to say more.

Whether the mysterious and uncertain aspect of things preyed upon Miss Hastings' mind, whether she grieved over her pupil and allowed that grief to disturb her, was never revealed, but in the month of August she became seriously ill—not enough to be obliged to keep her room, but her health and her strength failed her, and day by day she became weaker and less able to make any exertion.

Lady Darrell sent for Doctor Heimstone, and he advised Miss Hastings to go to the sea-side at once, and to remain there during the autumn. At her earnest request Pauline consented to accompany her.

"The change will do you good as well as myself," said the anxious lady; and Miss Darrell saw that she was thinking how much better it would be that she should leave Darrell Court.

"I will go," she said. "I know what you are thinking of. My vengeance is nearly accomplished. There is no reason now why I should remain here."

After many consultations it was agreed that they should go to the pretty little watering-place called Ombercleigh. Many things recommended it; the coast was sheltered, the [illegible] was very few visit of the higher class. It was not possible to find a prettier spot than Ombercleigh.

Lady Darrell was generosity itself. In her quiet, amiable way she liked Miss Hastings as well as she was capable of liking any one. She insisted upon putting all kinds of arrangements in the hands of her maid, and was to have every comfort, every luxury.

"And you must do nothing," she said, in her most caressing manner, "but try to get well. I shall expect to see you looking quite young and blooming when you return."

Lady Darrell had already written to Ombercleigh, and, through an agent there, had secured beautiful apartments. When Miss Hastings half remonstrated with her, she laughed.

"I have nothing to do," she said, "but make every one happy; and it will be my duty to find you always a comfortable home."

Lady Darrell looked, as she was in those days, a most happy woman. She seemed to have grown younger and fairer. The height of her ambition, the height of her happiness, was reached at last. She was rich in the world's goods, and it was in her power to make the man she loved rich and powerful too. She was, for the first time in her life, pleasing her own heart, and happiness made her more tender, more sensible, more considerate and thoughtful for others.

Lady Hampton mourned over the great mistake her niece was making. She had whispered in confidence to all her dear friends that Ellinor was really going to throw herself away on the captain after all. It was such a pity, she said, when Lord Aynsley was so deeply in love with her.

"But then," she concluded, with a sigh, "it is a matter in which I cannot interfere."

Yet, looking at Lady Darrell's bright, happy face, she could not quite regret the captain's existence.

"You will not be lonely, Lady Darrell," said Miss Hastings, the evening before her journey.

She never forgot the light that spread over the fair young face—the intense happiness that shone in the blue eyes.

"No," she returned, with a sigh of unutterable content, "I shall never be lonely again. I have thoughts and memories that keep my heart warm—all loneliness or sorrow is over for me."

On the morrow Miss Darrell and the governess were to go to Ombercleigh, but the same night Lady Darrell went to Pauline's room.

"I hope you will excuse me," she said, when the girl looked up in haughty surprise. "I want to say a few words to you before you go."

The cool, formal terms on which they lived were set aside, and for the first time Lady Darrell visited Pauline in her room.

"I want to ask you one great favor," continued Lady Darrell. "Will you promise me that Miss Hastings shall not want for anything? She is far from strong."

"I shall consider Miss Hastings my own especial charge," said Pauline.

"But you must allow me to help you. I have a very great affection for her, and desire nothing better than to prove it by kind actions."

"Miss Hastings would be very grateful to you if she knew it," said Pauline.

"But I do not want her to be grateful. I do not want her to know anything about it. With all her gentleness, Miss Hastings has an independence quite her own—an independence that I respect greatly; but it is quite possible, you know, Pauline, to manage an invalid—to provide good wine and little delicacies."

"I will do all that myself," observed the young girl.

Lady Darrell went nearer to her.

"Pauline," she said, gently, "you have always repelled every effort of mine; you would not be friends with me. But now, dear—now that I am so much happier, that I have no cloud in my sky save the shadow of your averted face—be a little kinder to me. Say that you forgive me, if I have wronged you."

"You have wronged me, Lady Darrell, and you know it. For me to talk of forgiveness is only a farce; it is too late for that. I have had my revenge!"

Lady Darrell looked up at her with a startled face.

"What is that you say, Pauline?"

"I repeat it," said the girl, huskily—"I have had my revenge!"

"What can you mean? Nothing of moment has happened to me. You are jesting, Pauline."

"It would be well for you if I were," said the girl; "but I tell you in all truth I have had my revenge!"

And those words sounded in Lady Darrell's ears long after Pauline had left Darrell Court.

The barley harvest has now began and the great number of self-binders used causes only a slight demand for harvest hands.

The excursion to Orillia on Thursday, attracted quite a number from here.

There are quite a number of professionals negotiating terms for the business of the late and much lamented Dr. Morris.

There is more precaution used here both by citizens and the G. T. Ry., since the recent disaster, causing the death of poor Baird and Powell.

Peterborough and Toronto seems to be the two great points of attraction for excursionists.

Whether or Not

you believe that consumption is an infectious disease, transmitted tubercular parasites, the fact that Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is capable of restoring a healthy condition condition of the lungs however affected, is one which does not admit of question. At the very first intimation of consumptive tendencies, whether in the form of a presistent cough, general debility, loss of appetite, night-sweats or frequent and depressing chills, you should secure a bottle of the "Golden Medical Discovery." It will purify the blood, tone up the system, and remove consumptive symptoms by removing their cause. d27-6t-w31

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofulous Disease of the Lungs, is promptly and certainly arrested and cured by this God-given remedy, if taken before the last stages of the disease are reached. Even in the wonderful power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now celebrated remedy to the public, Dr. PIERCE thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too limited for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200, $400 and $1000 each, transferable by endorsement, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first claim or new page on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The annual statement shows that the amount so invested was over $800,000, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgages may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon, the interest ceasing at once on all amounts paid on account of the sum borrowed.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Sproule's Gallery.

Mr. Sproule's photograph rooms will be closed to-morrow, he having secured the steamer, Pearl, to take his employes down the river for an excursion and picnic.

Appeal.

Mr. O'Meara, counsel for Mr. Brophy, in the assault case, Redman vs. Brophy, has appealed to the County Court from the judgment of the Police Magistrate, which resulted in a fine of $5 and costs being imposed.

Books Received.

Messrs. Sailsbury Bros. have received No. 25 of Cassell's National Library, "Nature and Art," by Mrs. Inchbald—200 pages of clearly printed reading matter of high quality, for 10 cents.

The Fruit Canning Season.

Housekeepers will find the finest and cheapest stock of sugars for the preserving season, at Morrow, Tierney & Co's, as well as a splendid stock of the best groceries.

A Lecture

upon "The Labor Question" will (D. V.) be delivered by Rev. Walter M. Roger, M.A., in the lecture room of St. Paul's Church, on Tuesday, August 10th, at 8 p.m. A collection will be taken upin aidof the buildingfund of the lecturer's church in London, Ontario.

Garden Party.

The date fixed for the garden party in aid of St. Luke's having been chosen for the band entertainment, it has been decided to hold the garden party at Mrs. Orde's on Tuesday, August 10th. The band has kindly promised to attend. Remember the place, Robinson street, Ashburnham, next to the residence of Mr. H. Calcutt. Admission, 10 cents. All made welcome from five o'clock, p.m.

Hazel Brae.

Of all the large party of girls who sailed from England, July 15th, under charge of Miss Joyce, lady visitor for Dr. Barnardo's Canadian Home, and who arrived at Haze Brae, a week ago last Sunday, one hundred and fifty have already found homes and places of service. Miss Joyce will begin almost immediately to visit th se girls and those previously sent out, and so ascertain whether or not they are well and happily placed. This system of visiting the children is a most commendable feature of Dr. Barnardo's work in Canada.

Contract Awarded.

At a meeting of the Building Committee of the Peterborough Central Exhibition, held on Tuesday evening, Mr. Wm. Lasher was awarded the contract for the erection of the building on the Exhibition grounds, as per plans and specifications which have already been described in these columes. The building, when completed and painted, will cost $1,370, for which amount the Directors of the society have become personally responsible. The contract calls for its completion on the 20th of September. On account of a misunderstanding in connection with the painting, Mr. W. Fitzgerald, who had been awarded the contract, withdrew his tender.

The Coming Races.

As day by day passes, the prospects of the success of the first grand summer meeting of the Peterborough Driving Park Association, become greater. To-day several thousand three-color posters were issued, to be posted in different parts of the province, announcing the event, and the indications are that on August 26th and 27th there will be the finest and fleetest stud of competing horseflesh at the Driving Park, and the biggest gathering of spectators, ever brought together on the grounds. The liberal purses offered will attract good horses, and the square racing that will be done will make the meeting worthy of the attendance of the public. Remember the date of the great summer race meeting, August 26th and 27th.

Fresh White Fish, Trout and Bass, arriving daily at Ostrom's, George St.

Veterinary Dentistry.

Prof. R. Watkins, Veterinary Dentist, will be at the City Hotel, on Monday, August 23rd, and remain two weeks. The best of city references given.

Notice.

Mr. J. S. Parker will be at his rooms, Lynch's Block, Hunter street, 2nd floor, from August 1st to August 10th, to make arrangements for lessons. He has two vacancies for private pupils.

The Races.

The poster announcing the races of the Peterborough Driving Park Association, on August 26th and 27th, has been issued today from the EXAMINER presses. It is printed in three colors and has two very fine original cuts which have just been introduced into Canada, and never previously used on any bills in the Dominion. The typographical appearance of the poster will speak for itself.

A Good Appointment.

From all that can be learned, the appointment of Mr. Bean by the Board last night as Mathematical and Science Master of the Collegiate Institute, is a good one. He is well qualified and possesses the requisite energy and system to admit of his filling the position with profit to the interests of the school.

A Big Rush for Bargains.

Mr. M. Carton, on Saturday, opened the large stock of the Bon Marche to the public and the rush for bargains began at once. Remarkable bargains are being given in all classes of goods. This is an opportunity the public cannot afford to miss, as the goods must be rushed, off rapidly, regardless of price and one that will not occur again. Remember that Carton's big bargain sale at the Bon Marche, is now going on and those who call early will get the pick of the biggest bargains ever offered in Peterborough.

P. A. A. A. Civic Holiday Excursion.

The attention of the public is again called to the excursion of the P. A. A. A. to Sturgeon Point and Orillia on Civic Holiday, Aug. 19th. At Orillia a fine programme of sports, cricket, lacrosse, lawn tennis, etc., will facilities for boating. The new steamer be carried out, and there are splendid "Orillia" has been chartered to carry passengers around lake Couchiching and lake Simcoe, a delightful stream of 20 miles. Another steamer will make continuous trips during the day to Couchiching Pier. Train of first-class coaches leaves Peterborough at 7.30, return fare, $1.10. Those so wishing, can stop at Lindsay and spend the day at Sturgeon Point, return tickets to the latter place, only 85 cents. The P. A. A. A. take everything first-class they touch, and this splendid excursion will be no exception. Children under 12 to Orillia, 55c.; to Sturgeon Point, 45c.

Band Uniform Fund Social.

A meeting of the ladies representing the different churches, was held yesterday afternoon and arrangements completed for holding a social in the beautiful grounds of St. John's Church, on the evening of Aug. 12th. To secure the co-operation and the requisite variety of supply, the contributions from the different churches have been arranged as follows:—St. John's and St. Peters, ice cream and cake; Charlotte Street Methodist Church, lemonade; George Street Methodist Church, cake and coffee; St. Paul's Church, donation; St. Luke's Church, cake and flowers; Baptist Church, fruit table. The ladies representing the several churches are expected to see that these supplies are for theoming. General contributions from the different congregations will be acceptable and are requested to be sent to St. John's school room up till four o'clock on the afternoon of the 12th. The entertainment will begin at 7 o'clock. Admission to the grounds 10 cents, refreshments additional. It is to be hoped that there will be a large attendance. The band has been exceedingly liberal in supplying music not only for church purposes, but for the delectation of the general public, free of charge, and it is only common gratitude to recognise their liberality by making the social to be given in their interest, on August 12th, a great success. A specially fine programme will be presented by the band on the occasion. Let every person remember the date and arrange their engagements with reference to this social.

Personal.

Mr. Hannel Sawyer, of the Peterborough Business College, returned home this morning after a three weeks' trip through the principal business colleges of the United States. During his absence he has visited six colleges, two short hand schools and one Pen Institute. He also received some hints from three mathematicians, one of whom was the celebrated Prof. Henderson—one of the finest mathematicians in New York State. With Mr. Sawyer's additional knowledge, we may expect to see still greater work done at the business college this fall and winter. Mr. S. is determined to make his college second to none in the Dominion and with his well known push and energy, we have no doubt but that he will succeed.

In connection with a paragraph in yesterday's issue, the London Advertiser says that the Rev. A. H. Munro, of Peterborough, has accepted the Centre Street Baptist Church, St. Thomas and it is expected that he will commence his labor there about October.

C. A. Huncher, Esq., one of Goderich's leading business men, is in town to-day, and has purchased one of Bolton's patent hot water boilers for heating his residence.

Mr. J. G. Fennell, of Napanee, has become a citizen of Peterborough, having secured a situation in Mr. George Stetbem's hardware store.

Police Court.

This morning the limited room allotted to auditors and spectators—for they do not always like to squeeze packed at the rate of one man to a square foot, that boys throw in between their legs, in contemplation of certain [illegible] cases. There were no [illegible] and hangers present [illegible] the

was the first case called. Mr. E. B. Edwards Solicitor for the Scott Act Association, appeared for the prosecution and Mr. Hinch-ton for the defendant.

Two charges were laid, one of which, however, was withdrawn, as it charged defendant with breach of the Act between the 29th of May and 29th of July, and the second charge was changed with the dates to include the time between the 29th of May and 2nd of August. To this charge, laid as a second offence, defendant pleaded guilty, and a fine of $100 and costs, or two months in jail, was imposed.

QUEEN VS. SNOWDEN

was called. Defendant was not present, but Mr. Stone appeared for him as counsel. The magistrate at first proposed to proceeding with the case, but Mr. Stone on applying for an enlargement, being unable to advance a sufficient reason therefor, it was decided to proceed with the case, Mr. Snowden afterwards coming in.

The first witness called was Henry Welsh, who testified that in the time specified he had drank ginger ale at defendant's hotel; "don't think there was any intoxicating liquor in what I drank—I don't drink liquor." To the question as to whom was in the company of witness, Mr. Stone objected, on the ground that it was fishing for evidence.

James McMartin, testified that he drank whiskey occasionally; had got something to drink at Snowden's hotel. Drank Moxie; won't say for certain that it contained intoxicating liquor; it didn't taste as strong drink ought to taste; cannot say there was intoxicating drink in it.—To Mr. Stone the witness said that the bottle was got from behind the bar where other summer drinks like pop, etc., are kept. The witness couldn't tell Mr. Edwards whether there was whiskey in it or not.

Wm. Snowden, testified that he kept the temperance house. There is a bar there. The drinks are bought from Montreal, Moxie, ginger ale, etc. He declined to say whether anything stronger was sold. To a series of similar question the witness declined to answer on the grounds that the answer would tend to criminate himself.

John Guthrie got no intoxicating liquor at Snowden's, John Hanlon got no intoxicating liquor to drink that he knew of, Henry Manly got ginger ale, but nothing intoxicating, John Donovan didn't know the taste of liquor since three years and did not buy any at Snowden's.

The case was adjourned till 2.30 o'clock.

QUEEN VS. KENNEALY

was the next case called. Mr. Kennealy was charged with keeping intoxicating liquor for sale contrary to the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act, between the 1st of June and the 31st of July. The defendant pleaded not guilty. Mr. Moore appeared for the defendant.

Adam Davidson, bar-tender, testified that he had sold ginger ale and Moxie, but no intoxicating drinks. Mark Curtiss got ginger beer and pop at Kennealy's. John Swanston asked to [illegible] and did not get it. He drank ginger ale. Frank Haggert got nothing intoxicating. Mr. Kennealy, defendant, kept a temperance house. He declined to say whether he had the same stock of liquors as before the Scott Act, or that he kept any intoxicating liquors for sale, on the ground that it might criminate him. He sold Moxie. Don't think there was any spirituous liquor in it. He declined to tell whether he kept whisky for sale during July.

The case was then adjourned till two o'clock.

Rag Ball.

A game of the new Indian sport, rag ball, will be played on the Riverside Park on Friday, August 6th, at 3 o'clock, p.m., between the Pigeon and Crow clubs, captained by Moses McCue and Jack Knott, respectively. Seeing the swine fed after the game is played will, it is said, be the most amusing sight ever seen in Peterborough. Admission, 15 cents, or 25 cents a couple.

The Scientific American says: Lumbago may be quickly relieved by binding a piece of enameled cloth, such as is used to cover tables, over the loins outside of the flannel shirt. Profuse prespiration is produced which rapidly relieves the pain.

Civic Holiday Excursion.

On Aug. 19th, Peterborough's Civic Holiday, a cheap excursion will be run to Toronto, per Canadian Pacific Railway. Trains will leave Peterborough, at 8.39 a. m. Tickets good for two days, cost only $2. This presents an excellent opportunity for business men and pleasure seekers to visit the Queen City.

Market Items.

There was a very good market this morning. Prices were quoted as follows: Eggs, 11c.; butter, 15c.; peas, 8c. per quart; onions, carrots and beets all sold at 5c. a bunch, raspberries, 80c. per pail, potatoes, 85c. per bag; apples, 90c. per bag; huckleberries, 90c. per pail; cabbage, 5c. per head; turnips, 20c. per peck; hay $9.00 per ton.

Disappointment.

There were large numbers assembled at the park last evening to listen to the band concert, but they were disappointed. Ladies appeared with shawls and wraps, determined, in spite of the cool weather, to enjoy the music of the band and beauty of the park which, under the two electric lamps now blazing in the centre of the park, is greatly increased at night. The concert was not announced in the evening papers, the reason for the absence of the usual weekly treat, being the absence from town of the leader of the band, Mr. Miller. Next week a specially fine concert will be given in the grounds of St. John's church, on August 12th. This will be an improvement on the usual concerts, as the public will have the satisfaction of paying ten cents each for the evening's entertainment.

CATARRH CURED—25 YEARS STANDING.

DR. WASHINGTON, Throat and Lung Surgeon, 214 Yonge St., Toronto:

St. Thomas, June 28, 1886.

THE JOURNAL.

Allow me through your paper to thank Dr. Washington, throat and lung surgeon, for his great skill in curing me of catarrh which had greatly troubled me for years, also an especially bad form of ulcerated throat. My throat for weeks was so badly ulcerated that it was almost impossible for me to swallow, the soft palate being eaten through, a hole big enough to pass a large goose quill through. It is now entirely healed, and as I am now able to attend to my work once more, I wish to thank the doctor, and also to recommend any person afflicted with as serious any disease of the throat.

Yours truly, W. H. [illegible]

A GENTLEMAN who has just returned from the Colonial Exhibition has brought with him some remarkable cigars which took his fancy. The cigars are of extraordinary size, being 5½ inches long and 1½ inches thick. The interesting point about them is that when one of them is lighted the wrapper may be taken off and half a dozen cigars, each cut and lighted, are found inside. Some of the larger size contain six to fourteen cigars. They are of Canadian manufacture, being made in the Reliance Cigar Factory, of this city. The exhibit took a prize of $400.—Montreal Gazette of July 22nd, 1886.

A Boston Woman's Work.

Miss Caroline Nolan of Boston, the first woman who ever fired a China kiln, is about 35 years of age, with pale red hair that just deepens from a golden blonde, a plump, short figure, broadened by an apron, which conceals both dress and form. A sweet, low voice and very definite idea of what she wishes to say, and hands dimpled like a baby's. Five years ago she had a kiln of the ordinary size built under the direction of an experienced workman, and, having fitted herself for the business in England and other countries, she hoped to make a success. Just at the critical moment when her first "baking"—an expensive dinner set among it—was ready for firing, her kiln-tender was found intoxicated, and as it was fire or fail, she attended to the firing herself until the China was removed—a triumph of womanly pluck.

Owing to the excessive opposition of the only two firms doing amateur china baking in this city, composed of men, Miss Nolan's kiln barely supports itself, her present generous income being derived from designs in stained glass, for which she is justly celebrated. Assisted by six workmen who treat her with utmost deference, this enterprising woman fills orders for the most elaborate rooms and edifices from Maine to San Francisco all from original designs and often original processes. In speaking of her china baking Miss Nolan gave a very interesting description of the usual process, and said that very little change had been made in kiln-building for 400 years. If anything is intrusted to a kiln, no matter how valuable it may be, there is no redress in case of a breakage or injury from smoke or imperfect treatment. In desiring to produce new and beautiful effects in stained glass she made many disheartening failures from lack of thoroughness in mastering the rudimentary details of her work. There was not for her more than for others a royal road to success because of quick intentions, and she found it always better to go in the tried and beaten paths than to turn aside. Miss Nolan makes a rule to employ no drinking men, and, employing only skilled workmen, learns from their suggestions many new ideas of the possibilities of artistic glass decoration.

The Chicago Bulletins in 1860.

Mr. Seward was popular among his neighbors. On the day when the Chicago convention was to ballot for a presidential candidate Cayuga county poured itself into Auburn. The streets were full, and Mr. Seward's house and grounds overflowed with his admirers. Flags were ready to be raised, and a loaded cannon was placed at the gate, whose pillars bore up two guardian lions. Arrangements had been perfected for the receipt of intelligence with unwonted speed from the scene where the battle was proceeding. At Mr. Seward's right hand, just within the porch, stood his trusty henchman, Christopher Morgan. The rider of a galloping steed dashed through the crowd with a telegram and handed it to Gov. Seward. He read it and passed it to Morgan. For Seward, 173 1-2; for Lincoln, 103; and for all other aspirants, 189 1-2. Morgan repeated it to the multitude, who cheered vehemently. Then came the tidings of the second ballot: For Seward, 184 1-2; for Lincoln, 181, and for others, 90 1-2. "I shall be nominated on the next ballot," said Seward, and the throng in the house applauded, and those on the lawn echoed the cheers. The next messenger from the telegraph office lashed his horse into a run. The telegram read: "Lincoln nominated. T. W." Seward turned pale as ashes. The sad tidings crept through the vast concourse. The flags were furled, the cannon was rolled away, and Cayuga county went home with a clouded brow.—Buffalo Express.

It is a familiar and yet it always strikes one as a marvelous fact that worlds may have been for years in existence, the light of which has not yet had time to reach our earth, and that we may still continue to see the light of stars that have been for a long time extinct.

Burlesque Actress—Have you any black silk tights? Clerk—No, madame, but we have other colors. Burlesque Actress—I must have black. My husband died recently, and I am wearing mourning.—Rambler.

"Making Up" for the Stage.

Making up the face, as it is called, is an art in itself; by it the old can be made to look young, or at least younger, and the young old. By these arts the famous Dejazet, when 80 years old could play successfully a young page. Formerly a burned cork, a piece of chalk and a pot of rouge was all that was necessary; now your well-graced actor has his "make-up" box, or dressing-case, containing stores of violet powder, Fuller's earth, chrome yellow, blue, crayons, umber, cosmetic, black enamel, "joining paste," with other pleasant things.

All have their purpose. Are you the hunted villain skulking from justice in the woods, you must rub your cheeks and chin thoroughly with thick blue powder, to leave the idea that you have not been able to shave for a week. Or should you be an aged crone or hag, a few blue streaks on the arms or hands suggest the well-marked veins of old age. To be particularly youthful and lover like you must whiten your face thoroughly, rouge well up to the eyelids, and then draw a little brown streak under the eyes, which lends brilliancy. An old man has a very disagreeable task before him. He must rub his cheeks and chin well with Fuller's earth; then with a camel's hair brush proceed to make three dark streaks between the eyes, with long lines from the nostrils to the corners of the mouth; then get on what is oddly called his "white bald wig," the bald portion of which is fixed to the forehead by "joining paste." A striking additional effect is produced by giving the effect of teeth being wanting, which at first sight seems an almost impossible thing to do. But in your "make-up" box you find your black enamel, with which you paint over a couple of teeth; in a few minutes it sets and hardens, and a most satisfactory and disagreeable evidence of old age is the result.

A mode of attaching whiskers was the old-fashioned one of hooking them on to the ears. But there is an article called "crape-hair," which is gummed on to the cheeks, and when dry can be trimmed and combed like real whiskers. As regards the nose there is an elegant way of treatment, namely by fitting on a well modeled paper-mache one; but there is the more rough-and-ready mode of dealing with it. We read in one of the text-books on the subject the following grave directions: "In some low-comedy characters, such as Bardolph, etc., it is necessary to alter the shape of the nose in order to give it that bloated, blotchy appearance so noticeable in drunkards. You must first gum on to the end of the nose a piece of wool, press it down to the shape and size required, then powder it well with rouge to match the rest of the nose and cheeks. The cheeks may also be enlarged in the same way. The other, and, perhaps, the better way, is to take a little powder, mix it with water, and work it up into dough, fix it to the nose with a spirit gum, mold it to the shape and size required, and then powder it with rouge to match the cheeks, etc. Blotches, warts and pimples may be made by sticking on small pieces of wool and coloring them either brown or red."

We may thus fancy our unhappy actor complete, his woolen nose stuck on with gum, his eyebrows and whiskers well glued to him, his black enameled teeth, his cheeks plastered with rouge, white and umber, his "bald wig" fastened to his head with "joining-paste," and we may wonder, indeed, how he can find spirit or even ease to utter his words.—Cornhill Magazine.

Superstition of Fishermen.

My father, an officer in the British service, was an enthusiastic amateur sea fisherman. He it was who taught me to catch mackerel, with a trout rod and fly, or rather with a white or grey feather tipped with scarlet and made in the form of a fish—not a fly. The good old gentleman was genial and garrulous, and nothing delighted him more than to converse with the rough but honest fishermen of the coast. On one occasion on the east shore of Fifeshire, Scotland—near Pittenweem, I think—a group of fishermen were seated on the beach lazily mending their nets, at a distance of fifty yards or so from a boat that had been drawn up above high water-mark. Two or three pigs were rooting for mussels at some further distance off. Happening to point to the animals and make some remark respecting those swine, my respected progenitor was astonished to see every man leap to his feet and with horror depicted on his face run at utmost speed and place his finger on a nail or ring bolt or thole pin or other piece of iron of the boat, to break the evil spell. At the same time my amazed parent was warned never again to utter the word swine on the sea-coast. If he should have occasion to mention the malign animals at all he was to call them beasties. Subsequent inquiry could only elicit a confused statement that the devil enters into swine (not beasties), causing them to run down a steep place into the sea and spoil the fishing.—American Angler.

A school teacher in Corry, Pa., sent an insulting note to two young women, strangers in the town, who were there in the interests of a well-known silverware house. They went in search of the young man, found him, told him what they thought of him, and then filled his eyes with red pepper. He will not lose his eyesight.

Here is one method of removing objects from the eye: Take a horse-hair, and double it, leaving a loop. If the object can be seen, lay the loop over it, close the eye, and the mote will come out as the hair is withdrawn. If the irritating object cannot be seen, raise the lid of the eye as high as possible and place the loop as far as you can, close the eye and roll the ball around a few times, draw out the hair, and the substance which caused the pain will be sure to come with it. This method is practiced by ax-makers and other workers in steel.

GRAPES.

Useful Suggestions Respecting the Selection and Culture of Grapes.

It is said that about two thousand known and named varieties of grapes have been and are being grown in Europe, and all these are supposed to have been developed from one species (Vitis sinifera), which originally was the wild product of nature, like those growing in our thickets and forests. One can scarcely suppose this possible when contemplating a cluster of Tokay or some other highly developed variety of the hot-house. Yet the native vine, which began to "yield fruit after his kind, the third day" (whatever may have been the length of the day), may have been, after all, a good starting-point in the process of development. One can hardly believe that the "one cluster of grapes" which the burdened spies, returning from Palestine, bore "between two of them upon a staff," was the result of high scientific culture. In that clime, and when the world was young, nature must have been more beneficent than now. It is certain that no such cluster ever hung from the native vines of this land, yet it is from our wild species, whose fruit the Indians shared with birds and foxes (when hanging so high as to be sour) that we have developed the delicious varieties of our out-door vineyards. For about two centuries our forefathers kept on planting vines imported from Europe, only to meet with failure. Nature, that had so abundantly rewarded their efforts abroad, quietly checkmated them here. At last American fruit-growers took the hint, and began the developing our native species. Then nature smiled, and as a lure along this correct path of progress gave such incentives as the Isabella, the Catawba, and Concord. We are now bewildered by almost as great a choice of varieties from native species as they have abroad, and as an aid to selection I will again give the verdict of some of the authorities.

The choice of Hon. Norman J. Colman, Commissioner of Agriculture: "Early Victor, Worden, Martha, Elvira, Cynthiana." This is for the region of Missouri. For the latitude of New Jersey, A. S. Fuller's selection: "Delaware, Concord, Moore's Early, Antoinette (white), Augusta (white), Goethe (amber)." E. S. Carman: "Moore's Early [you cannot praise this too much. The quality is merely that of the Concord: but the vines are marvels of perfect health, the bunches large, the berries of the largest size. They ripen all at once, and are fully ripe when the Concord begins to color], Worden, Brighton, Victoria (white), Niagara (white), El Dorado. [This does not thrive everywhere, but the grapes ripen early—September 1, or before—and the quality is perfection—white.]" Choice of P. J. Berckman, for the latitude of Georgia: "White grapes—Peter Wylie, Triumph, Maxatawny, Scuppernong. Red grapes—Delaware, Berckman's, Brighton. Black—Concord, Ives."

As I have over a hundred varieties in bearing I may venture to express an opinion also. I confess that I am very fond of those old favorites of our fathers, the Isabella and Catawba. They will not ripen everywhere in our latitude, yet I seldom fail to secure a good crop. Last fall we voted the Isabella almost unsurpassed. If one has warm, well drained soil, or can train a vine near the south side of a building, I should advise the trial of this fine old grape. The Iona, Brighton, and Agawam are also favorites with me. We regard the Diana, Wyoming, Red Perkins, and Roger's hybrids, Lindley, Wilder, and Amenia, as among the best. The Rebecca, Duchess, Lady Washington, and Purity are fine white grapes. I have not yet tested the Niagara. Years ago I obtained of Mr. James Ricketts, the prize-taker for seedling grapes, two vines of a small wine grape called the Bacchus. To my taste it is very pleasant after two or three slight frosts.

Our list of varieties is long enough, and one must be fastidious indeed who does not find some to suit his taste. In many localities the chief question is what kind can I grow? In our favored region on the Hudson almost all the out-door grapes will thrive, but as we go north the season becomes too cool and short for some kinds, and proceeding south the summers are too long and hot for others. The salt air of the sea-coast is not conducive to vine culture, and only the most vigorous, like the Concord and Moore's Early, will resist the mildew blight. We must therefore do the best we can, and that will be very well indeed in most localities.

Because our list of good grapes is already so long, it does not follow that we have reached the limit of development by any means. When we remember that almost within a lifetime our fine varieties have been developed from the wild northern Fox grape (Vitis labrusca), the Summer grape (aestivalis), Frost (cordifolia), we are led to think that perhaps we have scarcely more than crossed the stile which leads into the path of progress. If I should live to keep up my little specimen vineyard ten years longer, perhaps the greater part of the varieties now cultivated will have given place to others. The delicious Brighton requires no more space than a sour defective variety; while the proprietor starts with the best kinds he can obtain, he will find no restraint beyond his own ignorance or carelessness that will prevent his replacing the Brighton with a variety twice as good when it is developed. Thus vine-planting and grape-tasting stretch away into an alluring and endless vista.—E. P. Roe, in Harper's Magazine for May.

Auctioneer—Now, gentlemen, what shall I say for this magnificent and authentic Paul Veroneasy? Come, start it at something. Old gentleman—Don't see the painter's name to it anywhere, mister. Auctioneer—Of course not. A picture like that doesn't want signing; it stands on its merits. No bid? Pass it in, John, and bring out the next. Now, gentlemen, here is a superb Landseer by the same hand. (Tableau.)—Melbourne Punch.

MR. McMASTER'S MYSTERIOUS FEE.

A western Tory paper tries to show that the payment of $4,000 as a professional fee to Mr. McMaster, M. P., was nothing extraordinary. The Globe points out that it seems to forget the circumstances of the case as stated by the parties interested. McLaughlan Bros. were accused of defrauding the revenue. The amount claimed from them as the duties which should have been paid on the goods undervalued, in addition to what they paid at the time of entry, and the fine imposed by the Customs Department amounted to $36,000. That was paid by the accused, and further pecuniary claim there was none. But the parties were threatened with a prosecution for perjury, and Mr. Radford, one of the firm, went to Ottawa, employed Mr. Macmaster to defend them in case they should be prosecuted, it is alleged, and paid him $4,000 to remunerate him for his professional services and enable him to employ other lawyers should he require them. The prosecution never was commenced, and Mr. Macmaster, therefore, never had any professional work to do in defending those who paid him, or in preparing for the defence. It has been stated that he never gave a dollar of the $4,000 to anyone. If Mr. Macmaster earned the $4,000, what did he do for it? If any service he rendered to McLaughlan Bros. was worth $4,000, what was that service?

The public have a right to ask these questions, and to insist upon an answer, because the Minister of Customs, acting for the public, made the charges against the McLaughlans, because the McLaughlans were threatened by the Minister or his subordinates with a prosecution for perjury, because no such prosecution was instituted, and because Mr. Macmaster, who received the $4,000 when the prosecution was threatened, is a member of Parliament, and a zealous supporter of the Government of which the Minister of Customs is a member.

Altogether it is a case in which much explanation is needed.

Rev. Dr. Burns on Home Rule.

"A Great Day for Ireland" at the Opera House Last Night Three Hours of Eloquence and Argument.

Last night, Rev. Dr. Burns, of Hamilton, the great Canadian Protestant champion of the cause of Home Rule, delivered his address on the subject of "The right of Ireland to Self-government." The Opera House was packed in every part by citizens of the town and adjacent country. Upon the stage were the following gentlemen besides the speaker of the evening: Dr. O'Sullivan, President of the Local League, Mr. J. O'Meara, barrister, secretary, James Stevenson, Mayor, D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate, Thos. Blezzard, M. P. P., Messrs. Thomas Cahill, R. S. Davidson, A. Rutherford, Councillors, Rev. Father Conway, J. R. Stratton, EXAMINER, Mr. W. Crough, Reeve of Ennismore, Mr. E. J. Toker, Review, Rev. Father Keilty, Ennismore, Rev. J. P. Wilson, Ashburnham Methodist Church, Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald, P. L. S., and Father Condon, of Minneapolis, Minnesota. Dr. O'Sullivan said the object of the members of the Peterborough branch of the League, was to make it non-sectarian and it was not their fault if they had not succeeded and in proof of the earnest of this endeavor was the presence of a warm and patriotic Protestant son of Ireland, such as he had the pleasure of introducing.

Rev. Dr. Burns was received with warm applause. He expressed his pleasure at visiting Peterborough whose title of town was a misnomer—it should be called a city.

The subject he was about to speak upon, was one dear to his heart. He apologized for having to read so much of it, but it was a ticklish subject and he wanted to say just what he intended. He would give many quotations in support of the positions he assumed, and he drew attention to the fact he would not quote a single Catholic authority.

He was an Irishman and was proud of it and his heart beat warmly for his native land. At present the harp of Ireland hung upon the willow. He referred to the terrible state of destitution of the country, where potatoes and buttermilk might be considered a luxury and where labour did not receive living reward. The speaker has seen men and women toiling in the harvest field at the wages of 8 pence and 4 pence a day respectively. There was no peasantry in the world which had been so oppressed as that of Ireland. Chinese Gordon stated that the peasantry of Ireland were in a worse condition than those of any country in Europe. This statement was corroborated by the state-of Bright and Gladstone, and by correspondents of English newspapers, who had been sent over to contradict such stories. This was the condition, and the speaker pointed out that the causes were not in the soil, which could support twenty million instead of starving five million of people. Nor was it due to the idleness of the people—a people who, when they go to other lands, rise to the highest positions. The misgovernment of Ireland was her curse. Give Ireland government of the people, by the people, for the people. Ireland had a right to self-government. Every people had a right to decide how they should be governed. He favored in self-government such as we enjoyed in Canada. England had for ages recognized the principle, in the time of the commonwealth, and to-day the English people claimed the same rights. England had always been the champion of liberty. In the time of the French Revolution she had refused to join an alliance of crowned heads to put down a people struggling for liberty. As it had been in the past, so it was now. All lovers of liberty were sending congratulations to Gladstone (cheers) while tyrants, who would like to see England sunk in the deepest sea, suddenly took a great interest in the welfare of the Empire. Free America, had resisted the unjust treatment which the ill-advisers of George III had imposed upon her, and he would as Gladstone, rather have the congratulations of free America than all the plaudits of all the crowned heads of Europe (cheers). In all free countries the will of the majority ruled, but Ireland was ruled by the minority. The land of Ireland was mostly held by foreigners; the holders of confiscated estates elected her representatives. Ireland lay under a double curse, the land system and religious strife. Confiscation had made the Irish hewers of wood and drawers of water. It was pointed out how in the time of Henry II, Ireland was spoiled and her land divided between ten English families—which the speaker called a bare faced outrage. All the troubles that Ireland had for centuries were due to the land system. The Irish were the victims of their oppressors. The laws of that period would make a Zulu blush. The Irish were not only robbed of their lands, but denied all offices and positions of trust. The introduction of the religious element was far worse. The Reformation had spread rapidly over England and Germany, where the church had become rich and corrupt, and needed reform; but in Ireland the church had been kept pure, the people were religious, and they could never be made to doubt the validity and purity of their church as the House of God. Henry VIII confiscated the religious houses of Ire and and and tried to change the religion of a people by act of Parliament, an outrage on liberty of conscience, which every Protestant would resent. Elizabeth followed, and the condition of Ireland in this respect was aggravated. Goldwin Smith was quoted to show that the conquest of Ireland was so cruelly done as to cause undying hatred. The choice of the Irish people was between starvation and exile. This state of things continued for centuries. During all this time England and Scotland were shaken by rebellions, while there was no sign of a rising in Ireland. Instances of unjust discrimination against Catholics were given. No Catholic would take security for money loaned, nor hold any land. When these things were thought of, could it be wondered that Ireland did not like English-made laws? As a Protestant, he could not defend such laws, but shook his skirts clear of them. (Cheers.) An Irishman's franchise was a mockery because he was not allowed to vote for a Catholic. The first real relief was granted to Ireland under pressure of the American war. Trade restrictions were removed. Irish industries had been crushed out by act of Parliament. No industry had been allowed in Ireland that would conflict with English interests. Yet when England was at war with the whole world, Ireland with 100,000 men available, did not raise her hand to embarrass her, but endured all the ills rented and still remained loyal to England and true to Ireland. Grattan said that England and Ireland were inseparably connected, but that the king with the Commons and lords of Ireland was the only competent power to make laws for Ireland, as was true in England. The Irish parliament was for long a mockery. The Irish Parliament did not govern Ireland. Four-fifths of Irish were Catholics, yet not a Catholic was allowed to sit in Parliament. Of a Parliament of 300 only 72 were elected by the people. Grattan's Parliament ended with the union. The suppression of the Parliament through the union woke the people to a sense of their rights, and the "volunteers" were organized in different parts of Ireland with the object of reforming all abuses and restoring civil and religious liberty. They were at first all Protestants, but after a time Catholics were admitted. In Belfast in 1791 the "Whig Club" and "United Irishmen," composed of Protestants, was formed, and they were called "Irish rebels," to carry out a cordial union of the people, and to recognize no reform that would not include, to Irishmen of every religious persuasion, full enjoyment of civil and religious liberty. A requisition was submitted to the English Parliament embodying these claims, signed by 53 Protestants. A similar organization was formed in Dublin and that was the origin of "United Irishmen." Belfast had another society for Parliamentary reform, and so harshly was their impudence in asking for reform resented, that five out of twelve Presbyterian ministers, together with six priests, were executed. The union was not opposed by Catholics alone. Among its opponents were Protestants, noblemen and even Orangemen, for the Orangemen of those days believed in the liberty of conscience and equality to all. The Irish Parliament of three hundred had been got over by the union. Of the 300 members only 100 was wanted at Westminster, and the remaining, such was the power of the landed classes, were won over at a cost of £15,000 per seat, and so the union was easily carried. Still many Irish disabilities remained. The union was a forced marriage. The disability of Catholics remained till 1829, and when it was made possible for a Catholic to be elected, the forty shilling franchise was raised to £10 in hope that no Catholic would be able to be elected but Dan O'Connell was.

The injustice of the land laws was dwelt upon as a cause of Irish distress and disaffection.

In Ireland, not one-seventh of the land was held by the people. Three-fourths of the land was divided among a few men, who, with their families, would not amount to 30,000 people out of a population of five millions. These land-holders control legislation and prevent reform. There were represented in Parliament fourteen and one half million acres of land, and the privileged classes were down on reform. The House of Lords was also opposed to any land reform. From 1871 to 1881, thirty-one bills had been presented to Parliament to ameliorate the land laws. All were rejected. During the same time seven bills were passed to make them more stringent. The speaker asserted that no colony of the Empire would stand what Ireland stands to-day. The "only" loyalists see all sorts of disasters in Home Rule, destruction of the Empire and all sorts of national calamities, but there was a class of croakers that always raised such cries to distract attention. Rejecting Home Rule was more likely to destroy the Empire. The refusal of the right of self-government to the American colonies resulted in their loss. England had experimented long enough with Ireland. Gladstone, who was the most colossal figure in the world, thought so, too. His bill had been defeated, but the cause would yet triumph, for he believed right would be right because God was God. The opponents to it raised the cry of separation, for the purpose of obscuring the real issue. It was raised by the interested ones, for Home Rule and its opponents represented a struggle between the privileged classes and the people. It was monopoly against the public weal. The same tactics were used against the Disestablishment Bill—the Protestant religion would be destroyed — the bill passed — the sun rose as as usual and the result has been a great boon to Ireland and a justice which would soon be extended to England, Ireland and Wales. Home Rule was the due of Ireland. Was there a Canadian to deny to another the measure of self-rule he enjoyed, because that other was a Catholic? No Canadian would be satisfied with less of liberty than Gladstone's Home Rule Bill embraces. It was asked why were not the Catholics satisfied like the Protestants of Ulster. Because Protestants must be satisfied with less of liberty than it takes to satisfy a Catholic, but if this were true it shows that the laws are only suited to the Protestant minority. But Ireland is not Protestant, but Catholic. It was contended that if the Irish were contented under their oppressions they would not be Irish and the unconquerable spirit of the race would never be satisfied with less than their fellow subjects enjoyed. Let what the Irish people was robbed of, be restored. If their land of 3,700 of the present holders were divided it would make 600,000 farms, of 20 acres each, a large farm in Ireland. But the Irish were willing to do better than they were done by. They were robbed of their land, but they are willing to pay for it to get it back. No Irishman was green enough to expect the liberty we enjoy, we rule ourselves and enjoy the protection of the empire, without paying for it. Ireland was willing to help bear the burdens of the empire is she could rule herself. The cause was not lost. It was gaining strength every day. The more it was discussed the more friends it made.

The speaker said that Irishmen must be more united, and get closer together. National prejudices, must be removed before they could trust each other and benefit Ireland. If they heeded this the time would ere long come when there would be no north no south, no east no west, but when Irishmen as common patriots could shake hands across the "bridge of the Boyne," and the dream of a free and united Ireland would be realized. The speaker concluded a powerful and passionate address, full of logical sequences, well sustained pathos, stirring eloquence, by a magnificent peroration.

COMPLIMENTARY.

Dr. Kincaid, in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker, made one of the clever little impromptu speeches for which he is noted, and his sentiments were cheered to the echo.

Rev. Father Conway, in seconding the motion, made a most felicitous speech. He said he had gone to Toronto to hear his reverend friend lecture on the subject, and he had come that night from Barrie to hear him again, and if he should have an opportunity, he would cover the same ground for the same purpose. Though they differed in religious belief, they were on common ground, and he was proud to recognize in a religious opponent a zealous and eloquent advocate of the cause of Ireland, and moreover, a genuine Christian gentleman. He was glad to see so much harmony existing and more would be the result of the splendid lecture they had heard to-night. He was proud to shake hands with Rev. Dr. Burns across the "Bridge of the Boyne." (Here Rev. Father Conway, suiting the action to the word, extended his hand across the "Bridge of the Boyne"—represented by the Chairman—and he and Dr. Burns warmly grasped each other's hands, the house, meanwhile, quivering with the thundering plaudits of the people.)

Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald supported the motion in a brief speech and the motion was carried enthusiastically, the people rising en masse to their feet, cheering tumultuously and waving handkerchiefs, etc., for some moments. Rev. Father Conway called for three cheers for Parnell, given with immense enthusiasm, followed by three cheers for the Grand Old Man, and one can fancy the spontaneous outburst of applause which that name would evoke from an Irish audience.

Dr. Burns returned thanks in a few short sentences. It had pleased him to deliver the address he had just concluded, which was given with as much earnestness and honesty of purpose and sincerity of conviction as if he had been preaching a sermon from the pulpit.

Rev. J. P. Wilson, of Ashburnham, added his praise of the eloquence of the address, and expressed the pleasure it had given him to listen to it.

T. Blezard, Esq., M. P. P., said he had come to learn something more than he knew about the Home Rule question, and he had learned more than he had expected to do.

With three rousing cheers and a "tiger" for the Queen, and "may she live to open Parliament in College Green!" from Rev. Father Conway, the immense gathering dispersed.

The address of Dr. Burns occupied exactly two hours and forty minutes in delivery yet not for one moment did the interest abate, and not one sign of weariness was manifested by the audience, though it was largely composed of ladies, who are usually a little restive when they are not doing the talking themselves.

THE presentation of an address by the corporation of Limerick to the Earl of Aberdeen, on the occasion of his retirement from the position of Lord Lieutenant of Ireland is an encouraging sign. Michael Davitt spoke truly when he declared that Mr. Gladstone by his honest efforts on behalf of Irish Home Rule had done more to make the Irish people loyal to England than had been accomplished by three centuries of oppression and misrule.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

THE STRANGER ON THE SANDS.

The tide was coming in, the sun setting over the sea, the crimson and golden light seemed to be reflected in each drop of water until the waves were one mass of heaving roseate gold; a sweet western wind laden with rich, aromatic odors from the pine woods seemed to kiss the waves as they touched the shore and broke into sheets of beautiful white foam. It was such a sunset and such a sea—such a calm and holy stillness. The golden waters stretched out as far and wide as the eye could reach. The yellow sands were clear and smooth; the cliffs that bounded the coast were steep and covered with luxuriant green foliage. Pauline Darrell had gone to the beach, leaving Miss Hastings, who already felt much better, to the enjoyment of an hour's solitude.

There was a small niche in one of the rocks, and the young girl sat down in it, with the broad, beautiful expanse of water spread out before her, and the shining waves breaking at her feet. She had brought a book with her, but she read little; the story did not please her. The hero of it was too perfect. With her eyes fixed on the golden, heaving expanse of water, she was thinking of the difference between men in books and men in real life. In books they were all either brave or vicious—either very noble or very base.

She passed in review all the men she had ever known, beginning with her kind-hearted, genial father, the clever humorist artist, who could define a man's character in an epigram so skillfully. He was no hero of romance; he liked his cigar, his "glass," and his jest. She thought of all his rugged, picturesque artist-comrades, blunt of speech, honest of heart, open-handed, generous, self-sacrificing men, who never envied a comrade's prosperity, nor did even their greatest enemy an evil turn; yet they were not heroes of romance. She thought of Sir Oswald—the stately gentleman of the old school, who held his name and race so dear, yet had made so fatal an error in his marriage and will. She thought of the captain, handsome and polished in manner, and her face grew pale as she remembered him. She thought of Lord Aynsley, for whom she had a friendly liking, not unmixed with wonder that he could so deeply love the fair, soft-voiced, inane Lady Darrell.

Then she began to reflect how strange it was that she had lived until now, yet had never seen a man whom she could love. Her beautiful lips curled in scorn as she thought of it.

"If ever I love any one at all," she said to herself, "it must be some one whom I feel to be my master. I could not love a man who was weak in body, soul, heart, or mind. I long to feel that he is my master; that my soul yields to his; that I can look up to him as the great guiding star of my life, as the guide of my actions. If ever I meet such a man, and vow to love him, what will my love do for me? I do not think I could fall in love with a book-hero either; they are too coldly perfect. I should like a hero with some human faults, with a touch of pride capable of being roused into passion."

Suddenly, as the thought shaped itself in her mind, she saw a tall figure crossing the sands—the figure of a man, walking quickly.

He stopped at some little distance from the cliff, and then threw himself on the sand. His eyes were fixed on the restless, beautiful sea; and she, attracted by his striking masculine beauty, the statuesque attitude, the grand, free grace of his strong limbs, the royal carriage of his handsome head, watched him. In the theatre she had seen some marvelous statues; he reminded her of them. There was one of Antinous, with a grand, noble face, a proud head, covered with clusters of hair, that the stranger reminded her of it.

She looked at him in wonder. She had seen only fashionable-looking men—dandies, fops—for the first time she had ever seen a noble-looking and magnificent-looking man.

"If his soul is like his face," she thought to herself, "he is a hero."

She watched him quite unconsciously, admiration gradually entering her heart.

"I should like to hear him speak," she thought. "I know just what kind of voice ought to go with that face."

It was a dreamy quiet, dreamy hour, and he was all unconscious of her presence. The face she was watching was like some grand, harmonious poem to her; and as she so watched there came to her the memory of the story of Lancelot and Elaine. The restless golden waters, the yellow sands, the cliffs, all faded from her view, and she, with her vivid imagination, saw before her the castle court where Elaine first saw him, lifted her eyes and read his lineaments, and then loved him with a love that was her doom. The face on which she gazed was marked by no great and guilty love—it was the face of Lancelot before his fall, when he shone noblest, purest, and grandest of all King Arthur's knights.

"It was for his face Elaine loved him," thought the girl—"grand and noble as is the face on which the sun shines now."

Then she went through the whole of that marvelous story; she thought of the purity, the delicate grace, the fair loveliness of Elaine, as contrasted with the passionate love which, flung back upon itself, led her to prefer death to life—of that strange, keen, passionate love that so suddenly changed the whole world for the maid of Astolat.

"And I would rather be like her," said the girl to herself; "I would rather die loving the highest and the best than live loving one less worthy."

It had seized her imagination, this beautiful story of a deathless love.

"I too could love as Elaine did," she thought; "for love cannot come to me wearing the guise it wears to others. I could read the true nobility of a man's soul in his face; I could love him, asking no love in return. I would die to serve him, and believing my greatness [illegible]

The stranger rose and walked slowly, as though reluctantly, away. The love had come to her that was to work wonders—the love that was to be her redemption.

A Fine Portrait.

There is displayed in the window of Sherwood's drug store, a three-quarter bust portrait of Mr. T. Dunn, painted by Mr. N. H. Ramer. Though not hung in a good light, the likeness appears a good one, and Mr. Ramer has done his usual justice to an excellent subject.

Down the River.

To-day a pleasant party, consisting of Mr. G. B. Sproule and his employes, went down the river for a day's enjoyment. Mr. Sproule believes in giving his employes pleasant recreation as well as plenty of work. This pleasing recognition of the right to enjoyment of his employes will create a good feeling which will, in the long run, redound to his advantage, besides the consciousness of having gracefully done a kind and commendable action.

The Coming Races.

As day by day passes, the prospects of the success of the first grand summer meeting of the Peterborough Driving Park Association, become greater. To-day several thousand three-color posters were issued, to be posted in different parts of the province, announcing the event, and the indications are that on August 26th and 27th there will be the finest and fleetest stud of competing horseflesh at the Driving Park, and the biggest gathering of spectators, ever brought together on the grounds. The liberal purses offered will attract good horses, and the square racing that will be done will make the meeting worthy of the attendance of the public. Remember the date of the great summer race meeting, August 26th and 27th.

A. C. A. Meet.

The annual meeting of the American Canoe Association will be held this year on Grindstone Island, one of the Thousand Islands. Peterborough will be well represented, and local canoeists are making preparations for the meet. It is to be hoped the local paddlers will turn out in force. It is expected that this will be the most important meeting of any that has yet taken place. Four English canoeists are at this moment, figuratively speaking, paddling across the "herring pond" to be present—with their canoes and equipments. When canoeists come 3,000 miles, the local paddlers should see that the district is represented in full force.

A Smith Suit Settled

Men, like nations, often take a very little excuse for fighting. Two men in Smith got into a dispute over the price of a certain article in which both were interested. Words ran high and blows were imminent, when a mutual friend diplomatically settled the matter. He invited the parties to his house where he showed them a suit bought at Gough's, the Wonderful Cheap Man, which was 40 per cent. cheaper and better than one of the parties had got in Toronto, and over the price of which the dispute arose. Instead of wanting to fight, the man who bought the Toronto suit wanted somebody to trade him. Gough always wins in the fight for cheap clothing, which will be found in stocks for men, youths and children, at the store, Arcade Buildings, Peterborough.

Police Court.

Continuation of Scott Act Cases—The Mysterious Patent Witness from Toronto Creates a Sensation.

The hearing of the Snowden case was resumed at 2 o'clock, yesterday.

James Bryson got something to drink; asked for ginger ale; couldn't tell what he got, it had the smell of pop; he supposed it was beer, if any it was very poor stuff. The second time he drank he got the same; what he drank made him sick. Thos. J. Welsh, re-called, said what he drank did not taste like beer. Alexander Pollard, the patent curry-comb vender, got something to drink at Snowden's; it tasted like spirits. To Mr. Stone, Pollard said he lived in Toronto, was a patent right dealer, he sold patent sleeves and a patent curry comb; had been intown two weeks. He got Moxie at the Morgan House; he asked Snowden to give him a drink; what he got tasted like spirits that is, alcohol; swear it was whiskey. Had asked for Moxie in two or three other hotels; got real Moxie at the Daly house; had been in most of the hotels in town. For the defence Wm. Snowden testified that he never sold Pollard a glass of liquor in his life, nor did he remember of giving him a drink. To Mr. Stone he swore positively he never gave Pollard any spirituous liquor; might have sold him a glass of Moxie. He was the agent in Peterborough for the company that supplies Moxie. Declined to say if he mixed whiskey with Moxie; to several other similar questions he refused answers. To the best of his knowledge he did not sell Pollard any Moxie with whiskey in it. Pollard recalled, said what he got was whiskey. He was not employed to work up whiskey cases.

Judgment reserved till Saturday.

The Kennealy case was resumed yesterday at 4 o'clock. Alex. Pollard got spirituous liquors in Kennealy's last week; asked for Moxie, and the liquor was given him; Moxie tasted like bitters. He got whiskey twice at Kennealy's—the last time it was clear. He had no arrangement with the (Scott Act) Association; don't know the members of it; saw Mr. Flavelle; he asked if he had been around the hotels; he told him he had; got liquor at all the hotels. Did not know who he (Mr. Flavelle) was. Thought he told Flavelle about Kennealy. He got whiskey two or three times at Kennealy's; he got a bottle of whiskey at Kennealy's; it was in a flask; paid 35 cents for it. William Ruth said he sold Moxie; he got it from Toronto; he supplied Kennealy; there was no whiskey in it. For the defence, Adam Davidson remembered Pollard; he got half a dozen drinks of Moxie; we had, at Kennealy's, no spirituous liquor to sell; sold no whiskey to my knowledge; he sold what was behind the bar. There was no whiskey in it to his knowledge. Remember Pollard getting a bottle; it was Moxie. He never put whiskey in the Moxie. W. Kennealy saw Pollard at his hotel. He got Moxie, there was no whiskey in it. There was no spirituous liquor; he had no whiskey at his place for sale; had no spirituous liquor for sale in June or July.

[A flask which Pollard had given to Mr. Kendry, was produced, and Mr. Kennealy said there was whiskey of poor quality in it.] Pollard recalled.—The flask was whiskey he got at Kennealy's. The cork had not been removed. Did not buy the bottle for Mr. Kendry; gave the bottle to Mr. Kendry. James Kendry produced a flask containing whiskey. Pollard gave it to him last Saturday. He met Pollard by appointment on George street. He told him the hotels were breaking the law. He arranged with them to get a bottle. There was no arrangement between him and witness. He did not arrange to bring him from Toronto.

The case was adjourned till Saturday, August 7th.

QUEEN VS. CLANCY.

The hearing of this case begun at 10 o'clock. After hearing ten witnesses—Pollard included—the magistrate dismissed the charge with costs.

P. A. A. A. Civic Holiday Excursion.

The attention of the public is again called to the excursion of the P. A. A. A. to Sturgeon Point and Orillia on Civic Holiday, Aug. 19th. At Orillia a fine programme of aports, cricket, lacrosse, lawn tennis, etc., will facilities for boating. The new steamer be carried out, and there are splendid "Orillia" has been chartered to carry passengers around lake Couchiching and lake Simcoe, a delightful stream of 20 miles. Another steamer will make continuous trips during the day to Couchiching Park. Train of first-class coaches leaves Peterborough at 7.30, return fare, $1.10. Those so wishing, can stop at Lindsay and spend the day at Sturgeon Point, return tickets to the latter place, only 85 cents. The P. A. A. A. make everything first-class they touch, and this splendid excursion will be no exception. Children under 12 to Orillia, 55c.; to Sturgeon Point, 45c.

For all kinds of fine fruit—call at Ostrom's, George street.

THANKS to the beneficent N. P., the population of the Township of Hope has decreased, says the Guide, to the tune of 490 souls within two years. Yet these Government-heelers talk long and loud of the progress this "Canada of ours" is making. In the face of the facts given above, is it not full time to cry "down breaks," when our public debt is increasing at a fearful ratio, and our population "becoming smaller by degrees and beautifully less." The only way to mend matters is to turn the rascals out.

Milton has a four-legged chicken whose extra legs and feet are perfectly formed, but are not used for locomotion.

A contemporary relates how a man got his humerus broken, and rather inappropriately speaks of the accident as a serious one.

Personal.

Mr. W. W. Dalton, prize agent for the Barnaugh circus, arrived in town to-day. He will remain a day or two and is registered at the Daly House.

Mr. Bert Cottingham has returned to town on a visit. His friends were glad to see him looking so well. He has been absent about 6 years.

Mr. C. W. Sawers, who has been suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism, left this morning to try the effect of the mineral waters at Preston, Ont.

Mr. J. D. Pentland left this morning for Arizona, where he intends remaining a year, joining his brother, who is in business there.

MR. CARLING, Minister of Agriculture; Mr. Bowell, Minister of Customs; and Mr. McLelan, Minister of Finance, have engaged a steam yacht and left for a trip up the Rideau River. They will go as far as Manotick. The ministers will combine business (so that the country will pay for the spree,) with pleasure, as one of the objects of their trip is the selection of a site for an experimental farm.

A GOVERNMENT paper claims that the Tory party of to-day is the real Liberal party of the country, and to prove its assertion points to the fact that Mr. A. W. McLelan and a few others, who formerly acted with the Liberals, are now supporting Sir John Macdonald. With equal good reason relates the Ottawa Free Press might the Jews claim to be true Christians, because they managed to bribe Judas Iscariot.

ATTENTION may be directed to the fact that the Dominion Government has been encouraging the Canadian ship building industry by going to New York to purchase a fisheries protection vessel. Mr. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, has paid out $40,000 of our public money for a Yankee steamer to protect our fishermen. This, is a practical admission that after eight years of "protection," involving the payment of burdensome taxes, Canadians are not able to build a vessel good enough to prevent a few foreigners in parts from stealing our fish.

Mr. Glanstone's Health.

Mr. Gladstone foreshadows his intention of retiring from public life on account of his pressing feeling of need of rest.

Hastings.

(From the Hastings Star.)

A regular tornado struck this locality about four o'clock on Thursday afternoon of last week. For thirty minutes rain in dense sheets fell continuously; hailstones, some of which were from one to one and a half inches in size, apparently fragments of ice, rattled against the walls and windows like a fusilade of musketry, and many panes of glass were broken. The photographer's tent and the dime show were blown down. The loss to the former in the destruction of a large number of negatives, and damage to camera and chemicals is estimated at $70. The end wall of Mr. Tough's new brick building had a narrow escape from being blown down, and which was only averted by Messrs. John Carey and R. Hughes working through the storm, securing it with stays. The wall swayed two feet from the perpendicular, and is now slightly out of plumb. The damage south must have been great. The track of the storm was about five miles in width, as two miles south and three miles north of this place, little or no rain fell. Judging from the density of the clouds it appeared to be most severe south of us. Some of our fishermen who were down the river got the full benefit of the tornado.

An infant son of Mr. John Latam, a farmer living near Godend died on a M. C. R. train, of convulsions, caused by teething troubles.

Y. M. C. A. Work.

The following circular has been issued by the Peterborough Y. M. C. A.:—

As we wish to arrange our work for the coming fall and winter, and as an answer to the following questions from each of our members would greatly facilitate us in so doing, will you kindly reply to them at your early convenience?

1. Would you join a class in vocal music, provided the fees did not come to more than one dollar for the season?
2. Would you join a class in commercial arithmetic?
3. Would you join a class in short-hand?
4. Is there any other subject that you would like to take up if a class were started?
5. Supposing a gymnasium were fitted up would you bear a part of the expense, and to what amount?
6. As we should have every active member serving on one or more of our committees, will you underscore your preference of the following committees?:—

Finance Committee (to raise funds.)
Devotional Committee (to take charge of religious meetings.)
Membership Committee (to devise means of increasing the membership.)
Lecture and Entertainment Committee.
Invitation Committee (to distribute invitations.)
Reception Committee (to welcome visitors at the rooms in the evening.)

In the following list of our meetings, will you please mark those that you will engage to attend regularly?:—

Bible Class, Tuesday, 8 to 9 p.m.
Workers' Training Class, Thursday, 8 to 9 p.m.
Boys' Meeting, Friday, 7.30 to 8.30.
Young Men's Meeting, Saturday, 8 to 9 p.m.
Young Men's Meeting, Sunday, 4 to 5 p.m.
Song Service, Sunday, 8.30 to 9.30 p.m.

If you would like to make any suggestions whatever as to the working of the Association, kindly do so as freely as you like. Will you please return this as soon as possible. Hoping we shall have a pleasant and profitable season's work, we are, yours faithfully,

J. W. FLAVELLE, President. GEO. E. WILLIAMS, Secretary.

CATARRH CURED—25 YEARS STANDING.

DR. WASHINGTON, Throat and Lung Surgeon, 218 Yonge St., Toronto:

St. Thomas, June 28, 1886.

THE JOURNAL.

Allow me through your paper to thank Dr. Washington, throat and lung surgeon, for his great skill in curing me of catarrh, which had greatly troubled me for years, after having unsuccessfully had Lorn of throat. My throat for weeks was so badly ulcerated that it was almost impossible for me to swallow, the entire palate being eaten through, so that I was unable to pass a large piece of food down. It is now entirely healed, and as I am now able to attend to my work once more, I wish to thank the doctor, and also to recommend any who may be afflicted with catarrh or any ailment of the throat.

Yours truly,

POLITICS IN BRITAIN

NEW SESSION COMMENCED IN THE HOUSE YESTERDAY.

The Ex-Premier and His Old Associates Fraternize—Justin McCarthy on the Prospects—Meeting of Unionists—Mr. Gladstone's Intentions—Radical Treachery at Birmingham.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Parliament reassembled this afternoon. Mr. Gladstone, when he went into the House, took a seat on the front opposition bench. His advent was unnoticed. Mr. Chamberlain soon afterwards entered and sat down on the same bench which was also occupied by Lord Hartington and John Morley, Lord Hartington sitting between Messrs. Morley and Chamberlain. When Mr. Gladstone saw Mr. Chamberlain the ex-Premier arose and went over to the Radical dissentient leader, shook hands with him cordially and held a conversation with him and Lord Hartington.

Arthur Wellesley Peel, Liberal member for Warwick and Leamington, was re-elected Speaker.

Although the reception of Mr. Gladstone in the House of Commons to-day was undemonstrative, he was lustily cheered in the palace yard both on arriving and leaving. In the Gladstonian circle it is represented that Mr. Gladstone will raise the Irish question in the debate on the address in reply to the Queen's speech demanding of the Government an explicit statement of its policy. The Liberal Unionists are not ready to support the Gladstonian proposal to limit the time of the Government in which to prepare an Irish measure to November. The Cabinet will insist that after the estimates have been granted parliament be prorogued until February. The Queen's speech will be read on August 19.

Justin McCarthy's Cablegram.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Justin McCarthy in a despatch to the Herald, says he thinks there will be a debate on the Home Rule question at the session of parliament which opens to-day. "I feel quite certain," he says, "that if Mr. Gladstone does not himself bring it up, some English Radical below the gangway will do so and will probably press to a division. What Gladstonians of the inner circle say is that they cannot see much use just now in calling a division on the Home Rule question, which would merely repeat and accentuate the division given by the general elections. On the other hand, what the Gladstonians of the outer circle and the independent Radicals below the gangway say is that the sooner they force the secessionist Liberals to declare themselves he better.

"Suppose, for example, an amendment to the address is proposed, declaring that no settlement of the Irish question could be satisfactory which did not proceed on the line of domestic legislation. How would the Liberal secessionists vote? Almost every man of them, except Lord Hartington, has declared again and again in favor of the principle of Home Rule. Would it not be well, some Radicals argue, to force these men to be true to their words or publicly renounce them? If they vote against such an amendment they declare against Home Rule of any kind; if they vote for it they declare against the Conservative Government and drive the first nail into its coffin. Such is the argument of both sides.

"The action which the Irish party may decide on doing or supporting is not yet known. Mr. Gladstone comes back to lead the opposition only because he has nailed his Home Rule colors to the mast and is determined to fight for Home Rule as long as there is any fight in him, or there is need of his hand in the battle. If, however, the Conservatives should make up their minds to offer a scheme of Home Rule which England could accept, then Mr. Gladstone would consider himself free from all necessity of remaining in public life. It is extremely unlikely that the Tories will deny this, and if the kind people do not do it they will do it to-day Mr. Gladstone will give up public life to-morrow."

LONDON, Aug. 5.—A meeting of Liberal Unionists was held at Devonshire House, the residence of Lord Hartington, to-day. Lord Hartington presided, and among those present were Messrs. Joseph Chamberlain, James Rylands, Caine, Heneage and Jesse Collings. Lord Hartington, in a long speech upon the Parliamentary work, proposed that all attitude of hostility towards the parliaments of the late Government be abandoned. The Liberal secession should cooperate in such a way as to secure the enactment of such Irish measures and opposition to justify, and promote the separation of the Liberal party from the consolidation of the party would only be a matter of time. (Cheers.) Towards that end the Unionists should at once organize themselves with [illegible] the Liberals in the House of Commons. He [illegible] that the party would soon heal.

Mr. Chamberlain [illegible] cordially accept the leadership of Lord Hartington, with whom he was in entire and cordial sympathy. He declared that such action as Lord Hartington proposed could speedily restore the unity of the party. The Unionists, he said, were the real workers at the late elections. Mr. Chamberlain's remarks were received with enthusiastic cheers.

Messrs. Sylvester, Caldwell and Caine also Sir Henry James also spoke in a similar strain. A vote of thanks to Lord Hartington was then passed by acclamation and a resolution was unanimously adopted that the Radical and Whig Unionists should work together and that the leaders who are Privy Councillors should claim seats on the Ministerial side of the House of Commons on an equality with the Gladstonite leaders. The meeting unanimously endorsed the sentiment of the speakers. Some reports say that forty and others that sixty were present at the meeting.

Lord Hartington said the Unionist Liberals held the balance of power formerly held by Parnell. It was equally in their power to prevent the return of any Liberal Government committed to Separation or to prevent the Conservatives obtaining a retrograde policy. It was their duty to remain united and to retain the right of independent judgment on any question what ever. He refused to join the Conservative Cabinet because by so doing he would have irreparably divided the Liberal party, and because the coalition would have failed to receive the whole Unionist support, and the country therefore would have virtually a Conservative Cabinet. He deprecated any attempt to force the hands of the Conservatives by refusing supplies until they declared their Irish policy.

Mr. Gladstone's Intentions.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Mr. Gladstone's letter to Mr. Arnold Morley frightens his supporters and the Conservative chiefs, the latter fearing that his early return would reunite the Liberal party. The Cable News, however, has high authority for stating that Mr. Gladstone does not intend to retire. He will personally attend the House of Commons upon all important occasions, and take an active part in all debates which seem to require his participation. The routine business will be left in the hands of his younger colleagues, under the leadership of Mr. Morley, who, it is understood, is entirely willing to accept the trust, and who, it is well known, is entirely able to execute it.

Brodrick Himself for a Fight.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—An article in this morning's Standard, the semi-official Tory organ, assigns a policy of enforcing the collection of rents and hinting that the coming conflict will be one of law versus the National League, excites widespread attention, and is the topic of discussion in political circles to-day. The opinion is generally expressed that the article was put out as a feeler, and that Lord Salisbury is bracing himself and his colleagues for an expected fight next winter.

A Resilient Agitation Contemplated.

DUBLIN, Aug. 5.—At the meeting here yesterday the following motion was proposed by Parnell and seconded by Mr. Harrington:

"We deem it our duty to warn the Government that the depreciation in the prices of farm produce since the judicial rents were fixed makes it impossible for tenants to pay their rents. We suggest an immediate revision of such rates and a remodelling of the rent-fixing clause in order to secure protection for tenants."

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 5.—Ald. Cook has decided to re-contest East Birmingham against Henry Matthews, the new Home Secretary. Mr. Cook last year was returned as a Liberal for East Birmingham by a majority of 1202. He supported the Home Rule Bill and in the recent election ran as a Gladstonian. The Radicals and Unionists in the district combined with the Conservatives on Mr. Matthews and elected him by a narrow majority. His elevation to the cabinet has much displeased the Birmingham Tories because he is Roman Catholic and a protege of Cardinal Manning. The Radicals and Unionists are dissatisfied with Mr. Matthews because they believe he is a willing political instrument of Lord Randolph Churchill, hence they have pledged their support to Mr. Cook in order to defeat Mr. Matthews. The alderman's acceptance has caused a sensation. The Tories are furious over Ald. Cook's decision to attempt to break down the Conservative Cabinet appointment, and they charge what they call the "Chamberlain" clique with treachery with the election compact made between the Conservatives, the Liberal Unionists and the Radical Unionists. Mr. Matthews has already issued his electoral address. In this he warns his constituents that "the danger of disruption of the Empire still exists," and that it is incumbent on patriotic men to ignore party differences.

Mr. Cook addressed a meeting of Liberals here to-night. He said he was opposed to the Irish Land Bill and favored continued representation of Ireland at Westminster.

THE SITUATION AT BELFAST.

Further Serious Rioting Reported—A Petition to the Mayor.

BELFAST, Aug 5.—Two parties of workmen became involved in a fight yesterday and for a time a renewal of the riotous scenes of the last few days seemed imminent. The police, in attempting to stop the fight and disperse the combatants, received a severe stoning from both sides. The order was given to fire into the crowd, which was promptly obeyed, and several rounds were fired before the mob scattered. A large number of rioters were wounded, three of them, it is thought, fatally. Magistrates Keogh and Miller, while reading the riot act, were hit by stones and severely injured.

A meeting was held to-night at which a petition to the Mayor was drawn up, requesting him to assert his position as chief magistrate. The conduct of the resident magistrates and police was strongly condemned, and a deputation was appointed to request the Mayor to convene a meeting of ratepayers to discuss the future government of the town. Many persons at the meeting were injured by stones thrown by outsiders.

THE RATTLER IS RATTLED.

Her Captain Refuses to Report to the Customs and is Detained.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 5.—The American fishing schooner Rattler, Capt. Cunningham, of Gloucester, bound home with 450 barrels of mackerel, during the storm of Tuesday put into Shelburne for shelter. Shortly after coming to anchor a boat from the Dominion cutter Terror boarded the Rattler and the officer in charge informed Cunningham he would have to report to the Custom House. It was then too late to report. On Tuesday two of the cutter's crew were placed on the Rattler as watch. The weather improving some time after Cunningham decided to sail for home, but on the men commencing to weigh anchor a signal was made to the cutter by her men on the Rattler. The first officer of the cutter again boarded the American and ordered him to remain at anchor or there would be trouble if he attempted to go to sea. The fishermen then remained until 3 o'clock Wednesday morning, when he reported at the Custom House and shortly after sailed for Gloucester. Consul General Phelan has received a report of the proceedings and he considers it a great hardship that the Rattler under the circumstances should be compelled to remain at Shelburne all night.

The missionaries of mid China, sent by the Church Missionary Society of England, have offered to maintain, out of their own small stipends, an additional missionary.

The Lachine Canal is lighted by electricity.

Mr. Wm. Rowden, who lives on the Cranberry road near Port Hope, killed in his barn a female snake and her interesting family of 75.

Her Majesty now attends divine service regularly at the Mausoleum at Windsor.

RECORD OF CONGRESS.

THE UNITED STATES BIG AND BUSY LEGISLATURE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The first session of the 49th Congress, which ended to-day (Aug. 5), on Monday, December 7, 1885, covered a period of 7 months and 28 days—241 days exclusive of Sundays. Of this time the Senate was in session 164 days and the House 135 days. During that time there were introduced in the two houses 12,208 measures, of which 10,614 were House bills, 264 House joint resolutions and 324 bills and 53 joint resolutions of the Senate. The total number of measures that passed both Houses was 1161, being 241 Senate bills and 892 bills which originated in the House. Of this total 865 became law with the President's approval, 1801 became law by limitation, 113 were vetoed and one failed by reason of adjournment without action by the President. The number of measures vetoed during the session was four more than have been vetoed from the foundation of the Government to the beginning of the session just closed. Only one was passed by the two Houses over the President's veto.

MALFEASANCE IN OFFICE.

Serious Charges Against Mayor Grace of New York.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 5.—It was announced in New York this afternoon that the charges of malfeasance in office have been formulated against Mayor Grace and are now on their way to Governor Hill, his consideration of them being demanded by citizen complainants. Such consideration the Governor is required under law to give, as the law makes his authority to entertain and decide all charges against the Mayor of New York. The subject matter of the charges could not be obtained, but they allege gross abuse of the appointing power, and collusion with others in its exercise against public interest. Great excitement prevailed in quarters where the intelligence became known.

FORGOT THEIR VOWS.

Two Nuns Desert the Convent at Ottawa After 15 Years' Membership.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—Considerable gossip has been caused by the recent desertion of two nuns from the religious community of this city, of which they had been worthy members for upwards of fifteen years. The two, who are twins and part of a family of five children, whose parents established them in convent life when, it is said, they were altogether too young to understand the gravity of the step they were taking. They had been sent out to a country house of the order, where a young bachelor farmer on the property adjoining managed to form their acquaintance and win the affections of one of them, and marriage being agreed upon the twins together abandoned their religious life and returned to the house of their father, a well-to-do resident of this city. The wedding will take place shortly. The prospective bridegroom is a Roman Catholic also.

A Workman's Fatally Careless Act.

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 5.—Yesterday afternoon a workman was using Paris green on the farm of Charles Brady, Storrington. He left the stuff on a board while he went into another field and when he returned he found a little son of Mr. Brady, 18 months old, eating it. The little fellow soon became sick and after a painful illness he died this morning.

Killed by a Game Cock.

QUEBEC, Aug. 5.—Asa Langlois, a farmer of Point Aux Trembles, while feeding his fowl a day or two ago was attacked by a game cock. In lifting his hand to push the bird away it was pierced by the bird's spurs. Langlois took ill the following day and after terribly agony died from lockjaw.

The Addition to Our Fleet.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 5.—The steam yacht Yosemite, which has been purchased by the Dominion Government for use as a fishing cruiser, sailed this evening for New York. She will there be delivered over to the Dominion authorities.

Riverside Lacrosse.

Three Successive Shots Sink the Ironclads of Hastings.

Yesterday the Riverside Lacrosse Club met the Hasting's Ironclads, on Riverside grounds and had no trouble in finding the joint of the Ironclad's armour. There was a good gathering of spectators, and the ladies were largely represented. Play began at 3.35, the men being faced for the first game as follows:

RIVERSIDES.		HASTINGS.
Joe Phelan	goal	Coughlin
K. Rogers	point	A. Butler
W. Walsh	cover point	F. Hill
T. Mahar, J. Begley, W. McAvella	defence field	J. Perry, Knox, J. Wilson
F. Larose	centre	P. Howard
F. Pakenham, H. Nell, R. Begley	home field	J. Mill, T. Cude, W Soles
T. Duncan	2nd home	W. Fowlds
D. Rose	3rd home	F. Hill
M. Giroux	Umpire

FIRST GAME.

At the outset Hastings got the draw and the ball at once went down toward the Riverside goal, but it was quickly sent to the other end of the field and for a solid hour the sphere kept travelling from one end of the field to the other especially the Hasting's end, and occasionally out of the grounds into the river, and if the field had been large enough some of the players would have got it as far as the cemetery. During the first half of the game the play was pretty evenly divided, but during the latter portion the ball was frequently in alarming proximity to the Ironclad's poles. In consequence the visitors put themselves largely on the defensive, and the fact that they formed a solid mass in front of their flags, and and that the home of the Riversides was not as strong as the other parts of the team, the game was greatprolonged. Attack after attack was made on the Hastings' goal, but it was impossible to get the rubber through, till at length after several minutes playing, the ubiquitous Joe Begley, whose presence in every part of the field at once was one of the surprises, secured the sphere, and by a deft shot put the ball where it was wanted, thus winning the first game. Time 70 minutes.

SECOND GAME.

The second game began after the usual intermission, the success of the home team seeming to put new mettle into them, and correspondingly relaxing the muscles of their opponents. The play throughout was in favor of the Riversides, though individual members of the visiting team put in capital play. But two or three men are not a lacrosse dozen, and their fine play had little effect in stemming the tide of defeat. Occasionally the home flags would be menaced, but Joe Phelan in goal was the right man in the right place, and he proved himself a capital garrison for the defence of the flags. At length, in a scrimmage around the Hastings' goal, Duncan, et al, slipped the ball through, thus winning the second game after 16 minutes play.

THIRD GAME.

The third game began with the result forecast. The home team out-played the Ironclads at all points, though the latter fought against fate pluckily to the last. At last Joe Phelan sent the ball up to centre from behind his poles; the ubiquitous Begley was conveniently on hand. He dropped the rubber into Giroux's stick; he neatly transferred it to Larose; who just kept it long enough to take aim, and sent it flying between the flags of the Ironclads, thus winning the game and the match. The time of the last game was 8 minutes.

Throughout the match Mr. G. H. Giroux filled the position of referee. During the first game Mr. M. Tierney captained the Riversides, but the length of the game and the energy of his exertions (he followed the ball as though he had a mortgage on it) exhausted his powers, and he resigned his commission to Mr. M. McDonald. Mr. J. Chester Howard captained the Ironclads the first game, but the length of it "tuckered" him out, too, and Dr. Brennan took the post, and the selection was a most apt one, for his surgical attention was at the very outset of the second game called into play. Howard, of the visitors, got a nasty slash across the head, laying open the scalp and letting loose the claret freely.

There was pretty good playing during the match. For the home team, Larose, Joe Begley, Packenham, McAvella, and Mahar, distinguished themselves by good play. Harry Nell in spite of the liberal consignment of adipose tissue he had on board, put in very effective work, showing great dexterity in capturing the ball and disposing of it to the best advantage. Joe. Phelan in goal did splendid work and most of the members put in good work as the result shows, though the defence didn't get very much to do. The visitors did some good playing. They have several capital runners and Fowlds and Howard were especially expert and active. They have the material for a good team and with practice will make good play. Dr. Coughlin, whose maiden game it was, kept the goal well, especially in the first game, several times saving the bacon of his side.

The match throughout was a most harmonious and agreeable one.

Police Court.

Mowat Scott Act Prosecutions.

QUEEN VS. HALPIN.

Charged with breach of the Scott Act during July.

John Malone drank Moxie; did not think it intoxicating, neither did Wm. Beech, who drank the same. Thos. Cox drank pop and Moxie. Geo. Wheeler took Moxie straight and M. Barns imbibed plain ginger ale. Pollard, the patent curry comb vendor, drank whiskey and Moxie mixed. He could taste the whiskey.

The case was enlarged till to-day.

QUEEN VS. RODDY.

Charged with breach of the Scott Act.

Several witnesses testified to getting sundry soft drinks. R. Roddy swore his wife kept the C. P. R. Hotel and the bar was leased to W. Reynolds. Pollard swore he asked for Moxie and got whiskey at the C. P. R. Hotel. The magistrate dismissed the case with costs as there was, he asserted, nothing to connect Roddy with the sale of strong drink.

QUEEN VS. REYNOLDS.

Charged with breach of the Scott Act at the C. P. R Hotel during July.

Pollard said he got intoxicating liquor at the C. P. R. Hotel July 24th; he got whiskey and ale both on the same day; could not say who served him. Wm. Bowman said Reynolds was running the C.P. R. bar; Roddy was not running it. David Knox, dealer in soda water, swore that Reynolds had been running the bar of the C. P. R. Hotel; he did the business with him.

The case was enlarged till Saturday.

QUEEN VS. DALY.

Daly Bros., of the Grand Central, were charged with breach of the Scott Act. several witnesses were examined and the case enlarged till Monday.

The hearing of evidence in the Halpin case was resumed at 2 o'clock.

—Judgment will be given in Scott Act cases to-morrow morning.

CANADIAN ARTILLERYMEN WIN.

The Montreal Challenge Cup Captured at Shoeburyness.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The contest for the Montreal challenge cup between a detachment of Canadian artillery and various British detachments has taken place at Shoeburyness. The Canadians won with a score of 66. The Middlesex team were second with a score of 36. Much enthusiasm was shown over the Canadian victory and their team were warmly applauded.

QUEBEC, Aug. 5.—Lieut. Colonel Montizambert received the following cablegram from Lieut.-Col. Oswald:

LONDON, England:

Bridgford (a bombadier of A Battery) won the Montreal cup by thirty points for forty-pounder shooting, beating picked men of the whole of England. A splendid victory.

A Revolver Used.

NORWOOD, Ont., Aug. 5.—Samuel Newall was fined $50 for violation of the Scott Act. A warrant was placed in the hands of Constable Jones of Norwood. On Thursday night the constable saw Newall, his brother and a man named Sharpe, and he attempted to make the arrest. Newall ran, the constable pursued and Sharpe and the other Newall ran after them. The constable turned on the two men following him and warned them not to advance, at the same time firing a shot out of his revolver. Newall fled on and escaped, and the constable was brought before Messrs. Drain and Stephenson, justices of the peace, charged with shooting with intent to kill. Several witnesses were examined and the case was adjourned until Aug. 7. The constable admits shooting, but denies the "intent to kill."

Perjury and Brutality at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Aug. 5.—Wm. Hutchinson was in the Police Court this morning charged with perjury, in that he swore falsely against Robert Harrod, with whom he was jointly charged with stealing $20 from a companion. Harrod got six months in the Central Prison. Subsequently, it is alleged, Hutchinson admitted to Harrod's brother that he had sworn falsely in order to save himself. He was committed for trial.

John Knott, a butcher, was charged with striking a horse on which Lussmore, aged 5, was riding. The boy was thrown off and Knott, it is alleged, drove his cart over the lad, breaking his thigh. In court this morning the man did not realize the brutality of his act. The case was adjourned.

The Barley Crop in Canada.

A firm in Buffalo received the following from its agents in Canada:

Belleville, Canada. The crop here received a slight set-back during May and June; and the rain in July did not help it much except to fill up and make a plump berry. We are going to have a fine sample, but the quantity will not be near as much as last season, that is from our own section. Other sections of Ontario, however, have finer and larger crops than last year. With the good weather they are having there is no doubt that all will be secured in fine condition. On the whole we are of the opinion that the Ontario crop will be fully as large as last season. Some sections like our own will be short, but this deficiency will be made up by the heavier yield in other sections.

Forest, Ont. Farmers are cutting here. The acreage is much the same as last year, the berry is plumper and heavier and the prospects are that all of it will be very much brighter.

Highwaymen at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 5.—Robert Dalton and Thomas Badgley were brought into court this morning on a charge of highway robbery. James B. Massey, a commercial traveler from Montreal, positively identified them as the men who snatched his watch and chain from his vest, Wednesday night, outside the Hub Hotel. They were committed to the Criminal Court for trial. The city is infested with a gang of thieves.

A Little Scott Act Shooting Sensation.

The Register relates the following:—Samuel Newall on Monday of last week was found guilty of an infraction of the Canada Temperance Act and was fined $50 and costs, to be paid forthwith. The defendant not being present and the fine not forthcoming, a warrant for his apprehension was placed in the hands of Constable Jones, of this village. It appears that although Newall was in the village every day, no attempt was made to secure his arrest until Thursday night between ten and eleven o'clock, when he, in company with his brother and a man named Sharpe, were on their way home. When opposite Mr. D. Foster's, on Wellington street, Constable Jones suddenly appears on the scene and endeavours to affect the arrest of Newall. Newall ran and Jones started in pursuit, but hearing Sharpe and Newall's brother walking in the same direction, he thinks his rear is threatened. He (Jones) stops and warns them not to advance and at the same time fires a shot out of a revolver as a gentle reminder. In the meantime Newall has escaped. At a magistrate's court held on Saturday Constable Jones is charged before Messrs. Drain and Stephenson, J. P.'s., by Sharpe with shooting with intent to kill. Newall and Sharpe both swore that Jones said, "Stand! or I'll blow your brains out,' and then fired a shot in the direction in which they were standing. Mr. Jones did not deny the shooting, but denied the "intent to kill" part of the charge. Several witnesses were examined and the case was adjourned until the following Saturday.

DR. A. Brodeur, Professor of Laval University, presented his thesis before the faculty of medicine at Paris with great distinction, on July 30. His paper treated of surgical operations in diseases of the loins. He will return to Montreal during the present month.

The funeral of the late worthy and revered Father Picard, of the Seminary, Montreal, took place Wednesday morning. At 8 o'clock a solemn Requiem mass was chanted for the repose of the soul of the deceased, at which there was a very large congregation. Archbishop Fabre was present.

Sixteen pilasters of red granite are being cut and polished in the New Brunswick red granite works at Carleton, which will be used in ornamenting the interior of the New York stock exchange. All the pilasters are of the same length, 18 feet 6 inches, but six of them will have bases 26 by 8 inches, four others 13 inches square, and the remaining six 13 by 18 inches.

Wm. Thompson, a Shelby county, Ill., constable, was walking to Paua Wednesday evening. When near the limits he was met by an apparently drunken tramp who asked him to take a drink from a bottle. Thompson refused, when the stranger drew a revolver and shot the constable through the head, killing him. The tramp escaped.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 20th, 1884.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two principless trusses made in York State, costing me $26. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down. It holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.

This new Spirial Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child sure; and 80 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address,

CHAPTER XXXIV.

THE STORY OF ELAINE.

Miss Hastings laid down the newspaper, with a quick glance of pleased surprise.

"I am glad that I came to Omberleigh," she said. "Imagine, Pauline, who is here. You have heard me speak of the St. Lawrences. I educated Laura St. Lawrence, and she married well and went to India. Her husband holds a very high appointment there. Lady St. Lawrence is here with her son, Sir Vane. I am so pleased."

"And I am pleased for you," responded Pauline, with the new gentleness that sat so well upon her.

"I must go and see them," continued Miss Hastings. "They are staying at Sea View. We can soon find out where Sea View is."

"St. Lawrence!" said Pauline, musingly; "I like the name; it has a pleasant sound."

"They are noble people who bear it," observed Miss Hastings. "Lady St. Lawrence was always my ideal of a thoroughbred English gentlewoman. I never heard how it was, but the greater part of their fortune was lost when Sir Arthur died. He left but this one son, Vane; and, although he has the title, he has but little to support it with. I know their family estates were all sold. Lady St. Lawrence has a small fortune of her own; but it is not much."

Again Pauline repeated the name to herself—"Vane St. Lawrence!"—thinking there was a sound as of half-forgotten music in it. That was a name that would have suited the face she had watched on the sands.

"Vane St. Lawrence!"

Unconsciously to herself she had said the words aloud. Miss Hastings looked up quickly.

"Did you speak, my dear?" she asked; and Pauline wondered to find her face suddenly grow warm with a burning blush.

"I think," said Miss Hastings, presently, "that I should like to visit them at once. Lady St. Lawrence may not be staying long, and I should never forgive myself if I were to miss her. Will you come with me, Pauline?"

"Yes, willingly."

She was ready to go anywhere, to do anything, with that great, wondering love, that great, grand calm, filling her heart and soul.

For the first time the sight of her own magnificent loveliness pleased her.

"I may see him again," she thought to herself with almost child-like simplicity, "and I should like him to think of me."

She took more pains than she had ever taken before; and the picturesque taste that was part of her character greatly assisted her. Her dress was of purple silk, plain, rich and graceful; her hat, with its drooping purple plume, looked like a crown on the beautiful head. She could no more help looking royal and queenly than she could help the color of her eyes and hair. Miss Hastings looked up with a smile of surprise, the proud face was so wonderfully beautiful—the light that never yet shone on land or sea was shining on it.

"Why, Pauline," she said, laughing, "Lady St. Lawrence will think I am taking the Queen of Sheba in disguise! What strange change is coming over you, child?"

What indeed! Was it the shadow of the love that was to redeem her—to work wonders in her character? Was it the light that came from the half-awakening soul? Wiser women than good, kindly, simple-hearted Miss Hastings might have been puzzled.

They were not long in finding Sea View—a pretty villa a little way out of the town, standing at the foot of a cliff, surrounded by trees and flowers—one of the prettiest spots in Omberleigh. They were shown into the drawing-room, the windows of which commanded a magnificent view of the sea.

Before they had been there many minutes there entered a fair, gentle, gracious lady, whose eyes filled with tears as she greeted Miss Hastings warmly.

"You are like a spirit from the past," she said. "I could see Laura's little child again as I look at you. Nothing could have pleased me so much as seeing you."

Then she looked admiringly at the beautiful girl by her side. Miss Hastings introduced her.

"Miss Darrell," she said, "it seems strange that I should meet you. My husband in his youth knew Sir Oswald well."

Lady St. Lawrence was just what Miss Hastings had described her—a thoroughly high-bred English lady. In figure she was tall and upright; her face had been beautiful in its youth, and was even now comely and fair; the luxuriant brown hair was streaked here and there with silver. She wore a dress of rich brocade, with some becoming arrangement of flowers and lace on her head; she was charming in her lady-like simplicity and gentleness.

Pauline, knowing that the two ladies would have much to talk about, asked permission to amuse herself with some books she saw upon the table.

"They belong to my son," said Lady St. Lawrence, with a smile.

There were Tennyson, Keats, and Byron, and written inside of each, in a bold, clear hand, was the name "Vane St. Lawrence." Pauline lost herself again in the sweet story of Elaine, from which she was aroused at intervals by the repetition of the words—"My son Vane."

She could not help hearing some part of Lady St. Lawrence's confidential communication, and it was to the effect how deeply she deplored the blindness of her son, who might marry his cousin Lilith Davenant, one of the wealthiest heiresses in England. Miss Hastings was all kindly sympathy.

"It would be such an excellent thing for him," continued Lady St. Lawrence; "and Lilith is a very nice girl. But it is useless counseling him; Vane is like his father. Sir Arthur, you know, always would have his own way."

Pauline began to feel interested in this Vane St. Lawrence, who refused to marry the wealthy heiress. She looked up at her.

"E[illegible]

St. Lawrence began to speak of her daughter Laura and her children. Pauline returned to Elaine, and soon forgot everything else.

She was aroused by a slight stir. She heard Lady St. Lawrence say:

"My dear Vane, how you startled me!"

Looking up she saw [illegible] same face she had [illegible] in books and fancy!

She was nearer to it now, and could see more plainly the exquisite refinement of the beautiful mouth, the clear, ardent expression of the bold, frank eyes, the gracious lines of the clustering hair. Her heart seemed almost to stand still—it was though she had suddenly been brought face to face with a phantom.

He was kissing his mother, Lady St. Lawrence, talking rapidly to her—she was greeting Miss Hastings with much warmth and cordiality. Pauline had time to recover herself before Lady St. Lawrence remembered her. She had time to still the wild beating of her heart—to steady her trembling lips—but the flush was still on her beautiful face and the light in her eyes when he came up to her.

Lady St. Lawrence spoke, but the words sounded to Pauline as though they came from afar off; yet they were very simple.

"Miss Darrell," she said, "let me introduce my son to you."

Then she went back to Miss Hastings, eager to renew the conversation interrupted by the entrance of her son.

What did Sir Vane see in those dark eyes that held him captive? What was looking at him through that most beautiful face? What was it that seemed to draw his heart and soul from him, never to become his own again? To any other stranger he would have spoken indifferent words of greeting and welcome; to this dark-eyed girl he could say nothing. When words have spoken, lips have not much to say.

They were both silent for some minutes; and then Sir Vane tried to recover himself. What had happened to him? What strange, magic influence was upon him? Ten minutes since he had entered that room heart-whole, fancy-free, with laughter on his lips, and no thought of coming fate. Ten minutes had worked wonders of change; he was standing now in a kind of trance, looking into the grand depths of those dark eyes wherein he had lost himself.

They said but few words; the calm and silence that fell over them during that first interval was not to be broken; it was more eloquent than words. He sat down by her side; she still held the book open in her hands. He glanced at it.

"Elaine," he said, "do you like that story?"

She told him, "Yes," and, taking the book from her hands, he read the noble words wherein Sir Launcelot tells the Lily Maid how he will dower her when she weds some worthy knight, but that he can do no more for her.

Was it a dream that she should sit there listening to those words from his lips—she had fancied him Sir Launcelot, without stain, and herself Elaine? There was a sense of unreality about it all; the grand Miss Hastings surprised as she undoubtedly would be, and she herself in the pretty drawing-room at Marine Terrace—all this beautiful fairy tale a dream—only a dream. The musical voice ceased at last; and it was to her as though some charm had been broken.

"Do you like poetry, Miss Darrell?" inquired Sir Vane.

"Yes," she replied; "it seems to me part of myself. I cannot explain clearly what I mean, but when I hear such grand thoughts read, or when I read them for myself, it is to me as though they were my own."

"I understand," he responded—"indeed I believe that I should understand anything you said. I could almost fancy that I had lived before, and had known you in another life."

Then Lady St. Lawrence said something about Sea View, and they left fairy-land for a more common place sphere of existence.

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse it by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and sound soundness of constitution, will be established.

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofulous Disease of the Lungs, is promptly and certainly arrested and cured by this blood-purifier, if taken before the last stages of the disease are reached. From its wonderful power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now celebrated remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too limited for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all

CHRONIC DISEASES OF THE

Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills, alternating with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and coated tongue, you are suffering from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Consumption, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's book on Consumption. Sold by Druggists.

FLOUR.

There seems to be some misapprehension relative to the price of Flour. I find a number of purchasers stating that the grade of Flour known as has been reduced to $2.25 per one hundred pounds. This is a mistake. I offer, in common with all other dealers and millers, a good Family Flour at $2.25, but the brand "Bakers" is still retailed at $2.50 per hundred.

"BAKERS"

P. P. FLOUR for Pastry, $2.75 per Hundred

BAKER'S FLOUR (ground from Manitoba Hard and Ontario Spring Wheat), $2.50 per Hundred.

FAMILY FLOUR (ground from Ontario Wheat), $2.25 per Hundred.

LOW GRADE FLOUR, $2.00 per Hundred.

The Fruit Canning Season.

Housekeepers will find the finest and cheapest stock of sugars for the preserving season, at Morrow, Tierney & Co's, as well as a splendid stock of the best groceries.

Musical.

Mr. J. S. Parker will be at his rooms, Lynch's Block, Hunter street, 3rd floor, from August 1st to August 10th, to make arrangements for lessons. He has four vacancies for private pupils.

Stopped in Time.

Yesterday, the Misses Brodie were driving on Hunter street, east of George street, the wheel of the cart they occupied ran over an iron hoop, the rattle frightened the horse and he started to run away. Miss Brodie, however, held to the reins bravely and Mr. James Hunter, of Otonabee, very opportunely caught the horse. The horse was a strong spirited one and if he had got beyond control, the consequences might have been serious.

Hurrah for Toronto.

Many of our citizens are making preparations for spending the civic holiday out of town. A large number will, doubtless, patronize the cheap excursion per C. P. R. to Toronto and back. Passengers can leave town at 8.39 a.m., and return by trains leaving Toronto at 5 p.m. or 8 p.m. Return tickets only $2, and as only a limited number will be issued, early application is desirable.

The newly-wed left on the evening train for the west on their wedding journey, with the congratulations and good wishes of their many friends.

Garden Party.

The date fixed for the garden party in aid of St. Luke's having been chosen for the band entertainment, it has been decided to hold the garden party at Mrs. Orde's on Tuesday, August 10th. The band has kindly promised to attend. Remember the place, Robinson street, Ashburnham, next to the residence of Mr. H. Calcutt. Admission, 10 cents. All made welcome from five o'clock, p.m.

The Coming Races.

As day by day passes, the prospects of the success of the first grand summer meeting of the Peterborough Driving Park Association, become greater. To-day several thousand three-color posters were issued, to be posted in different parts of the province, announcing the event, and the indications are that on August 26th and 27th there will be the finest and fleetest stud of competing horseflesh at the Driving Park, and the biggest gathering of spectators, ever brought together on the grounds. The liberal purses offered will attract good horses, and the pastime racing that will be done will make this meeting worthy of the attendance of the public. Remember the date of the great summer race meeting, August 26th and 27th.

Boom in Bargains.

The boom in bargains still continues at the Bon Marche. It is visited daily with crowds, who, go away delighted at the immense bargains they have secured. The chances still continues for others,—for Mr. Carton is bound to rush off the stock regardless of prices. The sale will continue from day to day and every caller gets a bargain. Come and secure the pick of the goods. They are going off like hot cakes.

A Serious Accident.

Mrs. [illegible] Collier, of Watertown, who had been visiting in town, the guest of Mrs. R. S. Davidson, met with a painful accident. Not suspecting that she was standing near the cellar stairs, she stepped backward down the landing, and her head coming in contact with the edge of a step, a cut about two inches in length was inflicted in her head, besides other bruises. She was picked up insensible and Dr. Pigeon was called in, who attended to her injuries, which are not of a serious nature.

Pollard Disappears.

At the Police Court this morning in the Daly case, the name of Alex. Pollard, the patent curry-comb witness, was called, but he did not answer. He was probably in Toronto at the time. Last night, as the night before, he enjoyed the hospitality of the police cells to escape the too offensive and possibly embarrassing attentions of the many friends he has made in town. This morning he expressed a wish to breath the air outside the town. The policeman in charge, not being impolite enough to disregard the wishes of so distinguished a guest, attended him to the door, and Mr. Pollard pursued his way to the station. This early departure doubtless deprived him of the honour of receiving the farewell demonstration which the "Herbs-of-Joy" man would be willing to organize for the occasion.

A Pleasant Excursion.

The steamer "Golden Eye" took the Court Little John excursion party to Campbellford yesterday, where a delightful day's pleasure was enjoyed. Various amusements and sports were entered into, boating, fishing and dancing to the music of [illegible] quartette band. An archery competition was one of the day's events. In this [illegible] Lithgow got the arrow "i'th the clout" the oftenest and was declared winner of the first prize and [illegible] secured the second. After a most pleasant day the party returned, arriving home about 8:30. All who joined the excursion agree in saying that too much praise cannot be given Captain Carson for his unfailing courtesy and for the great pains he took to secure the enjoyment of every one of his passengers.

P. A. A. A. Civic Holiday Excursion.

The attention of the public is again called to the excursion of the P. A. A. A. to Sturgeon Point and Orillia on Civic Holiday, Aug. 19th. At Orillia a fine programme of sports, cricket, lacrosse, lawn tennis, etc., will facilities for boating. The new steamer be carried out, and there are splendid "Orillia" has been chartered to carry passengers around lake Couchiching and lake Simcoe, a delightful stream of 20 miles. Another steamer will make continuous trips during the day to Couchiching Park. Train of first-class coaches leaves Peterborough at 7.30, return fare, $1.10. Those so wishing, can stop at Lindsay and spend the day at Sturgeon Point, return tickets to the latter place, only 85 cents. The P. A. A. A. make everything first-class they touch, and this splendid excursion will be no exception. Children under 12 to Orillia, 55c.; to Sturgeon Point, 45c.

For all kinds of fine fruit—call at Ostrom's, George street.

Another One Gone.

Another of Bolton's celebrated patent hot water boilers has gone to Mr. C. A. Humber, of Goderich, and one is on the stocks for the residence of Mr. S. B. Burdett, L. L. D., of Belleville. The following are samples of one day's correspondence :—

"After leaving Peterborough I went to Toronto and saw all the different kinds of hot water, hot air and steam heating apparatus in the city, and came to the conclusion that I would have none but Boulton's boiler, so you can put me up one same size as you mentioned when I was in your shop, ship and draw at five days for amount. I was speaking to Mr. ——— a wealthy manufacturer in Toronto. He is building a new residence and says he will have no boiler but Bolton's to heat his place.

Yours truly, ———

"I have seen the Gurney boiler, of Toronto, the Rogers & Kieg, of Montreal, and the Peter Owen, of Detroit, but cannot say any of them are perfect. Some people like them and others do not, and consequently put them out. I have decided to take one of your boilers. Ship me a boiler No 8, price $156 in catalogue." Yours truly, ———

"We have one Gurney boiler in our town and I can assure you I have had liberal offers in that direction. Ship boiler as soon as possible, number 8, price $156 in catalogue, and if it comes up to what I hear about it there will be more wanted here."

Respectfully yours, ———

Mr. Bolton says that after attending thirteen years and as many thousand dollars in patterns and experiments, etc., and visiting every establishment where heaters are made, from Sarnia to Quebec, and from Malta to Chicago, four times, he has not to employ men to drum the [illegible] for [illegible] himself; they are coming from all directions.

—Mr. Beggs, of Peterborough, who was awarded the tender for the building of the new St. Michael's Church, Belleville, at a cost of $30,000, has surrendered the contract owing to a dispute about the plans. Bishop Cleary, it is expected, will lay the corner stone of the edifice in a few weeks.

The Cruise of the "Dot."

"Dot" little steam yacht, the "Dot," owned by Mr. J. Miller, town, has completed her cruise of a month, which began a week ago yesterday. Her passenger list and crew, combined, consisted of Messrs. J. Miller, owner, W. A. Dixon, Jas. Little, town, and Messrs. Gordon Smith, Donald Robertson, and L. W. Allingham, of different parts of Eastern Ontario. The "Dot" steamed out of Belleville, made the run to Picton, thence down to Kingston. Here she entered the Rideau canal and steamed over its tempestuous waters, to Ottawa. The Ottawa was then followed to the St. Lawrence, by which the "Dot" reached Montreal. From here she took the St. Lawrence and turned aside to make a little experimenting dash up the Richelieu river, there continuing her voyage to Quebec. The party returned, taking the whole St. Lawrence route, passing the Thousand Islands, where a short stay was made, and then on to Belleville. This is a running synopsis of the log of the "Dot," which is to be brought to Peterborough. She will make the portage to Hastings by train, and there be reconsigned to her native element, through which she is capable of steaming eight miles an hour. She is of nominal register of three tons, and carried her late party on a most jolly and [illegible] She steamed along during the day [illegible] night a good landing place would be selected, and the party would take their rest. Half slept on board, and the other moiety, the land lubber element, occupied a tent which would be pitched on the shore. The [illegible] abandon that characterized the trip was one of its most delightful features, though its instructive and entertaining features were hardly subordinate. The party passed through much beautiful scenery; they were tied to no time schedule and could loiter when they pleased. They had a photographic camera on board and Mr. Little, who is an expert, assisted by Mr. Miller, who is an amateur, took numerous views of the many beautiful bits of scenery and of several of the many interesting and remarkable objects that met their view. Many of the friends of the party will doubtless have an opportunity of seeing counterfeit presentments of the scenes and objects alluded to. Altogether the cruise was a delightful one and there is not a member of the party, but is loaded and primed with nautical "yarns" to be unravelled as occasion may present. They are marvelously sunburnt, but in vigorous health. All the Peterborough party has returned to town, except Mr. Miller, who is acting as convoy of the "Dot" and he is expected to arrive with her in a few days.

Henri Constant, aged 45, is missing from Montreal since August 3. He had $700 on his person and foul play is suspected.

Dwellers in White Tents.

The Sparrows Forepaugh Show in Boston Told in a Line.

Of this splendid entertainment, to be here on August 21st, the Boston Daily Globe of June 15th, says :—

The big Forepaugh circus, with its covers of canvas, covering [illegible] attractions to which every quarter of the globe has contributed.

How the [illegible] of the old time circus and menagerie—with its one rider, solitary clown, and a pair of mangers, with its moth eaten lion and restless hyena—that was thought to be a great enterprise, say a generation ago, would open the eyes at such a commodious, gilded exposition as that which now encamps, for a week's sojourn, on the Boston Union grounds.

Two-stage and a-squinting elevated stage are brought into requisition for the circus exhibition, which is supplemented by a stirring Wild West show, introducing an original overland coach, and finale one of the most exciting [illegible] in a great four-horse Roman chariot race that is as "realistically" of flesh as possible.

Adam Forepaugh, Jr., may his called the largest particular one of his that bears his father's name, since it is due to his skill, perseverance and [illegible] of control that much of the novel enjoyment which the programme offers is really due.

A most striking object lesson in the supremacy of intelligence over brute force is afforded in the great drill of Forepaugh's band of elephants—huge beasts that recognize master mind and its will, in a course of most interesting performance. When at the last Forepaugh the younger is carried off in triumph, he well deserves the plaudits that involuntarily greet him. Thoroughly interesting too, is the exhibition of performing horses, under this gentleman's personal direction; and Blondin's walk on the tight rope, forward and backward, always obedient to the word of command, ranks, of course, among the most eagerly awaited events of the whole entertainment.

Showles, the equestrian, is a marvel. He leaps on and off his handsome steed with per fect ease and confidence, never failing to get a foothold; and indeed, his whole exhibition of riding, in his somersaults through rings and hoops, and varied feats of daring quite too numerous to recount, is something to be long remembered by the most experienced habitue of the tent shows of the time.

Nor is Showles alone in winning honors. Daley Belmont and Annie Carroll, with Sam Watson, prove themselves accomplished equestrians; while the hippodrome races give abundant proof that skill and daring are qualities essential in all Forepaugh's riders.

There is wonderful cycle riding—unicycle as well as bicycle being employed with utmost success by Westbrook and Hooker, as well as the celebrated Elliott family. And certainly no bolder performance in this line of entertainment has been offered to public attention than the performance of De Comas, mounted on a bicycle on high wire, far above the ring.

In the trapeze exhibit the highest standard of attainment is illustrated. There are "Kings of mid-air," indeed, in Forepaugh's aggregation, and some of the feats, notably a leap for life, were watched with breathless interest by yesterday's audience.

Lots of fun is provided by the clown elephants. Even more merriment is aroused by Sullivan, the pugilistic minded pachyderm who handily knocks out and over the ropes his human opponent, and finally butts him unceremoniously and forcibly out of the ring, though not precisely according to the "Marquis of Queensbery rules."

The rifle shooting by Captain Bogardus and his four sons is, of course, simply perfect. It was expected so to be, with the reputation of these famous marksmen.

After the regular tent show there is a bright minstrel and variety entertainment, for which the stage is "set" in true theatre fashion. McMahon, the great wrestler, appears in this programme to great acceptance.

Within the spacious menagerie tents are to be seen an unexcelled collection of animals, wild and strange including the only giraffe now in America. A tiger mother, with her brood of playful nine months old, seemingly only kittens of a large growth, is a centre of attraction always.

Forepaugh's show gives an entertainment every afternoon and evening. Yesterday's audiences were large, considering the weather the tent season opened most auspiciously.

A GENUINE SMOKE.

A GENTLEMAN who has just returned from the Colonial Exhibition has brought with him some remarkable cigars which took his fancy. The cigars are of extraordinary size, being 6½ inches long and 1½ inches thick. The interesting point about them is that when one of them is lighted the wrapper may be taken off and 14 cheroots, each cut and lighted, are found inside. Some of the larger size contain six to fourteen cheroots. They are of Canadian manufacture, being made in the Reliance Cigar Factory, of this city. The exhibit took a prize of $400.—Montreal Gazette of July 22nd, inst.

STEEPED IN GRIEF

SIX OF SARNIA'S SONS LOST IN A YACHTING DISASTER.

SARNIA, Aug. 6.—The worst fears anent the supposed yachting disaster have been realized, and the town is steeped in grief. The tug International returned at 2 o'clock this morning with the bodies of Hope Mackenzie, Fleming Mackenzie and T. A. Telfer, three of the six young men who left here four weeks ago on a yachting cruise on Lake Huron. The bodies were found in the boat beached near Port Frank. Two of the bodies were lashed to the boat. The International has gone to look after the bodies of Wm. J. Sinclair, Wm. Vidal and Walter C. Morrison. The yachting party is supposed to have been lost Sunday night. All were young. Mr. Vidal was married.

News from the International is anxiously awaited as to her success in discovering the other three bodies. Sarnia has never before been enveloped in such a cloud of mourning.

THE DISORDERS AT BELFAST.

The Mayor Summoned to Meet the New Chief Secretary for Conference.

BELFAST, Aug. 6.—The city is to-day placarded with a proclamation by the Mayor forbidding unlawful assemblages in the streets, threatening all who attempt to form them and all who participate in them with arrest and calling on all law-abiding citizens to assist the police in suppressing disorder.

DUBLIN, Aug. 6.—The Mayor of Belfast has arrived here at the request of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chief Secretary for Ireland, to hold a conference with the members of the new Irish Government respecting the situation in Belfast and the best means of restoring and preserving order.

The Rioting Renewed.

BELFAST, Aug. 6.—While 600 workmen were going home this evening a bottle was thrown among them from a window. The workmen retorted with iron bolts and a furious tumult ensued. The police and soldiers hastened to the scene and charged the rioters without dispersing them. The police then fired upon the crowd. Seven persons were wounded.

DUBLIN, Aug. 6.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chief Secretary for Ireland, gave audience to-day to Mayne Harland, of Belfast, with reference to the enforcement of strong, repressive measures in that city. It is expected a proclamation will be issued in Belfast forthwith.

Additional Magistrates Appointed.

The Dublin Gazette announces the appointment of eleven additional resident magistrates in Antrim. This step is supposed to have been taken in consequence of the Belfast riots.

THE QUEBEC ELECTIONS.

They Will Not be Held When the October Leaves Begin to Fall.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6.—The Gazette this morning says: "The statement published in some papers that Attorney-General Taillon had announced that the Provincial general elections would be held in October is without foundation. A member of the Quebec Government, in conversation with a Gazette reporter, said that no decision had yet been arrived at by the Cabinet, and that certainly neither the date nor the month had been fixed."

SAID ON A BEER CELLAR.

Where Socialists Meet in Hamburg—Eight Men Arrested.

HAMBURG, Aug. 6.—The police last night raided a beer cellar much frequented by Socialists while a Socialistic meeting was being held there. The meeting was broken up, and a search revealed the fact that the place was a rendezvous for Socialists of the most extreme class. Documents were found showing the existence of a secret society, which has ramifications throughout Germany, Holland and England, and of whose official headquarters in Germany is the cellar raided. Subscription lists, accounts and letters were found, which together afford ample to a large proportion of the membership of the organization. Eight Socialists were arrested.

TWO ENGLISH DIVORCE SUITS.

An Episcopal Clergyman Found Guilty of Adultery—Mr. Crawford's Bogus Made Absolute.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Rev. Mr. Fiddyton, the organizing secretary of the Colonial and Continental Church Society (Established Church), was to-day condemned to pay $5000 damages to a merchant named Cookson in a divorce suit brought by the latter against his wife on the ground of adultery with Fiddyton. Cookson was also given a decree of divorce.

The decree of divorce obtained nisi by Donald Crawford on February 13 against his wife, because of her relations with Sir Charles Dilke, was to-day declared absolute.

HOW DID HE DIE?

Mysterious Death of a Prominent American Magnate.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The sudden death of Major William M. Darrell, a prominent member of the Illinois Division of American wheelmen, was announced yesterday. The cause of death was said to be apoplexy. The Inter-Ocean says: While it is a fact that apoplexy was the cause of the death of Major Darrell, it has been ascertained that the apoplectic stroke was the result of injuries he received Tuesday evening. The deceased had been financially and otherwise interested in athletic sports at Chautauqua Park and elsewhere, in connection with Duncan C. Ross.

Tuesday evening, in company with Ross, he entered a well known sporting resort on Clark street, where he met Paddy Ryan the pugilist and Harrison "the unknown," and others. During the evening, several fights apparently between Paddy Ryan, "the unknown" and several others. The fighting finally became general and almost everybody who was in the place at the time was embroiled in it. Major Darrell left the place about 10 o'clock and went to his home, where he complained of a severe pain in his head. His wife sent for a physician, who found that there was a pronounced determination of the blood to the head, to relieve which he used hypodermic injections, thinking his patient was threatened with apoplexy.

Major Darrell then went to sleep. About 2 o'clock in the morning his wife was awakened by his heavy snoring. A physician was immediately summoned, but in a few minutes he was dead. An examination showed that the deceased had received numerous blows on the right side, extending from the shoulder to the hip. There were discolorations, the result of blows on the back, and there was a large swelling on the neck, apparently caused by a blow or kick.

The Major was a gentleman by birth and education, and had served in the Confederate army with distinction.

The Defeat of the Argonauts.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 6.—News that the Lachine and Argonaut four-oared crews were to meet in a three-mile race with turn for the Lachine Challenge Cup, drew a very large crowd out to the village this afternoon, all expecting to see the home nine beaten, but in a very hot struggle. Certainly no one was prepared for the grand form shown by the home men and joy thereat was all the more felt. The race was to take place between 5 and 6 o'clock, and close on the latter hour the umpire's barge steamed out into position. On board were a number of C. A. A. O. regatta committees. The World representative and C. P. Sclator, umpire.

The Lachine Crew were the first on the water, which was in good order. A splendid looking lot of fellows they were as, emerging like one man, they took a preliminary spurt up the course amidst the plaudits of the spectators, which were repeated when the Argonauts came in sight. The Lachine men wore a white costume and were seated as follows in the boat: Stroke, F. D. Rose; No. 3, J. G. Mack; No. 2, C. S. Shaw; bow, D. Robertson. They were a very formidable-looking four, and seemed thoroughly at home in their boat. The Argonauts wore a blue and white suit and were as follows: Stroke, J. W. Hogg; No. 3, A. G. Thompson; No. 2, H. O. Morphy; bow, R. McKay. They had not the physique of the home crew. They did not waste any time before the start but got ready at once. H. N. Bennett was starter and soon had the men in readiness.

The Lachine men had the inside position and both crews at the start got away well together, the Argonauts getting in 44 to the minute, the Lachine stroke hitting at a forty pace, with a long powerful reach and very quick recovery. Robertson started straight for his buoy, and contrary to all expectations, at the half-mile Lachine was leading, McKay taking his boat away out into the stream. Soon Lachine slowed to 36 to the minute, and were cutting through the water splendidly, the Argonauts pulling a quick stroke of 39 to the minute. Lachine was rowing as one man. Thompson and Morphy in the other crew were splashing quite a lot, especially the former, who seemed to be rowing out of the boat. Lachine had steadied now and kept up their long stroke, every blade catching the water at the same time. Coming up to the turn the strangers let out a little, and in the glare of the sunlight on the water it was hard to see how things were going. "Lachine has turned," said some one on the boat, and the Argonauts were still pulling ahead. The home crew were well started on their way, when the fleece created a painful impression among his friends, with whom he was a general favorite. Mr. Green was about [illegible] and was born at Birmingham. His friends are at a loss to find a reason for this rash deed.

OUR ALLEGED FLEET.

The So-called Seizures Evidently the Exception Rather than the Rule.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 6.—A firm interested in the fish trade in Lockport has received a letter from the captain of one of their seiners, in which he says: "The Americans get all the fish they want, and as for the cutters they do not bother them. They do just about as they like. They dress their fish in the harbors when they wish to, and buy all the barrels and salt they want."

Two Accidents Near St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 6.—A respectable looking man, about 60 years of age named Purdy from Rochester, N. Y., got off the 10.32 train this morning under the influence of liquor and while walking along the platform stumbled and fell against a large iron spike. It struck him near the eye, tearing and mutilating the flesh in a horrible manner. He was taken in charge and his wound dressed.

As the 9.30 train was coming north on the Grand Trunk Railway near Merritton it ran into a team driven by a man named Elliott, who was hauling stone. The engine struck fair between the horses and wagon, killing one of the horses instantly. The driver was thrown on the cowcatcher of the locomotive and had three ribs broken and was badly bruised about the head and body. The second horse also fell on the cowcatcher on top of Elliott and was badly cut and bruised.

The M. P. for Ottawa County.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6.—L'Etendard published this morning a letter from an Ottawa correspondent, in which it is stated that Mr. Joseph Tasse, M.P. for the county, is disliked by everyone and is sure to be defeated at the next election. Mr. Tasse has written to Senator Trudel in reply, challenging him to give up his seat in the Senate, while he, Mr. Tasse, will resign his seat in the Commons so that both can go before the electors of Ottawa County and seek election, the only issue to be the libel question.

Disastrous Fire at Wallacetown.

WALLACETOWN, Ont., Aug. 6. A fire broke out in Hobbs's dry goods store about 2 o'clock this morning, which spread eastward to C. G. Henry's hotel and westward, destroying Wallace's store, Hewson's barber shop, Gourley's butcher shop and a building occupied by J. T. Sifton as a store room for farming implements. The fire was with difficulty confined to this block. The loss will exceed $15,000, partly covered by insurance.

Is it a Put up Job?

GUELPH, Aug. 6. Tom Edgar, who, it is said, laid the information against the hotel keepers for violating the Scott Act, was charged at the police court to-day with an indecent assault on Mrs. Caroline Patton, a married woman, at the Union Gardens, on July 27 last. The woman told her story of the alleged assault, which was a very hazy one. The prisoner was remanded until to-morrow morning to appear on his own recognizance.

The Land Warrants Issued.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—The total number of land warrants issued by the Militia Department to the Northwest volunteers is 4,542. Scrip has been delivered to 2491, and scrip for 458 others is being prepared: 943 have taken free homesteads; 150 volunteers who served in the Northwest have made no application for scrip, and 186 cases require special attention.

Port Perry's Pirate.

PORT PERRY, Aug. 6.—The Church of the Ascension Sunday School excursion to Washburn Island sixteen miles down Lake Scugog yesterday, and had a good time.

Six or seven boys went overboard on the home trip.

Sarnia to be Disparaged.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—Mr. Justice Henry, of the Supreme Court, sitting in Chambers to-day, gave judgment in the case of Symons, the British Columbia murderer, ordering that the prisoner be unconditionally discharged.

AMERICAN OPINION.

MATTHEW ARNOLD'S LETTER ON THE IRISH QUESTION.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The Standard, commenting on the meeting of Unionists yesterday says: "Lord Hartington's language is all that the Conservatives have a right to expect. There is little doubt that so long as Lord Hartington continues of the same mind Home Rule for Ireland is impossible. He still seems to dream of uniting the scattered hostile Liberal sections instead of looking to a new division of parties more in harmony with existing public opinion. This to our mind is the only weak point in his conception of the present crisis."

Matthew Arnold on American Opinion.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Mr. Matthew Arnold, who is in America, publishes a letter in the London Times in which he says: "I suppose there is no country in the world where unanimity in Mr. Gladstone's favor is stronger than in the United States, yet even here, if you weigh instead of count opinions, the balance opposes his Irish policy. The main motive the Americans have for sympathy with Mr. Gladstone is the temptation to please the Irish. The weighty opinion is not that of the general public who yield to this temptation, but that of the men who resist it and look deeper. Of these serious people, the opinion is against Mr. Gladstone. Nevertheless, the American one and all sincerely believe that the Irish ought to have control of their own local affairs. The Marquis of Salisbury must recognize this. If he merely tries to keep order and let things drift, he will lose a great opportunity. If he produces a good scheme of local government, he will probably secure Mr. Gladstone's support for it."

To Stump the Country.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The Daily Telegraph says Mr. Gladstone and his followers propose to stump the country in the autumn.

The Standard says the Speaker of the House of Commons has refused to allow Mr. Sexton the choice of sitting for Belfast or Sligo owing to the petition from Belfast against his election.

BODY SNATCHERS AT WORK.

Attempt to Steal the Body of a Late Bank Director.

RICHMOND, Que., Aug. 6.—An attempt has been made by body snatchers to rifle the grave of Mr. Geo. K. Foster, a former well-known and wealthy resident of Richmond. Mr. Foster, who was a director of the Eastern Townships Bank, and reputed to be a millionaire, died in 1884, and his remains were interred in the Episcopal burying ground here. A few days ago an attempt was made by unknown parties to steal the body. A large hole, four feet deep, was dug into the ground close to the monument, where it was supposed the body had been buried. The thieves, however, were foiled in their attempt, as the remains had not been buried by the monument, but some distance away from it, and the plot having been bevelled down into a parterre of flowers, no indication was furnished of the exact location of the remains. The cemetery is on a hill overlooking the St. Francis River. The general impression is that the thieves meditated stealing the remains and holding them until a large ransom was paid by the wealthy relatives of the deceased. A guard has been placed on the grave.

SUICIDED AT BORDEAUX.

Capt. R. G. Green of the Montreal Field Battery Fatally Shoots Himself.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6.—A cablegram was received to-day conveying the sad intelligence that Capt. R. G. Green of the Montreal Field Battery had committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself at Chateau Lamothe, near Bordeaux, in France. The news created a painful impression among his friends, with whom he was a general favorite. Mr. Green was about [illegible] and was born at Birmingham. His friends are at a loss to find a reason for this rash deed.

OUR ALLEGED FLEET.

The So-called Seizures Evidently the Exception Rather than the Rule.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 6.—A firm interested in the fish trade in Lockport has received a letter from the captain of one of their seiners, in which he says: "The Americans get all the fish they want, and as for the cutters they do not bother them. They do just about as they like. They dress their fish in the harbors when they wish to, and buy all the barrels and salt they want."

Two Accidents Near St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 6.—A respectable looking man, about 60 years of age named Purdy from Rochester, N. Y., got off the 10.32 train this morning under the influence of liquor and while walking along the platform stumbled and fell against a large iron spike. It struck him near the eye, tearing and mutilating the flesh in a horrible manner. He was taken in charge and his wound dressed.

As the 9.30 train was coming north on the Grand Trunk Railway near Merritton it ran into a team driven by a man named Elliott, who was hauling stone. The engine struck fair between the horses and wagon, killing one of the horses instantly. The driver was thrown on the cowcatcher of the locomotive and had three ribs broken and was badly bruised about the head and body. The second horse also fell on the cowcatcher on top of Elliott and was badly cut and bruised.

The M. P. for Ottawa County.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6.—L'Etendard published this morning a letter from an Ottawa correspondent, in which it is stated that Mr. Joseph Tasse, M.P. for the county, is disliked by everyone and is sure to be defeated at the next election. Mr. Tasse has written to Senator Trudel in reply, challenging him to give up his seat in the Senate, while he, Mr. Tasse, will resign his seat in the Commons so that both can go before the electors of Ottawa County and seek election, the only issue to be the libel question.

Disastrous Fire at Wallacetown.

WALLACETOWN, Ont., Aug. 6. A fire broke out in Hobbs's dry goods store about 2 o'clock this morning, which spread eastward to C. G. Henry's hotel and westward, destroying Wallace's store, Hewson's barber shop, Gourley's butcher shop and a building occupied by J. T. Sifton as a store room for farming implements. The fire was with difficulty confined to this block. The loss will exceed $15,000, partly covered by insurance.

Is it a Put up Job?

GUELPH, Aug. 6. Tom Edgar, who, it is said, laid the information against the hotel keepers for violating the Scott Act, was charged at the police court to-day with an indecent assault on Mrs. Caroline Patton, a married woman, at the Union Gardens, on July 27 last. The woman told her story of the alleged assault, which was a very hazy one. The prisoner was remanded until to-morrow morning to appear on his own recognizance.

The Land Warrants Issued.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—The total number of land warrants issued by the Militia Department to the Northwest volunteers is 4,542. Scrip has been delivered to 2491, and scrip for 458 others is being prepared: 943 have taken free homesteads; 150 volunteers who served in the Northwest have made no application for scrip, and 186 cases require special attention.

Port Perry's Pirate.

PORT PERRY, Aug. 6.—The Church of the Ascension Sunday School excursion to Washburn Island sixteen miles down Lake Scugog yesterday, and had a good time.

Six or seven boys went overboard on the home trip.

Sarnia to be Disparaged.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—Mr. Justice Henry, of the Supreme Court, sitting in Chambers to-day, gave judgment in the case of Symons, the British Columbia murderer, ordering that the prisoner be unconditionally discharged.

The Gladstone Testimonial.

Mr. Geo. A. Morrison, insurance agent, Peterborough, has received the following letter from New York, accompanied by subscription list:—

DEAR SIR.—Very many prominent citizens of New York City are much interested in raising, by a popular subscription, a sum of money sufficient to procure and present to the Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone, of England, a handsome and suitable testimonial.

The noble and self-sacrificing work of this "Grand Old Man" in behalf of the cause of liberty in his own country calls for, and should receive, the grateful acknowledgment of every citizen of "those lands of the free.

It is not proposed to secure large subscriptions from any one. Many in number are preferred to much in amount.

Twenty-five cents each from one hundred persons is better than $25 from one.

This is a popular subscription. Make subscriptions Twenty-five cents and secure as many as possible.

The names of subscribers will be published in the New York World, together with the name and residence of the agents securing the same.

Please give this your immediate attention and forward lists with remittance to E. B. Harper, Esq., or Col. G. F. Potter, Potter Building, New York City.

Mr. Morrison only received the letter yesterday afternoon, but at four o'clock he began taking subscriptions and had, though not making a business of it, secured, at two o'clock to-day, 75 twenty-five cent subscriptions. The great Gladstone is too well known, and his broad and lofty philanthropy evokes so much popular admiration, respect and reverence, that it would be superfluous to add a word to induce them to take part in preparing a testimonial to him. Those not seeing Mr. Morrison and yet wishing to contribute to the New York World's Gladstone testimonial, may send their contributions to him or call at his office, Lynch block, Hunter street.

The Quadruple-Paddle Pull.

Kent's Crew Captures the Confectionery.

Last evening, at the Little Lake, the matched four-oared race took place between the following crews, the stakes being a barrel of flour, to be paid for by the losers and presented by the winners, to the Peterborough Protestant Home:—

G. Stevenson	stroke	H. W. Kent
A. Stevenson		W. Matthews
G. Lech		F. Merson
J. J. Sheehy	bow	J. McDonald

The course was a mile—from Burnham's Point to the turning beoys at the Ashburnham shore and return. It was late before the crews got off, there being considerable delay between them as to final arrangements. Mr. R. E. Wood, President of the Boating Club, gave the "are you ready? go!" at two minutes to eight o'clock and at the same moment eight blades caught the water and the shells started off nose to nose, a position they kept up for some distance. Stevenson's crew, however, gained so much that they turned the stake a length ahead and so close that the bow of the other shell slightly fouled the rudder, a little mishap, however, to which the losers attribute their defeat, for the coxswain who was picked up that evening for the occasion, steered so wildly for a short time as to lose them their lead. Yet the home pull was a very pretty race, the Kent crew leading, but towards the finish the other crew put in a spurt and gained considerably, but not enough to prevent the Kent crew from crossing the line half a length ahead, and winning the race. Time 5¼ minutes. It was a very pretty race, and the few spectators greatly enjoyed the contest.

"Hog Ball."

The Aboriginal Exponents of the Game at Riverside Yesterday.

There was a considerable number of curious sports and curious small boys at Riverside Park, yesterday, to witness the novel spectacle of a match game of hog ball. The match was originally arranged between the Alnwick and Chemong Indians, but the former failed to come to time, therefore two teams of Mud Lake braves gave a series of exhibition games. The following was the composition of the teams:—

JACK KNOTT, CAPTAIN.

John Taylor, Richmond David, Robert Brown, Thos Quingwish, Jas. McCue, Henry Taylor, Eddie Taylor, Andrew Anderson.

MOSES M'CUE, CAPTAIN.

Dew Taylor, George Taylor, Dan Whetung, Jacob Iroos, Amos Johnson, Sampson Fawn, Jim Crow.

It was 4 o'clock when the game began. It is something like baseball, with the exception that there is no thirsting for the blood of the umpire; yet there is an umpire, but his services were not required yesterday. At one end of the field two stakes are put down and at the other end two corresponding stakes. These are about the same distance apart as to end as lacrosse goals, only the poles at each end are forty feet apart. Between the stakes and a little above the "goals" stands armed with an ordinary baseball bludgeon. The man in the "box" tosses the ball, (made of yarn and covered with buckskin) about as high as the head, and as it descends the striker "gets in his work." When a man strikes he runs to one or other of the two bases or stakes, and if the next striker's a good one, runs to the other end of the field. If there is no chance to run, the striker runs to the home station, till at length there are eight men on first bases. When the last man strikes all must run, and there is a wild rush for the other end. They have to reach to score a run, and the fielders use their best endeavors to hit a man with the ball before he reaches his stake; if this is done all are out, and the same game goes on again. A fly catch hits the whole side out. If the tosser catches a ticked ball on the first bound the whole side is retired.

Yesterday, whitewashes were numerous, and sometimes seven or eight men scored at once. Ten runs counts a game, and three games were played out yesterday, the victors being Jack Knott's team. The scorer keeps his tally on a stick, making a notch for each run.

If the local baseball club "peters" out again this season, a hog ball club might be organized.

Market Square Drinking Fountain.

Mr. Robert Jackson, of Otonabee, is working up the idea of having a drinking fountain, both for man and horse, placed on the market square, for the use of frequenters of the market. He proposes, and is endeavoring to bring others into practical harmony with his proposition, that the farmers erect the proposed drinking fountain on the condition that the town maintain it afterwards. If Mr. Jackson can get his fountain erected and there is every probability that he will succeed—there need not be any trouble about its maintenance. Many persons in hot weather suffer greatly from thirst—they don't like the idea of entering a hotel when they want a drink of water and "only that and nothing more" and especially when—if a Scott Act case is being worked up, they might have to get their drink of water at the expense of having to spend a day in court as a Scott Act witnesses. Besides it is the duty of the town to attract as many persons as possible to the market. To do this in one way, it is proposed to build an expensive bridge and annex a township and if the farmers erect the proposed drinking fountain, the town should be glad to have the privilege of maintaining it. We wish Mr. Jackson every success in his laudable undertaking.

The Great Irish Struggle.

The Canadian edition of "Gladstone—Parnell and the Great Irish Struggle," now offered for sale by the agent in town, Mr. T. W. Gibbs, is written by the celebrated Parliamentarian and Irish Champion of Home Rule for Ireland, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M. P. It constitutes a complete and thrilling history of the fearful injustice and oppression to which Irish tenants are subjected by landlordism, the outcome of unjust legislation. It also contains a full and authentic account of the great Home Rule movement, championed by Gladstone and also brief biographies of Gladstone, Parnell and other prominent statesman. The author of the work is a university man of scholarly attainments, a brilliant journalist and author. An additional interest will be given to the Canadian edition, in the eyes of Peterborough people, from its containing an elaborate introduction, written by Dr. Burns, of Hamilton, whose splendid lecture in the Opera House, on Wednesday evening, filled all hearers with delight. A copy of the book should be in the hands of all who sympathize with the cause of Home Rule or take an interest in the most important political crisis that has arisen in imperial politics during, at least, the present century.

Free Tickets for Forepaugh's Circus.

The great Forepaugh is coming—coming on August 21st, and everybody will go to see his great show, and a great local philanthropist, who believes in everybody enjoying himself, proposes to distribute free tickets. There will be presented a free admission ticket to Forepaugh's show to every person purchasing one of Gough's $7 suits. This is a bona fide offer. Gough keeps his word every time, as he did with the distribution of 500 linen dusters. The buyer of one of his seven-dollar suits will get the full worth of his money besides a ticket for Forepaugh. Remember the store of Gough, the Wonderful Cheap man, Arcade Buildings, Peterborough.

Pure Speculation.

The Ottawa Journal says it is a prevalent report in clerical circles that Very Reverend Vicar-General Laurent, of Lindsay, will be chosen as successor of the late Bishop Jamot. The rev. gentleman named is at present administrator of the Diocese, and that fact, perhaps, gives rise to the rumor. It is understood that his Holiness, Pope Leo XIII, makes the selection of Bishop from three candidates nominated by the ecclesiastical authorities of Canada, and that his choice can therefore be only a matter of surmise.

Market Items.

There was an unusually large market this morning. Prices were quoted as follows:—Eggs, 11c.; Butter, 16c.; Carrots, Cabbage, Onions and Radishes all sold at 5c. a bunch. Cauliflowers sold at 10c. a head; Beans at 20c. per peck; Potatoes at 70c. per bag; Apples at 90c. per bag; Lamb at 11c. per pound; Veal, 6c. per pound; Raspberries, $1 per pail; Peas 8c. a quart; Huckleberries. 90c. a pail; Ducks, 60c. per pair.

A thousand black fish passing through Port Hood Harbour, C.B., proved too strong a temptation for the residents of the town, who rushed out of houses and churches to capture the fish, which are valued at about $60 each.

Judgment Delivered in three Cases—All Convicted.

The Halpin case was continued yesterday afternoon, but there was no evidence to convict and the charge was dismissed with costs.

The Cavanagh case was entered into yesterday afternoon. Several witnesses were heard and the case enlarged till this morning.

This morning the Police Magistrate delivered judgment in three cases. In the Snowden case, defendant was found guilty of a second offence, and a fine of $100 and costs was imposed.

In the Kennealy case the judgment was, guilty of a second offence, the evidence of Pollard being considered conclusive. A fine of $100 and costs was imposed.

The case of Queen vs. Reynolds was called. The defendant did not appear. He was adjudged guilty and a fine of $50 and costs was imposed.

The evidence in the Cavanagh case was continued.

The Grand Lodge Delegates.

The delegates to the Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment of Oddfellows, (which meets in London,) leave town on Monday. The following are the representatives:—Dr. R. H. Bell, A. McFarlane, E. E. Henderson, D. H. Moore and S. Clegg. In a conversation with two of the delegates yesterday, Mayor Stevenson, with his usual energy, and enterprise, urged upon them to make every effort to get the Grand Lodge to meet in Peterborough, the mayor expressing the opinion that it would be a great benefit to the town. The Grand Lodge numbering over 300 members, who would be in town the most of one week, means an expenditure in town of about $5,000, in a dull month like August, quite an item, and this from the members of the Grand Lodge alone, to say nothing of other visitors and excursionists. Surely our prominent men should back up our plucky mayor in his efforts to benefit our splendid town by bringing all the strangers here we can induce to come.

An Island Summer Home.

A syndicate of congenial spirits has been formed, consisting of Messrs. W. G. Ferguson, Adam Hall, Robert Hall and Alex. Stewart, and they have become proprietors in fee of Boshisck Island in Stoney Lake at the Narrows, having purchased it from the Government. The island contains ten acres, consisting of any amount of building stone, fairly well shaded with trees and with a considerable expanse of soil well covered with sward, and above all, admirably adapted for a summer home—pure water, enough of shade, good fishing, and the finest of fresh air. This season a handsome new cottage has been erected, under the eye of Mr. Stewart. It is 18x24, with kitchen wing 16 x12, and a fine verandah. Mr. Adam Hall and Mr. Stewart have been on the spot several days. This morning the ladies and children of the little colony took an emigration car for their new home, and Messrs. Ferguson and Robert Hall follow this evening.

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 29th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two spring trusses made in York State, costing me $30. Nothing would retain my Hernia. * * I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; it guarantees to hold the very worst case in the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child sent; and 8 out of every 10 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise: it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. LOVE'S VICTORY.

CHAPTER XXXV.

REDEEMED BY LOVE.

"If anything can redeem her, it will be love." So Miss Hastings had said of Pauline long months ago, when she had first seen her future nurse-vanquished and subdued by disappointment and love, but the deeper desire of redeeming her words.

With a nature like Pauline's, love was no ordinary passion; all the romance, the fever, the poetry of her heart and soul were aroused. Her love took her out of herself, transformed and transfigured her, softened and beautified her. She was not of those who could love moderately, and if one attachment was not satisfactory, take refuge in another. For her there was but one love, and it would make or mar her life.

Had Sir Vane St. Lawrence been merely a handsome man she would never have cared for him; but his soul and mind had mastered her. He was a noble gentleman, princely in his tastes and culture, generous, powerful in an intellect magnificent in itself, and cultivated to the highest degree of perfection. The innate nobility of his character at once influenced her. She acknowledged his superiority; she bowed her head and knelt before it, proud of the very chains that bound her.

How small and insignificant everything else now appeared! Even the loss of Darrell Court seemed trifling to her. Her whole study was centered in another aspect. She was in a new, unknown land. It was the first time in her life that she had ever indulged a shadowy, indefinable hope. It was a veiled, subdued happiness, one that was dissolving her pride rapidly as the sunshine dissolves snow—happiness that was rounding off the angles of her character, that was taking away scorn and defiance, and bringing sweet and gracious humility, womanly grace and tenderness in their stead.

While Sir Vane was studying her as the most difficult problem he had ever met with he heard from Miss Hastings the story of her life. He could understand how the innate strength and truth of the girl's character had rebelled against polite insincerities and conventional untruths; he could understand that a son so gifted, pure, and eager, could find no resting-place and no delight; he could understand, too, how the stately old baronet, the gentleman of the old school, had been frightened at his niece's originality, and scared by her uncompromising love of truth.

Miss Hastings, whose favorite theme in Pauline's absence was praise of her, had told both mother and son the story of Sir Oswald's project and its failure—how Pauline would have been mistress of Darrell Court and all her uncle's immense wealth if she would but have compromised matters and have married Aubrey Langton.

"Langton!" questioned Sir Vane. "I know him—that is I have heard of him; but I cannot remember anything more than that he is a great rogue, and a man whose word is never to be believed."

"Then my pupil was right in her estimate of his character," said Miss Hastings. "She seemed to guess it by instinct. She shrank from him with the utmost contempt and scorn. I have often spoken to her about it."

"You may rely upon it, Miss Hastings, that the instinct of a good woman, in the opinion she forms of men, is never wrong," observed Sir Vane, gravely; and then he turned to Lady St. Lawrence with the sweet smile his face always wore for her.

"Mother," he said, gently, "after hearing of such heroism as that, you must not be angry about Lillith Davenant again."

"That is a very different matter," opposed Lady St. Lawrence: but it seemed to her son very much the same kind of thing.

Before he had known Pauline long he was not ashamed to own to himself that he loved her far better than all the world beside—that life for him, unless she would share it, was all blank and hopeless. She was to him as part of his own soul, the center of his existence; he knew she was beautiful beyond most women, he believed her noble and truer than most of women had ever been. His faith in her was implicit; he loved her as only men like men are capable of loving.

As time passed on his influence over her became unbounded. Quite unconsciously to herself she worshiped him; unconsciously to herself her thoughts, her ideas, all took their coloring from his. She who had delighted in cynicism, whose beautiful lips had uttered such hard and cruel words, now took from him a broader, clearer, kinder view of mankind and human nature. If at times the old habit was too strong for her, and some biting sarcasm would fall from her, some cold cynical sneer, he would reprove her quite fearlessly.

"You are wrong, Miss Darrell—quite wrong," he would say. "The noblest men have not been those who sneered at their fellow-men, but those who have done their best to aid them. There is little nobility in a dwindling spirit."

And then her face would flush, her lips quiver, her eyes take the grieved expression of a child who has been hurt.

"Can I help it," she would say, "when I hear what is false?"

"Your ridicule will not remedy it," he would reply. "You must take a broader, more kindly view of matters. You think Mrs. Leigh deceitful, Mrs. Vernon worldly; but my dear Miss Darrell, do you remember this, that in every woman and man there is something good, something to be admired, some grand or noble quality? It may be half-hidden by faults, but it is there, and for the sake of the good we must tolerate the bad. No one is all bad. Men and women are, after all, created by God; and there is some trace of the Divine image left in every one."

It was a new and startling theory to the girl who had looked down with contempt not unmixed with scorn on her fellow-creatures. My secret conviction is that in every soul there is the germ of something noble, even though circumstances may never call it forth. As you grow older and see more of the world, you will know that I am right."

"I believe you," she cried, eagerly. "I always [illegible] for your words."

"You do me justice," he said. "I have faults by the million, but want of sincerity is not among them."

So, little by little, love redeemed Pauline, took away her faults, and placed virtues in their stead. It was almost marvelous to note how all sweet, womanly graces came to her, how the proud face cleared and grew tender, how pride died from the dark eyes and a glorious love-light came in its stead, how she became patient and gentle, considerate and thoughtful, always anxious to avoid giving pain to others. It would have been difficult for any one to recognize the brilliant, willful Pauline Darrell in the loving, quiet, thoughtful girl whom love had transformed into something unlike herself.

There came a new world to her, a new life. Instead of problems difficult to solve, life became full of [illegible] harmonies, [illegible] of Heaven [illegible] and happiness; her soul reveled in it, her heart was filled with it.

All the poetry, the romance, had come true—nay, more than true. Her girlish dreams had not shown her such happiness as that which showed upon her in the hazel eyes of him who had always [illegible] recognized her superior, and yielded full reverence to him. If anything had happened to disenchant her, if it had been possible for her to find herself mistaken in him, if one of the [illegible] would have [illegible] forever, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Now on hand at the C. P. R., Ras narant, served up in the best styles.

W. C. T. U.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet in the Y.M.C.A. hall Monday afternoon, Aug. 9th, at 4 o'clock.

Veterinary Dentistry.

Prof. R. Watkins, Veterinary Dentist, will be at the City Hotel, on Monday, August 23rd, and remain two weeks. The best of city references given.

The Fruit Canning Season.

Housekeepers will find the finest and cheapest stock of sugars for the preserving season, at Morrow, Tierney & Co's, as well as a splendid stock of the best groceries.

Grading.

The C. P. R. are busily engaged levelling the ground on the north side of the station. It is being appreciated by the hackmen and those having occasion to drive to the train.

Musical.

Mr. J. S. Parker will be at his rooms, Lynch's Block, Hunter street, 3rd floor, from August 1st to August 10th, to make arrangements for lessons. He has four vacancies for private pupils.

Cricket.

Mr. J. K. Hammond, the secretary of the cricket club, has received a letter from the Ottawa cricket club stating that that club will be here on the 28th instant to play a match. He has also received a letter from the Toronto club asking our club to play in Toronto on August 19th—civic holiday.

Garden Party.

The date fixed for the garden party in aid of St. Luke's having been chosen for the band entertainment, it has been decided to hold the garden party at Mrs. Orde's on Tuesday, August 10th. The band has kindly promised to attend. Remember the place, Robinson street, Ashburnham, next to the residence of Mr. H. Calcutt. Admission, 10 cents. All made welcome from five o'clock, p.m.

A Cheap Trip.

Arrangements have been made to run an excursion to Toronto on August 19th, Peterborough's civic holiday. The train will leave here by C. P. R. at 8.39 a.m. Tickets are good for two days and cost only $2. Passengers can make excursions to Niagara Falls, Buffalo or London and return the following day. Get your tickets at Alex. Elliott's C. P. R. Agency, George street.

Civic Holiday Attractions.

Civic Holiday is designed to be a day of recreation and enjoyment, and to secure this to the fullest extent the P. A. A. A. excursion to Sturgeon Point and Orillia presents the grandest opportunity. A day at Sturgeon Point with brief travel, or by going a little further, Orillia is reached with its delightful day's boating on one of the most beautiful inland lakes of the country. Keep this excursion in mind. The rates are exceedingly low, train service first-class, time rapid, and the comfort and enjoyment of every excursionist guaranteed.

Fresh White Fish, Trout and Bass, arriving daily at Ostrom's, George St

The Coming Races.

As day by day passes, the prospects of the success of the first grand summer meeting of the Peterborough Driving Park Association, become greater. To-day several thousand three-color posters were issued, to be posted in different parts of the province, announcing the event, and the indications are that on August 26th and 27th there will be the finest and fleetest stud of competing horseflesh at the Driving Park, and the biggest gathering of spectators, ever brought together on the grounds. The liberal purses offered will attract good horses, and the square racing that will be done will make the meeting worthy of the attendance of the public. Remember the date of the great summer race meeting, August 26th and 27th.

News Nuggets.

[illegible] Told in a Line.

—The coal dealers are busy filling winter's supply of coal.

—The planking of the Hunter street bridge was completed this morning.

—Kingston "did up" Port Hope at baseball on Wednesday.

—The Campbellford Herald heads its birth notices, "New Arrivals."

—Campbellford is rejoicing because its taxation is only 17½ mills on the dollar.

—At the Bobcaygeon Cheese Board, the offerings were sold at 7⅞c.

—A large number of persons came in this morning on the G. T. R. market train.

—The C. P. R. morning express was thirty-four minutes late this morning.

—Fenelon Falls is to have a first-class half mile race track. It is now under way, and an association is being formed.

—Lindsay has her civic holiday on Wednesday next.

—Ice Cream Sodas now open at the Rochester Fruit Store. E. G. STONE.

—Fine Scotch Ginghams regular price 25c. per yard, reduced to 12½ per yard at R. Fair's.

—Ladies' Jerseys—a full assortment of newest styles in plain and embroidered Ladies' Jerseys, at R. Fair's.

—Ice Cold Milk will now be kept on hand with other soft drinks at Rochester Fruit Store. E. G. STONE.

—If all the dampers-out and absent citizens are not sinners, there will be small congregations in the churches to-morrow.

—The dog star now rules the hour—though most persons pay little attention to the fact, still it is a Sirius matter.

—Received this week, a job lot of Ladies' Fine All Wool Black Cashmere. Hose to be sold 30 per cent. below the regular price, at R. Fair's.

—A Rod and Gun Club has been formed in Lindsay—to protect fish and game—R. R. Haggerford, president; J. E. Saddler, secretary.

—Dr. Beatty states the cause of the death of Mayor Stevenson's horse, mentioned yesterday, was rupture of the stomach, an, of course, incurable condition.

—J. M. Irwin's drive of logs is passing Bobcaygeon, in charge of P. Meagher. While warping this drive a 40-lb muskinonge was caught by the fluke of the anchor.

—Frank Wallis, the "Herbs of Joy" man, defended himself from the attacks made on him by the Salvation Army, in his usual modest and gentle manner, last night.

—At Lindsay Wm. Keeffe was carrying a board alongside a train in a high wind; the wind blew the board against the train, knocking Keeffe down and the car wheel cut off his arm.

—There promises to be a hundred per cent. increase in our juvenile population—not that kind that Malthus objects to—but the green apple season will double up any amount of small boys.

—The Chemong village Indian Band serenaded the Grand Central hotel yesterday. They played very soft music—very appropriate, since their courtesy could only be acknowledged with "soft" drinks.

—FRESH STRAWBERRIES, Tomatoes, Cucumbers, Cabbage, Squash, Pine Apples, Oranges, Lemons and Vegetables of all kinds just arrived, to be found at the Rochester Fruit Store. E. G. STONE.

—Mr. Smiff, of the Bobcaygeon Independent, thinks "there is too little solid comfort." The Scott Act being epidemic in Victoria County, gives rise to this chunk of wisdom, but probably the old philosopher really meant to say "liquid comfort."

—Salisbury Bros. have received No. 26 of Cassell's National Library. It contains the portions of Plutarch's lives, embracing Alcibades, Coriolanus Aristides and Cato the Censor. 200 pages on fine paper, clear printed, only 10c.

Room in Bargains

The boom in bargains still continues at the Bon Marche. It is visited daily with crowds, who go away delighted at the immense bargains they have secured. The chance still continues for others,—for Mr. Carton is bound to rush off the stock regardless of prices. The sale will continue from day to day and every caller gets a bargain. Come and secure the pick of the goods. They are going off like hot cakes.

P. A. A. A. Civic Holiday Excursion.

It will be used as a carriage and waggon factory by Messrs. Robert Mein and H. Crocker, who contemplate commencing business about the first of October. It will be a first-class building and will contain 36,000 brick

Three Times Straight Again.

The Riversides [illegible] This Time.

Yesterday the plucky little Riversides played lacrosse with the Norwood team and again victory crowned their efforts. A few of the team's admirers accompanied them on the 11.30 train. The grounds at Norwood are fair, notice good, however, to the Riverside grounds.

The teams paraded for inspection as follows:—

Riversides.		Norwoods.
Phelan	goal	Pierce
Canning	point	Stephenson
Walsh	cover point	Eaton
Meagher	defence field	Wessels
Bagley	" "	Nisbet
McAvelia	" "	Jory
Larose	centre	Hendren
Giroux	home field	Waters
Packenham	" "	Hill
Neil	" "	Rabel
Duncan	2nd home	McKelvey
Scott	1st home	Stephenson
W. A. Sanderson	field capt.	S. Hendren
R. Tierney	umpire	W. Rutherford

A. Freeman, referee.

The first game started about 2.30, both teams going in for it from the first. After some sharp play, Packenham collared the sphere and scored the first game for the Riversides. Time, 9 minutes.

SECOND GAME.

[illegible] resumed. This game was frequently interrupted by calls of "time." Shortly after the "face" Larose and Hendren got into a scuffle near the fence, and when separated, as usual, everybody had to have his little say in the matter. Play being commenced once more, the rubber was kept travelling from "pole to pole," some good play being done by the Riversides' defence. After facing for the third time, both teams went into it with a will, the Norwoods scenting beat on scoring one game, if not the match, when another call of "time" was made, this time Stephenson, of the Norwoods, getting an accidental belt on the nose from Scott. Of course, a new man was necessary, and Stephenson was replaced by Hendren. After resuming play for the last time, the visitors kept the ball pretty much to themselves, and after some fine play, Packenham again distinguished himself by scoring the second game for the Riversides. Time, 1 hour and 7 minutes.

THIRD GAME.

It was now evident that the visiting team were bent on taking three straights, as was shown by the short duration of the third and last game. At the "face-off" Larose secured the ball and sent it to the spot where it would do the most good, but it was swiped out; after returning, Neil secured the rubber and by a well-directed shot, won the game and match for the Riversides. Time, 1 minute.

During the progress of the game the best of good feeling prevailed, notwithstanding the fact that several of the players on both sides were decorated with cuts, bruises, etc.

For the riversides, Walsh, Bagely, Meagher and Larose did well on the defence, while Duncan, Neil and Scott made it hot for the home team at the other end of the field.

For the Norwoods, Rabel, Hendren and Stephenson played a good game.

It is likely the return match will be played at an early date.

By the way the Riversides are behaving themselves, they bid fair to retrieve the reputation of the town for good lacrosse. There are probably few junior teams that can compete with them now, and when they get a season's practice together, they will make it warm for their opponents. They are young yet, and with diligent practice will make their mark at the game.

Personal.

Mr. Mcanie Cottingham arrived in town from Montreal this morning. He will rusticate on our back waters for a couple of eks.

Social Hop.

A social hop under the management of Messrs. Robert McCauley, Archie Moore, and Robert Redmond, will take place in the Town Hall, Ashburnham, on Thursday evening, the 12th of August. Good music will be provided and an enjoyable evening is anticipated. Tickets, 50 cents, which may be procured from the committee, or at the door. All are invited.

MONDAY, AUGUST 9, 1886.

HOME RULE ONLY.

NOTHING BUT IT WILL EVER SATISFY IRELAND.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The National Liberal Federation, the outgrowth of Mr. Chamberlain's Sheffield caucus, has issued a manifesto saying: "Although the result of the elections has not realized our hopes, the situation is encouraging, the supporters of half measures being the smallest group in Parliament. Mr. Gladstone has secured the support of a vast majority of the Liberals and Liberal organizations. As far as the Federation is concerned the result of the appeal to the country is to completely justify the course taken by its council. Greatly as we regret our losses, the manner in which the Liberals responded to Mr. Gladstone's appeal proves that the federation represents the real opinion of the Liberal party. That party being committed to effecting union between England and Ireland will never give up that object until the goal has been reached. No progress is possible in Liberal work until that has been settled. Nor will the Conservatives be able to indulge in congenial inactivity. It is the imperative duty of Liberals to obtain at the earliest possible moment an explicit statement of the Tory policy in regard to Ireland. The Gladstone policy still lives and its ultimate triumph is assured."

LONDON Aug. 7.—Mr. McHugh, Nationalist, will again contest the West Division of County Down with Lord A. W. Hill, who is received as [illegible] under the Government. At the late election Mr. McHugh polled [illegible] votes, while Lord [illegible] polled [illegible]. A [illegible] was held in Carrick, Ireland, to-day for the purpose of raising £3,000 for the erection of a monument over the grave of Kickham, the Fenian poet and novelist.

Mr. John Deasy will attend the league convention at Chicago in place of Mr. Edmund Leamy, who cannot go. Messrs. O'Brien, Redmond and Deasy, the three delegates to the convention, left for New York on the steamer Servia, which sailed from Liverpool for New York to-day.

The Earl of Aberdeen, the late Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, in replying to a eulogistic resolution presented by the Kilrush Board of Guardians, said: "I hope that out of the recent deep attention given to Ireland and the [illegible] discussion of its affairs, some practical result will arise, leading to [illegible] peace and prosperity of the country."

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 8.—Three thousand persons assembled to-day to bid good bye to the delegates to the meeting of the Irish National League of America. Mr. O'Brien, in reply to an address, said he was going to confer with the greater Ireland across the ocean on the political situation. Should coercion be attempted he said Ireland would be ready to meet it undaunted. In the meantime he advised every freshman to do his utmost to maintain peace in order not to give a pretext for coercion. Mr. Redmond in a speech said nothing less than Mr. Gladstone's measure would satisfy Ireland.

TWO MEN DO THE TRICK.

Cooper Graham's Feat Emulated by Fellow Townsmen.

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., Aug. 8.—William Potts and George Hazlett, aged respectively 25 and 23 years, made the perilous trip through the Niagara rapids this afternoon in the presence of over 10,000 spectators. Excursion trains were run in from all directions. The men entered their curious craft, made barrel shape, ten feet long, with an air tight compartment in the bow. The stern had a small propeller wheel and rudder attached to work from the inside. They were towed out into the river from the Maid of the Mist landing at 4:35 p. m., and twenty minutes later they were dashed about in the furious breakers of the rapids. The banks were lined with people from in front of the Prospect House to the whirlpool, everyone fully expectant to see the barrel, with its occupants tossed into eternity, but such was not their fate. In five minutes they had passed through the dangerous waters. Making one circuit of the whirlpool, they were shot out into the river through the lower rapids badly shaken up, but safely landed 35 minutes after starting. They propose to repeat the feat next Saturday if they can make satisfactory arrangements with the railway companies to run excursions.

OUTRAGES AT BELFAST.

The City again the Scene of Bloodshed and Disorder.

BELFAST, Aug. 7.—A riot took place this morning between the Orangemen employed in the Queen's Island ship yard and the Catholic navvies employed by the Harbor Commissioners. The fight was very severe for a time and resembled in character that which occurred between the same elements on June 24, when the Orangemen, greatly outnumbering the navvies, overpowered and beat them, and drove them into the water, when one was drowned. A number of men on both sides were so badly injured in to-day's fighting that they had to be removed to hospitals.

To-night the conflicts were renewed. The fighting was the most desperate that has taken place during the recent troubles. The mob was infuriated and fought with savage energy. Fifty persons were injured, some of them, it is thought, fatally. Fresh struggles occurred on the Shank Hill road. The police escorted a McKenna's tavern on the Old Lodge road were attacked by the mob with stones and weapons, and were compelled to fire from the windows of the beleaguered house. During the attack eighteen persons were injured, and were subsequently taken to the hospitals. A youth named Jackson is said to be dying from his injuries. Four policemen were badly wounded.

BELFAST, Aug. 8.—The excitement here is subsided. This morning rioting broke out in Old Lodge road and the police were obliged to fire in order to disperse the rioters. This afternoon the rioting was resumed with great violence in Old Lodge, Grosvenor and Spring field roads. Many persons with gunshot wounds have been sent to the hospitals. There are rumors of many fatalities, but it is difficult to obtain accurate accounts. A panic is seizing the peaceable inhabitants.

Midnight.—The rioting showed no sign of abatement. The McKenna incident, which was principally the sacking of wine shops and other public houses was repeated to-night, the result being that two persons were killed and another was fatally wounded. The latter was sent to a hospital, where he was treated, and then discharged while numerous slight cases were reclaimed. Twenty-six cases of serious injury are reported, one of the sufferers being a boy, who has since died.

DUBLIN, Aug. 8.—In response to urgent telegrams from Belfast this evening, four hundred infantry soldiers, some of them being on furlough, were summoned by bugle in the streets, and were despatched by special train to Belfast. A body of two hundred dragoons and infantry will leave for Belfast at 4 o'clock to-morrow morning. The police of Belfast will be supernaded by the military.

EDITOR CUTTING SENTENCED.

One Year's Imprisonment and a Fine of Six Hundred Dollars.

ST. LOUIS, August 7.—The El Paso, Tex., correspondent of the Globe-Democrat telegraphs to-night that sentence was pronounced on Cutting this evening. It is one year's imprisonment at hard labor and $600 fine. If he cannot pay the fine he will have to serve 180 days longer. Medina, who caused all the trouble, has leave to sue Cutting in a civil suit for damages. The question of censuring the American Consul Brigham and asking for his removal is referred to the Supreme Court at Chihuahua. Cutting will probably be hurried off to prison at Chihuahua to-night.

GARDEN CITY, KS., Aug. 7.—A full volunteer battery of two guns and forty men was organized to-day in view of possible hostilities with Mexico. Their services will be tendered to President Cleveland on Monday.

THE ALGOMA'S VICTIMS.

A Report Concerning the Robbery of Bodies Proved Untrue.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 7.—A special to the Wisconsin from Ashland says: Capt. Baker of the revenue cutter Andy Johnson, now at that port, says he investigated the alleged robbery of bodies from the wrecked steamer Algoma on Isle Royal, Lake Superior, and found no truth in it. Only a few bodies were found and they were shipped to Canada. The railway company that owned the steamer has had guards on the island continuously since the wreck.

TWENTY-TWO BOATS SEIZED.

A Big Haul Made by a Special Canadian Customs Officer.

EASTPORT, Me., Aug. 7.—On Thursday J. D. Bonness, special Canadian Custom officer, seized at Deer Island twenty-two fishing boats, valued at $200 to $400 each, for smuggling. The boats were released upon the owner depositing a penalty in each case, amounting to the boat's value. They are charged with smuggling the boats themselves. This will prevent New Brunswick boatmen bringing sardines to Eastport without paying duties on this side.

Two Atlantic Cables Broken.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Both cables of the Direct Cable Company are broken. The ocean cable was broken several days ago, and the cable from Nova Scotia to Duxberry, Mass., broke Thursday night. Cable communication over this line is therefore suspended. To make matters worse the repair steamer Minia is on dry-dock for repairs. The postal cable companies, however, have five other cables in working order.

Not Yet Recovered.

SARNIA, Ont., Aug. 8.—Nothing further has been heard of the other three victims of the yachting disaster. It is possible their bodies may never be recovered.

Destructive Fire at Newcastle, Ont.

NEWCASTLE, Ont., Aug. 7.—A destructive fire broke out about 4.30 this morning in the boiler room of Messrs. Simmons & Pool's planing mill. The flames soon communicated to Mr. Simmons' dwelling and another of Simmons' houses, occupied by J. Sharp, and immense piles of lumber, two large storehouses containing a quantity of dry lumber, etc. These last-named were heavy. No insurance except on dwelling, value two houses owned by J. T. Eddy, no insurance; stables owned by A. Ferguson, no insurance—and the greater part of the old Massey Manufacturing Company's buildings. A strong southeast wind was blowing and for a time grave fears were entertained for the whole village.

Strike of Italians on the C.P.R.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 8.—Sixty Italian navvies employed on the C.P.R. short line at Apple Hill, near Winchester, struck yesterday for an increase of wages from $1.25 to $1.40. When they were refused they drew their pay, but Messrs. Shewart & Kennedy, the contractors, procured loaded rifles and they retreated. They will resume work to-morrow at the old figure.

A Father and Son's Mistake.

HUNTSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 8.—W. S. Brockhaney went to guard his hives from robbers. His son did the same. They thought each other a thief and both fired. Each was probably fatally wounded.

A Washing Process.

Of practical importance would be a bottle of the only stop-pop cure—Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor—which can be had at any drug store. A continuation of the boon—quick and the removal of corns both assured by its use. Beware of imitations. 6133w32

RURAL NOTE RAISERS

A COUNTERFEITING PLANT UNEARTHED IN LAMBTON CO.

SARNIA, Ont. Aug 7.—For some time past the more extreme parts of Western Ontario has been flooded with $2 and $4 American bank-notes raised to "tens." Three or four arrests have been made, but the parties were speedily discharged as being entirely innocent of the nature of the notes. The "raisers" of the notes have just been discovered, quite accidentally. On the night of July 29 last the general store of M. Parkinson, in the small village of Wilkesport, in the county of Lambton, was burglarized, and a large quantity of goods, boots, residuers, etc., carried off. In answer to a request from the county authorities Government Detective Joseph Rogers came on to Wilkesport and began an investigation. Saturday at once fell on two brothers named Joseph and Justice Wetherall, sons of a farmer. These young men wore good clothes, and the only labor they were ever known to do was an occasional day's work on their father's farm.

To-day Detective Rogers and a constable went to the farm to arrest the boys. They were at work in a fallow near a patch of woods. The detective proceeded to the field alone, thinking the boys would not recognize him as an officer. When within 40 yards of them they became alarmed and made for the woods. The officer was unable to re-capture them. Marine City, Mich., is but four miles from the woods and they made for their petals, which they reached in safety.

When the officers searched the house for Parkinson's goods they made quite an unexpected discovery. Portions of the proceeds of the robberies were found in the boys' rooms. In a trunk was found nine American one dollar bank notes that had been raised to "tens," a large quantity of paper used for making the changes, two engraved plates, a quantity of paints and brushes and acid used for erasing the original figures on the notes. The work of "raising" the numbers on the notes was very neatly executed by means of the soft paper and the plates. The latter were made in Detroit.

Detectives Hogsen took charge of the entire outfit, and it is said he will acquaint the United States Government with the facts.

CORRUPTION IN ENGLAND.

The Armstrong Gun Company Charged With Subsidizing Government Officials.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The Sir William Armstrong Arms Manufacturing Company is resorting to extreme measures to stop the military newspaper exposures of the company's alleged corruption of government officials to secure contracts for the supply of ordnance. Recently the company applied to the Queen's Bench for an injunction to restrain Capt. Armit from continuing to publish in the Admiralty and Horse Guards Gazette, as he has been doing every week, fresh allegations of corruptions of ordnance officials by the Armstrongs, pending the result of the action for libel brought by the company against the captain for his original allegation of corruption. In the succeeding exposures Captain Armit has described in detail alleged cases of the grossest character, charging several distinguished persons with corruption and conspiracy with having formed among themselves a ring for systematic robbery of the government. The Court of Queen's Bench has just rendered its decision upon the petition for injunction. The court refused to grant the injunction, and bases the refusal on the ground that the alleged libels fall within the class of "privileged communications." "If these libels are true," says the court, "it is of the utmost importance that the country should be made aware of the knowledge they convey." Capt. Armit's object, it is believed, is to force the government to grant a royal commission of inquiry into his charges.

SAVED BY HIS DAUGHTER.

A Plucky Montreal Girl Rescues Her Father From Drowning.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 7.—George Greene, a merchant of this city, with his daughter and an engineer, left Morrisburgh Park, on the St. Lawrence, yesterday morning in his small steam launch for Lachine. They appear to have lost their bearing, having passed that place, and were steaming directly into the rapids when the vessel struck one of the submerged piers of the new Canadian Pacific bridge, just above the rapids, and sank. The three were precipitated into the water. The engineer succeeded in gaining one of the piers. Mr. Greene being unable to swim sank, but came to the surface when he was seized by his daughter, who is a strong and vigorous swimmer. The brave girl had a fearful battle with the swift current and only just succeeded in gaining the shore, almost exhausted, in time to escape being carried over the rapids. When picked up both she and her father were insensible.

THE FUNERAL OF S. J. TILDEN.

A Simple But Impressive Ceremony—The Presidents Present.

YONKERS, Aug. 7.—Tilden's remains were placed in the blue room this morning. The general public were admitted, and the people came by scores. Among them were many prominent persons. The body was attired in a suit of full dress with a pink in the button hole. The features, while showing some emaciation, did not suggest the dead had undergone any extended or considerable physical suffering. The pall-bearers were Secretary J. Randall, John Bigelow, Daniel Manning, Smith M. Weed, Charles A. Dana, Dr. George L. Miller, Wm. Allen Butler, Daniel Magone, J. B. Trevor, Dr. Charles E. Simmons and Aaron J. Vanderpoel.

At 2.00 p.m. President Cleveland reached the mansion. He was accompanied by Secretary of War Endicott and Private Secretary Lamont. Rev. Dr. Tucker, from Andover, Mass., read the funeral prayer of the Presbyterian Church, and the choir of Manhattan avenue Presbyterian Church sang, "Abide with Me." Rev. Dr. Tucker delivered a short address on the personal qualities of the deceased. He said he would not undertake to speak of Tilden's great public qualities, but he could not help thinking of and referring to Tilden's generous hospitality.

After this address, Miss Antonio Hense sang very effectively "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," and Dr. Tucker made a few more remarks. The choir sang "Beyond the Smiling and Weeping," and the casket was then closed. As the casket was borne through the hall the choir sang "Rock of Ages." Right of Mr. Tilden's employes carried the body. The President and his secretaries, Gov. Hill, Mayor Grace and delegations followed in carriages. Along the three-mile route to Yonkers the sides of the road were alive with people. The services at the grave were of the simplest kind.

One of the steamer resorts has a unique publication in the shape of a baby newspaper. It is printed every week "for a Minature press and gives to nursery use of the children that frequent the spot.

When an Elkhart, Ind., farmer was unloading a load of hay which he had driven to market and sold, he found a very lively rattlesnake in the hay, and in the serpent he found two mice, moles still alive and kicking.

THE POETS AND POETRY OF CANADA.

[No 20]

Rev. Robert Jackson Macgeorge.

"Widely extensive in the poet's aim
And in each verse he draws a bill of fame."
LADY WINCHILSEA.

Although not a Canadian by birth, nor a resident of the Dominion for many years before his death, the name of Mr. Macgeorge, is so closely identified with the literature of our country, that to pass him by without mention in articles such as these, were impossible. The writer never met this gentleman, but he has read with much satisfaction and keen interest, several newspaper and other articles, which fell from Mr. Macgeorge's pen, and he has associated to some extent with many Canadians, who knew and valued his intellectual and literary power. From all the accounts and descriptions of this man and his work, it is clear Mr. Macgeorge was no ordinary writer and it is a subject of deep regret that he only remained in this country a limited period. During his residence here, however, he left the abiding mark of his genius on many a magazine and newspaper, not only in this Province, but in the United States.

Mr. Macgeorge was born in Glasgow, in the year 1811, and died about two years ago. After passing through the usual curriculum at Glasgow University, Macgeorge visited Edinburgh, where he finished his studies, graduating as Bachelor of Arts and subsequently proceeding to the degree of M. A. Having suffered greatly from ill-health, he was advised by his physicians to take a long sea voyage, and he shipped at once on a trip to Eastern India. He spent several months at Bombay, and visited the Sultan or Shah of Persia. It was natural that on his return he should give the public the benefit of his experience in travel, in a series of sketches from India, which appeared in the Scottish Literary Gazette. He also contributed articles to Fraser and the Scottish Monthly Magazine. In 1830 he wrote two dramatic pieces, which were performed at Glasgow theatre. Thus, although only a young man of 19, he was for that period, a traveller of no mean repute, an author, a poet, and a journalist, whose productions were in unusually good demand, and a skilful and clever debater, his mind well stocked with knowledge and his poems giving evidence of unusual power and skill as a versifier.

In 1837 his mind was fully made up as to his future profession. He was then 26 years of age and he at once entered Holy orders, having been ordained by the Bishop of Edinburgh. Four years afterwards he came to Canada, and settled at Streetsville, where he received the appointment of Incumbent from the first Bishop of Toronto, Dr. Strachan. But his taste for literary matters could not be quelled or destroyed because he had chosen the ministry for a profession. He became editor of the Weekly Review, and soon made it one of the most popular and best conducted papers in the province. His chief aim was to attack popular abuses and follies by good-natured sarcasm and ridicule, and he succeeded in making a live paper, whose circulation very soon equalled that of the provincial city weeklies. He also edited for a short time the Church, which had been founded by the late Bishop of Toronto, Dr. Bethune, and which was the organ of the Church of England in Canada, and the best paper published in the interests of that paper from that day to this. Among his tales and sketches "The Chronicles of Dreepdaily," "The Purser's Cabin," and "The Editor's Shanty" attest his powers as a prose writer. He also contributed reviews and other articles on literary topics to the Globe and Leader. In 1858 he published a little volume of sketches and lyrics containing nearly 300 pages, which met with a ready sale, and was highly spoken of by the press of Upper Canada.

He was one of the very few editors, as McQueen said, who endeavored to attach something of a literary character to the newspaper press of Canada. His efforts were not only earnest and continuous, but also successful in an eminent degree, and the paper he edited, although published in an obscure village, commanded a greater number of hearty, intelligent, outside readers than any other journal in the province. His efforts, however, were not confined to newspapers. As we have said, he contributed poems and sketches to nearly ever provincial magazine and to many in the States. His style was terse and vigorous, and his writings are distinguished by extensive erudition, facility of diction, much quaint humor, and frequent sparklings of purified wit.

In 1856, Mr. Macgeorge returned to Scotland and became incumbent of the parish of Glen, Argyleshire, where he died in the year 1864.

As one who strove earnestly to elevate the newspaper press of Canada, he stands in the first ranks, and his name should be held in high estimation by all those who are interested in the literary progress of this great Dominion. As a poet, doubtless he may be soon forgotten, but as a useful, practical, busy clergyman, there is still probably many years to speak of him with respect, whilst reference his memory and reflect upon his ability as a scholar and divine. Requiescat in pace.

Scott Act Campaign.

The vigorous campaign of Scott Act prosecutions which lasted for the whole of last week, came to an end on Saturday evening, closing with the dismissal of the charge against T. Cavanagh. This morning when the police magistrate arrived at the court and found there were no cases to be tried, he uttered a fervent Gratias Domino, and no wonder, for last week's work was a hard one. There were nine cases heard, including the Lipsett and Reynolds cases. In the former the charge was admitted, therefore there was no evidence taken. Altogether the recent campaign included the trying of nine charges for infraction of the Scott Act. In four cases convictions were made, and fines aggregating $350, and costs, imposed, and five cases were dismissed. The fines—when collected—are placed in the Ontario Bank to the credit of the Dominion Government, the informer not receiving, as is popularly supposed, a share of the spoil.

The Subjugation of Burmah.

LONDON, Aug. 6. The state of affairs in Burmah is, and has been ever since British occupation, one of political discord and social confusion. In consequence the British Government in India has decided to entrust the supreme command in Burmah to Major-General Sir Herbert MacPherson. Five thousand troops will be sent into the country as soon as the cold season commences to scour it and drive out or subdue the insurgents, and 10,000 additional police will be sent from India to maintain order.

An Anglo-German Alliance.

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—The Tageblatt says that Sir Wm. A. White, the British minister to Roumania, has left Bucharest for Gastein, and the inference is that he has been instructed by the Marquis of Salisbury to meet Prince Bismarck, who is at Gastein with the Emperor.

The Panama Canal.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—M. De Lesseps has issued a new circular addressed to the shareholders in the Panama Canal. He states that over 100,000 shareholders have subscribed for 158,802 shares in the new loan.

The Sad Case of a Brave Man.

NEWARK, N.J., Aug. 6.—J. J. Catlin, yard master of the Pennsylvania Railway, who was struck by a locomotive while attempting to save Miss Sarah E. Wyckoff from death about three weeks ago has become insane. He imagines he killed the young lady and that he is to be hanged for the crime. His wife is said to be dying from constant watching and nervous prostration.

A Lunatic's Terrible Death.

KANKAKEE, Ill., Aug. 6.—While the attendants in the Kankakee Insane Hospital were preparing the patients to attend an entertainment last evening, a patient named Miss Cooper stepped to a gas jet, lit a letter drawn from her pocket, set fire to her clothing and was burned to death, despite all efforts to save her.

For Stamping Out Pleuro-Pneumonia.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 6.—Commissioner Colman has prepared a circular containing rules and regulations for co-operation between the United States Department of Agriculture and the authorities of the several states and territories for the suppression and extirpation of contagious pleuro-pneumonia of cattle.

The Parcel Post.

The parcel post system between Great Britain and Canada is already an established fact, as the first bag from Montreal was made up on Wednesday night for transmission by the Allan Line steamship Parisian, and contained twenty-one parcels.

The Irish Lacrosists in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6.—Arrangements for the reception of the Irish lacrosse team who will arrive here next Friday morning are pretty nearly completed. They will be met at Lachine station by a Reception Committee and the two teams who went from here in 1876 and 1883. They will be given a lunch at the Windsor in the afternoon. The first match will be played against a representative team, consisting of two players from Toronto, two from Ontario, two from Cornwall, three from Shamrocks, and three from the Montrealers. On Friday evening they will be tendered a reception at Victoria rink. Saturday morning will be spent running the rapids and doing the sights of the town. In the afternoon they will play a match with the Montreal club and in the evening they will be given a grand banquet at the Windsor at which Lieutenant Governor Masson has been asked to preside. They will leave Sunday night for Toronto.

A Sad Tricycle Accident.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Last night a hackman near Chestnut Hill reservoir discovered an overturned tricycle and the prostrate forms of a man and a woman. The man was dead. The woman was insensible. The bodies were taken to the Woodlawn Park Hotel at Auburndale. The body of the man was identified as that of Rufus H. Stickney and the lady as his wife. Both had been guests at the hotel. The tricycle was overturned by one of the driving wheels going into a rut. Stickney's head struck on a stone, fracturing the skull. Mrs. Stickney is much prostrated, but her condition is not thought to be serious. Mr. Stickney was 2 years of age and a member of the Massachusetts Bicycle Club. He was well known in business circles.

The brother of my janitor was paralyzed; his right side, including arm and leg, were useless; at my request he applied Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and before the first bottle was used he could raise his arm and control his leg. He continued his application and is now earning $2 a day. Geo. G. Siokies, New Rochelle, N. Y. Sold by all druggists. Trial bottles 25c. d23-eod-w32

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 28th, 1885.
GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 20 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two spring less trusses made in York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.
This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child born; and 9 out of every 10 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our Treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. CHAPTER XXXVI.

THOUGHT BOUGHT NOW.

Pauline could have passed her life in the happy dream that had come to her; she did not go beyond it—the golden present was enough for her. The full, happy, glorious life that beat in her heart and thrilled in her veins could surely never be more gladsome. She loved and was beloved, and her lover was a king among men—a noble, true-hearted gentleman, the very ideal of that of which she had always dreamed; she did not wish for any change. The sunrise was blessed because it brought him to her; the sunset was as dear, for it gave her time to dream of him. She had a secret longing that this might go on forever; she had a shy fear and almost child-like dread of words that must be spoken, seeing that, let them be said when they would, they must bring a great change into her life.

In this she was unlike Sir Vane; the prize he hoped to win seemed to him so beautiful, so valuable, that he was in hourly dread lest others should step in and try to take it from him—lest by some mischance he should lose that which his whole soul was bent upon winning.

He understood the girlish shyness and sweet fear that had changed the queenly woman into a timid girl; he loved her all the more for it, and he was determined to win her if she was to be won. Perhaps she read that determination in his manner, for of late she had avoided him. She remained with Miss Hastings, and when that refuge was denied her, she would Lady St. Lawrence; but nothing could chase her long.

"Miss Darrell," said Sir Vane, one afternoon, "I have a poem that I want to read to you."

She was seated on a low stool at Lady St. Lawrence's feet, her beautiful face flushing at his words, her eyes drooping with shy, sweet pleasure that was almost fear.

"Will you not read it to me now, and here?" she asked.

"No; it must be read by the sea. It is like a song, and the rush of the waves is the accompaniment. Miss Hastings, if you have brought up your pupil with any notion of obedience, enforce it now, please. Tell Miss Darrell to put on her hat and come down to the shore."

Miss Hastings smiled.

"You are too old now, Pauline, to be dictated to in such matters," said Miss Hastings; "but if Sir Vane wishes you to go out, there is no reason why you should not oblige him."

Lady St. Lawrence laid her hand on the beautiful head.

"My son has few pleasures," she said; "give him this one."

Pauline complied. Time had been when anything like a command had instantly raised a spirit of rebellion within her; but in this dreamy light that had fallen upon her she saw things differently; it was as though her soul had eyes and they were just opened.

She rose and put on the pretty, pinned hat which Miss Hastings brought for her; she drew an Indian shawl over her shoulders. She never once looked at Sir Vane.

"Your goodness is not only an act of charity," he said, "but it is also a case in which virtue will be its own reward. You have no notion how beautifully the sun is shining on the sea."

So they went out together, and Lady St. Lawrence looked after them with a sigh.

"She is a most beautiful girl, certainly, and I admire her. If she only had Lilith Davenant's money!"

Sir Vane and Pauline walked in silence down to the shore, and then the former turned to his companion.

"Miss Darrell," he said, "will you tell me why you were not willing to come out with me—why you have avoided me and turned the light of your beautiful face from me?"

Her face flushed, and her heart beat, but she made no answer.

"I have borne my impatience well for the last three days," he said; "now I must speak to you, for I can bear it no longer, Pauline. Oh, do not run away from me! I love you, and I want you to be my wife—my wife, darling; and I will love you—I will cherish you—I will spend my whole life in working for you. I have no hope so great, so sweet, so dear, as the hope of winning you."

She made him no answer. Yet her silence was more eloquent than words.

"It seems a strange thing to say, but, Pauline, I hoped you the first moment I saw you. Do you remember, love? You were sitting with one of my books in your hand, and the instant my eyes fell upon your beautiful face a great calm came over me. I could not describe it; I felt that in that minute my life was decided. My whole heart went out to you, and I knew, whether you ever learned to care for me or not, that you were the only woman in all the world for me."

She listened with a happy smile playing round her beautiful lips, her dark eyes shining, her flower-like face flushed and turned from his.

"You are my fate—my destiny! Ah! if you love me, Pauline—if you will only love me, I shall not have lived in vain! Your love would incite me to win name and fame—not for myself, but for you. Your love would crown a king—what would it not do for me? Turn your face to me, Pauline? You are not angry? Surely great love wins great love, and there could be no love greater than mine."

Still the beautiful face was averted. There was the sunlight on the sea; the western wind sighed around them. A great fear came over him. Surely on this most fair sunny day, his love was not to meet a cruel death. His voice was so full of this fear when he spoke again that she, in surprise, turned and looked at him.

"Pauline," he cried, "you cannot mean to be cruel to me. I ask no reward, but I would rather face death than your rejection."

Then it was that their eyes met, and what he saw there gave a revulsion to his feelings; all the passion and hope that her face grew pale as she listened, and the beautiful figure trembled.

"I have frightened you, my darling," he said suddenly. "Ah! do forgive me. I was half mad with joy. You do not know how I have feared—how I have suffered—lest you should refuse above me, sweet. See, you are trembling now! I am as cruel as a man who catches in his hands a white dove that he has tamed, and hurts it by his grasp. Sit down here and rest, while I tell you over and over again, in every fashion, in every way, how I love you."

The sun never shone upon happier lovers than these. The golden doors of Love's paradise were open to them.

"I never knew until now," said Vane, "how beautiful life is. Why, Pauline, love is the very center of it; it is not money or rank—it is love that makes life. Only to think, my darling, that you and I may spend every hour of it together."

She raised her eyes to the fair, calm heavens, and infinite happiness filled her soul to overflowing; a deep, silent prayer ascended unspoken from her heart.

Suddenly she sprang from his side, with a startled cry.

"Oh, Vane! do not! with outstretched hands, "I had forgotten that I am unworthy. I can never marry you!"

He saw such wild despair in her face, such anguish, keen anguish, that he was fairly startled; and kneeling by her side, he asked:

"Why, my darling? Tell me why, Pauline," he cried—"you are worthy of me! My darling, what fancy is it—what foolish idea—what freak of imagination? You are the noblest, the truest, the dearest woman in the whole wide world! Pauline, why do you struggle so? My darling, trust me—love me."

She had shrunk shuddering from him, and had buried her face in her hands; deep, bitter sobs came from her lips; there was the very eloquence of despair in her attitude.

"Pauline," said her lover, "you cannot shake my faith in you; you cannot make me think you have done wrong; but will you try, sweet, to tell me what it is?"

He never forgot the despairing face raised to his the shadow of such unutterable sorrow in the dark eyes, the quivering of the pale lips, the tears that rained down her face—it was such a change from the radiant, happy girl of but a few minutes ago that he could hardly believe it was the same Pauline.

He bent over her as though he would fain kiss away the fast falling tears; but she shrank from him.

"Do not touch me, Vane!" she cried; "I am not worthy. I had forgotten; in the happiness of loving you, and knowing that I was beloved, I had forgotten it—my own deed had dishonored me! We must part, for I am not worthy of you."

He took both her hands in his own, and his influence over her was so great that even in that hour she obeyed him implicitly, as though she had been a child.

"You must let me judge, Pauline," he said, gently. "You are mine by right of the promise you gave me a few minutes since—the promise to be my wife; that makes you mine—no one can release you from it. By virtue of that promise you must trust me, and tell me what you have done."

He saw that there was a desperate struggle in her mind—a struggle between the pride that bade her rise in rebellion and leave him with her secret untold, and the love that, bringing with it sweet and gracious humility, prompted her to confess all to him. He watched her with loving eyes; as that struggle ended, as would her life take its shape.

He saw the dark eyes grow soft with good thoughts; he saw the stern proud defiance die out of the beautiful face; the lips quivered, sweet humility seemed to fall over her and unfold her.

FLOUR.

There seems to be some misapprehension relative to the price of Flour. I find a number of purchasers stating that the grade of Flour known as has been reduced to $2.25 per one hundred pounds. This is a mistake. I offer, in common with all other dealers and millers, a good Family Flour at $2.25, but the brand "Bakers" is still retailed at $2.50 per hundred.

"BAKERS"

BANKERS—Bank of Toronto and Canadian Bank of Commerce.
SOLICITORS—Dumble & Henry.

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200, $400 and $1000 each, transferable by endorsement, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first claim or mortgage on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The annual statements shows that the amount so invested was over $600,000, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgage may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon, the interest ceasing at once on all amounts paid on account of the sum borrowed.

Applications may be made either to the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

Thoroughly cleansed by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution, will be established.

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofulous Disease of the Lungs, is promptly and certainly arrested and cured by this God-given remedy, if taken before the last stages of the disease are reached. From its wonderful power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now celebrated remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too limited for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive [illegible] is unequaled, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all

CHRONIC DISEASES OF THE

Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills, alternating with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and coated tongue, you are suffering from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness," in many cases only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Consumption, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's book on Consumption. Sold by Druggists.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Dr. Washington.

Dr. N. Washington will be in town on August 11th and 12th.

Oysters

Now on hand at the C. P. R. Restaurant, served up in the best styles.

Fire Brigade Band.

A full attendance of the members of the Fire Brigade Band is requested at their hall to-night. It is to be hoped that every member will be present.

The Fruit Canning Season.

Housekeepers will find the finest and cheapest stock of sugars for the preserving season, at Morrow, Tierney & Co's, as well as a splendid stock of the best groceries.

Advancing Upward.

The northern or machine shop wing of Mr. Peter Hamilton's Agricultural Works, is to be heightened by the addition of one story which will be covered with a mansard roof giving considerable additional storage capacity.

Another Island Home.

On Saturday evening Mr. E. B. Edwards, accompanied by Mr. T. C. Irwin, contractor for the erection of a cottage which Mr. Edwards proposes to erect on Gin Island, went out to the locality to prepare the way, and the carpenters followed this morning.

A Steamer Race.

An exciting race took place between the steamers Cruiser and Fairy on Saturday evening, from Young's Point to Lakefield, but the result did not do much to decide the matter of superiority in speed. The Fairy led when she left the locks, and still maintained the lead when Lakefield was reached.

North Country Crops.

According to Fenelon Falls Gazette, it is not now denied by any of its farming acquaintances that the crops this year are decidedly good—some say quite equal to any they have ever seen. The weather just now is delightful, and if it continues throughout harvest time, the grain, besides being abundant, will be got into the barns in fine condition.

Retiring from Business.

The lease of Messrs. Lockhart & Chowen, carriage builders, for the premises now occupied by them, expiring on October 1st, they will temporarily retire from business after that date. They are disposing of a part of their plant to Messrs. Mole & Crocker, who intend to go into the carriage building business in the building now being erected for them by Mr. Geo. Schneider.

Garden Party.

The date fixed for the garden party in aid of St. Luke's having been chosen for the band entertainment, it has been decided to hold the garden party at Mrs. Orde's on Tuesday, August 10th. The band has kindly promised to attend. Remember the place, Robinson street, Ashburnham, next to the residence of Mr. H. Calcutt. Admission, 10 cents. All made welcome from five o'clock, p.m.

A Cheap Trip.

Arrangements have been made to run an excursion to Toronto on August 16th, Peterborough's civic holiday. The train will leave here by C. P. R. at [illegible] a.m. Tickets are good for two days and cost only $2. Passengers can make excursions to Niagara Falls, Buffalo or London and return the following day. Get your tickets at Alex. Elliott's C. P. R. Agency, George street.

Civic Holiday Attractions.

Civic Holiday is designed to be a day of recreation and enjoyment, and to secure this to the fullest extent, the P. A. A. A. excursion to Sturgeon Point and Orillia presents the grandest opportunity. A day at Sturgeon Point with brief travel, or by going a little further, Orillia is reached with its delightful day's boating on one of the most beautiful inland lakes of the country. Keep this excursion in mind. The rates are exceedingly low, train service first-class, time rapid, and the comfort and enjoyment of every excursionist guaranteed.

Call Accepted.

Rev. A. H. Munro, of Peterborough, Accepts the Pastorate of Centre Street Baptist Church. [illegible] from Oct 1st.

[illegible] Journal.

[illegible] received from Rev. A. H. Munro, of Peterborough, accepting the call to the pastorate of the Centre Street Baptist Church, and his duties will begin in October. [illegible] Mr. Munro to be congratulated upon securing the services of so eminent a divine as Mr. Munro, who is celebrated as one of the finest preachers of the denomination in the province. Mr. Munro is well known throughout this portion of Ontario, having been for years pastor of the Alexander Street Church Toronto. Since that time he filled the pulpit of the First Baptist Church, Montreal, where he did a great amount of good work, and for the past two and a half years has labored successfully in Peterborough. In pastoral work he is exceedingly efficient, and his utterances in the pulpit are [illegible] which has been without a pastor since May last, and will be a great addition to the ministerial strength of the city. Mr. Munro has a wife and grown up family, and will take up his residence here as soon as arrangements can be made.

The "World" Gladstone Testimonial.

Contributions to the New York World Gladstone testimonial fund continue to come in, and Mr. Macrae, [illegible] to give all a chance to contribute, has postponed the date of sending his report and remitting contributions till next week.

The Driving Park Races.

The Driving Park Association is bound to make the big race meeting on the 26th and 27th of August a big success. They have issued 2000 fine three-color posters and Mr. Ned. Brown is now absent looking after their posting in Bowmanville, Whitby, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Belleville, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Beaverton, Orillia, Barrie and other towns. Whether he does not personally visit, bills are sent, so that the meeting will be widely advertised and will bring together the best horses in the district, and the handsome purses offered will make keen competition, so that two days of the finest sport ever seen in town will be presented at the Driving Park on the 26th and 27th.

Rhodian to Toronto.

One of the best opportunities that our citizens may have for some time of visiting the Queen City at a low rate, presents itself on our civic holiday, August 19th. Arrangements have been made to run a special train to Toronto via C. P. R. on that day, passengers can leave here either by that [illegible] 8.39 a.m. express, and tickets will be good to return on the 19th and 20th by any regular train. As the date fixed is not Toronto's civic holiday, parties desirous of doing business in the city, will doubtless avail themselves of this excellent chance, and others will go to see their friends and relations. Only a limited number of tickets will be issued at the low price, for the return journey, of $2. Tickets can be had at Alex. Elliott's C. P. R. ticket office, George street, at the station, or at A. L. Davis & Co's.

The Flight to the Woods.

The Midland station these days, at the outgoing of the Lakefield train, presents a novel and busy appearance. The platform is piled with weird heaps of tents, canoes, pots, pans and miscellaneous impediments and crowded with ladies with big hats and cotton frocks and men in camping attire, all intent on battling with black flies, hopeful for days of free-from-care enjoyment. This morning, two or three parties set out for the back lakes. One party consisted of Mr. E. J. Toker, C. H. Sheffield and W. H. Rackham and ladies. Another consisted of Messrs. John Bertram, W. W. Johnston, Wm. Bennet, jr. and three or four lads of various ages. This party is going out to Kels' Creek, to angle for the acrobatic salmon. Besides, there are numerous unidentified individuals, strangers, on their way to seek pleasure amongst our romantic and fish-filled back lakes.

Another One Gone.

Another of Bolton's celebrated patent hot water boilers has gone to Mr. C. A. Humber, of Goderich, and one is on the stocks for the residence of Mr. S. B. Burdett, L. L. D., of Belleville. The following are samples of one day's correspondence:—

"After leaving Peterborough I went to Toronto and saw all the different kinds of hot water, hot air and steam heating apparatus in the city, and came to the conclusion that I would have none but Bolton's boiler, so you can put me up one same size as you mentioned when I was in your shop, ship and draw at five days' sight." I was speaking to Mr. [illegible] a wealthy manufacturer in Toronto. He is building a new residence and says he will have no boiler but Bolton's to heat his place.

Yours truly, [illegible]

"I have seen the Gurney boiler, of Toronto, the Rogers & King, of Montreal, and the Peter Owen, of Detroit, but cannot say any of them are perfect. Some people like them and others do not, and consequently put them out. I have decided to take one of your boilers. Ship me a boiler No 8, price $156 in catalogue." Yours truly, [illegible]

"We have one Gurney boiler in our town and I can assure you I have had liberal offers in that direction. Ship boiler as soon as possible, number 8, price $156 in catalogue, and if it comes up to what I hear about it there will be more wanted here."

Respectfully yours, [illegible]

Mr. Bolton says that after spending thirteen years and as many thousand dollars in patterns and experiments, etc., and visiting every establishment where heaters are made, from Sarnia to Quebec, and from Maine to Chicago, four times, he has got to employ men to drum for custom or run after people himself; they are coming from all directions.

A meeting of the town council is called for to-night, and will perhaps be held—that is if the hot weather does not deter our city fathers from attending numerously enough to form a quorum.

Bridge Repairs.

Work is now going on in repairing the bridge over the creek at the intersection of Bethune and Aylmer streets. On Saturday a large herd of cattle was being driven over it and one of the principal beams gave way.

The Boys' Camp.

The members of the Rubidge-Cox et al camping party have returned home—rather prematurely. They were enjoying themselves immensely when suddenly starvation stared them in the face. Some hungry habitant stole their last ham.

Direct from Japan.

A cargo of tea arrived at British Columbia from China, one week ago to-day (Monday). Last night it passed through Peterborough—a train load—on the C. P. R., on its way to Chicago, where it is expected to arrive in the morning. This is a quick passage, and the C. P. R. are to be congratulated on the commercial enterprise and push displayed.

At the Churches.

There were slim congregations at most of the churches in town yesterday. Nearly half the town is out of town, on pleasure bent. While tenantless pews stared vacantly at the preaching pastor (those pastors who are not also out of town,) their erstwhile occupants were reading their pocket Bibles—possibly—or—probably — trying to rope in a muskinonge for supper. Of all the churches in town, at only two were the regular pastors in their places.

Cribbing Operations.

Work is now being prosecuted on the extension of the cribbing of the river banks—in front of the Dickson estate property—Dickson's Race. The crib work that was built from Meldrum & Davidson's flouring mills to Brodie's woollen mills is being continued south. Continual improvement involving large expenditure is going on and daily adding to the value of this already fine and well-improved property.

Migratory Movements.

Rev. Father Cassdan, of Watertown, Wis., left this morning for home, after a visit to his father, who resides in Peterborough.

Mrs. Daniel Sullivan left this morning for Milwaukee, to visit her brother.

Mr. Alex. Brodie and two sisters left this morning for the Kenosha Wells, Wisconsin.

John and Joseph Graham left this morning for Duluth, Minnesota, to visit their brother.

Viscount Lecrangey left this morning for Paris, by General Trans-atlantique French Steamer, via Havre. The C. T. R. agency furnished the tickets.

Off for the Northern Woods.

Mr. T. Calcutt will forward by this evening's G. T. R. train to Midland and thence by boat to French River, thirty men, for Messrs. Dobie & Cook, (Ontario Lumber Company.) Among the party are two cooks whose wages each will be $30 per month. The wages of the other men will average $17 per month.

Cobourg Cricket Contest.

Mr. J. E. Hammond has received a communication from the Campbellford cricket club, stating that they will be in town to play the return match, on Monday, August 16th, and the match will be played on the Ashburnham grounds on that date. The captain of the local club will endeavor to put a good team in the field, and if it does not succeed in defeating the best team in Canada (Vide Toronto Mail, Aug. 5th), it hopes, at least, to make the match interesting to spectators, who are invited to witness a magnificent exhibition of cricket on the part of the visitors, whose ability and skill are so far [illegible] Peterboro.

CATARRH CURED—OF YEARS STANDING.

DR. WASHINGTON, Throat and Lung Surgeon,

[illegible] Thursday, June 3, 1886.

THE JOURNAL,

Allow me through your paper to thank Dr. Washington, throat and lung surgeon, for the great relief he is giving me of catarrh which has greatly troubled me for years, also my daughter had form of pleurisy [illegible] almost incurable for years, in addition, she had malaria being eaten through, a hole big enough to lay my finger in, which I was told by doctors would be incurable. I was told by Dr. Washington I could be cured, and I am pleased to say I have also to recommend [illegible] Dr. Washington, who has been afflicted with catarrh and many diseases of the throat.

Yours truly, W. H. COX.

THE LOST SARNIA MEN

PARTICULARS OF THE YACHTING DISASTER ON LAKE HURON.

SARNIA, Aug. 9.—Later particulars are to hand of the loss of the yacht Cruiser on Lake Huron. The yacht left here four weeks ago, having on board Will. J. Sinclair, Fleming Mackenzie and Hope Mackenzie of Sarnia; Wm. Vidal, Station Master at Watford; Wat Morrison of Jarvis, and T. A. Telfer, Manager of the Bank of London at Watford. They cruised on the upper waters and worked back home by the Manitoulin Island, being expected here early last week. The lively north wind which blew Sunday evening and grew stronger in the night made it look bad, and the telegraph was put at work early in the week to trace them on the shore if possible. It was discovered that Saturday evening Fleming Mackenzie and Telfer had rowed into Southampton from an island close by and inquired for letters. The boys had evidently camped on the island, and the light-house keeper on the island reports that they left there at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, saying they would make straight for Sarnia. The tug International, Captain Williams, and crew left here on Thursday forenoon, with M. O'Gorman and John Major, in search of the boys. A careful scrutiny of the shore all the way up was kept, glasses being used, and about 3.30 p.m. the Cruiser was sighted on the beach two miles above Port Frank and about 32 miles from here. By 4 p.m. the Captain, O'Gorman and others were on the shore and discovered the Cruiser, right side up, on the beach, from 20 to 30 feet from the water, with the bodies of Fleming Mackenzie, Hope Mackenzie and T. A. Telfer in it. The bodies of Telfer and Fleming Mackenzie were lashed to the boat, and open knives lay beside them as though they had prepared to cut themselves loose in case a chance for life presented itself. Hope Mackenzie's body lay in the bottom of the boat, face downwards, his coat wrapped around his face, his shoes off, and a knife lay by his side. The International left on another search at 7 a.m. Friday to discover the bodies of Sinclair, Vidal and Morrison. A search was made as far as Bayfield, fifteen miles above Port Frank, resulting in finding a compass about five miles above where the Cruiser had been found. The tug got back here at 7 p.m. O'Gorman and Major remained up from the first trip to search the shore. All manner of theories are advanced as to when the young men were lost; but the probabilities are that it was Sunday night, between midnight and morning.

Will Sinclair was 24 years old and a law student. Wm. Vidal was 25 and leaves a wife and one child. Fleming Mackenzie clerked in a dry goods store and was 22 years old. Hope was about 18. Telfer lived with his step mother at Watford and was about 26. Walter C. Morrison was 21 and studying telegraphy. All were promising young men, and were well liked. The town is in deep mourning over the sad affair.

FIELD VERSUS BENNETT.

A Motion to Quash a Former Verdict Postponed for Two Days.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—A motion was made before the Court of Queen's Bench to-day to quash the verdict of the sheriff's jury in the suit of Cyrus W. Field against Jas. Gordon Bennett for libel, in which the latter was ordered to pay $25,000 damages and the cost of the suit. The grounds upon which the motion are asked are that the court had no jurisdiction in the case, both parties being foreigners and having no domicile in England; that the proceedings throughout were misconceived and could not be supported, etc. A hearing of the motion was postponed until Wednesday

Miss Cleveland's Magazine.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 9.—A. P. Elder, of the Elder Publishing Company, and proprietor of Literary Life, the magazine which Miss Rose Cleveland has undertaken to edit, confessed judgment to-day in the sum of $16,000. An execution was issued and the sheriff levied on the real estate and personal property of Mr. Elder.

A Pork Packer Beaten.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—The great strike in John P. Squire's pork packing works has come to an end, and all the men will doubtless return to work to-morrow. Squires agrees to withdraw his ironclad agreement, which he swore to make the men sign, and promises to increase the wages of all deserving men.

BRANTFORD'S SENSATION.

A Hundred Women Shut at Miss Rose by an Old Lover—Her Infamy Not Serious.

BRANTFORD, Aug. 9.—Friday afternoon, between 5 and 6 o'clock, a man called at the residence of George Messecar, Wellington-street, rang the bell, which was answered by Miss Messecar, and enquired if Mr. Messecar was home. Mrs. Messecar replied no, but she expected him shortly, and requested the stranger to wait till he came. He said he would call again, and asked for a glass of water. Mrs. Messecar turned to get the water, but no sooner had she turned than the stranger shot her. She fell to the floor unconscious. On regaining consciousness she found the door closed and the man gone. She managed to alarm one of the neighbors, who came to her assistance, and a doctor was immediately summoned. The ball struck the thick part of the left arm between the shoulder and the elbow. No serious result is anticipated. The stranger was about 35 years of age, dressed in black clothes. None of the neighbors nor children playing around the house saw the man nor heard the shot fired.

What appears most mysterious in connection with this case is that no information was given to the police authorities. The following is a story supposed to be connected with the affair: Before Mrs. Messecar was married, some twelve years ago she was a Miss Eddy and lived some distance from Brantford. At this time an individual fell desperately in love with her, but she rejected his attentions. Before she was married both Mr. Messecar and herself received anonymous threatening letters to the effect that if they married both would be killed. No notice was taken of these threats, and the parties were duly married. Some months after this a bottle of medicine was received labelled Mrs. Messecar, supposed to have been sent by the family medical man. Mrs. Messecar was not ill, and therefore had no occasion for medical treatment. Suspicions were consequently aroused and the contents of the bottle analysed, which was ultimately found to contain corrosive poison. From that day until last night nothing has been heard of the rejected lover, and it is surmised that the party who attempted the assassination is the old infatuated lover returned.

COTTON MEN IN COUNCIL.

A Conference of Montreal With a View to Regulating Prices.

MONTREAL, Aug. 9.—A meeting of cotton manufacturers of Canada was held here to-day, when every factory in the country, except Gibson's cloth mills, New Brunswick, was represented, representatives being present from Halifax, Moncton, Windsor, Hochelaga, Merchants' Cotton Co., Canada Cotton Co., Stormont, Kingston, Brantford, Lybster, Merritton, Hamilton, Ontario, Dundas, St. Croix and Valleyfield mills and Parks & Son, St. John, N. B. John Harvey of Hamilton was elected chairman. Committees were appointed to fix the prices of grey cottons, white cottons, colored cotton, dye colored cottons and yarn. A scale of prices was adopted and other arrangements made which were deemed satisfactory to the trade. It is understood that the advance will not be very serious, from 5 to 10 per cent. being spoken of. What the mills want, said one of the manufacturers to a reporter, is uniformity, so that they will not be cutting each other's throats right along as they have been doing.

CONQUERORS AGAIN.

Our Artillerymen Once More Beat All the Crack Teams of England.

MONTREAL, Aug. 9.—A cablegram received to-day from Col. Oswald announces that the Canadian artillery team again won first prize in the 64-pounder shooting competition, beating ninety-two teams and winning Sir Richard Wallace's prize of nine silver cups and £45 in money.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The artillery competitions at Shoeburyness were continued to-day. The Canadians won the first prize for shell firing, but failed to beat their opponents in repository drill.

Cavalry Instructors for Canada.

MONTREAL, Aug. 9.—Speaking of his recent trip to the old country, Gen. Middleton says: "I had some business with the House Guards, and that was the chief object of my visit to England. We want two instructors for the the military schools, and I was trying to arrange to bring the officers out here. Arrangements are nearly completed. You see I am trying to bring out as instructors graduates of the Royal Military Colleges. I am not at liberty to mention names yet, but I believe I may say that two Canadians, now holding an honorable rank in the Imperial army, will come out here."

A Priest's Advice to His Flock.

MONTREAL, Aug. 9.—Cure Marechal, of the parish church of Notre Dame de Grace, at the morning service yesterday advised his flock earnestly at the approaching elections to vote for the best candidate, and expressed a sincere hope that no other considerations would weigh with them than a solemn desire to do their duty to the Almighty. He also took occasion to revert to the fact which he extremely regretted, that some of the parishioners had a picture of Louis Riel with a rope around his neck in juxtaposition to sacred pictures. He also stated that Louis Riel could not be a martyr, as he had persevered both the priests and the Church.

A Circus Employe Seriously Injured.

MONTREAL, Aug. 9.—During a performance at Forepaugh's circus to-day one of the riders of a camel was pitched to the ground and the animal rolled over him. He was removed to the General Hospital, where it was found he had sustained severe internal injuries and now lies in a precarious condition.

Toronto Lacrosse Players at New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—A large crowd witnessed the lacrosse match to-day at St. George, S. I., between the Torontos and the New Yorks. The play was sharp and exciting. The Torontos won the choice of goals, and after a brief contest of four minutes, Garvin, by a lucky shot from centre field, sent the ball bounding through the New York flags, winning the first goal for the visitors. Play was immediately resumed, and in ten minutes the second goal had been scored for the Torontos by Stowe. The New Yorkers struggled in vain to prevent "three straight," and a pretty contest of sixteen minutes was terminated by Dixon of the Torontos scoring a goal, giving the visitors the match. The champions were roundly cheered by the onlookers and brilliant play on either side was heartily applauded throughout the match. The Torontos were much the lighter team of the two, but their combined play was very effective and their defence was apparently invulnerable.

The Crops in the Northern States.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 9.—From its 5000 special crop reports the American Rural Home summarizes the present condition of crops throughout the country as follows: We are yet in the midst of a drouth, its greatest severity having been felt on the pastures and the corn crop. What amount of damage the latter has sustained no one can know with any degree of certainty until the corn crop is gathered; but as to the pastures there is no doubt to-day that for many years they have never been in as poor condition as they were upon the opening of August. Spring wheat and oats are all secured, the acreage of winter wheat is still very low.

Vice Commodore Gooderham, of Toronto, has launched his yacht Oriole. She will cost $20,000.

THE BELFAST RIOTS.

THE CITY IN THE HANDS OF A BLOOD-THIRSTY MOB.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—A Belfast despatch to the Times says: "At least a dozen persons were killed in Sunday's riots and 200 wounded. The crisis thereby was in some measure relieved, but the soldiers were forced to clear the streets by charging bayonets, the riot not having previously been read. It is reported that there is scarcely a house on Shank-hill road lacking injured rioters. The mob having charged the police with drunkenness, Inspector Reed paraded the streets at the risk of his life and satisfied himself of their sobriety."

BELFAST, Aug. 9.—The city, owing to the wreck and ruin of houses, presents a deplorable aspect. Its appearance is similar to that of Paris after the Communes. It is feared that numerous deaths resulting from the riots have taken place which will never be heard of. The hospitals are taxed to the utmost to accommodate the great number of wounded persons in need of attention. A painful feature of the riots is the number of children wounded. Yesterday a boy was shot while returning from Sunday school. A soldier shot at the boy at close quarters. He was arrested. To-day a little girl was shot on the streets, it is thought fatally. She was carried away apparently lifeless.

Train loads of troops are constantly arriving.

An incident of the disorders is as follows: Mrs. Mellhwaine on Saturday harangued a small crowd of neighbors in regard to the riots, and roundly abused the police for firing upon the people. She afterwards expressed a fear that she would lose her life on account of her speech. She therefore, in order to avoid recognition, put on a black dress on Sunday instead of the white one which she wore on Saturday. This precaution, however, failed to save her. Yesterday, during the progress of the riots, she ran to her door to gather in some straying children, a bullet struck her on the head and she fell lifeless in the doorway.

The aspect of affairs was so threatening at noon to-day that the authorities ordered all taverns in the city to be closed until to-morrow evening. Groups of men are assembled everywhere, excitedly discussing the situation. The military early this morning dispersed several rival mobs at the point of the bayonet.

BELFAST, Aug. 9.—Rioting was renewed this morning, and desperate fighting between the mob and the police, assisted by the military, has been going on since an early hour. At this writing the fighting has been growing fiercer and assuming large proportions. The rioters show no mercy. The police fire into their ranks and remorselessly shoot them down as though they were wild beasts. So far this morning thirty persons have been brought to the hospitals for treatment of gunshot wounds. Thus far the police reports show that eleven persons have been killed and fully 100 seriously wounded since Saturday evening. A majority of the wounded are suffering from gunshot wounds.

BELFAST, Aug. 9.—At a peaceable meeting of artisans to-day resolutions were adopted strongly condemning the police. At the Methodist ministers' conference a resolution was passed expressing regret at the needless sacrifice of life. At two inquests verdicts were rendered reflecting on the conduct of the police. Nine more inquests will be held to-morrow.

BELFAST, Aug. 9.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chief Secretary for Ireland, Prince Edward of Saxe Weimar, Commander in Chief of the Irish forces, and Sir Robert Hamilton, Under Secretary for Ireland, had a conference at Dublin to-day, at which it was decided to invest the superior military officers at Belfast with magisterial powers. The magistrates ordered that all taverns be kept closed from 6 o'clock this afternoon until Thursday.

BELFAST, Aug. 9.—If rioting breaks out again it is likely that martial law will be proclaimed. During the day two opposing mobs in an outlying district managed to elude the police and retired to a sheltered field where for an hour there was a desperate melee. Both parties claimed a victory. It is believed that two persons were killed and that their bodies were smuggled to their homes. One witness declares that sixty persons fell, many of whom were dead. It was evident that each party intended to annihilate the other. The mobs were dispersed by the military and police. It is reported that during a collision in Shankhill the police were preparing to fire when they were confronted by the military and peremptorily ordered to desist. The police sullenly lowered their rifles and the military commander succeeded in urging the rioters, most of whom it is believed were Protestants, to their homes. A certain man was chased four hours by a mob thirsting for his blood, but he eluded his pursuers after a desperate effort when nearly succumbing to exhaustion. The police rescued him by charging his pursuers at the point of the bayonet. A boy was chased by the mob on emerging from the back entrance of a factory and badly beaten. The girl who was wounded at noon to-day is dying. The town is apparently quiet to-night, but mischief is smouldering, and it is thought the rioters are watching their chance to renew hostilities. The military occupy the streets. Further reinforcements have been requested. The Orangemen are bitterly incensed against the county police, whom they allege to be in sympathy with the Catholics. Fifty rioters have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from one to six months.

BELFAST, Aug. 10.—There are now 5,500 extra military and police quartered in the city, and more are coming. At 2 o'clock this morning a mob made a desperate attack upon the police with stones, badly wounding some of them. In Ballymacara, a suburb, the police were attacked, and a police inspector was seriously injured.

MICHAEL DAVITT'S MISSION.

He Refuses to Discuss or Advise Upon Differences in the Ranks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—"Mr. Parnell and Mr. President Egan," said Michael Davitt to-day, "invited me to attend the Chicago convention in the interest of harmony. I am not a delegate, but came over for a change of air and a short rest. I promised to address a meeting on Saturday of the united Irish societies at Chicago. During my stay here I shall see and confer with the leaders of the Irish movement." Mr. Davitt refused to express any opinion about the reply of President Egan to Secretary Gleason of the New York municipal council on the subject of allowing other societies to be represented in the convention at Chicago. He said the other differences would be adjusted and that the influence of the Irish delegates would be for harmony.

Home Agents Sentenced.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The Home Office has, it is announced, been informed from New York that a number of dynamiters have left the United States for the purpose of making attacks on the English Government. The conspirators, report says, will go from New York to Paris, and there await a favorable opportunity for entering England. The Home office has notified the French Government. Some of the Home Department officials declare that they believe the whole enterprise, as reported from New York, is merely a renewal of O'Donovan Rossa's demonstration to raise money.

THE voters' lists under the Ontario Franchise Act require attention. It is reported, says the Hamilton Times, that some of the assessors in South Wentworth have placed the names of non-residents on the lists, and these ought to be pointed out without delay by advertisers acquainted with each locality. Under the Ontario Act the rule is "one man one vote." A good rule for Reformers everywhere is never to trust a Tory in political matters. The essence of Toryism is that a minority should rule and oppress the majority. The lists can be revised for one month after publication. We hope the Reformers of this county will see to the lists and give their enemies no improper advantages.

Town Council.

Our City Fathers Swelter and Legislate Two Hours.

The Council assembled in regular session on Monday August 9th. Present His Worship Mayor Stevenson in the chair and Messrs. Kendry, Menzies, Rutherford, Moore, McNeil, Kelly, McNaughton and Cahill, Hartley and Yelland. After routine there were presented the following

From Mr. Burland, Montreal, stating that he would visit Peterborough, respecting the establishment of a paper manufactory.—Received.

From the Engineer of the G. T. R., requesting the town to assist in constructing the new bridge on Bethune street.—Filed.

FINANCE.

Mr. Davidson, chairman, read the report of the Finance Committee as follows:

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend the payment of the following accounts:

H. Best	$19 00
Breese & Bain	3 00
W. Loch	12 00
W. A. Sanderson	20 00
Canadian Rubber Company	10 00
Metropolitan Grocery, charity orders, per Yelland & Hartley	24 00
Geo. Hilliard	111 31

Your Committee would also recommend that the Treasurer draw a cheque in favor of the Collector for the amount of taxes on the office occupied by the Solicitor.

On the motion to adopt the report, Mr. McNiel asked information respecting the remission of Town Solicitor's taxes. Mr. Davidson said that the office was rented to the Solicitor without any mention being made about taxes, and according to law the owner of the property was liable to pay the taxes.

The report was adopted.

BETHUNE STREET VS. G. T. R.

Mr. Moore reported verbally with reference to the raising of the road on Bethune street. Mr. Bell, Solicitor for the G. T. R., did not know that there was any complaint, and requested to know about what was wanted. Being informed on this point, the matter was referred to the chief engineer, and it was Mr. Moore's opinion that the railway company would meet the views in the matter.

DISPOSITION OF HYDRANTS.

Mr. Rutherford, in reference to the number and position of hydrants, presented a report of the superintendent stating that the hydrants were distributed as follows:—Total number on George street, 18; on Water street, 7; on Aylmer street, 3; on Charlotte street, 3; on Hubbidge street, 3; on Reid street, 2; on Stewart street, 1; on London street, 3; grand total of hydrants only 40, of which the town pays rental for 39. The average distance between hydrants was 600 feet.

INTERVENTION.

Mr. Cahill said the information gave no information as to the reasonableness or otherwise of what was asked. He would move that Mr. Hartley, a ratepayer, and Mr. Davidson, a member of the Board of Works, who had signed the petition according to the by-law, should be named, seconded by Mr. Davidson.—That the placing of the hydrants be entirely referred to as provided in the by-law submitted to the people and adopted by them; and if the whole number of hydrants as passed be not required within the said limits, the surplus hydrants shall be disposed of by the Council as to locating the same.—Carried.

WARD SIDEWALKS.

Moved by Mr. Kelly, seconded by Mr. McNaughton,—That the Street Inspector be instructed to have a sidewalk laid down on the east side of Downie street, from Charlotte north for a distance of about 200 feet, and also to have Charlotte street waterbridged from Downie to Reid street.—Referred to Street Committee.

Moved by Mr. Kendry, seconded by Mr. Menzies,—That the Street Inspector be authorized to repair the north side of Edinburgh street from T. W. Robinson's to the railway crossing.—Referred to Street Committee.

ABOUT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH WATER MOTOR.

Moved by Mr. McNeil, seconded by Mr. Kelly,—That the Health Inspector be instructed to take legal proceedings to abate the nuisance at present existing from the water coming from the English Church motor.

Moved in amendment by W. H. Moore, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, that the church wardens of the St. John's church be requested to provide means of dispersing of the waste water from their motor in the church premises or to be carried away as that it shall not flow down any street.

MR. CROFT said a petition had been presented a year ago referring to the nuisance. If he did not get redress from the council he would take other steps to protect himself.

PRIVATE PROPERTY APPROACHES.

Moved by Mr. Hartley seconded by Mr. Kendry, that the street inspector be instructed to put down proper approaches to Mr. Bates' property, Stewart Street.

WORK STARTED ON THE C. P. R.

Moved by Mr. Davidson seconded by Mr. McNaughton, that the petition of Mr. Bennett re Wolfe st., be referred to the Town Solicitor, he to notify the company that they be required to open the street and make the proper approaches to the same, and that the petition of T. R. McGrath and others re Stewart, be referred to the Town Solicitor, to notify the C. P. R. company to have the obstructions removed off the street as required by law, and also to have the street planked between the rails.—Carried.

BETHUNE STREET AND THE G. T. R.

Mr. Kelly moved, seconded by Mr. McNeil, that the Town Solicitor be instructed to take action against the G. T. R. as he may deem proper, in reference to the grade of Bethune street.—Carried.

TAXES REMITTED.

Moved by Mr. Hartley, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that the Clerk issue a cheque for the amount of John Newton's taxes, as he is unable to pay the same.—Carried.

PRIVATE PROPERTY APPROACHES.

Moved by Mr. Yelland, seconded by Mr. Moore, that the Street Inspector be instructed to put down approaches on Brock street, at Mr. John Gibb's entrance.

A REMINDER.

Mr. McNeil moved, seconded by Mr. Kelly, that the Street Inspector be instructed to construct a sidewalk in front of Mr. Hutchenson's residence, Sheridan street.—Carried.

COLLECTOR'S ROLL.

Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the Town Collector do within one week from this day, return the collector's roll and all other rolls in his charge to the Town Treasurer and that Mr. Beavis be requested to pay in the dog-tax money in his hands and the book of receipts.—Carried.

DONNEGAL STREET DRAIN.

Mr. Douglas addressed the Council in reference to a drain on Donnegal street, pointing out that there were nine houses on that street and no walks, and he insisted that he and the other ratepayers receive justice in the matter.—Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

CHIEF COOPER'S APPLICATION.

The application of Chief Cooper was referred to the Committee on Appointments.

CRESCENT STREET PRESERVATION

Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr. Cahill,—That the Street and Bridge Committee be requested to meet the members of the Little Lake Cemetery Company and discuss the matter of cribbing and sidewalk on Crescent street, and obtain an estimate of the cost and report to this Council.—Carried.

HUNTER SHREET BRIDGE.

His worship stated that the Hunter street bridge had been re-planked and that the old plank was at the town's disposal, and it was directed that the plank be placed in the town lumber yard.

STREET CROSSING.

Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr. Yelland,—That the Street Inspector be instructed to place a crossing on McDonel street at or near the point where Stewart street crosses said street.—Carried.

Council adjourned for three weeks.

The Cheese Question.

The Montreal Trade Bulletin says: "The easier feeling in the cheese market noted by us last week appears to have been caused by bluff offers made by parties here to deliver July cheese in Liverpool at 37s. 6d. at 38s. 6d. some of which were accepted, and it is feared will now have to be filled at a loss. It is surprising how stubbornly buyers on the other side withstood the recent advance which was forced upon them only when it became apparent that supplies were actually falling below consumptive requirement and even then they resisted to the last any belief in the short make theory on this side, owing to their being misled by the low offers of July goods. Recent Liverpool, London and Bristol advices state, however, that dealers there are beginning to realize the fact that there is a material shrinkage in the production of cheese on this continent, and that so far this season Great Britain has received from Canada and the United States about 200,000 boxes less than during the corresponding period last year. Yet in spite of the above fact English buyers seem determined to buy from hand to mouth, notwithstanding that a good consumptive demand keeps their stores comparatively bare of stock. They are willing, however, to pay 8s. at 84s. c. i. f. Liverpool for cool selection of July, which would seem to indicate a decidedly healthier feeling, and more disposition to do business. In this market 8¾c. has been paid for choice white goods this week, and a firmer market appears to be developing all round.

Unseen Friends at Guelph.

GUELPH, Aug. 9.—Jos. F. Rainer & Son, piano manufacturers, have engaged considerable attention from the customs authorities at this port for the past two weeks. The officers discovered that this firm had been smuggling the strings used in their pianos. Ten pianos in possession of C. Reinhardt, until recently a silent partner in the firm, were placed under seizure, the smuggled strings having been used in their manufacture. The strings came from New York in boxes containing other piano appliances, duty only being paid on the latter. A member of the firm acknowledged that false representations had been made to the customs officers. The department at Ottawa refuses to accept the back duty as a settlement of the claim against Rainer. Mr. Reinhardt, in order to deliver to customers some of the instruments seized, has given his cheque to the officers for $200 under protest, and the pianos have been released. The case will probably be settled as soon as the department determines on the penalty.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST CATHARINES, Sept. 25th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN.—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two princeless trusses made in York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your Truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of others. Yours truly, [illegible]

Take Cut Shows one Style only.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child sure; and 90 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address,

LOVE'S VICTORY.

BY BERTHA M CLAY

"I have done a great deed, Vane," she said, "and I have the reward that, only me, from the ruin of Bodie women, and dishonors me."

Still keeping her hold of the white hand, he said,—

"Tell me what it was—I can bear far better than you."

It seemed to her lover's fancy that the sunshine had faded from the sky, though there was not a cloud to be seen, and that the very earth and sky were bleeding. Look at me, think of me, and tell me all."

She could never remember how she began her story—how she told him the whole history of her life—of the happy years spent [illegible] d'Ormeville, where she learned to love truth for its own sake, and was brought up amidst those kindly, simple-hearted artist friends, with such bitter scorn, such utter contempt of all [illegible]—of her keen and [illegible] from her father died, and Sir Oswald took her home to Darrell Court, telling her that her past life was at an end forever, and that even the memory should be banished from her mind; how for a time she had grown to like her new home with its [illegible] pride and power, and under no [illegible] the stern, uncompromising truth and the worldly pomp Sir Oswald would have had her acquire.

She concealed nothing from him, telling him of her faults as well as her trials. She gave him the whole history of Aubrey Langton's wooing, and her contemptuous rejection of his suit.

"I was so proud, Vane," she said humbly. "Heaven was sure to punish me. I surrounded myself, as it were, with a barrier of pride, scorn, and contempt, and my pride has been brought low."

She told him of Sir Oswald's anger at her refusal to marry Aubrey, of her uncle's threat that he would disinherit her, of her [illegible] disbelief—[illegible] was no incident [illegible] and then she came to the evening when Sir Oswald had opened the box to take out the diamond ring, and had spoken before them all of the roll of bank-notes placed there.

"That night, Vane," she said, "there was a strange unrest upon me. I could not sleep. I have had the same sensation when the air has been overcharged with electricity before a storm; I seemed to hear strange noises, my heart beat, my face was flushed and hot, every nerve seemed to thrill with pain. I opened the window, thinking that the cool night air would drive the fever from my brain.

"As I sat there in the profound silence, I heard, as plainly as I hear myself speaking now, footsteps—quiet, stealthy footsteps—pass [illegible]

"Let me finish [illegible] where my uncle kept his cash-box and his papers, is on the ground floor; on the floor above that there are several guests-chambers, Captain Langton slept in one of these. My uncle slept on the third floor, and, in order to reach his room, was obliged to go through the corridor where the rooms of Miss Darrell and myself were.

"I heard those quiet, stealthy footsteps, Vane, and my heart for a few moments beat painfully.

"But the Darrells were never cowards. I went to my door and opened it gently. I could see to the very end of the corridor, for at the end there was a large arched window, and a faint gray light coming from it showed me a stealthy figure creeping silently from Sir Oswald's room; the gray light showed me also a glimmer of steel, and I knew, almost by instinct, that the silent figure carried Sir Oswald's keys in its hands.

"In a moment I had taken my resolve. I pushed my door to, but did not close it; I took off my slippers, lest they should make a sound, and followed the figure down stairs. As I have said before, the Darrells were never cowards; no dread came to me; I was intent upon one thing—the detection of the wrongdoer.

"Not more than a minute passed while I was taking off my slippers, but when I came to the head of the stairs the light and figure had both disappeared. I paused to tell what I published into the library—perhaps the remembrance of Sir Oswald's money being there came to me. I crossed the hall and opened the library door.

"Though I had never liked Captain Langton, the scene that was revealed to me came upon me as a shock—one that I shall never forget. There was Captain Langton with my uncle's cash-box before him and the roll of bank-notes in his hand. He looked up when I entered, and a terrible curse fell from his lips—a frightful curse. His face was fearful to see. The room lay in the shadow of deepening twilight, save for the [illegible] carried [illegible] fallen [illegible] shoulders [illegible] it was drawn, haggard, livid, with bloodless lips and wild, glaring eyes.

"He laid the bank-notes down, and, going to the door, closed it softly, turning the key; and then clutching my arm in a grasp of iron, he hissed rather than said:

"'What fiend has brought you here?'

"He did not frighten me, Vane; I have never believed that. But his eyes were full of murderous hate, and I had an idea that he would have few scruples as to taking my life.

"'Mr. Captain Aubrey Langton,' I said, slowly, 'you are a thief! You are robbing my uncle, Sir Oswald Darrell, of his money!'

"He laughed—a low, mocking laugh, full of scorn and contempt—for his grew more livid as he watched me.

"'It is all your fault!' he hissed into my ear; 'it is your accursed pride that has driven me to this! Why could you not promise to marry me? Why did you [illegible] me?'

"'I am [illegible] married to this midnight thief!'

"'I told you I was desperate,' he went on. 'I pleaded with you, I grovelled to you, I laid my life at your feet, and you trampled on it with scorn. I told you of my debts, my difficulties, and you laughed at them. If I could have gone back to London betrothed to you, every city usurer would have been willing to lend me money; I am driven to this, for I cannot go back to face ruin. You have driven me to it, you are the thief, though my hands take the money. Your thrice-accursed pride has ruined me!'

"'I shall go to Sir Oswald,' I said, 'and wake him. You shall not rob him!'

"'Yes,' he returned, 'I shall. I defy you. I dare you; you shall tell no one.'

"He took the revolver from the table and held it to my head; I felt the cold steel touch my forehead.

"'No one shall betray me, or I will fire.'

"'I am not afraid to die; I would rather die than hide such sin as yours. You cannot frighten me; I shall call for assistance.'

"'Wait a moment,' he said, still keeping the [illegible] my forehead, and with his murderous eyes on my face, 'listen to what I shall do. The moment you cry out I shall fire, and you will fall down dead—I told you I was a desperate man. Before any one has time to come I shall place the [illegible] in your hand. [illegible] shall be [illegible] I am dead, you will be [illegible] man [illegible] of his own [illegible] shirt, and she was wrapped in them and carried to the doctor's at Cambray. We cannot learn how long she was in the mud, or whether she was much exhausted when found.—Gazette.

Fenelon Falls.

About two o'clock last Tuesday afternoon Flora McNevis, a little girl 7 years of age who lives near Isley, left Huckleberry Marsh on Goose Lake for home, missed her way, and got lost. As she did not return a party of forty men went to look for her and hunted until dark, but could not find her. Next morning they resumed their search, watched her footsteps in the mud around Goose Lake, and found her about 30 rods from the edge of the marsh, sunk, all but her head and neck, in the mud, which is so tenacious that they had to cut her clothes, draw her out of them, and leave them where they were. A man [illegible] put his own [illegible] shirt, and she was wrapped in them and carried to the doctor's at Cambray. We cannot learn how long she was in the mud, or whether she was much exhausted when found.—Gazette.

DR. PIERCE'S

is the result of this vast experience.

It is a powerful Restorative Tonic, and Nervine, imparts vigor and strength to the system, and, promptly as by magic, builds up the shattered nervous forces. It cures nervous prostration, nervous exhaustion, nervous debility, spinal weakness, nervous irritability, nervous sleeplessness, nervous depression, nervous headache, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea, or St. Vitus' dance, and all nervous affections, when not beyond the reach of medicine. It is a specific for those painful menstruations, uterine displacements, weaknesses, inflammations, ulcerations, and kindred affections of the delicate organism of women. It is unequaled as a remedy for nursing mothers, or for the expectant mother, as it promotes the secretion of mother's milk, and greatly lessens the pain of parturition, by shortening the period of labor. It is the best remedy for relieving and curing Prolapsus, or falling of the uterus, weak back, leucorrhœa, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation, and ulceration of the womb, inflammatory pain and tenderness in ovaries, internal heat, and female weakness generally.

It promptly relieves, and cures Nausea and Weakness of Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, and Sleeplessness, in either sex.

BANKERS—Bank of Toronto and Canadian Bank of Commerce.
SOLICITORS—Dumble & Henry.

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100 and upwards, bearing date and $1000 each, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, half-yearly; Interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or the Bank of Toronto in Toronto, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested on first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture holders. The Directors believe that the actual value of the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders' [illegible] exceeds [illegible]. The annual statement shows that the amount so invested was over $700,000, and on this security of real estate at least double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgage may be repaid by yearly instalments, of whatever [illegible] may be agreed upon, the interest ceasing at once on all amounts paid on account of [illegible].

Applications may be made either to the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

Riverside Recreation.

Riverside Park will have great attractions on the Civic holiday, August 19th. The chief attraction will be a match game of lacrosse between the Athletics of Madoc and the Riverside team. At the close of the match a programme of athletic sports will be presented.

The Lecture on Labour.

The public are reminded that to-night, the Rev. Walter M. Roger, of London, will deliver his lecture on the "Labour Question," in St. Paul's church lecture room; this evening at 8 o'clock. Admission free, but a collection will be taken up in aid of the building fund of the lecturer's church in London, Ont.

Garden Party.

The date fixed for the garden party in aid of St. Luke's having been chosen for the band entertainment, it has been decided to hold the garden party at Mrs. Orde's on Tuesday, August 10th. The band has kindly promised to attend. Remember the place, Robinson street, Ashburnham, next to the residence of Mr. H. Calcutt. Admission, 10 cents. All made welcome from five o'clock, p.m.

The Gospel Army Meeting.

Commissioner Lindsay, Captain George Carswell, and Lieutenant Gates, of the Gospel Army, have arrived from Brockville and will conduct the meeting at the Gospel Hall (old music hall) to-night. This is Commissioner Lindsay's farewell visit to town previous to his early departure for England, where he will continue the work. Captain Carswell and Lieutenant Gates remain in command of this station. The soldiers, doubtless, will give the visitors a hearty welcome, and the public are cordially invited to attend this evening at 8 o'clock.

Civic Holiday Attractions.

Civic Holiday is designed to be a day of recreation and enjoyment, and to secure this to the fullest extent, the P. A. A. A. excursion to Sturgeon Point and Orillia presents the grandest opportunity. A day at Sturgeon Point with brief travel, or by going a little further, Orillia in seached with its delightful day's boating on one of the most beautiful inland lakes of the country. Keep this excursion in mind. The rates are exceedingly low, train service first-class, time rapid, and the comfort and enjoyment of every excursionist guaranteed.

Quick Work.

On Friday evening last, says the Port Hope Times, a man calling himself Peter Rooks, (alias Rath,) arrived in Port Hope, from Peterborough, and having a woman he called his wife with him. Between Saturday night and Sunday morning, they were caught stealing coal and wood at the G. T. R. station and arrested. They appeared before P. M. Holland this morning and sentenced to three months in Cobourg jail. Thieves have but a poor field in Port Hope, and the "previous" manner in which this couple undertook to get in their winter's fuel, should be a warning to all of their class. They arrived Friday night,—caught on Saturday night,—spent the day in the lock-up Sunday,—and Monday found them in the counties' jail.

From the Pacific Coast.

Tidings from an Old Peterborough Resident.

Mr. W. J. Gage has received a letter from Mr. J. J. Kidd, formerly in business in Peterborough, but now growing up with Vancouver, British Columbia. The letter graphically details the hardships endured by himself and family and the other residents through the fire that swept nearly the city last June. He desires to thank his many friends for their expressions of sympathy with him in his trouble, and his thanks are due to Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows, of which he was a member, for the liberal offer of substantial assistance. He states that the sum of $21,000 has been sent to the relief of the homeless inhabitants of the burnt city, from different parts of Canada, which has been distributed in sums of $10 to $100, according to the needs of different persons where the fire occurred. Mr. Irwin was getting on well, but the fire swept all away. He lost largely, having no insurance and many members of his family having only the clothing they had on at the time. The fire, fanned by a fierce gale, swept on rapidly and in less than an hour the fire, which caught Mr. Irwin's house among the first, had swept the place out of existence. The city is being rebuilt and the railway, upon which so much depends, will be completed about October 1st. Mr. Irwin mentions the arrival of the first through shipment of tea over the C. P. R. route, the same that passed through Peterborough on Monday, as mentioned in last evening's EXAMINER. Mr. Irwin furnishes a brief market report showing how prices rule for the necessities of life. Fruit is very dear; plums sell at 20c. per pound, and apples at 12½c., while salmon two feet long can be bought for 25c. Eggs are 25c. per dozen: potatoes $2 per cwt. Butter sells at 30c. per pound and flour for $3 per cwt. Bread is exceptionally cheap, being 15 loaves for one dollar. This is in great contrast to the prices for bread prevailing in Peterborough.

Gospel Army Camp-Meeting

Owing to Commissioner Lindsay having been summoned to England on Army work, and owing to the impossibility of securing seats and tents, the camp-meeting announced to take place at Crawford's Grove, has been postponed for the present. Meetings will, however, be conducted in the Gospel Army Hall, Peterborough, every evening.

The Great Bon Marche.

The boom in big bargains at the Bon Marche still goes on. The most astonishing bargains in all kinds of goods continue to be given every day. No one can afford to miss this chance of getting all kinds of goods at from 75 to 100 per cent. below the regular price. The stock has to be cleared out, even if the goods have to be sent thing to given away. Call on Carton at the Bon Marche.

Painting it Red.

Companies 1, 2, 4 and 5 of the City Battalion had a vigorous and gay drill last night. Companies 2 and 4 went out on parade, the former marching in line form to the market square and return, while the latter, in splendid style, painted scarlet a number of the suburban streets. The members of the several companies seem to enjoy their drills with almost a second love, and every indication points to an efficient and well-disciplined Battalion.

Not Allowed to Enter.

This morning, Mr. Arthur Strickland, of Lakefield, arrived by C. P. R. express from Lachine and he and his rowing shell went up on the Lakefield train. He went to engage in the single scull contest at the Lachine regatta, but through some informality in entering he was not allowed to start. It is not pleasant to lug a shell, which is not carried quite so conveniently as an umbrella, seven or eight hundred miles and then on account of some petty technicality, not be allowed to use it.

The Driving Park Races.

The Driving Park Association is bound to make the big race meeting on the 26th and 27th of August a big success. They have issued 1000 fine three-color posters and Mr. Ned. Brown is now absent looking after their posting in Bowmanville, Whitby, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Belleville, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Beaverton, Orillia, Barrie and other points. Where he does not personally visit, bills are sent, so that the meeting will be widely advertised and will bring together the best horses in the district, and the handsome purses offered will make keen competition, so that two days of the finest sport ever seen in town will be presented at the Driving Park on the 26th and 27th.

En Route for the Lake Regions.

The back lakes are increasingly popular—more so this year than ever and, in fact, so much so that they threaten to lose some of their popularity as retired places of recreation. Persons who go out for a few day's rest and quiet fishing, complain that they are crowded and that instead of getting away from people they are running right into multitudes of them among the back lakes. This morning there was again a rush. There were many parties going out to join others that had gone before and several new parties. A boys' party, consisting of the sons of Col. Harry Rogers, the sons of Mr. J. Irwin and the sons of Mr. Baldwin, of Toronto, went out this morning with a full equipment for a long stay—canoes, baggage, tents, rations, etc. The young lads had a sort of desperado look, each carrying a rifle and bearing on their juvenile hips formidable hunting knives. Messrs. Cahill, Davidson and McNeil and a party of ladies also were among the Lakefield emigrant conflagrent. If the exodus goes on at present rates, the population will be dwindled down to about one half its normal proportions.

A Good Surgical Appointment.

Dr. King has, we are pleased to learn, been appointed surgeon to the Midland railway for the portions of line, radiating from Peterborough and terminating at the places mentioned. On the Midland, from Peterborough to Omemee and Millbrook, on the Lakefield line to Lakefield, on the Grand Junction to Keene. Dr. King will have the surgical and medical oversight of the employees of the company in this district, numbering about 150 men. Not the least of the perquisites pertaining to the position, is a pass over the G.T. R. line. The doctor is to be congratulated on his appointment and the men on having so genial, jolly and capable a medical officer placed in charge of them.

Cricket with Campbellford.

The secretary of the Peterborough Cricket Club has received the following note from the secretary of the Campbellford Cricket Club, fixing Monday, the 16th, as the date of the return match between these clubs :—

Campbellford, Aug. 9th, 1886.

The Boomerang-handlers will be up on Monday, 16th. Please give them fair treatment, as they come from a sunbeam on a railway. Yours &c.

The phoky "Boomerang-handlers" may rely upon receiving fair treatment and best attention. It might be remembered that the secretary of the cricket club was not the author of the article which appeared in a recent issue of the Mail styling the Campbellford cricketers "the boomerang-handlers," etc.

Cheese Market.

Lively Bidding on the Last Half of July's Make—The Highest Price of the Season, 8 1-2c. Paid.

The regular fortnightly board of the Peterborough and Victoria cheese market, was held in the old Music Hall, on Tuesday afternoon and was the liveliest market of the season. The price paid was also the highest reached this season. The number of boxes, as shown by the new board provided, was 1655 of the last half of July's make, contributed by the several factories as follows:

The cable showed 42 s. and the Utica market 7½c. to 8½c.

The buyers present were Messrs. W. S. Cook, Belleville, R. Leary, and J. D. Flavelle, of Lindsay, F. H. Brintnell, Iteli, Orono, representing Jackson & Hallett, of Guelph, W. Beasley, Warkworth, representing M. Hodgson, of Montreal, B. Green, of town, representing Mr. Dingwall, of Lancaster, who was also present and Messrs. W. H. Wrighton and W. H. Clarke, of town.

Mr. Leary opened the bidding with 7½c. for the board, and continued as follows:—Flavelle, 7¾c. for board; Green, 7¾c. for board; Flavelle, 7¾c for selections; Leary, 7¾c. for board; Cook, 8c. for board; Beasley 8¼ for selections; Cook, 8¼c. for board; Beasley, 8¼c. for selections; Green, 8¼c. for board; Britnall, 8½c. for selections.

The president called for further bids, but none being made, Mr. Britnell proceeded to make his selections, when Mr. Cook put in 8¼c. for selections. He was called on to make selections and took Norwood and Westwood.

On the balance, Mr. Green offered 8¼c. and Mr. Britnell 8½c. for selections. The latter bid was accepted and Mr. Britnell selected the makes of Keene, Warminster, S. Dummer, N. Smith, Lakefield, Trewerne and Myrtle.

Mr. Cook offered 8c. for the balance, Mr. Green 8 1-16, Mr. Cook 8 3-16 for selections, Mr. Green 8¼ for the balance of the board.

The salesmen for Otonabee Union, Lakehurst, Warsaw, Central Normanhurst, Dawneyville and North Ops factories accepted Mr. Green's offer. Pine Grove also accepted but withdrew. The salesmen for Otonabee Union intimated a desire to withdraw if the board considered it fair. A short discussion followed in which several members expressed themselves opposed to the salesmen's action. He finally accepted the bid.

The other factories declined to sell and the market was adjourned for two weeks.

—The thermometer still continues to rise and citizens are seeking the back lakes and woods for pleasant, cool places.

—For all kinds of fine fruit—call at Groom's, George street.

Senator and Philosopher.

Senator Gibson, Louisiana, has been telling me of a diary of Dr. Franklin recently published. Gibson suffers from gout, and so enjoys Franklin's sympathetic disquisition upon it. On one occasion the Kansas philosopher, who was no ascetic in anything, however temperate in all, represents himself lying in bed at night. Gout stands by his pillow. "Good Lord!" growled the doctor, "you are not going to attack me to-night. Wait till to-morrow night." Gout grins and answers: "You are to catch it to-night. There will be no postponement. Regard me as your preserver. I am your second conscience, periodically reminding you of your sins and compelling reformation. So prepare for the discipline." Senator Gibson thinks there is no doubt of the truth that gout acts like a safety-valve on the system, and is therefore associated with longevity. He adds, however: "When I am attacked by this monster my usual custom is complete surrender. The assault is a physical and moral explosion, and I am not exactly responsible for word or deed while it lasts. Some time after the paroxysm, when health returns, my mind and body experience compensating sensations of peace and lucidity."—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

Fishing With Bombs.

By special invitation we were permitted to witness a novel experiment on Wednesday afternoon, which was intended to test the efficacy of dynamite bombs in the capture of fish in deep water, says the editor of the Key West (Fla.) Democrat. On repairing to the market wharf at about 3 o'clock we found the United States marshal, sheriff, chief of police, and a number of other officials of lesser note, together with a select party of citizens, perfecting their arrangements for the expedition. Three small boats had been secured for the purpose, in which the party embarked, and which were subsequently joined by a gig from the United States revenue steamer Dix, containing Capt. Fenyar, the collector of customs, and Col. Walker of New Hampshire. The objective point was found to be a hole about twenty-five feet deep in the upper end of the bight, known as the "boiling hole," distant but a few hundred yards from the shore and almost abreast of the army barracks, where the fish are known to congregate in large numbers, and are apparently so fastidious of taste that the most delicate bait when placed on a hook fails to tempt them. Arriving at the spot, a cartridge about six inches long charged with dynamite, to which had been attached a heavy piece of iron in order to make it go to the bottom, was thrown in the water. A suspense of a few seconds ensued, and then a faint report like the discharge of a small pistol was heard, the water became agitated and was raised about two feet, and immediately thereafter, within a radius of about sixty feet, the fish were strewn in all directions. A scene of the wildest excitement followed. Scoopnets were brought into speedy use and over one thousand fish of different varieties, from the large grey snapper over three feet in length to the small but succulent sailor's-choice were secured. While pleased at the success attending Wednesday's experiment, we cannot but condemn the wholesale destruction of the finny tribe which must necessarily attend the unscientific and willful use of these bombs. In the present instance, however, the arrangements had been so well perfected that we venture the assertion that not a dozen fish were allowed to escape, but, being brought ashore and judiciously distributed, entailed a benefit on a great many needy and deserving families.

A Princely Fee.

Late in the afternoon we stopped at Cleveland, Tenn., for dinner, and there an incident happened the like of which I had never seen or heard. At the table where I sat were five persons, one of whom I guessed to be the drummer of some wholesale establishment. The spread did not suit him, and he demanded some cold meat of the black waiter. The waiter shot into the kitchen and reappeared, asserting there was none there.

"Oh, yes," interrupted the drummer, "there must be; hunt around; bring me a piece of cold chicken."

Out again went the darkey and returned with just what was wanted. The drummer was satisfied, and began slashing into the chicken with renewed appetite; then he paused, dropped his knife, ran his fingers in his vest pocket, looked around at the smiling darkey, and then, without changing his countenance, handed the latter a—match.

The smile on the darky's face vanished.

"You see what it is?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, when you get a cigar you will be able to light it."

Then he resumed his eating. It was positively the meanest return for a Christian-like act that I ever saw, but I had to laugh in spite of myself. It was such a burlesque on the habit of fleeing hotel waiters.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

Kid bedspreads are something new in the alleged "house beautiful." They are made out of the backs of discarded kid gloves and the gantlets of long ones.

A young man in a restaurant lately overheard the following conversation between two rather rough-looking but evidently quick-witted young men who came in to get a lunch: "Hello, Dick," said the first one, "what's your throat tied up for?" "Quinsy." "Quincy, Mass.?" "No, Quinsy, Ill."—Harper's Bazar.

A husband who had incurred the anger of his wife, a terrible virago, seeks refuge under the bed. "Come out of that, you brigand, you rascal, you assassin!" screamed his gentle companion. "No, madame," he replied, calmly: "I won't come out. I am going to show you that I am going to do as I please in my own house!"—From the French.

Henry George, the writer on economical topics, has become his own publisher.

General John C. Fremont, now in Washington, is at work on his memoirs.

There are over sixty thousand persons on the pay-roll of New York State, to whom there is annually paid about $5,000,000.

According to recent English experiments it is found that a piece of ivory covered with tinfoil remains the interior entirely free from moisture.

Mr. George W. Childs has given to the Historical Society of Pennsylvania a cast of the death-mask of Lincoln, the original being in the National Museum, Washington.

Gen. Farnsworth, who was in the same boat with Grover Cleveland in the duckboard on Maryland waters, says that the President handles a breech-loader very neatly, and that he brought down seven redheads at one shot.

John C. Calhoun is on record as having once asked Miss Pickens to propose. A pretty girl asked him to do it, and he reluctantly gave his consent, beginning the effort with the immortal word "wherein." He never got any further.

There are American hams, writes Mr. Sala, which when boiled in champagne are palatable; but, as a rule, both ham and bacon in America, as in Australia, are very nasty—dried, intolerably salt, a great deal too lean, and clumsily smoked.

The word salary comes from the Latin salarium, literally salt money, from sal, salt, which was a part of the pay of Roman soldiers. So the young men who say jocularly, when they draw their pay, that they are taking their "sugar" are wrong; they are getting their "salt."

The longevity of women who are fortunate enough to marry soldiers is shown in the fact that our pension rolls bear the names of about 20,000 widows of the veterans of 1812. The brides of seventy-four years ago are nearly centenarians now, and the number of them is quite surpasses belief.

The many individuals who persist in reading by lamp or candle light while they lie in bed and thereby necessitate several times a year the calling out of the fire department may possibly in the future indulge their literary habit with perfect safety. An Italian claims to have invented a luminous printing ink which will make it possible to read newspapers in the dark.

Layers of stone containing some of the supposed human footprints lately found near Lake Managva, in Nicaragua, have been sent to the Vienna Natural History Museum. The stone is a volcanic tufa, and the impressions are extremely sharp and distinct, and, if genuine footprints, prove the existence of man in Central America at a very remote period.

There is a new pest for western farmers to fight in the shape of a yellow worm which develops into a black fly about the eighth of an inch in length. It is very thrifty in some parts of the Willamette Valley, Oregon. The insect is known to entomologists as the "wheat isosoma." It has appeared in Kentucky, Illinois and Missouri. There is only one breed a year.

The new oil-fields of Wyoming, in the Bingham Basin, are directly south of Billings, Mont., near the boundary between Montana and Wyoming. The oil is said to contain 40 per cent of mineral sperm oil, 27 per cent of kerosene, with small percentage of gasoline, benzine, and naphtha. Its illuminating power is of a high order; and it is so pure that ranchmen in the vicinity burned it last winter in their lamps.

The codfish continues to grow indefinitely, without regard to age, so long as it has a plentiful supply of food. The oldest codfish are the largest, and they sometimes grow to be as long as a man is high. They swim about near the bottom of the sea, not often ascending to the surface, feeding on all sorts of animal life, such as crabs, shellfish, and other small fish, but not on vegetables.

A citizen of Millview, Va., killed a six-foot moccasin snake last week that had a wire collar around its neck, to which was attached a button with these words: "Don't tread on me!" As this was the motto of the famous Revolutionary "Culpepper Minute Men," and as the button was probably from one of their uniforms, the question arises as to the probable age of this peculiar serpent.

Three dudish young men of Meriden, Conn., decided to call upon three young women who were not at all anxious to see them. They did call, rigged out in their best clothes, were ushered into the parlor, and there found, conspicuously displayed, a quart of salt and a spoon. After gazing at these for some time and waiting in vain for the young women, the callers came to the conclusion that they were, indeed, too fresh, and went home.

M. de Lesseps is splendidly lodged in a new house in the Avenue Montaigne, which was purchased by the money made by Mme. de Lesseps on her original Suez investments. Her dowry of 100,000 francs was employed in buying shares when they were below par—that is to say, at the time her marriage was agreed to. That sum last year was swollen to 1,500,000 francs, and a great deal of interest produced in the meanwhile was invested in other profitable ventures. The hall in the Lesseps mansion is one of the largest in any very modern private house in Paris.

The native Bermudians are an easy-going, good-natured people, very fond of amusements, in illustration of which a letter in the Troy Times records this incident: "A lady from New York was in one of the largest stores here one morning looking at goods, when the clerks began to put up the shutters. She asked what was the matter, supposing the proprietor had died or failed, but was informed that the yacht-race was just going out, and that all the business places always closed whenever there was yacht-race or anything especial going on."

Entrance Examinations.

Corrected List of Candidates Applying.

The following a full list of candidates, of both successful and unsuccessful candidates is given, so that parents and teachers may see how near to passing or how far from passing the candidates, in which they are interested, were. The highest possible marks obtainable were 756, which very few pupils approximated to, or the lowest number passing a pupil was half of that sum, or 378. The following is the list, its publication being necessary on account of clinical errors existing in the first copy supplied.

"The Labor Question."

Discussed by Rev. W. M. Rogers, of London, in St. Paul's Church—The Cause and Cure.

That Ministry requires result is an acknowledged truth, and that a lecture does not take well in Peterborough is an historical fact. Only a small audience assembled in St. Paul's church on Tuesday evening to hear Rev. Walter M. Rogers, of London, lecture on the great "Labor Question." His address was able, clear and definite, evidently the result of careful study and much thought and was replete with useful intelligence.

After singing and devotional exercises, Sheriff Hall, who occupied the chair, introduced the lecturer. The reverend speaker began by stating that his congregation in London was chiefly composed of working classes, and in his pastoral duties he had seen and heard the great difficulties and trials which confronted them. On account of the great difficulty to get employment and the insufficient remuneration for such work, many men were forced to become Ishmaelites. In Great Britain the labor troubles were even more serious than in America. Here the lecturer quoted the prices paid in England for several kinds of work. On such pay parents were unable to support their families, and in consequence extremely young children, as young as three years old, were compelled to support themselves in the most squalid misery. Even skilled workmen were compelled to work for a mere pittance. Why were such things in countries possessed of great wealth, in which two-thirds of the population belonged to the working classes, a large portion of which was almost in destitute circumstances?

THE CAUSES.

Some say over-production and insufficient demand is the cause of all these troubles, while other, on the contrary, contend that working man properly paid would be able to purchase the necessities and some comforts of life and there would be no overproduction.

Manufacturers say that competition is the cause and they have to cut wages to the lowest ebb to make a profit. This was partly true, but many factories were run while they were making large or enormous profits and were stopped when they did not. Operators were turned out—locked out—and in consequence resorted to vicious means of making a livlihood.

SOCIALISM AND COMMUNISM.

The lecturer gave a graphic description o doings of the socialists and communists who hold that to own property of any description is wrong and that everything should be common and that philosophy and self-interest will make all things right. They even go so far as to wish co obliterate marriage and family ties, to reduce society to a chaos and anarchy. These socialists mingled with such orders as the Trades' Unions and the Knights of Labor, when excited by difficulties, and made their murderous suggestions, which if acted upon would lead to civil war. He was glad to hear that the Knights of Labor were strongly opposed to communism and anarchy.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

and Trades Unions proposed to abolish the labor troubles by organization, ombination, co-operation and education. They held that the capitalists put their heads together, formed companies and regulated prices, and their only plans of defence was to organize and fight the capitalists with their own weapons. This was perfectly right for self-protection, but almost as soon as an organization was formed, a strike was the result, causing hard feelings, suffering and loss of wages and waste of time. In Great Britain last year, the sum of $134,600,000 was lost in wages owing to strikes. Sometimes the strikers gained their object, but oftener they did not.

ARBITRATION.

was suggested as a remedy for the evil. political economists and workingmen hailed arbitration, but the capitalists would not submit to have their books examined as arbitration would necessitate. The theory sounded well but when practiced the result was not what was anticipated. Legislation was suggested as a cure and had been tried. It abated the trouble for a while, but had never been a success. Co-operation had been tried and failed. The lecturer quoted the recent street-car trouble in Toronto as an example. The working men lacked the skill, experience, business ability and capital necessary to carry on business, and failure was the result.

It was said that the working classes must have education. This was very right and there was great progress in this direction. What was wanted was to educate the conscience.

INDUSTRIAL CO-PARTNERSHIP

was found to be one of the best remedies for the evil yet tried. This allowed the working man, in addition to wages, a share in the profits—a partnership. Wherever tried it was found to work well on both sides. The workman took an interest in the work and instead of dodging the boss and killing time, looked after their own interests and the capitalists'. The capitalist received his percentage and the working man his wages, while in addition the management received a salary and extra profits were divided between all parties, extra skill receiving a proportionate per cent. of the profits.

CHRISTIANITY THE CURE.

These were only superficial and what was wanted was something to educate the the conscience and correct selfishness. Educate and moderate. This cure was only to be found in the Christian religion. It was one of the shortcomings of Christianity that it had not done more in this direction. The other remedies failed to reach the root of the evil and the Christian religion was the only hope of settling this great question. The lecturer in closing gave in support of his argument a number of historical facts and also referred to sacred scripture.

At the conclusion of the lecture a collection was taken up in aid of Mr. Roger's Church building fund, after which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer.

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 20th, 1886.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two springless trusses made in York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. * * I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child sure; and 20 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address,

LOVE'S VICTORY.

BY BERTHA M CLAY

"'You will wonder how I managed this,' he said. 'I am a clever man, although you may not believe it. I drugged Sir Oswald's wine, and while he slept soundly I took the keys from under his pillow. I will put them back again. You seem so horrified that you had better accompany me and see that I do no harm to the old man.'

"He put away the box and extinguished the light. As we stood together in the dense gloom, I felt his breath hot upon my face.

"'There is no curse a man can invoke upon the woman who has ruined him,' he said, 'that I do not give to you; but, remember, I do not glory in my crime—I am ashamed of it.'

"In the darkness I groped my way to the door and opened it; in the darkness we passed through the hall where the armor used by warriors of old hung, and in the darkness we went up the broad staircase. I stood at the door of Sir Oswald's room while Captain Langton replaced the keys, and then, without a word, I went to my own chamber.

"Vane, I can never tell you of the storm, the tempest of hate that raged within me. I could have killed Captain Langton for having extorted it. But there was no help for it then. Do you think I did wrong in taking it?"

"No, my darling," he replied, "I do not. Few girls would have been so brave. You are a heroine, Pauline."

"Hush!" she said, interrupting him. "You have not heard all. I do not blame myself for acting as I did. I debated for some time whether I ought to keep the oath or not. Every good impulse of gratitude prompted me to break it; yet again it seemed to me a cowardly thing to purchase my life by a lie. Time passed on—the wonder all died away. I said to myself that if ever any one were falsely accused, I would speak out; but such an event never happened, and not very long after, as you know, Sir Oswald died. I did not like living under the shadow of that secret—it robbed my life of all brightness. Captain Langton came again. No words of mine can tell the contempt in which I held him, the contempt with which I treated him; every one noticed it, but he did not dare to complain. He did dare, however, to offer me his hateful love again, and when I repulsed him in such a fashion as even he could not overlook, he turned all his attention to Lady Darrell. I am a wicked girl, Vane—now that the light of your love has revealed so much to me, I can see how wicked. I have told you that I had sworn to myself to be revenged on Lady Darrell for coming between me and my inheritance. I have seen more of the world since then, but at that time it seemed to me an unparalleled thing that a young girl like her should marry an old man like Sir Oswald entirely for his money. I told her if she did so I would be revenged. I know it was wrong," Pauline continued, humbly; "at the time I thought it brave and heroic. Now I know it was wrong, and weak, and wicked—your love has taught me that."

"It was an error that sprang from pride," he said, gently; "there is nothing to part us."

"You have not heard all. Vane, I knew Captain Langton to be a thief—to be a man who would not scruple at murder if need required. I knew that all the love he could ever give to any one he had given to me, yet I——"

She paused, and the sad face raised humbly to his grew crimson with a burning blush.

"Oh, Vane, how can I tell you the shameful truth? Knowing what he was, knowing that he was going to marry Lady Darrell, I yet withheld the truth. That was my revenge. I knew he was a thief, a cruel, wicked slanderer, a thoroughly bad man, yet, when one word from me would have saved her from accepting his proposal, I, for my vengeance' sake, refused to speak that word."

Her voice died away in a low whisper; the very sound of her words seemed to frighten her. Vane St. Lawrence's face grew pale and stern.

"It was unworthy of you, Pauline," he said, unhesitatingly. "It was a cruel revenge."

"I know it," she admitted. "No words can add to the keen sense of my dishonor."

"Tell me how it was," he said, more gently.

"I think," continued Pauline, "that she had always liked Captain Langton. I remember that I used to think so before she married my uncle. But she had noticed my contempt for him. It shook her faith in him, and made her doubt him. She came to me one day, Vane, with that doubt in her face and in her words. She asked me to tell her if I knew anything against him—if there was any reason why she should doubt him. She asked me then, before she allowed herself to love him; and word from me then would have saved her, and that word, for my vengeance' sake, I would not speak."

"It should have been spoken," observed Sir Vane, gravely.

"I know it. Captain Langton has no honor, no conscience. He does not even like Lady Darrell; he will marry her solely that he may have Darrell Court. He will afterward maltreat her, and hold her life as nothing; he will squander the Darrell property. Vane, as truly as the bright heaven shines above me, I believe him to have no redeeming quality."

There was silence for some minutes, and then Sir Vane asked:

"Tell me, Pauline—do you think that Lady Darrell would marry him if she knew what you have just told me?"

"I am sure she would not. She is very worldly, and only lives what one may call a life of appearances; she would not marry him if she knew him to be a thief—she would shrink from him. Elegant, polished, amiable women like Lady Darrell are frightened at crime."

"That one word ought to have been spoken, Pauline, out of sheer womanly pity and prayer on her lips!"

"The pride and thirst for vengeance were too strong for me," she replied.

"And to these you have sacrificed the life and happiness of a woman who has never really injured you. Lady Darrell and Captain Langton are not your equals, are they, Pauline?"

"No, they are to be married in the spring," she answered.

"Then listen to me, my darling. This marriage must never take place. Your silence is wicked—you cannot honorably and conscientiously stand by and see Lady Darrell throw herself away on a thief. You have done a grievous wrong, Pauline. You must make a noble atonement."

Something like a gleam of hope came into her eyes.

"Can I atone?" she asked. "I will do so if I know how, even at the price of my life."

"I tell you, frankly," he said, "that you have done grievously wrong. When that poor lady came to you in her doubt and perplexity, you ought to have told her at least as much of the truth as would have prevented the marriage. But, my darling, this shall not part us. If I teach you how to atone will you adopt it?"

She crossed her hands as one praying.

"I will do anything you tell me, Vane."

"You must go to Court, and you must make to Lady Darrell the same ample avowal you have made to me; tell her the same story—how you vowed vengeance against her, and how you carried that vengeance out; and then see what comes of it."

"But suppose she will not believe me—what then?"

"You will have done your best—you will at least have made atonement for your treachery. If, with her eyes open, Lady Darrell marries Captain Langton after this, you will have nothing to blame yourself for. It will be hard for you, my darling, but it is the brave, right, true thing to do."

"And you do not hate me, Vane?"

"No. I love you even better than I did. The woman brave enough to own her faults and desirous to atone for them deserves all the love a man can give her. Pauline, when you have done this, my darling, may I ask you when you will be my wife?"

She sobbed out that she was unworthy—all unworthy; but he would not even hear the words.

"None the less dear are you for having told me your faults. There is only one word now, my darling, to keep in view; and that is, 'atonement.'"

She looked up at him with happy, glistening eyes.

"Vane," she said, "I will go to Darrell Court to-morrow. I shall never rest now until I have done what you wish me to do."

So far had love redeemed her that she was ready to undo all the wrong she had done, at any cost to her pride.

But love was to work even greater wonders for her yet.

(To be Continued.)

"Well, well—the world must turn upon its axis,
And all mankind turn with it, heads or tails;
And live and die, make love and pay our taxes,"

is the way Byron looked at it; but "it is not all of life to live." A healthy life is the only one "worth living for," and that depends on the liver. If the liver is not in good working order, pimples, blotches, skin disease, scrofula, catarrh, and a long list of dangerous diseases result. Get Dr. Pierce's Golden medical discovery and free your system of all impurities of the blood by restoring your liver to healthy action. By all druggists. d&w1w

FLOUR.

There seems to be some misapprehension relative to the price of Flour. I find a number of purchasers stating that the grade of Flour known as has been reduced to $2.85 per one hundred pounds. This is a mistake. I offer, in common with all other dealers and millers, a good Family Flour at $2.85, but the brand "Bakers" is still retailed at $3.40 per hundred.

"BAKERS"

P. P. FLOUR for Pastry, $2.75 per Hundred

BAKER'S FLOUR (ground from Manitoba Hard and Ontario Spring Wheat), $3.40 per Hundred.

FAMILY FLOUR (ground from Ontario Wheat), $2.25 per Hundred.

LOW GRADE FLOUR, $2.00 per Hundred.

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200, $300 and $500 each, transferable by endorsement, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first claim or mortgage on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The annual statement shows that the amount so invested was over $600,000, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have hugely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgage may be repaid by yearly instalments or otherwise as may be agreed upon, the interest ceasing at once on all amounts paid on account of the sum borrowed.

Applications may be made either to the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Dr. Washington.

Dr. N. Washington will be in town on August 10th and 11th.

Oysters

Served hand at the C. P. R. Restaurant, cooked up in the best styles.

The Fruit Canning Season.

Housekeepers will find the finest and cheapest stock of sugars for the preserving season, at Morrow, Tierney & Co's, as well as a splendid stock of the best groceries.

Veterinary Dentistry.

Dr. C. Watkins, Veterinary Dentist, will be at the City Hotel, on Monday, August 23rd, and remain two weeks. The best of city references given.

Cattle Shipment.

Last evening, Mr. Geo. Webber went to Montreal with a car load of fine cattle, fed by himself—and it is sure to be well done—for the English market. The lot was a fine one.

Steamer Golden Eye.

By advertisement it will be seen that the excursion days of the Golden Eye have been changed from Saturdays to Thursdays. Only 99 cents for round trip to Idyl Wild and Hazwood.

They Furnished the Flour.

The lady managers of the P. P. Home gratefully acknowledge the receipt of a barrel of flour from the defeated crew in the recent four-oared race on Little Lake, between crews of the boating club.

Death to the Dog.

After the 20th of August all Ashburnham dogs, not wearing the license to live in the shape of a brass tag, will be shot on sight, by a minion of the village authorities. Judging by the number of tagless dogs seen in town, the fellow perpetrates had better unite in employing the gun club to slaughter the canines,—the police are too tender-hearted to get a shot on a dog.

Burned to the Ground

About 12.30, last night, the emigrant sheds, erected in the "Priest's Field" several years ago, for the use of the Take emigrants, took fire and in a few minutes was burnt to the ground. The steamer did not turn out. The origin of the fire is either incendiary or accidental,—probably the latter, as the place was a rendezvous for tramps and idle boys. Insured for $300 in Royal.

When the Lease Expires.

It is rumoured that when the present lease of the Midland railway by the Grand Trunk expires, it will not be renewed. This may be the case, but it does not seem probable. The Midland on all its branches, was never doing a better business than it is doing this summer. Many of the employes are working forty days per month—in over-time.

A Big Fish Story.

A Peterborough youth while trawling in the waters of Rice Lake early this week felt what he thought was the jerk of a mighty maskinonge. Eager to land his prize, he pulled with such vigor that the stern of his canoe went under and the cool waters rose over the fisherman until his boat acted like the quill in an angler's cork. Yet with a Casabiancan bravery he held on. On investigation the hook was found firmly fastened in a solid snag at the bottom of the lake.

Civic Holiday Attractions.

Civic Holiday is designed to be a day of recreation and enjoyment, and to secure this to the fullest extent, the P. A. A. A. excursion to Sturgeon Point and Orillia presents the grandest opportunity. A day at Sturgeon Point with brisk sail, or by going a little further, Orillia is reached with its delightful day's boating on one of the most beautiful inland lakes of the country. Keep this excursion in mind. The rates are exceedingly low, train service first-class, time rapid, and the comfort and enjoyment of every excursionist guaranteed.

The Great Bon Marche.

The boom in big bargains at the Bon Marche still goes on. The most astonishing bargains in all kinds of goods continue to be given every day. No one can afford to miss this chance getting all kinds of goods at from 75 to 100 per cent. below the regular price. The stock has to be cleared out, even if the sacrifice have to be the next thing to given away. Don't forget the location at the Bon Marche.

Horse Fixtures.

This morning Mr. Hamilton received a telegram from the Bowmanville club, asking for a match race on Monday next. This is the third proposal he has received within a week for a match on that day. He is endeavoring to get a match on for Monday (23rd inst.,) with Bowmanville. He is also trying to get the Ottawas to come up earlier than the 23th, as Saturday is a bad day for a match. The events ahead of the local clubs are, Campbellford on the 16th, Orillia, at Orillia on the 19th and Ottawa on the 20th, if purses offered be augmented, and if the races be arranged, Bowmanville on the 23rd.

The Driving Park Races.

The Driving Park Association is bound to make the [illegible] and 27th of August a success. They have issued 1000 fine three-color posters and Mr. Noel Brown is now [illegible] them in Peterborough, posting in Bowmanville, Whitby, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Belleville, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Beavertown, Orillia, Barrie and other towns. Where he does not personally visit, all indications are that the meeting will be widely advertised and will bring together the best horses in the district, and the handsome purses offered will make keen competition, so that five days of the finest sport ever seen in town will be presented at the Driving Park on the 26th and 27th.

Iron Bridge Piers.

Yesterday Mr. Law, Central Iron and Bridge Works, shipped to Florence, Lambton county, the iron abutments for the iron truss bridge shipped a few days since for the same place. These tubes are three feet in diameter, in six-feet sections. The place where the pier is to rest is excavated to the bed rock, to which the tube is bolted. The tube is then filled with concrete and tramped down, and another section bolted on and filled in like manner till the required length is gained. The truss work rests on the concrete, so that the iron tube is merely a case for containing it and holding it in position. The iron will last for ages, the concrete becoming as hard as rock, and as this kind of pier is much cheaper than solid stone abutments, it will ere long supercede them. It is safe to say that a county building three bridges will save the cost of one by having iron abutments instead of stone.

Excursion to Toronto.

One of the best opportunities that our citizens may have for some time of visiting the Queen City at a low rate, presents itself on our civic holiday, August 19th. Arrangements have been made to run an excursion to Toronto per C. P. R. on that day. Passengers can leave here either by the 5.30 or 8.30 a.m. express, and tickets will be good to return on the 19th and 20th by any regular train. As the date fixed is not Toronto's civic holiday, parties desirous of doing business in the city, will doubtless avail themselves of this excellent chance, and others will go to see their friends and relations. Only a limited number of tickets will be issued at the low price, for the return journey, of $2. Tickets can be had at Alex. Elliott's C. P. R. ticket office, George street, at the station, or at A. L. Davis & Co's.

The Kingston "Whig."

The Kingston Whig is one of the ablest, as it has long been one of the best, newspapers in Canada, has been issued over half a century, and it enjoys a green old age—full of life and vigour. On Monday it appeared in an eight-page form, in new type, and it is as neat as a daisy, and as chock full of spicy and lively news as a sewing circle. It now consists of 40 columns, so arranged that nearly all the advertising space adjoins reading matter. For fifty-five years the Whig has done yeoman service in the cause of Liberalism, and now that it has renewed its youth, it has the promise of long years of usefulness before it. It is now one of the neatest, newsiest, best printed, and most readable evening papers published on the continent. It is in every way worthy of the liberal support it receives, which is but a legitimate outcome of the enterprise of its manager, the excellence of its equipment and the success it achieves in presenting daily a full digest of the latest local news and the cream of the news of the world up to the hour of going to press. The Whig has our most earnest wishes for success.

A New Feature.

It is refreshing to get a change from the time-honored fish story. At Burleigh Falls there is a party of Peterborough gentlemen who are showing the beauties of our back lakes to a couple of New Yorkers, Messrs. Matt. Lane, an old Peterborough resident, and his friend, Capt. Mason, of Jersey City. Yesterday when the party were sitting in front of the hotel swapping fish romances, they were astonished to see Capt. Mason, an old veteran of thirty battles in the war, come flying over the rocks, club in hand. Upon one of the gentlemen present enquiring the cause of the alarm, he, with great effort answered the landlord,—"Say, John, what kind of wild animals are there in this country, anyhow? Hurry up; get your dogs and gun for I have just treed a big, brown, wild animal over there. Come on boys with clubs and we'll settle him." Arriving at the spot pointed out by the captain, there were discovered under a fallen tree the familiar features of a small ground-hog, or woodchuck. The captain compromised by setting up the cigars. We are glad to learn that our old townsman and his friend have been very successful in their fishing, having caught many bass, some of which weighed over five pounds.

Evening Serenade.

A large caroling party enjoyed the moonlight on the lake last night, and while they floated lazily on the bosom of the placid waters, serenaded the shores until they rang with song most enchanting.

Band Fund Lawn Party.

Don't forget the lawn party in St. John's Church grounds, on Thursday (to-morrow,) in aid of the Band Uniform Fund. All the churches are uniting to show their gratitude to the band for the gratuitous services in making numerous church socials attractive. Everybody is invited. Admission 10c., refreshments, additional.

Where It Struck.

During the thunderstorm to-day everybody was startled by a tremendous burst of thunder. The lightning had struck a Lombardy poplar in front of Mr. Meanies' cottage, Brock street, occupied by Mrs. Smith. The bolt struck the tree about 20 feet from the ground, and furrowed out a deep groove, hurling large splinters a long distance. Nobody was hurt.

Pleasant Garden Party.

Yesterday evening the residence of Mrs. Orde, Robinson street, Ashburnham, was the scene of unusual festivity, a garden party in aid of St. Luke's church being the cause. The pretty premises were artistically illuminated with chinese lanterns, while the usual garden party festivities and merriment prevailed. Refreshments were served by the ladies and were extensively included in. The Fire Brigade band was present and added to the enjoyment of the occasion by discoursing their sweetest music. A very enjoyable evening was spent, and the proceeds were highly satisfactory.

Sunstroke.

Mr. Lyman H. Terrill, yesterday afternoon, while employed outside, in cutting timber for the new residence of Mr. W. Walsh, on Dickson street, was prostrated by sunstroke. The intense heat and the fierce rays of the sun seemed to concentrate on the face of the hill where he was working making the atmosphere almost unbearable. Mr. Terrill first felt faint, but did not pay any attention to the feeling until he was attacked with a severe pain in the back of the head, accompanied by dizziness. In going for a drink he fell in a faint. His companions carried him to a shady spot and by the liberal use of cold water, restored him to consciousness. Mr. Terrill complained of cramps in his right arm and his whole body felt as if asleep or almost paralyzed. He was taken home where he received treatment and recovered almost wholly after some hours. To-day he resumed work, but very little the worse for the stroke.

Contradiction.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

—As the rumour is current about Peterborough that we took Mr. Rossiter to Indian River and sodas [illegible] at Mrs. Smith's hotel, and also charged the other fund for an instruction of the Scott Act, will you kindly allow us space to say that neither of us ever took Mr. Rossiter to Indian River or anywhere else. The statement, whoever it originated, is entirely false, for Mr. Rossiter was never in our waggon since [illegible].

The Belfast Riots.

The Fury of Partisan Warfare—Belfast Still Hourly Unsubdued.

DUBLIN, Aug. 10.—The Gazette announces that Belfast and Londonderry have again been proclaimed. There had been no more rioting in Belfast up to midnight. A despatch sent from Belfast at 3 p. m. says during the morning a few minor disturbances occurred. There was some [illegible] firing of revolvers in the streets, although in fact to make walking out of doors more or less dangerous.

TORIES IN IRELAND

LONDON, Aug. 11.—A banquet was given by the Lord Mayor this evening. Sir A. P. Caron, Canadian Minister of Militia, who responded to the toast of the "Army and Navy," referred amid loud cheers to the Canadian assistance sent to Egypt.

Lord Salisbury congratulated those present on the result of the elections. He expressed his pleasure at Lord Rosebery's consistent continuance of a foreign policy that raised England in the estimation of nations. He regretted that there still remained a subject for painful meditation. "Every day's news," he said, "persuades us that Ireland is not yet inhabited by a concordant and homogeneous people. It is the duty of every government to devote its whole energies to freeing the loyal people of Ireland from the constraint exercised upon them, whether in the form of riot or in the more dangerous, insidious and effective form of outrage and intimidation. While admitting the great difficulty and responsibility of the task—which are so great that previous governments equally anxious with ourselves only succeeded temporarily and to an imperfect extent we possess an advantage over our predecessors which we hope to turn to good use. We hear a mandate from the people deciding finally, and, in my opinion, irrevocably, the question which has wrecked the peace of Ireland. [Cheers.]

"The question of an independent government in Ireland, after deep discussion and advocacy by the most powerful statesman this country has ever seen, has been rejected emphatically and equivocally by an enormous majority of the people of the Kingdom. [Loud Cheers.] It is not unworthy to remark that most of the voices in favor of separation have been obtained by the personal influence of the great statesman and upon other considerations apart from the merits of the question. I believe that our opponents will eventually admit that this is England's final decision, armed with which it is our duty to restore in Ireland that social order, the loss of which is the only cause of its discontent. I am convinced that in such a policy we shall find the strongest support in the enormous population of which you are the true representatives."

The Daily News says the speech shows only too plainly that the only medicine for Irish disorder is a good dose of draconic coercion.

Quietness Restored.

BELFAST, Aug. 11.—The city was quiet last night. The wounded are improving.

A petition which has received numerous signatures, has been handed to the mayor, demanding the appointment of a royal commission to investigate and report upon the causes of the disorders which have occurred here since June.

A slight row occurred to-day as some workmen were about to enter the street railway depot on the Falls road. The military quelled the disturbance before it became serious.

At midnight the city was tranquil. Detectives are watching suspected sellers of firearms.

Murdered in a Cemetery.

BELFAST, Aug. 11.—The man who was killed while in a Catholic cemetery yesterday attending the funeral of a victim of last week's rioting, and who was supposed to have been shot by the police, was, it is learned, killed with a pitchfork by a man now under arrest, and who has been identified by several persons who saw him engaged in his murderous work.

All the Ministers Reelected.

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 11.—Mr. Matthews, Home Secretary, was re-elected to the Commons for East Birmingham without opposition. The Liberals at the last moment withdrew their candidate, Ald. Cook, leaving the field clear for Mr. Matthews.

All the new ministers have now been re-elected to the Commons. Everyone was unopposed, and the withdrawal of Alderman Cook, the Liberal candidate, against Mr. Matthews in the East District of Birmingham, is said to have been due to the Radical Union's opposition aroused by the Cook correspondence with Arthur Chamberlain.

Coming to Mar Up Strife.

DUBLIN, Aug. 11.—The Dungannon Patriotic Union will send a deputation of Loyalist orators to the United States and Canada to address public meetings throughout both countries in the interest of the Irish opposition to Home Rule. The orators will leave Ireland as soon as Parliament adjourns in the fall, and during them will be Major E. J. Saunderson, Tory member for North Armagh, and Mr. Russell for Tyrone.

GRAND LODGE.

Annual Meeting at London Yesterday—Reports—Transfer of Lodges.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The annual session of the Ontario Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., opened here to-day, a large number of representatives being present.

Grand Master Martin's report says that the state of the order is extremely gratifying, and contains a lengthy account of his stewardship. "It is with much pride and gratification," says Grand Secretary King in his report, "that I am privileged to present this, my twentieth annual report—pride in looking back over the record of these twenty years, to see the more than ordinary prosperity that has marked our course all the way, and gratification at the knowledge that I have been permitted to take an active part in its prosperity, and fourfold more grateful for the measure of friendship and love that has ever been tendered me by my brethren, one and all, during every hour of the same." The secretary reminds the Grand Lodge that it is eleven years since last it met in the Forest City, and goes on to say that since then "many and varied changes have occurred. We had then 141 lodges, with 10,000 members; to-day we have 208 lodges, with 14,742 members. Since that date there has been expended by the order in Ontario, on account of its beneficial and charitable purposes, $263,742.25, an average of over $90.07 for each day during that long time." Referring to the past year's work, the report says: "Nine new lodges have been instituted: Orillia at Orillia, Gordon at Palmerston, Campbellford at Campbellford, Beaverton at Beaverton, Ridgely at Oil Springs, Bracebridge at Bracebridge, Floral at Parkdale, Caledonia at Caledonia, and Alba at Pakenham. One ceased to work, Scotia Lodge at Port Robinson, while several lodges are not in as healthy a state as we earnestly desire they should be. Two Rebekah lodges have been instituted: Picton at Picton and Beatrice at Guelph. All of these new lodges are flourishing, and have sent in very encouraging reports. The results of the year ending December 31, at which date the returns are full and complete, shows a gain in membership of 170, and for the term just closed June 30, 1886—a net gain of 242, with two lodges yet to hear from. Much of the prosperity can, no doubt, be traced directly to the visits of the Grand Master to many of the lodges, and this proves conclusively that a more perfect and uniform system of visits by the Grand Master, or some authorized officer, would result in great good to the order." The report reviews the routine work of the year at length. Ninety one brethren died in that time, the death rate being 1 in 158. Since the order was instituted in 1856, the sum of $406,826 has been dispensed in relief by the lodges. The receipts for the year were $11,807, and there is a balance on hand of $1752.

After routine business the lodge adjourned for the purpose of taking part in the parade. In the afternoon the various lodges and encampments assembled on Richmond street and headed by the bands of the 7th Fusiliers of London and the Royal Grenadiers of Toronto marched to the Queen's Park where a very enjoyable time was spent.

THE BERLIN BARBECUE.

A Great Day in the German Town Mirth, Music and Festivity.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—This is a great day for little Germany. The town is full of visitors and decorations. Flags of all nations decorate all the houses and stores, and wherever one goes one hears the German and one sees the lager festivity and conviviality reign supreme, their only rival being hospitality, which is exuberant and all embracing. The place is full of strangers, all of whom are cared for in the most bountiful fashion.

The visiting societies number about 800, and have spent the day in rehearsing for the concerts. In the afternoon there was an interesting drill competition in the Park, in which the Brantford Home Company came off victorious, being closely followed by Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company of Dunnville, the Galt fire brigade making a good third. The judges were Col Goodman, Major Allan and Mr. D. J. Peace (Hamilton), one of the principal Canadian officers of the Knights of Pythias.

In the evening a splendid concert was held in the rink; the decorations made it one of the handsomest concert halls in the province. Mrs. Caldwell, Mr. Jenkins and Fred. Warrington provided the vocal solos. Mrs. Caldwell was at her best and provoked a perfect storm of applause; so did Fred. The Thirteenth Band of Hamilton played splendidly and were encored several times. The big chorus of men, numbering 300 voices, sang splendidly. They are a fine body of singers, and showed what careful training at home will do. The choruses they sang showed a fine variety, some being modern and one especially being an old chorus. The audience was thoroughly pleased and applauded all warmly. They were so pleased with Mrs. Caldwell that they demanded as additional song from her and she gave the "Cuckoo Song" in her own inimitable style.

The evening wound up with a regular German "Cammers," where the small hours still found the singers and their wives, sweethearts and friends at the social tables, sweetening life with song and lager.

PANIC IN THE MONEY MARKET.

Extravagant Bidding by a New York Broker.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The money market this afternoon registered rates not seen since the May panic of 1884. Many trust companies and banks began calling in loans this morning, and although large amounts were loaned on call at 4 per cent. in the afternoon the bidders held off and the price on regular transactions moved up to 12 per cent. per annum. This price was reached just before the close, and immediately after a loan was made at that figure, a broker bid 15 for $10,000. Not getting the money he bid 20, then 25, 30, 35 and 40 in succession. At the last figure he obtained the loan. While he was bidding other brokers stood about with interested faces. The majority did not care to have their names connected with the high rates bid and those were slow to loan their cash to him. All day sober large brokers were lending money freely at seven per cent. and at the close the rate fell to six per cent.

Improvement in Iron and Steel.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—A despatch from Pittsburg says 12,000 tons of steel rails have been contracted for there this week. A special from Philadelphia says a general improvement in the demand for iron and steel has developed itself within a day or two. Inquiry for steel rails is more active than it has been for months, and supplies are wanted in lots of 20,000 down to 1000. Brokers have inquiries for foreign steel rail items. Three mills are preparing to start on foreign blooms to meet the urgent demands of railroad builders who have been unable to secure the promise of satisfactory deliveries from the regular mills.

Convention of Bankers.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The annual convention of the National Association of American Bankers was called to order in Horticultural Hall by president Lyman J. Gage at 10 o'clock this morning, with more than the usually full attendance of delegates. Rev Phillips Brooks opened the proceedings with prayer, after which President Gage delivered the opening address. T. Ewart of Boston delivered an address of welcome. The members of the association were entertained as a banquet at the Hotel Brunswick to-night, and will be given an excursion down the harbor to-morrow afternoon, and will be entertained at dinner at the Parker House to-morrow night.

ONTARIO GRAND LODGE, I. O. O. F.

Annual Meeting at London Yesterday—Reports—Transfer of Lodges.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The annual session of the Ontario Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., opened here to-day, a large number of representatives being present.

Grand Master Martin's report says that the state of the order is extremely gratifying, and contains a lengthy account of his stewardship. "It is with much pride and gratification," says Grand Secretary King in his report, "that I am privileged to present this, my twentieth annual report—pride in looking back over the record of these twenty years, to see the more than ordinary prosperity that has marked our course all the way, and gratification at the knowledge that I have been permitted to take an active part in its prosperity, and fourfold more grateful for the measure of friendship and love that has ever been tendered me by my brethren, one and all, during every hour of the same." The secretary reminds the Grand Lodge that it is eleven years since last it met in the Forest City, and goes on to say that since then "many and varied changes have occurred. We had then 141 lodges, with 10,000 members; to-day we have 208 lodges, with 14,742 members. Since that date there has been expended by the order in Ontario, on account of its beneficial and charitable purposes, $263,742.25, an average of over $90.07 for each day during that long time." Referring to the past year's work, the report says: "Nine new lodges have been instituted: Orillia at Orillia, Gordon at Palmerston, Campbellford at Campbellford, Beaverton at Beaverton, Ridgely at Oil Springs, Bracebridge at Bracebridge, Floral at Parkdale, Caledonia at Caledonia, and Alba at Pakenham. One ceased to work, Scotia Lodge at Port Robinson, while several lodges are not in as healthy a state as we earnestly desire they should be. Two Rebekah lodges have been instituted: Picton at Picton and Beatrice at Guelph. All of these new lodges are flourishing, and have sent in very encouraging reports. The results of the year ending December 31, at which date the returns are full and complete, shows a gain in membership of 170, and for the term just closed June 30, 1886—a net gain of 242, with two lodges yet to hear from. Much of the prosperity can, no doubt, be traced directly to the visits of the Grand Master to many of the lodges, and this proves conclusively that a more perfect and uniform system of visits by the Grand Master, or some authorized officer, would result in great good to the order." The report reviews the routine work of the year at length. Ninety one brethren died in that time, the death rate being 1 in 158. Since the order was instituted in 1856, the sum of $406,826 has been dispensed in relief by the lodges. The receipts for the year were $11,807, and there is a balance on hand of $1752.

After routine business the lodge adjourned for the purpose of taking part in the parade. In the afternoon the various lodges and encampments assembled on Richmond street and headed by the bands of the 7th Fusiliers of London and the Royal Grenadiers of Toronto marched to the Queen's Park where a very enjoyable time was spent.

THE BERLIN BARBECUE.

A Great Day in the German Town Mirth, Music and Festivity.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—This is a great day for little Germany. The town is full of visitors and decorations. Flags of all nations decorate all the houses and stores, and wherever one goes one hears the German and one sees the lager festivity and conviviality reign supreme, their only rival being hospitality, which is exuberant and all embracing. The place is full of strangers, all of whom are cared for in the most bountiful fashion.

The visiting societies number about 800, and have spent the day in rehearsing for the concerts. A MASQUERADING MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Gets a Gentleman and Lady Friend Objective and was Herself Arrested.

MONTREAL, Aug. 11.—For some time past a Mrs. Therrien, aged 72 years, residing in St. Gabriel village, has been impressed with the idea that her son's wife has not been acting as a devoted wife towards her husband. Under the hallucination of old Mrs. Therrien she will not rest on a bed, during the night, his wife keeps company with other young men. The skylarking, she believed, continued for several weeks, and old Mrs. Therrien undertook to entrap her daughter-in-law. Sunday night, shortly after 12 o'clock, a dudish mash, young in appearance, could be seen walking up and down the sidewalk opposite Mrs. Therrien, jr.'s, residence, casting a glance now and again towards the window where the young woman was sitting. Shortly whilst mash appeared to entice the lady to come out of the house. Mrs. Therrien became frightened and hastily closed the window and bolted the door. She sent for the police, and Chief Bergeron came. Mrs. Therrien set out with Mr. Deegan in order to show up the man she was next. On St. Patrick Street a little shrivelled-up man passed the officer, whereupon Mrs. Therrien exclaimed: "That's him." Mr. Deegan followed and arrested the man, who accompanied him peaceably to the station. Here the Chief received a genuine surprise, as the prisoner was none other than Mrs. Therrien, senior, attired in men's clothes. The affair has caused a great deal of talk and amusement in the municipality and vicinity, although an attempt was made to keep the matter quiet. Mrs. Therrien stated that she had only been playing detective on her daughter-in-law. The case was settled amicably.

THE DREAM OF FEDERATION.

A Deputation Obtains an Expression of Views from Lord Salisbury.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The Marquis of Salisbury to-day received a deputation of Imperial Federationists, who called on him to urge the appointment of a Royal Commission or the summoning of a conference to enquire into the best means of accomplishing the closer federation of the states composing the British empire, to ensure concerted action in time of war and to promote direct intercourse by a system of commercial and postal telegraphs. Peter Redpath spoke for Canada. The Marquis of Salisbury said it would be difficult to overrate the importance of the subject. He promised to carefully consider the suggestions made by the deputation with the exception of one to the effect that the Government should enter into negotiations with Germany for the evacuation by the latter power of New Guinea, and France for the evacuation of New Caledonia. This suggestion, the Premier said, was outside of practical politics. He hoped the Colonists would be able to contribute materially to the defence of the Empire, and that the men who devoted their lives and their careers to that defence would in future be drawn more together. He expressed hearty sympathy with the general idea of federation represented by the deputation.

An Heiress Elopes With a Groom, Et.

MONTREAL, Aug. 10. On August 4 Miss Madeleine Kessler, a 22 year-old heiress, eloped from Chicago with Alfred Regnier, alias Riekner, alias French Fred, and came to Montreal. The detectives and chief of police here were immediately communicated with, and located the couple. The chief states that they will not be arrested unless the authorities come after them from Chicago. French Fred is a genuine dude, and walks the streets of Montreal with as much grace as a millionaire, although he is said to be dead broke. He is 48 years of age and the husband of Madame Philomena Choquette, the head of a gilded palace in Chicago. Peter Kessler, father of Madeleine, died about three weeks ago, leaving an estate valued at $200,000 to his daughter. The girl was quiet and innocent, but, through a piece of knavery, she was introduced to French Fred. Madeline saw him often and was under the impression that he was well to do. Riekner won her confidence by deception, and Miss Kessler renounced home, mother and all that was dear, and fled with him to Canada. Mrs. Choquette said she knew Fred in Montreal, and his picture was in the rogues' galleries of Boston, New York and other places. He served a term in Kingston Penitentiary, and had beat her out of $2000 in seven months. Fred and Miss Kessler will probably be taken back to Chicago by the authorities, who are now after them.

R. W. MUNCASTER,

The Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 12, 1886.

After passing through the Chambly election, Hon. Mr. Chapleau can sympathize with the ocean that went through the Whirlpool rapids in a barrel. He can more than sympathize, for his "barrel" (of money) sank.

London the loss is full of Oddfellows: The Londoners are deriving pleasure and profit from the visit of the brethren of the triple tie, who are receiving unstinted hospitality. It is to be hoped that Peterborough will have a chance to show how it should be done next year.

Sir Randolph Churchill sowed the wind and Belfast is reaping the whirlwind. The incendiary speeches in Ulster of the leader of the Tory party recently, are the causes of the rioting and bloodshed that have prevailed during the last few weeks. He incited the ultra, so-called, "loyalists," of Ulster to rebellion in case Gladstone's Home Rule measure carried. Now that it has been defeated, the Ulsterists, spoiling for a fight, must, without provocation, knock their opponents on the head.

Hon. Thomas White, Minister of the Interior, ought to be happy. He can defy hot weather. The reception he got at Owen Sound on his triumphant return from his North-west excursion cooled him delightfully. Even the presence of Mr. D. Creighton, M.P.P., Ontario's Finance Minister of the indefinite and dismally dim future, could not raise the political thermometer one little degree. Thomas will have to play his Cardwell to get there again.

The Dominion Government engineer, in charge of the Trent Valley canal construction and survey, is not only a stumbling block in the way of its progress, but in other respects a public nuisance, who makes himself as disagreeable as his abilities will admit of—and he is a past master in that art. In direct disregard of public convenience and commercial interests he trifles with the water supply of the navigable lakes in a most annoying and harassing manner. The water is shut off at a moment's notice, according as his caprice dictates, giving no end of trouble and vexation to both boat masters and their passengers. As an example, on Tuesday night the steamer Fairy in coming from Young's Point to Lakefield, crowded with passengers as usual, was bumping along on the rocky bottom to the delay of the steamer and the vexation of the passengers. This a matter which interests the people of Peterborough. Every day, scores from town are on one or the other of the lake steamers and the wanton trifling with the water is an interference with their comfort, which is simply intolerable. The general conduct of the engineer is worthy of the most vigorous condemnation. He must remember that he is a public servant, paid by the people's money, and responsible to the people. He may feel secure in a position whose trust he abuses, while the present government, which is hostile to Trent Valley canal construction, retains an official who will lead himself to carrying out their policy of delay; but he should take warning; by his official misconduct he is simply weaving a basket for his official head, lopped off by the guillotine of public opinion, to fall into at no very distant day,—a Dominion general election is not far away.

Oddfellowship.

The Next Annual Meeting of the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., to be held in Peterborough.

(Special to the Examiner.)

This afternoon we received a message from London stating that the Grand Lodge of Oddfellows, now in session in that city, had by a vote to-day decided that the next annual meeting of the body should be held in Peterborough.

The position taken by the Examiner a short time ago, advocating as we did, that special effort be made to induce the holding of such gatherings in Peterborough, has had the desired effect. The representatives of Peterborough Lodges having taken the matter up, and secured the next session of this important body to be held here, which means a considerable expenditure in town, not taking into consideration the other advantages that Peterborough will derive from the good words spoken in our behalf by the five or six hundred representatives.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson also received a message from Mr. E.E. Henderson corroborating the above.

The thermometer read 86° in the shade to day.

I. O. O. F.

Mr. D. H. Moore, of Mount Hebron Encampment, has been elected Grand Junior Warden of the Grand Encampment in session at London.

Mr. E. E. Henderson, of Otonabee Lodge No. 14, I. O. O. F., is on the Finance Committee of the Grand Lodge held at the same place.

W. A. McFadden of Peterborough Lodge No. 111 is on the Committee on Legislation.

Teachers' Examinations.

The result of the recent teachers' examinations is given in the Toronto papers to-day. The successful candidates who wrote from the Peterborough Collegiate Institute are given as follows:—

First-class—Grade C.—G. S. Marshall.

Second-class M. Matchett, Otonabee; Ettie Brodie, Dora Martin and Annie Peters.

Third-class.—Dora Cairns, Maggie McDonald, Lizzie Rutherford, M. Young, Geo. Glaspell, J. Brockenridge, Asphodel, and Annie Fair.

Farewell.

Yesterday evening the Salvation Army meetings were of a specially interesting and enthusiastic nature, when Capt. Smith and Cadet Wood, who have had charge of the local corps for the past few months, farewelled their charge, previous to taking their departure for Lindsay, to command the forces in that place. These officers have been very popular while in town and were very much respected and honored by their followers. Expressions of regret at their departure and wishes for their welfare were expressed on all sides. The Captain and Cadet left this morning for Lindsay. It is expected that Capt. Pope, of Toronto, will take command here for the next term. He will arrive in town this evening.

Personal.

We are pleased to see that Mr. John Stirling, head master of the South Ward school, has taken a First-class Grade A certificate at the Provincial Examinations held at Toronto in July last, the results of which are just published. His name stands third in a long list of successful candidates, which is flattering alike to his industry and ability. As Mr. Stirling prepared himself for this examination without outside assistance, and when actively engaged in his professional duties, he deserves the highest praise and we congratulate him on his special success.

Ennismore.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Weather Notes.—July came in with every indication of a hot spell; at 3 p. m. on the 2nd the thermometer rising to 86° in the shade; on the 3rd to 91°; on the 4th to 94°; on the 5th, at 4 p. m., to 98°, being the hottest day of the season; on the 6th, at 3 p. m., to 96°; and on the 7th to 88°, after which is kept more comfortable to the 25th, when it again rose to 90°; on the 27th, to 90°; on the 28th, to 84°; and the 29th, to 86°; leaving the average for the month as 83 21-31°. Rain fell on 13 days to the depth of 3 inches and 87-100 of an inch, being above the average rain fall for July, the severest storm being on the 14th, when in two hours it fell the unusual depth of 2 inches and 23-100 of an inch. We had six thunderstorms during the month. Wheat and barley were first out on the 12th and 13th, respectively. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, namely: South-west, 6 days; west, 5 days; south, 2 days; north-east, 4 days; east, 3 days; north, 2 days; and north-west, 7 days.

Pleasant Items.—The Humming Bird, Rattler, Sweepstakes, Farmer's Choice, Champion and Erin-go-bragh, are now on the warpath making more barn-room available, while the pleasant old farmer and his smiling good wife listen with delight to the old veteran threshers, counting over the hundreds of bushels of fine fall wheat and splendid turn-out of barley. Long may peace and contentment remain.

Hiawatha Gathers it In.

The series of games of Hog Ball for a trophy of a set of China cups and the championship of the district was concluded with a match on Monday last at Chemong village. The contest was between the hog ball leagues of the Hiawatha and Chemong Indians, the respective teams being captained by Messrs. John Lukes and Moses McCue. Three games were played, namely, on July 1st and 19th at Hiawatha, and the third at Chemong village on Monday, August the 9th. Hiawathia captured the first and third matches and, consequently the china and the championship. Hog ball promises to be popular. It has this advantage over base ball—in organizing a club it is not necessary to arrange for the reading of the Riot Act, nor to purchase a burial plot for the interment of umpires.

BRUTAL IRISH LANDLORDS.

Fifty-Six Poverty-Stricken Families Evicted.

Dublin, Aug. 11.—The Longford Board of Guardians has adopted resolutions denouncing five local landlords for the heartless eviction of fifty-six families. The action of the landlords, the resolutions say, is ascribed to organized attempts to create disorders and crime in a peaceful country, the landlords knowing that it is impossible for tenants to pay rack rents. The board asks the Government to take immediate cognizance of the landlords' actions in order to prevent wholesale pauperism and the deportation of large numbers of the people of Ireland.

Imitation of a Sister's Sad Example.

Burlington, Iowa, Aug. 11.—May Cole, while on the train from this city to Keokuk last night suddenly walked out on the platform and jumped between the cars. She was killed. The train was brought back here and the body was identified by James Cole as that of his sister. The brother was overcome with grief and attempted to cut his throat. On being prevented he leaped head foremost through a window, but was not dangerously hurt.

Two Mysterious Disappearances.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—A week ago F. J. F. Bradley, ex-Manager of the Pullman Works, mysteriously disappeared. Shortly after J. G. Atcheson, manager of the Hotel Florence of Pullman, also disappeared. Yesterday the hotel safe was forced open, but whether any defalcation was revealed is not known.

Harvest in the Northwest.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Advices from nearly every station in Manitoba and the Northwest indicate that the harvest will be nearly finished this week. All reports agree as to the superior quality of the grain, although the average yield will be likely under twenty bushels.

Fight Over a Funeral Benefit.

London, Aug. 11.—Miss Lizzie J. Shaw of Hamilton has appealed to the Ontario Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. against the action of Chorazin Lodge, London East, in paying a funeral benefit to the widow of the late Bro. A. K. Shaw. Chorazin Lodge has been notified of the appeal, and the case will be considered by the Grand Lodge. The trouble was that Mrs. Shaw had not been living with her husband for some time prior to his death.

A Blaze at Oakville.

Oakville, Aug. 11.—Two barns on Mrs Aaron Oliphant's farm, on the Lake shore road east, in the Township of Toronto, were totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. About 80 or 90 tons of hay, two threshing machines, a reaper, mower, two valuable horses, four pigs and other contents were burned. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $2500. There was an insurance of $1750 in the Western on the buildings and contents.

Assault on a Scott Act Magistrate.

Fenelon, Ont., Aug. 11.—Police Magistrate Lowes, who was here to-day trying Scott Act cases, was assaulted twice. The first assault took place at the Commercial House about 6.30 this evening, when he was knocked down and not a word had been spoken. The second offence was committed about half an hour afterwards at the railway station, where he was waiting for the train.

Killed at London Car Works.

London, Aug. 11.—While Allen Dugald was unloading car wheels from a tilt cart at the Ontario car works this morning, he stepped on the end of the cart, when it tipped backwards, throwing him to the ground, and the wheels on his body, crushing him to death instantly.

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines,—hundreds like it:

St. Catharines, Sept. 30th, 1885.

Gentlemen,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, called upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two principles trusses made in York State, costing me $16. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. LOVE'S VICTORY.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

PAULINE AND LADY DARRELL.

Pauline communicated her resolution of going to Darrell Court to Miss Hastings, and she may looked up in surprise almost too great for words.

"You are going to Darrell Court to-morrow?" she exclaimed. "It cannot be, Pauline. You cannot travel alone. If you go, I will accompany you."

Pauline, with one arm caressingly [illegible] neck.

"Do not try to stop me," she said pleadingly, "and let me go alone. I am a great coward at heart, and I must return to do it right. Only alone can I do it."

"Pauline," asked Miss Hastings, gravely, "do you wish to atone for your revenge?"

"I do," she replied, simply. "You must let me go alone; and when I come back I shall have something to tell you—something that I hope will make you very happy."

Miss Hastings kissed the beautiful face.

"It is as thought," she said to herself—"in her case love has worked wonders—it has redeemed her."

Lady Darrell sat alone in her dressing-room, the intimation of my will drawing to a close. Greatly to her delight and surprise, Captain Langton had unexpectedly appeared that morning. He knew that in the absence of Miss Hastings he could not stop at Darrell Court on a visit, he told Lady Darrell; but after the dinner, and some hours' conversation with Lord Darrell, he declined dining at the Court, but promised to spend some part of the evening there.

Lady Darrell had ordered an early dinner, and sat in her dressing-room awaiting her maid. Of course she was going to dress for the captain—to set off her delicate beauty to the greatest advantage. A superb costume of pale pink brocade, with rich trimmings of white lace was ready for her. A set of pearls and opals lay in their open cases. The room presented a picturesque appearance of unbounded and splendid confusion—laces, jewelry, fans, slippers, all kinds of valuable and pretty ornaments were there; but neither the latest gown nor half an hour's toilet could add one charm to the beautiful woman who sat with a blighted smile upon her face.

Yet there was something like a sigh on her lips. Did he love her? Of her own feelings she had no doubt. She loved him with her whole heart—as she could never delude herself capable of loving any one. But did he love her? There was somewhat of coldness and indifference in his manner—something she did not understand. He had forbidden her to speak of love—he had forbidden her to remember the past—he had said to herself, she loved him—dear Heaven! how she loved him—dear Heaven! how she loved him!

She flung up her arms with a wild cry of despair. None ever suffered more than did Pauline Darrell then.

"Oh, my sin," she moaned, "my grievous sin!"

She tried to soothe the unhappy woman, but Lady Darrell turned from her with all the energy of despair.

"I cannot believe you," she cried; "it is an infamous plot to destroy my happiness and to destroy me. Hark! I hear Captain Langton's voice; come with me and say before him what you have said to me."

Forepaugh's Colossal Show.

There needed only the present brilliant tour of the immense Forepaugh Show through New England, to prove beyond doubt that he has the most comprehensive, elaborate and startling exhibition in the world. He will be here on Saturday, August 21st, and we have no doubt but that the people will avail themselves of the opportunity to see its merits. The Boston papers have made such warm endorsements of the great show, as we do not remember to have seen heretofore of any other show performing there. The Daily Post June 16 makes the following comment:

The magnificent array of performances which are given every afternoon and evening at the mammoth pavilion of the Union Grounds are attracting large crowds. Such a rare combination of talent seldom visits the city, and no one should fail to witness the entertainment. The features are too numerous to describe in detail, for all are excellent, and each performer shows that skill and ability which characterize all of Mr. Forepaugh's shows. Daisy Belmont, a dainty little lady of pleasing face and supple figure, gives some remarkably fine performances on the revolving globe. The Misses Annie Carroll is graceful and daring, and the trapeze acts of the Fisher Brothers and the Belmonts excite the greatest wonder. The Elliotts, the champion bicycle riders of the world, are very entertaining and their performances are exceedingly successful. [illegible] Bogardus and his son [illegible] rifle shooting in connection with the realistic and thrilling stage coach robbery and attack by Indians. There are but a few of the many features which have made Forepaugh's circus famous, and he will miss much who fails to attend the performance.

"Well, well—the world must turn upon its axis,
And all mankind turn with it, heads or tails;
And live and die, make love and pay our taxes,"

is the way Byron looked at it; but "it is not all of life to live." A healthy life is the only one "worth living for," and that depends on the liver. GLEY'ED!

GLEYED is a Scotch phrase for cross-eyed, and the question has been asked what has it to do with Dry Goods?

Now there is a class of people that often view Dry Goods as if they squinted, and we say with the Man that he made two ears to hear and two eyes to see with, we will not cater to the latter order.

We have just opened out the balance of eight cases and several bales of New Fall Goods that will bear a good, square look both for prices and material.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Oysters

Now on hand at the C. P. R. Restaurant, served up in the best styles.

Thanks.

The management of the Hazel Brae Home desires to thank Mrs. W. H. Moore, for two warm jackets for children.

The Fruit Canning Season.

Housekeepers will find the finest and cheapest stock of sugars for the preserving season, at Morrow, Tierney & Co's, as well as a splendid stock of the best groceries.

New Uniforms.

The members of the Riverside Lacrosse Club, have purchased stylish new uniforms, composed of cardinal and blue guernseys and blue knickerbockers. They will wear them for the first time in their match with the Millbrook team, to-morrow.

New Fall Wheat.

The first load of this season's fall wheat was brought to the market Tuesday afternoon by Mr. John Callahan, of Otonabee, and was sold for 70c. per bushel. The grain was a fine sample, the berry being large and plump.

Complimentary.

The Port Hope Times says:—We have to thank the Driving Park Association of Peterborough for badges for the races to take place in that town on the 26th and 27th of August. A number of very good prizes are offered, and two days of good sport may be looked for.

The Great Bon Marche.

The boom in big bargains at the Bon Marche still goes on. The most astonishing bargains in all kinds of goods continue to be given every day. No one can afford to miss this chance of getting all kinds of goods at from 75 to 100 per cent. below the regular price. The stock has to be cleared out, even if the goods have to be next thing to given away. Call on Carton at the Bon Marche.

W. C. T. U.

At a special meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held last Monday afternoon it was decided to hold a public meeting on Monday evening next, in the Y. M. C. A. hall, commencing at 7.30 o'clock. Also to organize a Band of Hope next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the same place, to which all children are cordially invited.

The Dozen Decided On.

The following are the names and positions of the team of the Riversides which will meet the Millbrook twelve at that place to-morrow:—J. Phelan, goal; D. Ross, point; W. Walsh, cover point; T. Maher, J. Begley, W. McAvela, defence field; F. Larose, centre; F. Giroux, F. Pakenham, H. Keel, home field; P. Dwinan, 2nd home; J. Scott, 1st home; M. McDonald, field captain.

Civic Holiday Attractions.

Civic Holiday is designed to be a day of relaxation and enjoyment, and to secure this to the fullest extent, the P. A. A. A. excursion to Sturgeon Point and Orillia presents the grandest opportunity. A day at Sturgeon Point with brief travel, or by going a little further, Orillia is reached with its delightful day's boating on one of the most beautiful inland lakes of the country. Keep this excursion in mind. The rates are exceedingly low, train service first-class, time rapid, and the comfort and enjoyment of every excursionist guaranteed.

Fire!

The fire alarm sounded long and loudly this morning, about four o'clock, the residence of Mr. Alex. Fallen, Hunter street, being on fire. The brigade with engine, etc., proceeded to the place, but their services were not required, the fire having been extinguished by the neighbors of Mr. Fallen, who instituted a bucket brigade and quenched the flames with well water. The explosion of a lamp in a room upstairs was the cause of the fire. The flooring, matting, a bed and part of the walls were damaged or destroyed by the flames. Mr. Geo. A. Cox owns the building.

No Police Court.

The police court was again blank to-day. The weather is evidently too warm for courting.

Police Uniforms.

The Police Supervision Committee have asked All the Clothing Dealers to block the tenders for supplying the new uniforms for the police.

Football.

The game of lacrosse played on Sydney yesterday between the Pontypool and Lindsay clubs, resulted in a draw, they standing 10 to 10 on the fourth innings. It is proposed to play the deciding game at the Riverside Park, here, at an early date.

Reducing their Stock.

The firm of Giroux & Sullivan to be dissolved on 31st August, is now offering unprecedented bargains in new and fashionable dry goods in order to clear out their entire and magnificent stock before the above date. The entire stock has been gone over and marked down to profoundly low prices, and an opportunity is thus offered to the public of purchasing the best goods at surprising low figures, which it behooves all to take advantage of. During the great dissolution sale the terms will be cash. Now is the time to lay in a stock of choice goods at astonishingly low rates.

The Driving Park Races.

The Driving Park Association is bound to make the big race meeting on the 26th and 27th of August a big success. They have issued 1000 fine three-color posters and Mr. Ned. Brown is now absent looking after their posting in Bowmanville, Whitby, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Belleville, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Beaverton, Orillia, Barrie and other points. Where he does not personally visit, bills are sent, so that the meeting will be widely advertised and will bring together the best horses in the district, and the handsome purses offered will make keen competition, so that two days of the finest sport ever seen in town will be presented at the Driving Park on the 26th and 27th.

Equine Escapade.

A lively runaway occurred on George st. last night, a team from Fitzgerald's livery with Chas. McClelland and Frank Mercer in the rig being the principals. The horses bolted after leaving Hunter street and went down George street with speed. Mercer jumped at the earliest opportunity, while McClelland held on until about opposite the Grand Central, when he was thrown from the vehicle, fortunately without injury other than a shaking. The horses continued on down the street, turning up charlotte street, where they collided with a post near Deautel's blacksmith shop and were captured. The tongue and whiffletrees and parts of the harness were broken and the horses' feet were cut slightly.

Excursion to Toronto.

One of the best opportunities that our citizens may have for some time of visiting the Queen City at a low rate, presents itself on our civic holiday, August 19th. Arrangements have been made to run an excursion to Toronto per C. P. R. on that day. Passengers can leave here either by the 5.20 or 8.39 a.m. express, and tickets will be good to return on the 19th and 20th by any regular train. As the date fixed is not Toronto's civic holiday, parties desirous of doing business in the city, will doubtless avail themselves of this excellent chance, and others will go to see their friends and relations. Only a limited number of tickets will be issued at the low price, for the return journey, of $2. Tickets can be had at Alex. Elliott's C. P. R. ticket office, George street, at the station, or at A. L. Davis & Co's.

Kicked by a Horse.

Master Ernest Cooper, eldest son of Chief Cooper, had the misfortune to meet with a very painful accident yesterday evening. While endeavoring to catch his father's horse, generally quiet, pastured in a field adjoining his residence, the animal kicked him, a caulk of the iron shoe striking the boy in the forehead, inflicting a gaping wound over an inch long, which exposed the skull for nearly the same distance. The blow knocked him senseless. Fortunately several persons witnessed the occurrence and he was carried home. Dr. Clark was summoned and dressed the wound. The sufferer is now doing remarkably well under the circumstances. It is thought that if the caulk had struck a little further to the right—over the temple—the result of the blow would have been death. The youth is to be congratulated on his narrow escape.

The Hamilton Company's Exhibit.

The London Builder contains the following reference to the exhibit of the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company, at the Colonial Exhibition:—The Hamilton Manufacturing Company, of Peterborough, Ont., have in motion one of Covel's Patent Automatic Saw-sharpening Machines for circulars and mill webs. The sharpening is done by an emery wheel in the usual way, but when the saw is once fixed it requires no further attention till completed. An additional advantage in this machine is that the depth of gullet and sharpening of each tooth is absolutely the same—a result quite unattainable in machines guided by hand. Any desired depth of gullet or rake on tooth can be obtained at will. This machine can be used for sharpening large band-saw blades, and, taken altogether, it must be pronounced one of the most interesting machines in the exhibition.

Drowned on the Lake.

Cobourg, Aug. 10.—A party of young men left here yesterday for a week's camping on Rice Lake, and to-day one of them, named Joseph McCullough, of this town, took their boat out into the lake with the intention of having a swim, and after jumping into the water was unable to reach the boat and was drowned before help could reach him. This is the fifth drowning accident in this vicinity this season.

DR. WASHINGTON, Throat and Lung Surgeon, 215 Yonge St., Toronto:

Sir,—Toronto, June 23, 1886.

THE JOURNAL.

Allow me through your paper to thank Dr. Washington, throat and lung surgeon, for his great skill in curing me of catarrh which had greatly troubled me for years, also an exceedingly bad form of ulcerated throat. My throat for weeks was so badly ulcerated that it was impossible for me to swallow, the ulcers making holes through. I took the [illegible] and in three weeks my throat was entirely healed, and as I am now able to attend to my business I consider myself entirely cured. I was also troubled with catarrh or any disease of the throat.

THREATS OF POWDER.

COWARDLY ATTACK ON ORANGEMEN AT LONDONDERRY.

BELFAST, Aug. 12.—The night was quiet, except for a slight amount of firing in the [illegible] districts. [illegible] Forty wounded persons on the Royal Hospital are making good progress towards recovery. Heavy rain is falling, preventing crowds from gathering. The Northern Whig (Protestant) rebukes Rev. Dr. Kane for his remarks in relation to the action the Orangemen would take if the police were not disarmed.

A petition is being signed in favor of a Royal Commission to inquire into the riots, with power to subpœna and examine witnesses [illegible].

DUBLIN, Aug. 12.—United Ireland says Lord Salisbury in his speech last night pro[illegible]. His speech is twenty years of manacles for the Irish. "Very good," says United Ireland, "our race is accustomed to resist tyranny. War, let it be in the name of God."

DUBLIN, Aug. 12.—Parnell, with Timothy Harrington and other friends, is grouse shooting on one of the Wicklow mountains.

DUBLIN, Aug. 12.—While the police of towns in the vicinity of Killorgan were engaged in keeping the peace at the fair in that town [illegible] Mid[illegible] Three were successful in getting away with [illegible] rifles. They also seized a large quantity of ammunition.

LONDONDERRY, Aug. 12.—During a procession of Orangemen through this city to-day two bottles filled with gunpowder packed [illegible] lighted fuses were cast into the ranks at different points along the line. Both bottles were smashed before the lights could reach the powder. The lights were quenched. When the nature of the affair became generally known among the Orangmen they became greatly excited. The Orangemen were also attacked while they were parading on the [illegible] and severely stoned by a mob. Rev. Thomas Olphert, Canon of the Episcopal Cathedral, and several citizens were wounded. The excitement is reaching a dangerous height.

BELFAST, Aug. 12.—The city has been quiet to-day. The patrols are retained. The people dread the withdrawal of the military. The Catholic bishop has prohibited Catholic parades during the remainder of the year. Five hundred Orangemen from [illegible] have come here in readiness for Aug. 15, the day of the Feast of the Assumption.

LONDONDERRY, Aug. 12.—Mr. McClintock, Orange Grand Master here, in a speech to-day ridiculed the story that Orangemen originated the riots and said that when required to fight the leaders would supply their men with better ammunition than brickbats.

AN ASSURANCE OF PEACE.

The London Times and Standard on the Cutting Incident.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Times, speaking of the Cutting case, says: "The chief difficulty in the way of the settlement of the matter lies in Cutting's appeals to the angry passions of the Texans and the desire of the dormant raiders, on both sides of the frontier, for an outbreak which would result in the restoration of contraband trade. President Diaz of Mexico can have no wish for a collision with his powerful neighbor, and he must be well aware that there are enemies of Mexico on both sides of the frontier, who are [illegible] of war. [illegible] has shown admirable moderation in dealing with Cutting, considering the provocation he gave, although Secretary Bayard has been a little too exacting. The action of the President and the senate is all that could be desired. In that action lies the assurance of peace."

The Standard says: "It would be a misfortune if the very foolish Cutting business should end in war. As all costs Mexico should avoid a struggle that could lead only to defeat and disaster, and which would throw her hopelessly back in commercial progress. Even if Mexico is in the right, it would be better for her to suffer a wrong than to attempt to vindicate herself at so ruinous a price."

AN IMPROVED REELING.

The Money Market at New York Got Over Its Panic of Wednesday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The money market to-day was more natural than yesterday and the great majority of call loans were made at 6 per cent. The Sub-Treasury [illegible] $40,000 at 30 per cent. yesterday did not call for the money but simply paid a day's interest on the loan and sc[illegible] banks assert that they have made no loans calls above 6 per cent. and are lending freely on time at 5 per cent. About $2,[illegible] was shipped to the west during the [illegible] two days against $1,100,000 for all last week. The transactions in sterling exchange at [illegible] bills were made to-day at rates below the gold importing point and European houses expect no gold shipment at any moment. Near the close the rate for money fell to 1 per cent. per [illegible] and the market closed at 2 to 3 per cent.

MORE VICTORIES.

Two Trophies Added to Those Previously Won by Our Adjutorymen.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Canadian artillerymen to-day won both the Londonderry challenge cup and the Marquis of Lansdowne's prize in the contests at Wimbledonness.

Royal Templars of Temperance.

HAMILTON, Aug. 12.—At the meeting of the Dominion Council, Royal Templars of Temperance to-day these officers were elected: Councillor, W. W. Buchanan, Hamilton; Vice, J. H. Flagg, Mitchell; Secretary, J. H. Land, Hamilton; Auditor, P. H. Stewart, Barrie; Chaplain, Rev. J. W. Bell, Carberry, Man.; Herald, A. C. Steel, Guelph; Treasurer, Bank of Montreal. Two vacancies on the Board of Trustees were filled by the election of Rev. A. M. Phillips, St. Mary's, and Rev. T. P. Lewis, Norham. Representatives to Supreme Council: W. W. Buchanan and W. Kezkewell. The next place of meeting will be Hamilton. The reports show that there are 290 councils in Canada and Newfoundland, with a membership of 5179, including 700 in the royal degrees.

The Ill-Fated Cruiser Burned.

SARNIA, Aug. 12.—Search for the three remaining young men lost in the Cruiser disaster has ceased. The ill-fated yacht was burned by its proprietor on the spot where it was [illegible]. The last record is furnished by a memorandum of the trip kept by Mr. Telfer and found in his pocket by friends when preparing his body for interment. The closing entry is dated "Sunday, 2 p.m." and notes that they are abreast of Kincardine, with "a fair wind and facing a rolling sea."

In civilized communities they hang a man as orphans. In less civilized communities they just hang him to a tree.

A BIG RAILWAY DEAL.

The Jersey Central, Reading and B. & O. to be Operated as One Road.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12.—At a meeting yesterday of the Jersey Central Railway Company, the joint contract between that road and the Baltimore and Ohio was formally approved. The new agreement recognizes the one already existing between the Baltimore and Ohio and the Reading road, and under its provisions the Jersey Central, Reading and Baltimore and Ohio lines will be operated as one road. The Central agrees to interpose no objections to the construction of the bridge over the Arthur Kill to Staten Island, where the Baltimore and Ohio's terminus is to be located. The Baltimore and Ohio also has the right to do all its business, passenger, express and freight over the Staten Island line. It is agreed, however, on the part of the Baltimore and Ohio, that it will not divert its freight business to Staten Island until after the expiration of two years, and that it will not divert its passenger and express business until after six years. The Baltimore and Ohio pledges itself to abandon the idea of building an independent road from Round Brook to Staten Island.

OUTRAGES AT MONTREAL.

Children Given Dynamite Detonators to Explode.

MONTREAL, Aug. 12.—A most mysterious occurrence has taken place here. Two boys and a girl were playing on St. Andre-street, when a well-dressed stranger gave them a dynamite detonator and told them to light the fuse. No sooner had they done so than an explosion occurred, blowing off two of the boy's fingers and wounding the girl in the forehead. This is the second case of the kind that has taken place within the last few days. The police are looking for the miscreant, but as yet without success. Several similar detonators have been found on the street.

JAMES STARNS' DILEMMA.

He Finds Himself at an Interval of Thirty Years With Two Wives on His Hands.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 12.—A domestic romance was brought to a climax here last evening. Over thirty years ago there resided near this place James Starns, a young farmer, his wife and two little boys. In 1854 Starns concluded to try his fortune in the West, and went to California. A month later, having found a pleasant settlement, he sent his wife money with which to join him. Mrs. Starns wrote that she would start in two months, but at the end of that time she had received no reply. Starns wrote letter after letter to his wife and relatives and she wrote to him, but neither ever received a word from the other. Ten years afterwards Starns sent [illegible] that the money would [illegible] to him as no one called for it. By this time both husband and wife supposed each other dead. Starns went to Michigan and there [illegible] on Wisconsin, where six years ago he married the daughter of a wealthy farmer. By some strange fate he drifted to Chattanooga last week, but no one remembered him, and he could find no trace of his folks. Yesterday he learned that a family named Starns resided near the city and procuring a carriage he took a drive to ascertain whether they were his relatives. On arriving at the house Starns was horrified to find that the aged white-haired lady who received him was his first wife, and he then realized that he had two wives. An explanation followed and the two wives were introduced, but each exhibited marked coolness. It is not known what the parties will do.

Officers of the New Educational Society.

Those favorable to the new Educational Society of Ontario, which has just been organized, held a meeting yesterday and elected these officers: President, R. Dawkin, Western High School; Vice-President, E. Lewis, Toronto; Directors—T. Hemstidge, Kingston; M. W. Hicks, Parkdale; A. Miller, Vienna; R. Sanderson, Harriston; D. H. Lent, Richmond Hill; C. McPherson, Prescott; W. McIntosh, Madoc; Jos. Carson, Strathroy; W. P. McMaster, Thorold; A. Steele, Orangeville. The directors subsequently elected David Boyle, Secretary-Treasurer. About 400 teachers have signed themselves as members. The next meeting will be held the day previous to the convention of the Ontario Teachers Association.

Regiment of Patriarchs Militant.

The different Cantons of Patriarchs Militant in connection with the I. O. O. F. have organized the First Regiment of Ontario with the following officers: P. J. Slatter, Toronto, as Colonel-in-Command, and Abner Fraser, Hamilton, Lieutenant-Colonel. The majors of the three battalions comprising the regiment were chosen as follows: Western, [illegible], London; Central, D. McCaig, Hamilton; Eastern, Geo. R. Lander, Kingston.

Result of Gunfight.

ANAMOSA, Iowa, Aug. 11.—Four convicts attempted to escape from Iowa penitentiary last night. Paddy Ryan, serving a 6-year term, was killed by the guards. Mitchell, who murdered a man at Cedar Rapids was shot in the leg, which will have to be amputated. It is thought he will die. Another convict named Larken was dangerously wounded.

Consumed by Lightning.

MOULINETTE, Ont., Aug. 11.—During a thunderstorm this afternoon the barns of Mr Geo. Raymond of Sheall's Island were struck by lightning and totally consumed, with over 100 tons of hay and all his farming implements and three Holstein calves and three pigs. Loss about $4000, partly covered by insurance.

An English Assurance Co. Goes Under.

LONDON, Aug. 11:—A sensation has been caused by the statements made in court to-day in connection with the affairs of the British Medical and General Assurance Association. A hearing on a petition to wind up the business of the association was in progress and during the course of the proceedings the judge stated that the failure of the concern was due to defalcations which would exceed $500,000. He declared that every effort would be made to unearth and punish the miscreants who had caused the ruin of the association.

Excursionists in a Fix.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Washouts are reported on all railroads leading to Atlantic City. On the Camden & Atlantic and Reading roads a washout has occurred at Egg Harbor City and on the West Jersey line at May's Landing. No trains have arrived at Atlantic City since this morning. There are 167 car loads of excursionists there who are unable to get away. Great excitement prevails.

Got Away with Goods.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 8—It has been ascertained that Evans, the absconding agent of the Grand Trunk Railway at Port Dalhousie, got away with $2000, which he had collected [illegible] lighterages. The company was [illegible] amount of $2000 in [illegible] securities.

CHURCHILL'S CONCEIT

HE IMAGINES HE CAN SETTLE THE IRISH QUESTION.

DUBLIN, Aug. 12.—The Irish Times (Conservative) states that it is reliably informed that Lord Randolph Churchill is engaged in [illegible] intended to give the Irish [illegible] measure providing for [illegible] local self-government throughout Great Britain and Ireland, giving Ireland, England, Scotland and Wales control each of its own immediate affairs, leaving the supreme power of the Imperial Parliament unaffected. The Bill is [illegible] measure which opens the door to Imperial Federation. The full text of the Bill, the Irish Times says, will not be completed before next February, "but," adds the [illegible] has [illegible] the [illegible] Lord [illegible] Marquis of Salisbury, the Marquis of Hartington and others, which is broad enough to satisfy all moderate Irishmen."

An Explanation.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The Standard [illegible]: "The utterances of the Irish press on Lord Salisbury's speech last night will open the eyes of English Home Rulers to the character of their new allies, some of whom endorsed and vilified Lord Spencer. This is a critical moment of Parnell's career as a leader. Moderation is doubtless essential to win [illegible], but [illegible] is indispensable to the flow of American dollars. The Chicago convention is pretty certain to put a dangerous strain on Parnell's relations with one or the other wing of his motley following.

The Fears of Elections.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—Mr. Bradlaugh will ask a division of the House of Commons on Friday, 20 inst. on the [illegible] order declaring that the interference of peers in elections constitutes a high infringement of the liberties and privileges of the Commons. He will [illegible] interference by the Duke of Westminster, Earl of Leicester, Lord Montague, the Duke of Norfolk and the Duke of Argyll, respectively, in Chester, Norfolk, Bucks, Islington and Argyllshire, and will move that the order, if obsolete, be abandoned, otherwise that it be enforced. The Radicals will support Mr. Bradlaugh.

WHOLESALE POISONING.

The Terrible Crimes of a Massachusetts Woman to Obtain Insurance Money.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Aug. 12.—Mrs. Sarah Robinson, who was arrested yesterday for attempting the death of her son by administering poisons, was arraigned in court this morning. The boy has since died and the charge against her now is wilful murder. The examination has shown conclusively that poisons were administered. It is understood the police have information of the suspicious death of all the children persons directly or indirectly related to Mrs. Robinson, who were insured in benefit organizations. The money in most cases fell into this woman's hands. Thos. R. Smith, her supposed accomplice, was also arrested and hailed. He has reported to the police that since the death of Mrs. Robinson's husband eleven of her relatives have died all within 4 years. These include children of Mrs. Robinson and others she had care of. Most of them were insured. On the death of a father or mother she would take charge of the children, and as the money came down to the children, she, it is believed, would put them out of the way. Her husband died very suddenly four years ago. The alleged cause of his death was overheat and drinking water. His life was insured in the New England Relief Association for $2000 or $3000. The association refused to pay the money to the widow. The case is now before the Supreme Court. It is stated that when any of Mrs. Robinson's family were sick the same physician was never called twice.

SECOND DAY OF THE SAENGERFEST

A Big Day of Music at Berlin—Splendid Performances.

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—The great German festival has closed its second day, and the morrow will be devoted to picnics, sports, processions, balls, and perhaps an occasional lager. The matinee to-day showed two excellent children's choruses in one of which the little ones waved their union jacks in time to the chorus of the Red, White and Blue, creating a tremendous furore among the immense audience. The singers of the societies in the competition surprised everybody, it was so good, especially Montreal, Berlin and Waterloo among the Canadian societies. Rochester, however, carried off the palm. The 13th band played splendidly. The Creation was performed with fine effect. A chorus that would grace [illegible], an excellent orchestra, a good conductor whose only fault is his indolent time beat and his satisfaction therewith, first-class soloists—Mrs. Caldwell, Mr. Jenkins and Mr. Warrington—all combined to make [illegible] almost perfect performance. Add to this a jammed house and you have all that [illegible] a committee. The committee, by the way, worked well and attended to everything and has made Berlin a most noted and popular musical centre.

Strikers Punished at Brussels.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 12.—Oscar Tallour, Secretary of the Glass-Workers' Association, and Schmidt, one of his companions in the strikers' riots, were yesterday condemned to twenty years' penal servitude for leading the attack on the Baudoux glass works, which were destroyed during the riots at Charleroi. Of the other defendants one was sentenced to fifteen years penal servitude, two to twelve years and seven to three months. Six were acquitted.

For Inciting to Murder.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—Louise Michel was to-day sentenced at the City Assizes to four months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of 1000 francs for seditious language and inciting to murder during the rioting at Decazes on May 2 last. Gueslies La Fargue and Sumine were sentenced to four and six months' imprisonment for a similar offence at the same time.

A Fourth Body Found.

ZURICH, Aug. 12.—A body was found on the Lake Huron shore to-day near Lakeview. As near as could be made out by a name on the watch it is the body of Wm. Vidal, station-master at Watford, one of the six young men lost in the Cruiser disaster.

A Squall at Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Aug. 12. During a sudden squall this afternoon a brick laden schooner while passing out of the harbor was capsized near Green Island and four men are supposed to have been drowned. About the same time the sloop Frolic was capsized and sunk near Deer Island and three persons probably went down with her. The details of both disasters are meagre.

Cold-Blooded Murder by Chinese.

EVANSTON, Wyom., Aug. 12.—Two Chinamen have been arrested here charged with murdering a Chinese woman and chopping her remains in pieces, which, on being [illegible] were found to be all of equal weight. The murderers are said to have been jealous of the attentions paid to the woman by a white man.

THE POLITICAL PRICE OF WHEAT.

The Hamilton Times thus describes the price of wheat as a political factor :—"It is not uncommon to hear people argue that the reports of damage to the spring wheat must be wrong, or why does not the price go up in the market. It does not go up more because, among other things (as the Wall Street News points out) we have to sell our wheat to the Liverpool market, which makes the price for us ; and we have to meet their as competitors Russia, India, Austro-Hungary, Roumania, Australia, Egypt and even Chili. All these, and others too, have wheat to sell.

The argument cannot be gainsaid, yet in the past we have seen a body of men go through the Dominion proclaiming to the farmers that if they were only given the power to tax the necessities of life many of which—such as sugar—they must import from foreign countries, they would keep up the price of wheat and other farm products entirely independent of the influences of other countries. They have had nearly eight years of a trial, and yet, with a crop of wheat in Canada that is below the average, we have the price of wheat phenomenally low—away down to 70c. and 75c.

In the face of such evidence, the farmers of Canada surely cannot any longer be hoodwinked by the altogether unwarranted promises of the Tory wirepullers."

GOOD for Manitoba! Intelligence has been received announcing the fact that the Canadian flour, made from Manitoban wheat, has been awarded the gold medal at the International Pakery Exhibition at Amsterdam.

THE returning-officer of Chambly has declared that in a total vote of 1,756 Ald. Prefontaine, the Liberal candidate, has secured a majority of 81. When the Tory candidate was returned by a majority of 539 in 1882 the number who voted was 1,105.

SO THOROUGH are the health regulations now enforced in Great Britain that during the month of June not a single fatal case of smallpox was recorded either in London or indeed in any of the twenty-eight Provincial towns in England referred to in the Registrar-General's returns.

C. P. R. TELEGRAPHIC SYSTEM.

A Wire Laid Across the St. Lawrence and Cable Connection Made.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 5.—The Canadian Pacific Railway Company chartered the ferry steamer Southeastern, and at 5 o'clock this morning commenced laying a cable across the St. Lawrence River from Mahood's wharf to St. Helen's Island. The company have during the past week constructed a telegraph line over the St. Lawrence, connecting St. Helen's Island with the south shore of the St. Lawrence by putting in four or five very large poles on which the wires are carried across the river. The cable connection was completed about eleven o'clock and telegraph instruments being attached to the wire everything was found to work all right, so that in a few minutes afterwards they were able to call up New York. Connection was then made with the Mackay-Bennet Commercial Cable Company's office, and congratulations were exchanged between both companies. This completes the C. P. R. telegraph connection with New York and with the Mackay-Bennett Commercial Cable Company

MONTREAL, Aug. 12.—Another meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association was held this afternoon, when the minimum prices were fixed : Gray cottons, 21c; white cottons, an advance of ½c to ¾c; white yarns will remain about the same.

Grand Lodge of Oddfellows.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Ontario Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., transacted a large amount of routine business to-day. Congratulatory telegrams were sent to grand lodges in session elsewhere. Peterborough was chosen as the place of meeting next year.

The Runaway Heiress Marries Rickner.

MONTREAL, Aug. 12.—Alfred Rickner, who eloped from Chicago with Miss Madeline Kessler, and who is said to be married to a Madame Choquette, who is divorced from her husband in this city, was married to the runaway heiress by a Protestant minister yesterday. Before having the ceremony performed Rickner consulted a well-known criminal lawyer, who advised him that his marriage with Madame Choquette is null, inasmuch as the divorce she obtained in Chicago is not binding in Canada.

Arguments on the appeal of James Gordon Bennett from the award against him of $25,000 in favor of Cyrus W. Field for libel, were concluded yesterday in London. Judgment was reserved and the execution of the award was stayed.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed, "Tender for the Masonry and Bricklayers' Works, &c., of Parliament Buildings," will be received at this Department until twelve of the clock, noon, on Thursday, the second day of September next, for the excavating and the masonry and bricklayers' works, labor and materials, and certain other works, &c. in connection therewith, required for and in the erection and construction of the proposed new Parliament and Departmental Buildings for the Province of Ontario.

Printed forms of tender can be obtained at this Department, and persons tendering are specially notified that they will not be entitled to have their tenders considered unless the same are made on and in compliance with these printed forms, signed with the actual signature of every person tendering (including each member of the firm), followed by his post office address, and with all blanks in the forms properly filled up.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted bank cheque, payable to the order of the Commissioner of Public Works for Ontario, for the sum of eight thousand dollars which will be forfeited if the party tendering declines or fails to enter into a contract in common such tender, when called upon to do so. Where the party's tender is not accepted, the cheque, will be returned.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required on real estate, or by the deposit of money, public or municipal securities or bank stocks, to the amount of five per cent. on the bulk sum, to become pay able under the contract, of which five per cent., the amount of the accept & cheque accompanying the tender, will be considered a part.

To each tender must be attached the actual signatures of at least two responsible and solvent persons, residents of Ontario, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, and the due fulfilment and performance of the contract in all particulars.

Printed copies of the specifications can be obtained on application at the Department.

The Department will not be bound to accept the lowest or any tender.

C. F. FRASER, Commissioner, &c.
Department of Public Works for Ontario.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 20th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two spring-less trusses made in York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. . . . I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down. It holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KERR.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work of the most active man. It will cure every child here; and 95 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address,

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

FACE TO FACE.

Captain Langton looked up in surprise not altogether unfounded, the sight that met his eyes was so unusual.

Before him stood Lady Darrell, her face white as death, her lips quivering with excitement, her superb dress of pink brocade all disarranged, her golden hair falling over her beautiful shoulders—a sight not to be forgotten; she held Pauline by the hand, and in all her life Lady Darrell had never looked so agitated as now.

"Captain Langton," said Lady Darrell, "will you come here? I want you most particularly."

It was by pure chance that she opened the library door—it was the one nearest to her.

"Will you follow me?" she said.

He looked from one to the other with somewhat of confusion in his face.

"Miss Darrell?" he cried. "Why, I thought you were at Ombercleigh?"

Pauline made no reply.

Lady Darrell held the library door open while they entered, and then she closed it, and turned the key.

Captain Langton looked at her in wonder.

"Elinor," he said, "what does this mean? Are you going to play a tragedy or a farce?"

"That will depend upon you," she answered; "I am glad and thankful to have brought you and Miss Darrell face to face. Now I shall know the truth."

The surprise on his face deepened into an angry scowl.

"What do you mean?" he demanded, sharply. "I do not understand."

"It was a scene never to be forgotten. The stately woman with the haughty love of the human evening, and in the gloom Lady Darrell's pale pink dress, golden hair, and white arms bare to the shoulder, seemed to attract all the light; her face was changed from its great agitation—the calm, fair beauty, the gentle caressing manner were gone.

Near her stood Pauline, whose countenance was softened with compassion and pity unutterable, the dark eyes shining as through a mist of tears.

Before them, as a criminal before his judges, stood Aubrey Langton, with an angry scowl on his handsome face, and yet something like fear in his eyes.

"What is it?" he cried, impatiently. "I cannot understand this at all."

Lady Darrell turned her pale face to him.

"Captain Langton," she said, gravely, "Miss Darrell brings a terrible accusation against you. She tells me that you stole the roll of notes that Sir Oswald missed, and that at the price of her life you extorted an oath from her not to betray you; is it true?"

She looked at him bravely, fearlessly.

"It is a lie!" he said.

Lady Darrell continued:

"Here, in this room, where we are standing now, she tells me that the scene took place, and that, finding she had discovered you in the very act of theft, you held a loaded pistol to her head until she took the oath you dictated. Is it true or false?"

"It is a lie!" he repeated; but his lips were growing white, and great drops stood upon his brow.

"She tells me," resumed Lady Darrell, "that you loved her, and that you care only for Darrell Court, not for me. Is it true?"

"It is all false," he said, hoarsely—"false from beginning to end! She hates you, she hates me, and this foul slander has only been invented to part us."

Lady Darrell looked from one to the other.

"Now, Heaven help me!" she cried. "Which shall I believe?"

Grave and composed, with a certain majesty of truth that could never be mistaken, Pauline raised her right hand.

"Lady Darrell," she said, "I swear to you, in the presence of Heaven, that I have spoken nothing but the truth."

"And I swear it is false!" cried Aubrey Langton.

But appearances were against him; Lady Darrell saw that he trembled, that his lips worked, glass coughingly, and that great drops stood upon his brow.

Pauline looked at him: those dark eyes that had in them no shadow save of infinite pity and sorrow seemed to penetrate his soul, and he shrank from the glance.

"Elinor," he cried, "you believe me, surely! Miss Darrell has always hated you, and this is her revenge."

"Lady Darrell," said the girl, "I am ashamed of my hatred and ashamed of my desire for vengeance. There is no humiliation to which I would not submit to atone for my faults, but every word I have said to you is true."

Once more with troubled eyes Lady Darrell looked from one to the other; once more she murmured:

"Heaven help me! Which am I to believe?"

Then Captain Langton, with a light laugh, said:

"Is the farce ended, Lady Darrell? You see it is no tragedy after all."

Pauline turned to him, and in the light of that noble face his own grew mean and weak.

"Captain Langton," she said, "I appeal to whatever there is of good and just in you. Own to the truth. You need not be afraid of it—Lady Darrell will not injure you. She will think better of you if you confess than if you deny. Tell her that you were led into error, and trust to her kindness for pardon."

"She speaks well," observed Lady Darrell, slowly. "If you are guilty, it is better to tell me so."

He laughed again, but the laugh was not pleasant to her. Pauline continued:

"Let me speak out where it is Captain Langton; it will not make it any greater. In your heart you know that you have no love for this lady—it is her fortune that attracts you. If you marry her, it will only be to make her unhappy for life. Admit your guilt and leave her to peace."

"I am very much obliged to you," he said, with a sneer, "but I am afraid I shall be compelled to believe you. Elinor, I positively claim on this—since you have known Miss Darrell, have you ever received one act of kindness from her, one kind word even?"

Lady Darrell was obliged to answer:

"No."

"Then I leave it," he said, "to your sense of justice which of us you are to believe now—her who, to anger you, swears to my guilt, or me, who swears to my innocence? Elinor, my love, you cannot doubt me."

Pauline saw her eyes soften with unutterable tenderness—he saw a faint flush rise on the fair face. Almost involuntarily Lady Darrell drew near to him.

"I cannot bear to doubt you, Aubrey," she said. "Oh, speak the truth to me, for my love's sake!"

"I do speak the truth. Come with me; leave Miss Darrell for a while. Walk with me across the lawn, and I will tell you what respect for Miss Darrell prevents my saying here."

Lady Darrell turned to Pauline.

"I must hear what he has to say—it is only just."

"I will wait for you," she replied.

The captain was always attentive; he went out into the hall and returned with a shawl that he found there.

"You cannot go out with those beautiful arms uncovered, Elinor," he said, gently.

He placed the shawl around her, trying to hide the coward, trembling fear.

"As though I did not love you," he said, reproachfully. "Show me another woman only half so fair."

Pauline made one more effort.

"Lady Darrell," she cried, with outstretched hands, "you will not decide hastily—you will take time to judge?"

But as they passed out together, something in the defiant face told that her love for Aubrey Langton was the strongest element in her nature.

"Lady Darrell," she cried again, "do not listen to him! I swear I have told you the truth—Heaven will judge between him and me if I have not!"

"You must have studied tragedy at the Porte St. Martin," said Aubrey Langton, with a forced laugh; "Lady Darrell knows which to believe."

She watched them walk across the lawn, Captain Langton pleading earnestly, Lady Darrell's face softening as she listened. "I am too late!" cried the girl, in an agony of self-reproach. "All my humiliation is in vain; she will believe him and not me. I cannot save her now, but one word in time might have done so."

Oh, the bitterness of the self-reproach that tortured her—the anguish of knowing that she could have prevented Lady Darrell's wrecking her whole life, yet she had not done so! It was no wonder that she burned her face in her hands, weeping and praying as she had never wept and prayed in her life before.

"Well, well—the world must turn upon its axis.

And all mankind turn with it, heads or tails;

And live and die, make love and pay our taxes,"

is the way Byron looked at it; but "it is not all of life to live." A healthy life is the only one "worth living for," and that depends on the liver. If the liver is not in good working order, pimples, blotches, skin diseases, scrofula, catarrh, and a long list of dangerous diseases result. FLOUR.

There seems to be some misapprehension relative to the price of Flour. I find a number of purchasers stating that the grade of Flour known as has been reduced to $2.85 per one hundred pounds. This is a mistake. I offer, in common with all other dealers and millers, a good Family Flour at $2.25, but the brand "Bakers" is still retailed at $2.50 per hundred.

"BAKER'S"

P. P. FLOUR for Pastry, $2.75 per Hundred

BAKER'S FLOUR (ground from Manitoba Hard and Ontario Spring Wheat), $2.50 per Hundred.

GLEY'ED!

GLEY'ED is a Scotch phrase for cross-eyed, and the question has been asked what has it to do with Dry Goods?

Now there is a class of people that does view Dry Goods as if they squinted, and shy away with the idea that the goods are not right near the proper object.

We hope just opened out the prettiest range of Dress Goods that ever came to Peterboro' Full Stock, that will wear a good, square look both for prices and material.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Oysters.

Now on hand at the C. P. R. Restaurant, served up in the best styles.

The Fruit Canning Season.

Housekeepers will find the finest and cheapest stock of sugars for the preserving season, at Morrow, Tierney & Co's, as well as a splendid stock of the best groceries.

Salvation Army Send Off.

A number of the members of the Salvation Army assembled at the barracks yesterday afternoon, where they formed in procession, and escorted Capt. Smith and Cadet Wood to the G. T. R. station. The retiring officers left on the 5.15 train for Lindsay.

Aspiring Corn.

The seasons of enormous eggs, large strawberries, high hay, tall grain and big fish have passed and the corn crop commences to attract attention. Mr. Herb. Dawson, proudly points to a corn stalk in his father's garden, Hunter street, which it has hoed for months and during which time he has reared its plumed head heavenward, until it now measures 12 feet in height, with proportionately large ears. If it continued to grow at the same rate, it will soon rival the famous bean stalk of Jack the Giant Killer.

Bargains that are Bargains.

The firm of Giroux & Sullivan to be dissolved on 31st August, is now offering unprecedented bargains in new and fashionable dry goods in order to clear out their entire and magnificent stock before the above date. The entire stock has been gone over and marked down to profoundly low prices, and an opportunity is thus offered to the public of purchasing the best goods at surprising low figures, which it behooves all to take advantage of. During the great dissolution sale the terms will be cash. Now is the time to lay in a stock of choice goods at astonishingly low rates.

Civic Holiday Attractions.

Civic Holiday is designed to be a day of recreation and enjoyment, and to secure this to the fullest extent, the P. A. A. A. excursion to Sturgeon Point and Orillia presents the grandest opportunity. A day at Sturgeon Point with brief travel, or by going a little further, Orillia is reached with its delightful day's boating on one of the most beautiful inland lakes of the country. Keep this excursion in mind. The rates are exceedingly low, train service first-class, time rapid, and the comfort and enjoyment of every excursionist guaranteed.

Nous invitons cordialement nos amis Canadiens Francais a venir au grand magasin a Bon Marche, afin de voir combien il est etonnant que l'on puisse vendre a de si bas prix toutes sortes d'effets de famille tout vendus a peu pres a moitie prix, que l'on paye ailleurs, et des centaines de clients sont servis tous le jours et s'en vont satisfaits—des thes grocerie, bottes et souliers, etoffes seches, hardes faites, etoffes a robes etc—le tout a des prix excessivement bas. Venez voir le grand magasin a Bon Marche et jugez pour vous-memes. Nous voulons que tous nos amis Canadiens Francais beneficien de cette grande et rare occasion. N'y manquez pas car il faut que le tout soit vendu sans reserve et immediatement.

What We May Expect.

Splendid music by the band to-night.

And a big gathering in Court House Park.

Church choirs to hold their usual weekly practice.

Mud to foment their inability to attend the next concert.

Another batch of Scott Act cases shortly.

And all-day engagements at the police court next week.

The Riversides to return victorious from Millbrook this evening.

Live market to-morrow.

The new Commandant of the local Salvation Army to arrive this evening for sure.

And to be accorded a hallelujah reception.

Capt. Snell, of Brockville, to be at the Gospel Army meeting to-night.

Band in the Park.

To-night the Fire Brigade Band will perform from the pavilion in Court House Park.

The [illegible] accompanied by a number of friends, left on the noon express for Millbrook, to play the village club. They will return to-night.

[illegible] yesterday.

A vagrant [illegible] Toronto, lodged in the lockup last night. The unfortunate crept into a box car at the G. T. R. station to rest his weary bones, when P. C. Adams collared him and escorted him to the police station. He was loosed from limbo this morning with instructions to leave town. He left.

Successful Visit.

Dr. N. Washington, Abbott and lung surgeon, has just completed a very successful visit. A large number who have been troubled with catarrh he has cured, and many more are being rapidly restored to health. The doctor states that it takes months to cure catarrh successfully, and no one ought to pass by such a great offer. Dates for next visit, September 20th and 21st.

Obituary.

In the death of Mary, relict of the late John Darling, of Smith, in her 70th year, that township loses one of its oldest and most respected pioneer residents. She has been a resident of this county over half a century, coming here in the year 1831. She was the mother of Mrs. D. Bellegham. The large attendance that followed her remains to their last resting place showed the high respect in which she was held.

New and Novel Dog Tag.

Some parties complain of the great size of the corporation dog tag, but the civic charms cannot compare with one worn by a canine yesterday. A double bred imported mongrel trotted down George street in the evening with a battered and antiquated looking coffee pot attached to his tail. The animal was evidently not of Midlothite breed as the music of the can as it bounded along the street did not scare it worth a cent. The subject of whether it would not be as well for a policeman to shoot at once as try to scare it to death has been referred to the Dufferin debaters to discuss.

Lively Lacrosse.

The juveniles throughout the town are evidently doing their utmost to keep alive the interest in lacrosse. During the first days of this week John McDonagh, captain, secretary and chairman of the Young Shamrocks delivered on the end of his crook a challenge to W. Wright, captain, s. and c. of the Markets to play a match game on Thursday. The challenge was formally accepted and yesterday afternoon the rival teams, headed by their respective captains, faced each other on the field at Bingham's point. The game continued for an hour and resulted in three straights for the Young Shamrocks, composed chiefly of newsboys. The boys will endeavor to get the use of Riverside Park on which to play the return match.

Attention!

We would call attention to the offer made by Joseph Griffin that during the next thirty days he will sell the whole of his summer stock of boots and shoes at cost. A few lines will actually be sold below cost. Look at the following quotations:—

Women's Pebble Oxford Shoes,	70c.
" buff do do	80
" pebble—tie or buttoned	90
" ladies kid shoe	$1.00
" patent Oxford	1.20
" polished calf tie shoe	1.25
" do do Oxford	1.25
" do do buttoned	1.35

All the above goods are solid leather. All other goods will be sold equally cheap. Now is the time to secure bargains.

Excursion to Toronto.

One of the best opportunities that our citizens may have for some time of visiting the Queen City at a low rate presents itself on our civic holiday, August 16th. Arrangements have been made to run an excursion to Toronto per C. P. R. on that day. Passengers can leave here either by the 5.30 or 8.39 a.m. express, and tickets will be good to return on the 19th and 20th by any regular train. As the date fixed is not Toronto's civic holiday, parties desirous of doing business in the city, will doubtless avail themselves of this excellent chance, and others will go to see their friends and relations. Only a limited number of tickets will be issued at the low price, for the return journey, of $2. Tickets can be had at Alex. Elliott's C. P. R. ticket office, George street, at the station, or at A. L. Davis & Co's.

Toronto Industrial Fair.

The success which has attended the Industrial Fair in the past, appears likely to be eclipsed by the success of the one for the present year, which opens at Toronto, on the 8th of September next. Already the space in all the large buildings is nearly taken up, and the character and novelty of the exhibits will be far ahead of those of previous years. The latest improvements in farming implements, machinery and all kinds of manufactures, will be found there, and the number of entries already made in the live stock department ensure a magnificent display in this respect. Our space will not permit us to particularize, but an excellent programme of special attractions has been provided, and the reputation of the Toronto show in this respect justifies us in saying that they will be of an interesting and novel character. Cheap excursions and reduced rates will be given on all the railways. A large number of conventions and other attractions will be going on in the city at the time of the fair, and any of our readers contemplating taking a holiday, will not have a better opportunity of spending it with pleasure and profit than by taking a trip to the Toronto Industrial Fair. Entries in all departments close with the 20th of August. For prize lists and all information apply to Mr. Hill, the Secretary, at Toronto.

The Band Benefit Social.

The Most Successful Garden Party of the Season—A Gay Gathering in St. John's Reception Church Grounds.

Tuesday night ended the fortnight of the ladies representing the different churches in town, in aid of the Fire Brigade Band uniform fund, held yesterday evening in the grounds surrounding St. John's church, generously given up for the occasion, and the ladies' success and crowded the grounds. The beautiful and tastefully laid out grounds were gaily lighted with gas, and amongst the trees with chinese lanterns, while the almost perfect moon from a clear and cloudless sky shed her solar light with seemingly special generosity, and when thronged with about 300 of an assemblage, the scene presented a charming appearance. The band in uniform marched to the grounds about 7.30 o'clock and taking a stand under the spreading pines launched forth in music. The pleasant strains from the eminence seemed to float invitingly over the town and drew a large audience in a short time. The ladies under whose management the social was conducted were well prepared for guests and temptingly spread refreshment tables loomed up where they would do the most good. In the school room Mrs. Kendry, Mrs. Braddon, Miss Mattinson, Mrs. Nugent and Mrs. Wm. Bradburn, representing the George street Methodist church, presided over tables at which cake and coffee were served; while Mrs. Beck, Mrs. Dr. Burnham Mrs. Baller, and Miss Vasie, representing St. John's church, and Mrs. Gilmour and Mrs. McDougall, representing the Murray street Baptist church, presided over fruit and ice cream tables. In a pretty place under the trees Mrs. Dr. O'Sullivan and Mrs. Phelan, representing St. Peter's cathedral, vended lemonade and cake, as did also Mrs. Green, Mrs. R. A. Hamilton and Miss Neil, the representatives of the Charlotte street Methodist church. In addition to these a large number of young ladies and little girls applied themselves vigorously to selling bouquets. While the band played with more than usual sweetness, the audience strolled around the grounds, or selecting a quiet spot seated themselves for a tete a tete. During the evening, Mrs. Chambers, Peterborough's favorite vocalist, who has returned to to town for a short visit, in the school room sang several charming solos.

Every person seemed delighted with the social and if they were not well entertained it was evidently their own fault

At 10.30 the band gave the National Anthem and the assemblage dispersed almost reluctantly.

ST. PAUL'S SHARE.

To-day Mr. R. Mein, treasurer of the Fire Brigade Band, received the following note:

The ladies of St. Paul's church desire to show their grateful appreciation of the services so obligingly rendered by the Fire Brigade Band at their entertainments, and beg their acceptance of the enclosed check of $70.

Signed on behalf of the ladies,
Friday morning. E. WALSH.

In explanation of the above it may be stated that before the lawn party of last night was suggested, the ladies of St. Paul's church had entered upon the work of practically expressing their gratitude to the band for services rendered, and for this reason they did not join with the other ladies in the lawn social Thursday evening. The handsome sum of $70 collected by Mrs. Walsh, is, however, very largely in excess of the proportionate amount which would have represented St. Paul's share of contribution to the social of last evening, if the sum realized had been twice as large.

THE COST OF THE UNIFORMS.

Many persons are not aware what it costs to completely clothe a band of 24 persons. To secure their new outfit the Fire Brigade Band has had to incur an expenditure of $640.80, made up as follows:—

24 uniforms at $23.50 each	$564 00
24 caps at $1.40 each	33 60
24 cross-belts at $2.00 each	48 00
Total	$640 80

NOTES.

The ladies of Charlotte street Methodist church desire to return their thanks to Mrs. Beck for kind attentions and courtesy at the party last evening.

The ladies representing the George street Methodist church rather stole a march on the other ladies, inasmuch as they had the pleasure of entertaining the band to refreshments towards the close of the social.

The total proceeds of the social amounted to $137.01. Out of this about $4 for expenses will be deducted and the balance will be devoted to the Band Uniform Fund.

Forepaugh's Feasts for this Year.

The famous Adam Forepaugh show is to be here on August 21st, and everybody is on the tip-toe of expectancy. The veteran manager has added much sensational interest this season, presenting a horse for the first time which walks a rope suspended in the air, climbs ladders and does all kinds of wonderful feats: Capt. A. H. Bogardus, the champion wing shot of the world, and his four famous aces, together with a complete Wild West show of cowboys, large exploits, indians, wild buncoing, cattle and steers. An elephant combats and vanquishes an athlete and pugilist in four rounds with boxing gloves, another rides a velocipede, and the circus performance in four rings, an elevated stage and hippodrome course is a most remarkable and satisfactory one.

The always tremendous menagerie has been materially strengthened by many valuable and rare additions. It now possesses the largest hippopotamus and the tallest giraffe by four feet and the heaviest and most majestic elephant ever exhibited. There are twenty-five elephants including a very diminutive specimen and the lordly giant, Bolivar. Mr. Forepaugh has more than enough animals to overflow fully one hundred cages, if presented as nearly all shows exhibit them and it is safe to say there is no notable specimen described in natural history the prototype of which is not found in his gigantic collection. The museum will be elaborate, novel and attractive, and there will be no fault about any department of the mammoth show, whose reputation is bounded only with the limits of the earth.

$2,000 wanted for five years at 5 per cent security, real estate, valued from $6,000 to $10,000.—T. HUNTLEY, real estate agent.

THE BELFAST RIOTS.

A ROYAL COMMISSION WILL BE QUIRE INTO THEM.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—A two hours' meeting of the Cabinet was held to-day. It was decided, among other things, to appoint a Royal Commission to enquire into the Belfast riots. The cabinet finally approved of the Queen's speech and Lord Salisbury will go to Osborne on Sunday to submit it to her Majesty. The majority of the members of the cabinet were in favor of proroguing Parliament until February unless unlooked for events in Ireland should make an autumn session necessary. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chief Secretary for Ireland, expressed confidence in the Government's ability to preserve order without having recourse to special legislation.

Alleged Brutality of Protestants.

BELFAST, Aug. 13.—The city has been fairly quiet to-day. There has been some throwing of stones, but no serious disturbance. The ordinarily intense Protestant zeal has refused a barrel of porter on a dray and kicked a woman for refusing to lend them a truck upon which to remove the barrel. The police arrested and took the men into custody. All the taverns in the city have been closed until Monday. A number of Catholics to-day waited upon the mayor and implored him to protect his Catholic employes. A constable has been committed for trial for assaulting a citizen with his baton in June last.

All Quiet at Belfast.

BELFAST, Aug. 13.—No more deaths have ran place among the persons wounded in the recent riots. The military have control of the city and their presence has inspired a better feeling generally. Nearly fifty seriously wounded persons have been treated at the Royal Hospital. Two hundred more have been dressed for at private dispensaries and it is estimated probably 300 others received wounds in the riots whose cases have not been reported.

The Excitement Revived.

BELFAST, Aug. 13.—The excitement occasioned by the riots has been revived by an outrage committed by the Orangemen of Queen's Island upon a Catholic named Johnson. The latter was returning to his home from work, when he was seized by the Orangemen and given a coat of tar and feathers. The Catholics are very indignant at the outrage and vow vengeance against the perpetrators. Five hundred additional policemen arrived to-day.

INVENTIONS IN TYPOGRAPHY.

A Typesetting Machine to Succeed the Linotype Machine that is to Revolutionize Printing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A syndicate composed of Whitelaw Reid of the New York Tribune, the New York World, Deacon Bigelow Smith, of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, Stone of the Chicago News and three other prominent newspaper men of the United States, with a capital of two millions, have control of a machine which it is claimed will do away with type and typesetting as now understood. The machine is worked like a type-writer; by the act of the operator dies or moulds of the letters forming a line of type drop into their respective places, justifying themselves automatically; when the line is complete molten type metal is projected into the moulds and a solid line is cast. The line then drops on to a carrier and is arranged in a galley just as the packer of a perfecting press arranges the folded papers. Justification—the great difficulty heretofore encountered—is made easy and automatic, and corrections may be made almost as easily as with type. There is no distribution—the lines when used go back into the metal pot. One operator can do the work of six men. The machine can be built for $200 to $300 each, and the ability to work them can be acquired by a bright girl in a few days. None of the machines will be sold—they will be rented on a royalty basis. Forty-four of them are now being completed and they are to be put in the offices of the Chicago News and one of the other members of the syndicate simultaneously. The projectors of the invention claim that it will revolutionize the economy of newspaper offices.

Another great invention in newspapers is about perfected—a process for producing in two minutes a matrix for stereotyping in two minutes instead of fifteen as at present. This will be announced from Chicago in a few days

IN THE SUPERIOR REGION.

Immense Damage by Forest Fires—The Flames Subsiding for Want of Fuel.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Aug. 13.—The latest reports of the forest fires state that the Superior regions are well burnt over, but fires have broken out afresh in a number of localities on the upper Chippewa since last Tuesday and are raging fearfully. Of the ravaged territory the tracts along the Bose Tail toward the Sault Ste. Marie, on which there are plenty of chippings and wind falls, will offer the most combustible food for the flames, which are expected to reach that locality within a few days. The settlements are sparsely in that direction and the loss will be confined to shading pine and hemlock.

Latest reports from the Northern woods state that the danger is rapidly growing less; that the fires are subsiding for want of fuel and that the work of relief is being actively pushed by citizens of Green Bay.

EXPLOSION IN A COLLIERY.

A Hundred and Sixty Miners Imprisoned—Forty of Them Killed Outright.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—A despatch from Leigh Lancashire, states that a terrible explosion occurred this morning in the Woodend colliery at that place. One hundred and forty miners were below at the time, and many of them were shockingly burned. Two corpses have already been recovered from the mine, and it is feared many more are found.

Another despatch from Leigh says that forty bodies have been recovered.

[illegible] an Outbreak of White Despotism [illegible]

LOUISVILLE, Ky., August 13.—Judge Johnson one of the most lawless [illegible] in the mountain region, with fifteen [illegible] barricaded himself in a house near [illegible] and defies the officers to take him. [illegible] has committed a cold-blooded murder and had taken a prisoner from a special posse. Until last night Chief Gross got together a party of fifteen armed with Winchester rifles and four pounds of dynamite and started out Saturday to blow Andy out of his stronghold. Nothing has been heard from either party since and a bloody engagement is looked for.

The Socialists' Choice.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Williams and Mainwaring, Socialist leaders, served 60 days' hard labor for violent meeting at the junction of Bell-street and Edgeware Road Sunday, July 18, were to-day convicted of "obstructing the streets" and fined $50 each with alternative of paying the fine or serving two months' imprisonment. They were given until Tuesday to make up their minds.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Special despatches from Iowa along the Burlington road in Iowa which pass through the best of the corn belt, indicate that yesterday's storm was one of great severity, the wind and sweeping rain combining to produce great hurt to trees and crops.

On Fate of Instant Seizure.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Aug. 13.—The Dominion Government has issued orders forbidding American vessels from entering the Bay of Chaleur on pain of instant seizure, and has stationed the Critic and the Lindsay at the entrance to the bay, while the Leonidowne lies in the neighbouring waters. Besides these the cruiser Charybdis has been placed on guard at the mouth of the Restigouche river, the line-boats to stationed at Dalhousie Pat and the Terror at Shediac.

WHAT WILL THE HARVEST BE?

Reports From 800 Correspondents of the Ontario Bureau of Industries.

The Ontario Bureau of Industries yesterday issued a summary of the progress of harvesting, state of the crops and the estimated yield for August. The information is based on special reports from 800 correspondents of the Bureau on the 31 inst., and the statistics of areas, number of live stock, etc., being compiled from returns made by farmers on June 30.

"The breadth of wheatland sown last fall was 888,703 acres, but the injury by winter exposure was so severe that 70,171 acres were either plowed up or re-sown in the spring. The remaining 818,532 acres in crop have produced an estimated yield of 19,697,764 bushels. The straw was short owing to a period of drought in June and July in the fall wheat districts of the province; but the heads were well filled and the quality of the grain is reported excellent. The reaping season began about the middle of July and nearly the whole of the crop was safely housed by the end of the month. The great drought area of the Mississippi valley appears to have included Ontario about as far eastward as the meridian of Port Hope, and all spring crops have been affected to some extent. Of spring wheat, barley, oats, peas, hay and roots the reports say that growth was vitally arrested at one time, but a succession of showers in the second week of July saved them from serious harm. The cereals and peas are uniformly reported as short in straw and slightly thin on the ground over the whole dry area; but there was no appearance of rust and scarcely any of insect enemies, and the crops grain maturing favourably. In the eastern portion of the province, and especially in the St. Lawrence counties, harvesting began in the fall [illegible] Reports from [illegible] are unfavourable in localities, and the barley crop is likely to be light and to ripen unevenly. Pea weevils and midges [illegible] to some extent. The following table [illegible]

	Acres.	Bush.	Per acre
Fall wheat	888,703	19,697,764	22.4
Spring wheat	377,169	6,497,722	17.2
Barley	730,473	13,695,569	18.8
Oats	1,821,194	58,224,547	34.0
Rye	67,779	1,185,571	16.0
Peas	793,128	16,662,255	21.4

Compared with the average of the past four years, the fall wheat this year is 139,899 acres and 3,132,264 bushels less; the spring wheat, 83,129 acres and 1,285,128 bushels less; the barley, 9,648 acres and 197,597 bushels more; the rye, 70,288 acres and 1,295,660 bushels less; and the peas, 132,793 acres and 4,107,866 bushels more.

The area in hay and clover is 2,226,151 acres and the yield 2,894,446 tons, being an average of 1.30 tons per acre. The average of the previous four years was 2,159,380 acres and 2,125,807 tons, or 1.65 tons per acre.

The area in beans is 21,873 acres, and the estimated yield 461,194 bushels. The area in corn is 158,624 acres, being 28,556 acres less than the average of four years, and the prospect of a good crop is not encouraging.

The numbers of farm live stock are: Horses, 469,649; cattle, 2,013,173; sheep, 1,610,943; hogs, 933,128; and poultry, 4,983,985. The number of sheep is 144,650 less than last year; in each of the other classes there is an increase. The wool clip is 5,547,327, being 699,489 less than the average of four years.

The average wages of farm hands for the year since last April with board and $203 without board, per year; and $17.58 with board and $26.91 without board per month of the seeding and harvesting season. These figures are slightly lower than last years. The rate of wages of domestic servants is $1.52 per week; last year's rate was $1.51.

EIGHTY FEET IN LENGTH.

A Sea Serpent That Was Seen and Recognized by Fifty People.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 13.—In a communication to the Journal, C. B. Putnam, master of the Florida Steamship Co.'s [illegible] ap[illegible] of a sea serpent off Pigeon Cove [illegible] Saturday morning. He states that it was first observed by a little son of Calvin Pond, a surveyor, who brought his powerful transit to bear on it, and was at once satisfied that it was a veritable serpent. It was about one-fourth of a mile from the shore and about two miles from where it was seen last month. It was moving slowly in a northerly direction. The distance passed over while it was being observed was at least a mile, and the time occupied not far from twenty minutes. The writer was able with a marine glass to observe the serpent's body minutely, which he describes fully with those described by Mr. Eastern last month, as well as by other writers. The head was frequently raised partially out of the water, and the movement was a vertical one, showing some ten to fifteen ridges at once. It seemed to be about eighty feet in length. There were perhaps fifty persons who witnessed the passage of the monster, including Samuel Bullock, master of Bunker Hill School, Boston, and several others.

Not Heard of in the United States.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 13.—Archbishop Heiss, in an interview in regard to the edict of the Pope against the Knights of Labor, announced by Cardinal Taschereau at Quebec, says he has not heard anything in regard to it. The edict may be a special one for Canada. In case a similar edict should be issued for the United States it will be made public by Cardinal Gibbons at Baltimore.

TEXAS WANTS BLOOD.

GOV. IRELAND THINKS THE TIME HAS COME FOR ACTION.

Secretary Bayard Temporizing—Mexico Asks That a Special Envoy be Sent to Try and Arrange Matters—Enthusiasm on the Border.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The Herald this morning publishes the following from Governor Ireland, of Texas:

"You ask my views of the Cutting case. Cutting has never applied to me. It may be conceded, if necessary, that Cutting has been legally convicted under Mexican law, but the people and government of the United States can never submit to such a rule of law. Every editor and every other person who writes or prints matter in the United States slandering to the views of Mexican efforts can, at any time, when found in Texas, be arrested and punished as Cutting has been. The person of Cutting is not involved. Surely our government has not made an idle demand. No one wants war, and I trust no one wants peace at the expense of national honor and the rights of American citizens. We only want to avoid war; to be ready for it, and to show a willingness to accept it if it must be. Outrages have gone far enough and have been numerous enough.

A special to the Herald from the City of Mexico says: Despatches have been received from Washington intimating that Secretary Bayard will not press his demand for the release of Cutting till the Chihuahua Supreme Court gives its decision. This news causes every body to take a cheerful view of the situation.

Much annoyance was caused to merchants here yesterday by the Texas railways refusing to give bills of lading to Mexican points.

Mexico Makes an Overture.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The Mexican Government has made to this country a proposition that if the State Department will send to the City of Mexico an able lawyer as a special envoy of the Government to confer with the attorney-general of the Mexican Republic as to the proper interpretation of the law under which Cutting is held, they believe an amicable solution to the problem can be arrived at. It is said that the Cabinet yesterday unanimously decided to accept the proposition. This Government is not to be bound by the report that the representative may make. It is asked that this proposition first be taken before progressing further in the case; and upon this report there can be established additional foundation for further diplomatic procedure. Pending this agreement neither Government will take any action.

International Trade Suspended.

DALLAS, TEX., Aug. 13.—Commercial circles were greatly agitated last evening by the receipt of a telegram by the machine and implement firm of Hatch & Co., from their agent in Mexico, advising the firm not to ship any more goods to that country. The feeling is too bitter, he said, and the lives of Americans, particularly from Texas, are in great jeopardy. The bodies of two Americans had just been found on the public highway, with all the evidences of having been murdered. The agent said he would leave the country at once, while he could do so with safety.

The Mexican View of the Case.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 13.—The Diario Official, the government organ for the publication of decrees, department decisions, etc., to-day contains important documents regarding the Cutting case, including the full text of the decision of Judge Zubia at Paso del Norte, which shows clearly that the court held Cutting for a crime begun on Mexican soil and continued simultaneously in Texas and Mexico. This puts a new phase on the case, as it shows that Judge Zubia regarded the case as one continuous act.

TERRIFIED TELEGRAPHERS.

A Thunderbolt Strikes the Grain Inspector's Office at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The state grain inspector's branch office at Centre-avenue and 16th-street, narrowly escaped being destroyed by a thunderbolt during the rain storm this morning. The bolt struck a telegraph pole which stood against the wall of the building, ran in on the switch board of the telegraph instruments and went out of the window on the other side of the office, taking the glass, sash and all with it. A messenger boy who was sitting on a table was thrown ten or twelve feet through the open door and knocked insensible, and the telegraph operator, whose hand was on the key at the time, had his right arm paralyzed and was partially stunned. The telegraph apparatus was melted, the table thrown across the room, and all of the occupants of the apartment were stunned and partially deafened by the shock. The bolt looked like a round ball of fire about as large as a man's head. It shot in as far as the table and disappeared with a flash, leaving the crowd standing bolt upright with their limbs rigid and their ears ringing painfully. The office took fire but the flames were speedily extinguished.

NORTH AMERICAN CALEDONIANS.

Annual Meeting of the Association—The New Officers.

MONTREAL, Aug. 13.—The annual convention of the North America Caledonian Association opened at the Windsor Hotel this morning. George Goodfellow, president of the association, occupied the chair, and about sixty delegates were present. The time of the morning session was taken up in the reading of the reports from the various societies, the secretary and treasurer's reports, and also that of the committee on credentials.

The secretary's report showed there were twenty-six societies enrolled in the association, the membership being ab ut 2000, and the assets of the affiliated organizations aggregating $25,000. It was decided the next gathering should be held at Milwaukee. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Dr. McMichael, Buffalo; First Vice-President, Geo. Fairgrieve, London; Second Vice-President, James Wright, Montreal; Secretary, Peter Ross, New York; Assistant-Secretary, William Leitch, Philadelphia; Treasurer, Thomas Wardell, Pliston, Penn.

Cheated Out of His Bride.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Miss Smith, a young lady of Thamesville, was engaged to be married to a Mr. Taylor, a Morpeth widower. The wedding was arranged for Wednesday, and the pair set out to invite the wedding guests. While this went on word reached a Mr. Howell, a rival woomper at the Smith cherips, and he acted promptly. He got away with Taylor and securing the fair one, Howell put off for Dresden, where they were duly made man and wife.

Threatened Grab [illegible] to the Grand Trunk.

STRATFORD, Ont., Aug. 13.—A bylaw was carried here to-day to give $120,000 for the Grand Trunk locomotive works and car shops by 238 majority, only 13 votes being polled against them. There is great rejoicing over the result, as this secures to Stratford all the company's works west of Toronto.

Tampering With Graves.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 13.—Fred. Cook, a stapleton, exhumed the remains of a young man at the Plains Cemetery, between Castleton and Warkworth, and left them above ground. It is said he has also tampered with graves in the Warkworth Cemetery. Cook was jailed.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 14, 1886.

The Boston Gazette severely denounces the lowering of steerage rates of transatlantic steamship companies from $23 to $12, which it says "is but filling up the live freight capacity and landing from 35,000 to 50,000 emigrants on our shores every month." There is no fault as far as Canadians are concerned in giving us all the immigrants possible if they are only of the right sort and rightly placed. We have little room in the older settled portions of Canada for immigrants. The labour market is sufficiently well supplied and there is no need of shipping in immigrants to rob Canadian workingmen of their chance for a job. Bring in all the emigrants you like if you place them on our unsettled lands where they will become producers and consumers of the products of the skill and toil of our citizens and labourers, but don't bring them in as competitors in an already well supplied labour market. Canada has contributed over one hundred million dollars to build a railway to assist in the settlement and development of the North-West. Let immigrants be transported over that line to the North-West and settle there.

THROUGH the adoption of the Scott Act in some thirty odd counties, the Ontario Government loses a large amount of revenue from licenses. The Dominion Government gobbles the revenue arising from fines for the infraction of the Scott Act, yet the Ontario Government is called on to take more active steps, involving, of course, the expenditure of money, to enforce a Dominion statute—the provincial authorities to furnish all the machinery, do all the work, pay all the expenses, while the Dominion authorities contedt themselves by calmly absorbing all the money resulting from fines. Under Confederation Act, it is true, that the provinces are charged with the duty of administering justice. While this is true of the laws in general, it does not seem to justly apply to the administration of the Scott Act—a piece of special legislation, not in force by direct parliamentary enactment—but only of partial application. While there can be no two opinions that the laws must be enforced, yet in the case of the Scott Act there may seem to be ground for difference of opinion as to where the responsibility of its enforcement rests. Those ardent Tory politicans, who, under the too thin guise of interest in the promotion of the temperance cause, but really to embarass the Provincial Government, hold the latter responsible, may be asked this question. If it is the duty of the Provincial Government to enforce exceptional and extraordinary legislation like the Scott Act, why not demand that the Mowat Administration, be required to enforce the Dominion Franchise Act, a much more exceptional and extraordinary piece of legislation? If the local governments are bound to give administrative effect to all Dominion legislative enactments, why not include the Franchise Act as well as the Scott Act?

JINGO JOURNALS lay great stress upon the importance of the Canadian Pacific Railway as an integral part of the Imperial system of defence as a means for the ready transportation of British troops in case of a war. This is true enough, perhaps, but that does not settle the wisdom of the question of expending over a hundred millions to bear Britain's burdens of belligerence; to assist her to the extent of so enormous a sum of money in the prosecution of wars in the bringing about of which Canada had no part, and in the issue of which she can have only a sentimental interest; or if a substantial interest, one only in proportion to her share of importance as a self-sustaining colony of the empire. Great Britain will not object to availing herself of Canada's expending a hundred millions of hard cash to build a military railway, nor in like manner would she object if Canada should build her a fleet of one hundred frocalads and send them over manned with our hardy Maritime Province sailors. The Canada Pacific Railway is built; it is a great work, and though it was built before we could afford it, and before the advance of settlement of the country through which it passes warranted it, it was made more expensive and burdensome than it otherwise have been made; still it is there and will not have to be built over again. And if a change of government occurs, making rash wins and righteous changes in our administration of North-West matters as will encourage rather than retard settlement—or the past and present vicious system has done and is doing—the country may derive a portion of the benefit it might expect from the expenditure it has made. But to assert, as many journals are practically doing, that the military importance of the road, that may be spoken of few days once a century, in such a sparsely in its first importance, is mere empty jingoism.

Personal

The Harry LeBrun party has returned from their ~~camping~~ holidays.

Mr. J. Bell, of Peterborough, is also among the matriculants of Queen's University, Kingston.

Mr. James Reddley of New Orleans, formerly of Peterborough, is in town visiting the guest of Mr. Geo. Stothers. He is accompanied by his little daughter.

Mr. Robert White, son of the Minister of the Interior and commercial editor of the Montreal Gazette, Mr. W. J. White, son of Mr. Richard White, managing editor of the Gazette, and Mr. David English, who carries on a prosperous printing business in Montreal, arrived in town by the C. P. R. this morning. They are bound for the back lakes where they go for a two weeks' recreation, to transfer the worries of the printing office to the muskinonge, salmon and bass of our northern lakes.

Gratefully Acknowledged.

LOVE'S VICTORY.

BY BERTHA M CLAY

"Elinor, look at me," said Captain Langton: "do I look like a thief and a would-be murderer?"

Under Pauline's presence the handsome face regained its usual careless, debonair look.

Elinor looked at him, and he saw in them the lingering doubt, the lingering fear.

"If all the world had turned against me," he said, "and had refused to believe in me, you, Elinor, my promised wife, ought to have had more faith."

She made no reply. There had been something in the energy of Pauline's manner that carried conviction with it; and the weak heart, the weak nature that had always relied upon others, could form no decision unaided.

"For argument sake, let us reverse the case. Say that some disappointed lover of yours came to tell me that you had been discovered stealing; should I not have laughed? Why, Elinor, you must be blind not to see the truth; a child might discern it. The fact is that for a long time I was foolish enough to infatuate myself in love with Miss Darrell; and she—well, honestly speaking, she is jealous. A gentleman does not like to refer to such things, but that is the simple truth. She is jealous, and would part us if she could; but she shall not. My beautiful Elinor is all my own, and no half crazed jealous girl shall come between us."

"But Lady Darrell," she said, "is the motive of Miss Darrell's strange conduct to me. She is jealous—and you know, I should imagine, what jealous women are like."

She tried to believe him, but, when she recalled the noble face, with its pure light of truth and pity, she doubted again. But Captain Langton pleaded, prayed, invented such ridiculous stories of Pauline, made such fervent protestations of love, lavished such tender words upon her, that the weak heart turned to him again, and again its doubtings were cast aside.

"How we shall laugh over this in the happy after years!" he said. "It is really like a drama. Oh, Elinor, I am so thankful that I was here to save you! And now, my darling, you are trembling with cold. My fair, golden-haired Elinor, what must you think of me? How could she do it? No; I will not go in again to-night—I should not be able to keep my temper. Your grand remedy Nerviline will be gone to-morrow."

They stood together under the shadow of the balcony, and he drew her nearer to him.

"Elinor," he said, "I shall never rest again until you are my wife. This plot has failed; Miss Darrell will plot again to part us. I cannot wait until spring—you must be my wife before then. To-morrow morning I shall ride over to talk to you about it."

She clasped her arms round his neck, and raised her sweet face to his.

"Aubrey," she said, wistfully, "you are not deceiving me?"

"No, my darling, I am not."

He bent down and kissed her lips. She looked at him again, pleadingly, wistfully.

"Heaven will judge between us, Aubrey," she said, solemnly. "I have a sure conviction that I shall know the truth."

"I hope Heaven will assist you," he returned, lightly; "I am quite sure the decision will be in my favor."

And those words, so wickedly, so blasphemously false, were the last he ever spoke to her.

CHAPTER XXIX.

DYING IN SIN.

Captain Langton left Lady Darrell at the door of the porch, and went round to the stables. He was a man in utterly devoid of principle as any man could well be, yet the untruths he had told, the false testimony he had given, the false oaths he had taken, had shaken his nerves.

"I should not care to go through such a scene as that again," he said—"to stand before two women as before my judges."

He found his hands unsteady and his limbs trembling; the horse he had to ride was a spirited one. The captain half staggered as he placed his hand on the saddle.

"I am not very well," he said to one of the grooms; "go to the house and tell Frampton, the butler, to bring some brandy here."

In a few minutes the butler appeared with a tray, on which stood bottle and glass.

"This is some very old brandy, sir," he said, "and very strong."

But Captain Langton did not appear to heed him, he poured out half a tumblerful and drank it, while the butler looked on in amazement.

"It is very strong, sir," he repeated.

"I know what I am doing," returned the captain, with an oath.

He was dizzy with fear and with his after-success; he shuddered again as he mounted his horse, and the memory of Pauline's face and Pauline's words came over him. Then he galloped off, and Frampton, turning to the groom, with a scared face, said:

"If he gets home safely after taking so much of that brandy, and with that horse, I will never venture to say what I think again."

* * * * * *

Lady Darrell returned to the library, where she had left Pauline. They looked at each other in silence, and then Lady Darrell said:

"I—I believe in him, Pauline; he cannot be what you say."

Miss Darrell rose and went up to her; she placed her in a chair, and knelt at her feet.

"You do not believe what I have told you?" she questioned, gently.

"I cannot; my love and my faith are all his."

"I have done my best," said Pauline, sorrowfully, "and I feel I can do no more. While I live I shall never forgive myself that I did not speak sooner, Lady Darrell. Elinor, I must say that I pray to be able to forgive me."

Then Lady Darrell looked at the beautiful face, with its expression of humility.

"Pauline," she said, suddenly, "I hardly recognize you. What has come to you? What has changed you?"

Her face grew white with horror, and Pauline answered:

"I see now—I see all—as though a veil had fallen from before my eyes. I can see my sin in all its hideousness. I can see to what my silence has led, and though you may not believe me I shall never rest until you say that you have forgiven me."

Lady Darrell was not a woman given to strong emotion of any kind; the deepest passion of her life was her love for Aubrey Langton; but even she could give some faint guess as to what it had cost the proud, willful Pauline to undergo this humiliation.

"I do forgive you," she said. "No matter how deeply you have wronged me, or in what why you have plotted against me, I cannot refuse you. I forgive you, Pauline."

Miss Darrell held up her face.

"Will you kiss me?" she asked. "I have never made that request in all my life before, but I make it now."

Lady Darrell bent down and kissed her, while the words of the cross-old record them and deepened their color.

"I will only know what to believe!" Lady Darrell remarked. "First my heart turns to him, Pauline, and then it turns to you. Yet both cannot be right—one must be most wicked and most false. You have truth in your face—he had guilt on his lips when he was talking to her. Oh, if I only—if I only knew!"

And when she had repeated this many times, Pauline said to her:

"Leave it to Heaven—the Heaven that knows all—and it will judge between us, and it will. Wherever she told the lie shall perish in it."

So many hours passed, and the change that had come over Lady Darrell was painful to see. Her face was as white as death, and her head, which was usually so erect, drooped. Pauline passed over her entreaties that she would speak to her of taking some refreshment, but she had sent it away. She could do nothing but pace up and down with wearied feet, thinking that she only wanted to know which was right, which to believe, while Pauline sat by her in unwearied patience. Suddenly Lady Darrell turned to her.

"What is the matter with me?" she asked. "I cannot understand myself; the air seems full of whispers and portents. It is as though I were here awaiting some great event. What am I waiting for?"

They were terrible words, for the answer to those were a great commotion in the hall—the sound of hurried footsteps of many voices. Lady Darrell stood still in alarm.

"What is it?" she cried. "Oh, Pauline, I am full of fear—I am surely full of fear!"

(To be Continued.)

"Well, well—the world must turn upon its axis, and all things must change, for our taxes, is the way Byron looked at it; but "it is not all of life to live." FLOUR.

There seems to be some misapprehension relative to the price of Flour. I find a number of purchasers stating that the grade of Flour known as has been reduced to $2.25 per one hundred pounds. This is a mistake. I offer, in common with all other dealers and millers, a good Family Flour at $2.25, but the brand "Bakers" is still retailed at $2.50 per hundred.

"BAKERS"

P. P. FLOUR for Pastry, $2.75 per Hundred

BAKER'S FLOUR (ground from Manitoba Hard and Ontario Spring Wheat), $2.50 per Hundred.

FAMILY FLOUR (ground from Ontario Wheat), $2.25 per Hundred.

LOW GRADE FLOUR, $2.00 per Hundred.

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 25th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 50 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two specimens trussed inside in York State, costing me $50. Seeing your truss retained in position, I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the respects has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. H. KING.

Park Promenade Concert.

The Fire Brigade Band gave their usual weekly concert in the Court House Park yesterday evening, drawing an enormous audience. The four electric lights, together with the gas lamps, brilliantly lighted up the grounds, and the picture presented was a charming one. The music provided by the band was of the usual excellence, but seemingly more cheerful—if possible and was thoroughly enjoyed by the gay gathering.

Bargains that are Bargains.

The firm of Giroux & Sullivan to be dissolved on 31st August, is now offering unprecedented bargains in new and fashionable dry goods in order to clear out their entire and magnificent stock before the above date. The entire stock has been gone over and marked down to profoundly low prices, and an opportunity is thus offered to the public of purchasing the best goods at surprising low figures, which it behooves all to take advantage of. During the great dissolution sale the terms will be cash. Now is the time to lay in a stock of choice goods at astonishingly low rates.

Civic Holiday Attractions.

Civic Holiday is designed to be a day of recreation and enjoyment, and to secure this to the fullest extent, the P. A. A. A. excursion to Sturgeon Point and Orillia presents the grandest opportunity. A day at Sturgeon Point with brief travel, or by going a little further, Orillia is reached with its delightful day's boating on one of the most beautiful inland lakes of the country. Keep this excursion in mind. The rates are exceedingly low, train service first-class, time rapid, and the comfort and enjoyment of every excursionist guaranteed.

Lakefield's Little Regatta.

The village of Lakefield is preparing a $60 gold medal for the amateur single scull championship of Lake Katchewanooka, to be competed for on August 25th. Distance one mile and a half. T. J. Bird thus writes to the Mail.

Willow and Wicket.

The following members of the Peterborough Cricket Club have been selected to play against the Campbellford cricketers, here, on Monday:—W. A. Stanley, T. Baker, Miss Hamilton, E. B. Rogers, S. Ray, H. Ray, C. J. Logan, J. H. Hammond, J. Stirling, W. Salisbury and J. H. Long.

New Veterinary Office.

One of the neatest, snuggest and completest offices in this district is the new office now occupied by Dr. Crevier, in the new Burnham block, Simcoe street, adjoining the doctor's old office. It is completely fitted, has a new screen window sign, done up in Watson's best style and altogether it is as neat and nobby as a freshly-groomed Shetland pony.

The Garden Party.

In our account of the successful garden party, held on Thursday evening, in aid of the Band, we omitted to mention that St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, also heartily co-operated in the good work. At the preliminary meeting, Mrs. Orde and Miss S. E. Sawyer, were appointed to solicit contributions of cake and flowers and this they did effectively. We regret our reporter overlooked this matter in his hurried report.

Favourable Indications.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, Secretary of the Peterborough Driving Park Association, has received a card from M. T. J. Vail, of Hartford, Conn., Secretary of the National Trotting Association of the United States, asking for a premium list for the meet to be held here on the 26th and 27th of August, and for regulations, etc. It is expected that a number of fast American horses will participate in the races, which will add to the interest of the occasion.

Church Chimes.

Rev. Mr. Little, of Bowmanville, will conduct the services in St. Paul's Church to-morrow, morning and evening.

Rev. Dr. Badgley, of Victoria University, Cobourg, will occupy the pulpit of the George Street Church, to-morrow morning and Rev. I. Tovell in the evening.

Rev. I. Tovell will conduct the services in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church to-morrow morning and Rev. Dr. Badgley, of Victoria University, in the evening.

Extending.

Messrs Quirk & Co., of the Peterborough Cigar Factory, owing to a steady and increasing demand for the popular cigars manufactured by them, recently enlarged their premises in the Stevenson block, Simcoe street, and in addition to the second flat previously occupied, now tenant the third flat. The second flat is used as office and manufacturing room, while the rooms above are used as drying and shipping departments. The cigar manufactured by Messrs. Quirk & Co., are of the best quality as the increasing demand for them, especially from outside places, indicates.

Attention!

We would call attention to the offer made by Joseph Griffin that during the next thirty days he will sell the whole of his summer stock of boots and shoes at cost. A few lines will actually be sold below cost. Look at the following quotations:—

Women's	Pebble Oxford Shoes,	70c.
"	buff do do	80
"	pebble—tie or buttoned	90
"	India kid shoe	$1.00
"	patent Oxford	1.20
"	polished calf tie shoe	1.25
"	do do Oxford	1.25
"	do do buttoned	1.35

All the above goods are solid leather. All other goods will be sold equally cheap. Now is the time to secure bargains.

Excursion to Toronto.

One of the best opportunities that our citizens may have for some time of visiting the Queen City at a low rate, presents itself on our civic holiday, August 16th. Arrangements have been made to run an excursion to Toronto per C. P. R. on that day. Passengers can leave here either by the 5.30 or 8.39 a.m. express, and tickets will be good to return on the 19th and 20th by any regular train. As the date fixed is not Toronto's civic holiday, parties desirous of doing business in the city, will doubtless avail themselves of this excellent chance, and others will go to see their friends and relations. Only a limited number of tickets will be issued at the low price, for the return journey, of $2. Tickets can be had at Alex. Elliott's C. P. R. ticket office, George street, at the station, or at A. L. Davis & Co's.

Improvements.

Mr. Geo. A. Cox, who is not satisfied to leave what most people would call well enough alone, but is constantly engaged in improving his property, for some time past has had his builders employed in extending and otherwise improving his already spacious residence, and has also had plans prepared for the erection of a handsome conservatory, which will adorn the plot south of his residence. The addition to the rear of his house will be 24x42 feet, two stories high, with basement, and will be used chiefly as a kitchen. The whole house will be heated by hot water, and Mr. Geo. Bolton is now busily engaged in taking out an old Spence boiler and putting in one of his large double firepot boilers. The conservatory will be 20x20 feet, two stories high, and of handsome design. It will also be heated by one of Bolton's single hot water boilers.

Riversides Again Victorious.

They Defeat the Millbrooks Lacrosse Team By 3 Goals to 0.

The Riversides in their match with the Millbrook lacrosse team, on Millbrook grounds, on Wednesday, added another victory to their already creditable list. Both teams were in fine form and a lively game was the result. The contest team made up as follows:

Riversides.		Millbrooks.
J Phelan	goal	H. Richards
A. Rose	point	A. Rogers
W. Walsh	cover point	A. Rogers
Rogers	defence field	G. Rogers
H. Larmer	" "	S. Smith
W. McAvella	" "	J. Clark
F. Larmer	centre	J. Sproule
S. Gibson	home field	R. McIntyre
J. Bagley	" "	W. Combe
J. Canning	" "	G. Combe
B. Nott	2nd home	J. Richards
T. Duncan	1st home	S.J. Trew
W. A. Sanderson	field capt.	G. Duncan
John Hackett	umpire	W. Reynolds

J. Allen, referee.

The first game was won by Canning in six minutes after a sharp struggle, and the second by Duncan, who sent the ball between the Millbrook flags, after 40 minutes fight. The third game was in progress for 25 minutes, when time was called. The Riversides petitioned for 10 or 15 minutes more play, confident of capturing the third goal by that time, and making their usual score of "three straights," but the Millbrook boys were too tired and further play was abandoned.

The game was a rattling fine one throughout. The progress and result of the game made it evident that the visitors possessed greater skill handling their sticks, while their agility was all that was required, as they outstripped their opponents at every point. The Millbrooks, with the exception of two men who were too, too rough, played a pretty team game, but of course they were overmatched. The boys all played well and special mention is unnecessary. The Riversides arrived home on the 5.15 train.

Fatal Accident near Bobcaygeon.

Early on Monday morning the report was quickly spread through the village, that a deplorable accident had occurred. As the facts became known, it was found that last week Mr. Oliffe Anderson, who was endeavoring to locate on a lot near Swamp Lake, and work out a home for himself, drove out to the lot, and gave his wife, who lives near Little Bob bridge, to understand that he would be away until Wednesday of this week. The horse he drove was known to be vicious, but Anderson had confidence in his ability to control him. It is supposed that on Saturday evening he determined on coming home, and had reached the gravel pit close by the Bobcaygeon road, when the animal shied or, bolted and collided with a stump, he was thrown out on to his right temple and the hind wheels of the waggon turning over hit him in the side. At about 9 o'clock, Mr. Joseph Anderson, who lives near Freeman's turn, heard a racket outside, and found a horse attached to one wheel and an axle, wedged between a stump and the fence. In the meantime, John Murphy and Ed. Blewett, drove, along Nogey's Creek road and on the horse shying they noticed Anderson lying beside the road. He was lying on his face insensible, both hands stretched forward, apparently just as he was thrown out the night before and was within gunshot of where the horse was found. A conveyance was obtained and he was taken home. He died about mid-day on Monday, having remained perfectly unconscious until the last. He was aged 35 and had been only three years out from Norway. He leaves a wife and six young children.

Bellegham Abroad.

Bellegham is not often at sea in his business but he is often called abroad to deliver his fine furniture. The Lindsay Post thus refers to a recent trip:—

On Tuesday Mr. D. Bellegham of Peterborough, the well-known furniture manufacturer, passed through Lindsay en route for Fenelon Falls. Mr. Bellegham carried with him a car load of furniture for the hotel of Mr. Noble Ingram at the Falls. Among the assortment of furniture is a complete furnishings for seven bedrooms in modern style. No doubt Mr. Ingram considered it to his interest to place his order at Bellegham's Peterborough establishment in preference to going to Toronto. Of the excellent quality of manufacture comment is hardly necessary as during the past five years Bellegham's furniture has found its way into almost every household in the Midland district. It may be noted here that during the last two months the capacity of the factory—already the largest in the district—has been doubled to meet the demands of a rapidly increasing business. This is an instance—and a very satisfactory one, too—of how the public are willing to recognize enterprise and to patronize a manufacturer who is quick to appreciate the needs of the territory he serves and to bring up the quality of the goods to meet the demand for better articles. The town of Peterborough is the home of wealthy people, who have not only the taste to gratify but the money to defray the expense of procuring the most modern furniture, even if the quality calls for advanced prices. Mr. Bellegham proposes to put in operation during the coming fall a special effort in trade, and will allow to purchasers of $100 or over, of goods, railway fares both ways and will pay freight on goods to destination within reasonable limits. As a "clincher" probably Bellegham would throw in an accident policy for the back trip, as the customer being satisfied with his purchase might be apt to be a trifle careless.

Market House.

The market this morning was as brisk as it could well be. Produce of all kinds was offered in large quantities, and was bought up quickly. Prices were quoted: Eggs, 11c. for shipment; 12 to 13c. for local use; butter, 14 to 17c.; chickens, 25 to 45c. per pair; veal, 5 to 6c.; lamb, 8 to 10c.; potatoes, 75 to 80c. per bag; carrots, beets, turnips, radishes, onions, etc., 5c. per bunch; cabbage, 3 to 5c.; cauliflower, 5 to 25c.; corn, 20c. per dozen; apples, 20c. per peck; tomatoes, 30c. per peck.

MARRIED.

McCARROLL—FLECK.—At the Methodist Parsonage, Lake street, Ashburnham, by the Rev. J. C. Wilton, July 28th, 1886, Mr. James McCarrol, of Emily, to Miss Isabella Fleck, of Otonabee, Ont.

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200, $400 and $1000 each, transferable by endorsement, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first claim or mortgage on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The annual statement shows that the amount so invested was over $600,000, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

Executors, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a principle which many have happily availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgage may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon, the interest ceasing at once on all amounts paid on account of the sum borrowed.

Applications may be made either to the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

THE TORIES HOPEFUL.

A SURVEY OF THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN ENGLAND.

Shall There Be a Well-Spoken of Parliament?—The Retreat of Mr. Matthews to Birmingham—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's Speech in Yorkshire.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Lord Randolph Churchill was beaten in yesterday's Cabinet meeting, or perhaps he abandoned his scheme of having a November session in order to pass the new rules of procedure. The Times is probably correctly informed when it affirms positively—an unusual thing where cabinets are concerned—that Parliament will be prorogued to next year. All the ministerial papers take it for granted that projects of constructions will be relinquished. They perhaps overlook Mr. Labouchere's quiet remark that there will be an election [illegible] for the ministry to choose whether it shall be now or in November. The truth is the Opposition cannot agree among themselves what the Tories mean or what policy the Liberals and Parnellites should follow. The comments on Lord Salisbury's speech at the Mansion House are a striking proof of this want of unity of views.

Mr. Parnell's silence remains unbroken, but some of his friends say that he does not regard the signs of the times as propitious for a policy of excessive activity in Parliament or out of it. He certainly does not share Lord Salisbury's view that the recent decision of the country against Home Rule is irrevocable. But neither are there any indications that the constituencies as yet regret their refusal to follow Mr. Gladstone's lead. The ministers have been re-elected without contest, Mr. Ritchie excepted, whose opponent lost a fifth of the votes which he polled a few weeks ago. Great hopes were built on Birmingham. Mr. Schnadhorst believed that he had succeeded in reuniting the Liberal party and fully expected the defeat of Mr. Matthews; but when Mr. Cook's supporters added up their canvassing books they found that Mr. Matthews' former majority would be considerably increased and Mr. Cook collapsed. Mr. Chamberlain without saying a word in public was still master in Birmingham. The Unionist feeling, independent of Mr. Chamberlain, was discovered to be stronger than in July. Worse than all, the failure of the attempt to oppose Mr. Matthews brought ridicule on the cause which Mr. Cook represented. Probably no single incident has so much strengthened the Tory Ministry, or so disheartened the Opposition. The Tory fortress is safe for the moment to be impregnable. Moderate counsels must prevail if any breach is to be made. Such are the views of the moderate wing of the Opposition, whether Parnellite or Liberal. Mr. Labouchere likes his politics highly peppered, but the average English palate relishes simple food.

The Tories are in great spirits over their uncontested Ministerial victories, and still more over Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's success at Bolton. They insist that the new Secretary has shown not merely capacity and firmness, but the determination of the Government that order shall be maintained no matter who may seek to disturb it. Whether the Orangemen began the riots or not they certainly helped to keep them going, and are considerably surprised at discovering that the present executive regards a mob, however composed, as a thing to be put down at any cost. The military, by all accounts, have done their work well. Belfast has seen the singular spectacle of a procession of Protestant workmen escorted from the shipyards through the Roman Catholic quarter to their homes by dragoons, who neither allowed them to attack or be attacked.

It is certain that the Cabinet intend to meet Parliament with the shortest possible program. The Queen's speech will say little. No request for fresh powers will be made. No coercion, therefore, can be attempted before February, if the House adjourns, as it is hoped it will. It is noticeable that Conservative journals are beginning to press other questions forward and to remind the Ministry that it must be ready with a policy about the land, the church, the House of Lords, if either should become urgent. All this looks as if the Government mean to handle the Irish question as lightly as possible.

CREMATING PRIZE CATTLE.

Pleuro-Pneumonia Among Imported Beasts—Two Valuable Herds Destroyed.

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—Pleuro-pneumonia of a very virulent type has broken out at the cattle quarantine station in Quebec. Dr. McEachern, Dominion Inspector of Live Stock, returned from there this morning, having ordered the slaughtering and cremating of two herds, one of Jerseys belonging to Mr. McCrae of London, and another belonging to Andrew Allan here. These two herds are valued at $30,000. There are now over 400 imported cattle in quarantine, some of them belonging to J. J. Hill of St. Paul, others to Mr. Dawes of Lachine, some of them being the finest specimens of Jerseys, Galloways and Ayrshires ever brought to this continent. They cost over half a million dollars. Many of these cattle were imported for the Canadian fall shows. Government stands a portion of the loss to owners.

FOR $100,000.

Failure of a Big Dry Goods Establishment in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 14.—The announcement was made to-day that the well-known dry goods establishment of Dupuis, Brien, Coulter and Co., known as the Le Grande Syndicate de la Puissance, had assigned, with liabilities set down at $100,000. The failure is the largest which has occurred in Montreal of many years and considerable comment was caused in business circles to-day, as they were doing an extensive business in the eastern part of the city. The assets are said to be only $20,000.

PATRONIZING THE COLONIALS.

Sir Chas. Tupper Presented With An Address in Appreciation.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The Mayoress of Lorne, on behalf of the Canadian exhibitors at the Colonial Exhibition, yesterday presented to Sir Charles Tupper an address expressing appreciation of his efforts to promote the interests of the Dominion.

Lord Lorne, in presenting the address, spoke of the pleasant visit he and the Princess Louise had paid to their brother and sister, Sir and Lady Tupper, at Ottawa, and said he hoped soon to see Canada and see the progress which the Dominion had made since he was a resident.

The presentation was followed by a lunch, at which were present one hundred and fifty guests, including Lord Lorne, Sir Alex. Galt, Sir Philip Cunliffe Owen and the executive staff of the Exhibition.

The Colonial Secretary has given notice that he will be glad to receive, on the remaining Mondays in August, any Colonial visitors who desire to interview him.

The Michigan Central Railway Co. intend to build an $8,000 station at Essex Centre.

Lord Churchill's American Gold.

London Letter to San Francisco Argonaut.

Talking of speeches reminds me that I have read a most amusing, romantic yarn by Lord Randolph Churchill in one of his a few nights ago. Here is the romance: Mr. Gladstone has also discovered gold to help him. Eighty-five members of Mr. Gladstone's party absolutely depend for their living on the almighty dollar.

"There isn't a prince Imre anything very amusing in it, is there? No. Just here is where the amusing part comes in. The laugh begins if we reflect that of the present husband Lord Randolph Churchill is credited—as he has been since his marriage—if not altogether, as all events mainly, supported by American dollars, got through his pretty wife. When he married Miss Jennie Jerome, of New York, and got a lawful of American gold and "mighty dollars" from her papa in exchange for his grey, trumpery title, he was almost unknown in the political world. An utter failure at Oxford, where, he was a well-known "stumper"—as the other undergraduates of his college can tell you—he changed to be so lucky as to meet at a dinner party in Paris the beautiful American girl who has since become such a prominent character in England. She might have had a hump, or a squint, or a timb leg, it would have been all the same to Lord Randolph, for she had money. I don't think her beauty prompted him to ask her to become Lady Randolph Churchill. Like all other Englishmen of his class, Lord Randolph wouldn't have married any woman who hadn't money, and would have married any woman who had, and when he found that Miss Jerome owned the Union League Club property in New York, why he proposed for her right away. Her acceptance of his little pasty hand was the beginning of the successful side of his career. He knows this as well as any one. And, therefore, I say he is no one to sneer at any wise American.

She Died a Coal Hero.

From the Wall-street News.

He entered the office of a capitalist in Richmond the other day and quietly inquired:

"How much would a ton of coal half a mile long, a quarter of a mile broad and fifty feet thick be worth?"

"I should say $25,000, but if you want more exact figures and will give me the location, I think I can——"

"Oh, no, you can't, Colonel," interrupted the quiet man. "I'm going to marry her myself as soon as the cars can take me out there."

And he hustled out as if fearful that the capitalist might locate the widow and the spot.

Peculiarity.

From Chambers' Journal.

Charles Lamb's rebuke to a man who by self-assertion pronounced himself devoid of any peculiarity ought not to be omitted. "Wh-which hand do you b-b-blow your n-n-nose with?" inquired Lamb. "With my right hand, to be sure." "Ah!" said Lamb, pensively, "that's your pe-pe-peculiarity, I b-b-blow mine with my hand-kerchief."

Dr. Holmes Advises Doctors to Take a Vacation.

From the New York Med. Journal.

Instead of a vacation editorial, which would naturally be looked for by our readers with eager interest at about this time, we venture to substitute a little verse from Dr. Holmes poem, "City and Country":

Ye healers of men, for a moment decline
Your feats in the rhubarb and ipecac line;
While you shut up your turnpike, your neighbors can go
The old roundabout road to the regions below.

Too Good to Be True.

They were wandering through the woods when the small child picked some berries.

"Papa, what are these?"

"That's a wild vine, my child."

"What's it for?"

"They make wine from that."

They trotted along, when she picked another berry and squeezed it, and a soft, creamy froth came out.

"Oh, papa, see. Here's some wild beer."

"No such luck," said the tired parent.

A Particular Customer.

From the New York Times.

"See here, my friend," said a German gentleman in a restaurant to the waiter. "Vy you not vipe dot table off mit dose grease spots und such tings. Dot schmelled stale like fury."

The waiter wiped the table off.

"Ah, dot vas mooch petter; dot don't schmell so stale. Now you bring me von portion limburger choose und ein glass buck beer."

A Versatile Genius.

From the London Times.

Maud—Mr. Allround is a sort of universal genius; isn't he?

Mable—Yes, he is exceedingly clever.

Maud—He is something of a lawyer and something of a musician. What is his profession?

Mable—Well, the lawyers call him a musician and the musicians call him a lawyer.

Postponed.

From the Wall Street News.

A Cincinnati youth, fourteen years of age, called upon a lawyer a few days ago and asked him what sort of an offense it would be if a boy kept $600 which a firm gave him to put in the bank.

"My son," replied the lawyer, "let me give you some advice gratis this time. Wait four or five years and then cabbage at least $10,000 and come to me for guidance."

The boy went off whistling and banking the money.

Polite But Truthful.

From the French.

The conductors of the Paris omnibus are witty as well as polite.

The other day a woman of immense size stood on the sidewalk, and hailed a passing vehicle.

"Is there room for me?" she asked.

"No, madame," replied the conductor, with great suavity. "There is only room for two."

A Word to the Girls.

From the Omaha Republican.

Let not the virgins of the far east be beguiled by fables of the wealthy cowboys in Montana and Wyoming who are said to be prancing up and down the land in search of wives. As a rule these chaps are loafers and the woman who is led away by stories of their fabulous riches is simply a fool. The real man on the frontier who want honest wives do not seek them by methods of cheap advertising.

Newspaper Notoriety Catches Them.

A Miss Derby at Newport, being chided by her aunt for appearing in an immodest bathing dress, replied: "Why, aunty! I don't think myself that it is exactly the thing for a young girl, and I saw in a newspaper that it was very wicked, but then it was described in such glowing and attractive terms that I could not resist getting one." Such is poor, weak human nature.

His Sentiment Not Affected.

From the N. Y. Sun.

Citizen (to stranger)—Are you blind, my friend?

Stranger—Only partially so, sir.

Citizen—It is a great affliction to be even partially blind.

Stranger—It is, sir, but fortunately it does not interfere with my business.

Citizen—What business are you in?

Stranger—I am a proofreader for a country lady.

THE BELFAST RIOTS.

A SANGUINARY CONFLICT ON SUNDAY AT BELFAST.

The Combatants Ranged on Hostile Tops and Taking Deliberate Aim—One Person Known to Have Been Killed and Several Others Fatally Injured.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Rioting has been resumed in Belfast. From midnight last night until 4 o'clock this morning a rifle fight was in progress on the Shank Hill road and the Old Falls road. One person was killed and many were wounded. The town is excited.

A despatch from Belfast says: "Sectarian strife has recurred on a deplorable cold blooded fashion. Expert marksmen this morning conducted a rifle fight from roof tops, chimney stacks and street corners. Immense crowds of partizans, who carefully kept out of range, were prepared to assist by supplying ammunition and removing the wounded. The sides were equally divided. The mens rifles brightly throughout the contest. The Orangemen admit that one of their men, named MacFarlane, was killed and that two more named Smith and Johnson were mortally wounded, also that there were numerous minor casualties on their side. They claim that they killed and wounded many Catholics, but the latter say that they sustained serious injury. Many houses were riddled by bullets. Whenever the military appeared the combatants shifted their ground. Finally at 5 o'clock, after the Riot Act had been twice read, the troops charged upon the crowds and cleared the streets temporarily. An old man and two women, the inmates of a house on Conway street, from which many shots had been fired, were arrested. They stated that three men had forced an entrance into the house and remained there all night firing from the roof. A howling crowd escorted the prisoners to the jail. The mob to-day repeatedly fired upon the police. A tavern owned by a Catholic situated in a Protestant district was looted. The order instructing the police to use buckshot instead of bullets has been rescinded. The populace is sullen and menacing.

In Lancashire.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—An Orange procession while passing through the streets of Widnes, Lancashire, yesterday evening, was jeered at by the spectators. The Orangemen thereupon broke ranks and attacked the crowd. One of the spectators was stabbed and mortally wounded and two policemen and a number of other persons were injured.

Wilfully Murdered by the Police.

BELFAST, Aug. 14.—The jury in the case of John Edgewater, a laborer, who was shot and killed in the recent riots, brought in a unanimous verdict of wilful murder against unknown members of the police force.

Kildare Policemen Attacked.

DUBLIN, Aug. 14.—A detachment of Kildare police, while marching from the Durganon railroad to the barracks, was attacked by a mob with stones and bottles. The crowd was soon dispersed without bloodshed.

Peaceable on Saturday.

BELFAST, Aug. 13.—The day has passed without incident, except some excitement in the Falls road district and some stone throwing of minor extent. All drinking houses were closed early in the afternoon, and very few people are in the streets. At 11 o'clock this evening strong guards were posted in the Springfield road. This is the principal challenge ground of the opposing factions, and where the desperate fight of last Sunday took place. The Catholic leaders are working hard among their people, urging them not to provide pretexts for attacks to the Orangemen. The latter are still very sullen, and ready to attack either Catholics or police whenever feasible. Their past punishment by the police has not cowed them in the least. They are willing to give in to the military alone. Inspector-General Reid, Inspector General of the entire constabulary force of Ireland, is here to night and has just gone out through the troubled districts on a tour of inspection. Messrs. Harland & Wolff, the proprietors of the shipyard on Queen's Island, have become aroused to the desperate character of the men in their employ, and the incident of yesterday, when tar was poured over the man Johnstone, has brought out a notice from them saying that if an offence of a similar character is repeated the works will be closed for a month. This will probably stop the senseless attacks of the Orangemen, and the twenty eight Catholics who left their work yesterday will probably return to the yards on Monday.

The Catholics Listen to Counsel.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A despatch from Belfast says that at 2 o'clock this morning the city was quiet. The priests, by superhuman exertions induced the Catholics to retire at midnight. All the wounded were doing well except one little girl who had been shot in the chest and was said to be dying.

The Papers Pleased.

DUBLIN, Aug. 14.—The Irish newspapers express gratification at the decision of the Government to appoint a Royal Commission to inquire into the Belfast riots. Catholic leaders have again exhorted their followers not to provide pretexts for Orange attacks.

An Import Duty on Cattle.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug 14.—Conrad Khors, a ranchman from Montana, has had an interview with the Government here respecting the 20 per cent import duty about to be imposed upon live cattle. He urges that this action will virtually prohibit the importation of cattle from the United States for stocking the Northwest grazing lands.

THE TORIES HOPEFUL.

A SURVEY OF THE POLITICAL SITUATION AS SEEN BY THE TORIES.

[illegible]

LONDON, Aug. 15. Lord Randolph Churchill was known to go secretly to Cabinet meeting, or perhaps to shortened the ordeal of having a November session in order to pass the new rules of procedure. The Times is probably correctly informed when it affirms positively—an unusual thing when matters are concerned—that Parliament will be prorogued in next year. All the newspaper papers take to that conclusion, after a discussion and to substantiate. They are hope symbols by [illegible] [illegible] for the ministry to choose whether it shall be now or in November. The truth is the Opposition cannot agree among themselves what the Tories mean or what policy the Liberals and Parnellites should follow. The comments on Lord Salisbury's speech at the Mansion House are a striking proof of this state of unity of views.

Mr. Parnell's silence remains unbroken, but some of his friends [illegible] the right of the Irish to agitation by a policy of conciliation outright to Parliament, ahead of it. He certainly does not [illegible] Lord Salisbury's recent that the public sentiment of the country against Home Rule is irreversible. But neither are there any indications that the constituencies are yet ripe to [illegible] Mr. Gladstone's lead. The members have been [illegible] without contest, Mr. Hawkins excepted, whose opponent lost a fifth of the votes which he polled a few weeks ago. Great hopes were built on Birmingham. Mr. Schnadhorst believed that he had succeeded in converting the Liberal party and fully expected the defeat of Mr. Chamberlain; but when Mr. Cook's supporters added up their canvassing books they found that Mr. Macdonnell former majority would be [illegible] increased and Mr. Cook unchanged. Mr. Chamberlain without getting a seat in Parliament was still master in Birmingham. The Unionist feeling, independent of Mr. Chamberlain, was discovered to be stronger than in July. Worse than all, the failure of the attempt to oppose Mr. Bismarck brought cold water on the same method Mr. Cook represented. Probably no election has so much disappointed the Tory leaders, or so discouraged the Opposition. The Tory fortune is at last the pressure to be impressible. Most [illegible] great personal [illegible] Lord Randolph Churchill [illegible] Ireland, where, to use a colloquialism of the college men will pass for changed by [illegible] as to send a Home Ruler to Parliament. The hundred Americans and others [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

MONDAY, AUGUST 16, 1886.

It is announced says an Ottawa despatch, that Messrs. Bowell and Foster are to leave at once on a holiday trip to British Columbia, the pretext being that the fisheries of that Province required looking after. The amount that will have to be paid by the taxpayers for this year's Ministerial junketings, will be something enormous.

The crop bulletins of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture estimate an average yield of wheat of between sixteen and seventeen bushels to the acre. The fertile Northwest must pull up if she competes with farmers tilling "the worn-out soil" of Ontario, whose average yield of weat per acre this year is over twenty bushels.

The Reform newspaper that condemns Mr. Hector Cameron's scheme for deluding Englishmen to settle on Anticosti Island, will be denounced as unpatriotic. It may be honest, but it would be unpatriotic to prevent a good Tory politican from deluding —(a very mild word) the people at 'Ome. It would be all right to give Anticosti over to boodle politicans, on condition that they staid there.

Copies of the Dominion voters' lists for the several constituencies are accumulating at Ottawa. This is a very convenient arrangement, showing the beauty of centralization. The Tory wirepullers can now meet at headquarters, go over the lists, decide upon the amount of "sinews of war" required, draw on the "barrl" and start out on the campaign fully equipped for their battle for honest government.

The Belleville Intelligencer is exceedingly anxious to tar its political opponents with the same stick that has left its defilement on its political friends. It charged that Mr. Carman of the Ontario took a pleasure trip as "delegate to a Deaf and Dumb convention at the expense of the Ontario Government." When the charge is proven false the Intelligencer does not retract, but insinuates that its editorial confrere got his tickets at a reduced rate. If he had been a parliamentary supporter of the present government he might have got a free pass from the C. P. R.

Police Court.

Patrick J. McNamara, charged with committing an assault upon John McNamara on Thursday evening, was arraigned before police magistrate Dumble, Saturday morning.

The evidence shows that John McNamara, the plaintiff, and Thos. McNamara, son of the defendant, while playing together got into a row. The defendant hearing the cries of his son who was the smaller and went under in a scuffle, came out and separated the boys, giving John McNamara a couple of taps with a lacrosse stick in doing so. The magistrate endeavored to persuade the plaintiff to withdraw the charge and shake hands. He refused and the magistrate imposed on the defendant a fine of $2 without costs.

James Whitehair was arraigned before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning, charged by his father, Wm. Whitehair, with trespassing on his premises on March 8th. The defendant denied the charge. The evidence showed that the defendant had entered his father's house on March 8th to get some articles belonging to his sister, which he took away contrary to his father's order. He took the articles at his sister's request and by the leave of his mother. The magistrate said it was disgraceful for Mr. Whitehair to bring such a case before the court and dismissed the charge with costs to the complainant.

Carbolic acid is the best disinfectant for in-door sinks. A small quantity of it is required and it can be readily washed away when its work is done. If the pipes of sinks have become clogged with greasy waste, pour in some liquid potash, which will quickly form soft soap and so, of course, pass off.

LOVE'S VICTORY.

BY BERTHA M CLAY

It was Frampton who opened the door suddenly and stood before them with a white, scared face.

"Oh, my lady—my lady!" he gasped.

"Tell her quickly," cried Pauline; "do you not see that suspense is dangerous?"

"Some of the grooms, servants," said the butler, "returning from Audleigh Royal, have found the body of Captain Langton lying in the high-road, where his horse had thrown him, dragged him, and left him—dead!"

"Heaven be merciful to him!" cried Pauline Darrell. "He has died in his sin."

But Lady Darrell spoke no words. Perhaps she thought to herself that Heaven had indeed judged between them. She said nothing—she trembled—a gasping cry came from her, and she fell face forward on the floor.

They raised her and carried her up stairs. Pauline never left her; through the long night-watches and the long days she kept her place by her side, while life and death fought fiercely for her. She would awake from her stupor at times, only to ask about Aubrey—if it could be true that he was dead—and then seemed thankful that she could understand no more.

They did not think at first that she could recover. Afterward Doctor Helmstone told her that she owed her life to Pauline Darrell's unchanging love and care.

CHAPTER XII.
THE WORK OF A MOMENT.

The little town of Audleigh Royal had never been so excited. It was such a terrible accident. Captain Langton, the guest of Sir Peter Glynn, so soon to be master of Darrell Court—a man so handsome, so accomplished, and so universal a favorite—to be killed in the gloom of an autumn night, on the high road! Society was grieved and shocked.

"That beautiful young lady at the Hall who loved him so dearly, was," people whispered to each other, "at death's door—so deep was her grief."

An inquest was held at the "Darrell Arms;" and all the revelations ever made as to the cause of Captain Langton's death were made then. The butler and the groom at Darrell Court swore to having felt some little alarm at seeing the deceased drink more than half a tumblerful of brandy. The butler's prophecy that he would never reach home in safety was repeated. One of the men said that the captain looked pale and scared, as though he had seen a ghost; another told how madly he had galloped away; so that no other conclusion could be come to but this—that he had ridden recklessly, lost all control over the horse, and had been thrown. There was proof that the animal had dragged him along the road for some little distance; and it was supposed the fatal wound had been inflicted when his head was dashed against the milestone close to which he had been found.

It was very shocking, very terrible. Society was distressed. The body lay at the "Darrell Arms" until all arrangements had been made for the funeral. Such a funeral had never been seen in Audleigh Royal. Rich and poor, every one attended.

Captain Langton was buried in the pretty little cemetery at Audleigh; and people, as they stood round the grave, whispered to each other that, although the horse that killed him had cast over a hundred pounds, Sir Peter Glynn had ordered it to be shot.

Then, when the autumn had faded into winter, the accident was forgotten. Something else happened which drove it from people's minds, and the tragedy of Audleigh Royal became a thing of the past.

Pauline did not return to Ombercleigh. Miss Hastings was dreadfully shocked when she received a letter telling her of Captain Langton's death and of Lady Darrell's serious illness. No persuasions could induce her to remain longer away. She returned that same day to the Court, and insisted upon taking her share in the nursing of Lady Darrell.

Lady Hampton looked upon the captain's accident as the direct interposition of Providence. Of course such a death was very shocking, very terrible; but certainly it had never been a match she approved; and, after all, say what one would, everything had happened for the best.

Lady Hampton went over to Darrell Court, and assisted in attending to the invalid; but her thoughts ran more on Lord Aynsley, and the chances of his renewing his offer, than on anything else. Elinor would soon recover, there was no fear; the shock to her nerves had been great, but people never died of nervousness; and, when she did get well, Lady Hampton intended to propose a season in London.

But Lady Darrell did not get well as soon as Lady Hampton had anticipated. Indeed, more than one clever doctor, on leaving her presence, shook his head gravely, and said it was doubtful whether Lady Darrell would ever recover at all; the shock to her nerves had been terrible.

But there was something to be said also of a blighted life and a broken heart.

Autumn had drifted into winter; and one morning Lady Darrell, who had been sleeping more soundly than usual, suddenly turned to Pauline, who seldom left her.

"Pauline," she whispered, "you have not told any one, have you?"

"Told what?" she inquired.

"About poor Aubrey's faults. I know now that he was guilty. Strange, solemn thoughts, strange revelations, come to us, are made to us in sickness, when we lie, where I have been lying, in the valley of the shadow of death. I know that he was guilty, and that he died in his sin. I know it now, Pauline."

Miss Darrell bent over her and kissed the white brow.

"Listen to me, dear," continued the weak voice. "Let this secret die with us—let there [illegible] will never [illegible] any one about it, will you Pauline?

"No," she replied, "never. I should never have told you but that I hoped to save you from a dreadful fate—and it would have been a dreadful fate for you to have married him; he would have broken your heart."

"It is broken now," she said, gently. "Yet it comforts me to know that no reproach will be heaped on Aubrey's memory."

"You will get better, dearest," cheered Pauline, hopefully, "and then there will be happier days in store for you."

"There will be no happy days for me," returned Lady Darrell, sorrowfully. "You see, Pauline, I loved him very dearly—more dearly than I knew. I had never loved any one very much until I saw him. I could more easily have checked a raging fire than have restrained my love after I had once given it. My life had in some way passed into his, and now, I do not care to live."

"But you have so much to live for," said Pauline.

"Not now. I do not care for aught about me. I have tried to remember Darrell Court and all my wealth and grandeur, but they give me no pleasure—the shadow of death lies over all."

And it was all in vain that Pauline tried to rouse her; Lady Darrell, after her unhappy love, never cared to be roused again. Lady Hampton would not think profanely of her illness—it would pass away in time, she said; but Miss Hastings shook her head gravely, and feared the worst.

The time came when Pauline told some part of her story to the governess. She did not mention Aubrey's crime—that secret she kept until death—but she gave a sketch of what had passed between her and Lady Darrell.

"Did I do right?" she asked, with that sweet humility which had vanquished all pride in her.

"You acted worthily," replied Miss Hastings, while she marveled at the transformation which love had wrought in that once proud, wilful girl.

Time passed on, and by degrees Miss Hastings, a celebrated physician was sent for from London, for Lady Darrell grew no better. His opinion sounded somewhat like a death-warrant.

"She may recover sufficiently to quit her room and to linger on in life—how long is uncertain; but the shock to her nerves she will never fully recover from—while she lives she will be a victim to nervousness. But I do not think she will live long. Let her have as much cheerful society as possible, without fatigue; nothing more can be done for her."

And with that they were obliged to be content. Lady Hampton would not admit that the London physician was correct.

"Nerves are all nonsense," she said, brusquely. "How many nervous shocks have I been through, with husband dead and children dead? Elinor's only danger is her mother's complaint. She died of consumption quite young."

It was found, however, despite Lady Hampton's disbelief, that the London physician had spoken truthfully. Lady Darrell rose from her sick bed, but she was but the shadow of herself, and a victim to a terrible nervous disorder.

Miss Hastings watched over her with great anxiety, but Pauline was like a second self to the unhappy lady. They were speaking of her one day, and Miss Hastings said:

"An illness like Lady Darrell's is so uncertain, Pauline; you must not occupy yourself with her so entirely, or you will lose your own health."

But Pauline looked up with a smile—perhaps the gravest, the sweetest and most tender her face had ever worn.

"I shall never leave her," she returned.

"Never leave her?" questioned Miss Hastings.

"No. I shall stay with her to comfort her while life lasts, and that will be my atonement."

Be a Hero in Strife

says America's favorite poet. All very well Mr. Longfellow, but how can you, when half your time you feel sick, and do not feel well the other half. Men of noblest principles and highest aims find their efforts thwarted by disease. Night-sweats, a hacking cough and other symptoms only too plainly say consumption. Heed good advice. Try Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and the bloom of health will return to your cheeks, soundness to your lungs and you will be a hero yet. w33-1t

Of winter bring to the surface every latent pain. It is one of the strange things associated with our physical well being that the very air, without which we could not exist, is heavily laden with germs of disease, Rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago and, other complaints of a similar character hold revel at this season of the year amongst human nerves and human muscles. There was a time when fortitude alone could make life tolerable, but now with the advent of powerful, penetrating and nerve soothing remedies pain becomes a thing of a moment. The best, the most powerful and most certain pain cure is Polson's Nerviline. Nothing equals Nerviline for penetrating power. Nerviline is beyond comparison the grandest discovery for the relief of pain offered to the public. FLOUR.

There seems to be some misapprehension relative to the price of Flour. I find a number of purchasers stating that the grade of Flour known as has been reduced to $2.25 per one hundred pounds. This is a mistake. I offer, in common with all other dealers and millers, a good Family Flour at $2 25, but the brand "Bakers" is still retained at $2.50 per hundred.

P. P. FLOUR for Pastry, $2.75 per Hundred.

BAKER'S FLOUR (ground from Manitoba Hard and Ontario Spring Wheat), $2.50 per Hundred.

FAMILY FLOUR (ground from Ontario Wheat), $2.25 per Hundred.

LOW GRADE FLOUR, $2.00 per Hundred.

Toronto, August 5th, 1886

N. Washington, M. D., Throat and Lung Surgeon, Toronto and Halifax.

DEAR SIR.—I am pleased to be able to express my extreme satisfaction at the result of your "New Method" of inhalation which has cured me of catarrh of a very troublesome character. In fact all the usual remedies failed to give me any relief whatever, but your treatment from the first gave me great relief and in a short time entirely cured me of a most terrible disease which had for years threatened my life. I can honestly recommend anyone who may be suffering as I was to your skillful consideration. Yours truly, GEO. GOULDING.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

CURES ALL HUMORS,

from a common Blotch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula. Salt-rheum, "Fever-sores," Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great Sealed Wounds rapidly heal under its benign influence. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip-Joint Disease, White Swellings, Goitre, or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands. Send ten cents in stamps for a large treatise, with colored plates, on Skin Diseases, or the same amount for a treatise on Scrofulous Affections. "THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE." Thoroughly cleanse it by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution, will be established.

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofulous Disease of the Lungs, is promptly and certainly arrested and cured by this God-given remedy, if taken before the last stages of the disease are reached. From its wonderful power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now celebrated remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too limited for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all

CHRONIC DISEASES OF THE

Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills, alternating with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and coated tongue, you are suffering from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Consumption, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's book on Consumption. Sold by Druggists.

Lacrosse on Thursday.

The members of the Riverside Lacrosse Club are making active preparations for the match with the Madoc men on the Civic Holiday, Thursday next. They propose in addition to the match to have a number of athletic sports, for which valuable prizes will be given, and no doubt will present an interesting programme.

Church Chimes.

Rev. M. Little, of Bowmanville, occupied the pulpit of St. Paul's Church, on Sunday, morning and evening. His discourses were interesting and instructive.

Rev. Dr. Badgley, of Victoria University, Cobourg, preached in the George Street Methodist Church, on Sunday morning and in the Charlotte Street Church in the evening, delivering powerful and impressive sermons to large audiences.

VERBOSITY

[illegible] is abundantly laden with well-developed fruit, while the surprising quantity of [illegible] (which, by the way, refused to associate with "the flowers that bloom in the spring") is now thickly covered with blossoms.

Messrs. Nordheimer, Toronto, have favored the EXAMINER with a song with pianoforte accompaniment, entitled "The Death of Gordon,"—the hero of Khartoum. It has recently been issued by the Messrs. Nordheimer. The beautiful and touching words are set to corresponding music.

Favourable Indications.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, Secretary of the Peterborough Driving Park Association, has received a card from M. T. Vail, of Hartford, Conn., Secretary of the National Trotting Association of the United States, asking for a premium list for the meet to be held here on the 26th and 27th of August, and for regulations, etc. It is expected that a number of fast American horses will participate in the races, which will add to the interest of the occasion.

Unpleasantness Ahead.

A [illegible] giving his name as Clark and Petty, claiming to be a former resident of St. Thomas, who has been doing the town for the past week, on Saturday morning was committed to jail on a charge of insanity, preferred by Constable Craig, of Ashburnham. The unfortunate man had plenty of money which he spent freely on useless articles. He was perfectly harmless and the town police force allowed him to walk the streets in peace.

Civic Holiday Attractions.

Civic Holiday is designed to be a day of recreation and enjoyment, and to secure this to the fullest extent, the P. A. A. A. excursion to Sturgeon Point and Orillia presents the grandest opportunity. A day at Sturgeon Point with brief travel, or by going a little further, Orillia is reached with its delightful day's boating on one of the most beautiful inland lakes of the country. Keep this excursion in mind. The rates are exceedingly low, train service first-class, time rapid, and the comfort and enjoyment of every excursionist guaranteed.

Bargains that are Bargains.

The firm of Giroux & Sullivan to be dissolved on 31st August, is now offering unprecedented bargains in new and fashionable dry goods in order to clear out their entire and magnificent stock before the above date. The entire stock has been gone over and marked down to profoundly low prices, and an opportunity is thus offered to the public of purchasing the best goods at surprising low figures, which it behooves all to take advantage of. During the great dissolution sale the terms will be cash. Now is the time to lay in a stock of choice goods at astonishingly low rates.

Cricket.

The Campbellford cricketers arrived this morning about ten o'clock and proceeded to the P. A. A. A. grounds. The team is composed as follows:—R. Leslie, R. Bonnycastle, T. Tait, E. Nancarrow, E. Platt, A. Denmark, J. Ferris, G. Dickson, G. Willoughby, W. Robertson and S. Mitchell. Wickets were pitched at 10.30, Peterborough going to the bat. When the game had been in progress about an hour, the rain fell heavily and has continued ever since, preventing further play. The score stood 70, only one wicket having fallen. J. C. Logan and S. Ray went to bat first. Logan retired for 6, while Ray had 36 to his credit and Max Hamilton 25 when play was dropped. The match will be finished some other day.

The P. A. A. A. Excursion.

In tending excursionists and those who are almost persuaded, are reminded that the train leaves at 7.30. On the arrival of the train at Lindsay, at 9 a. m., the steamer with barge will start for Sturgeon Point. This will give excursionists a long day for the enjoyment of the pleasures of the Point. The train, continuing will reach Orillia, at 10.15, giving abundant time for the enjoyment of the boating and scenery of the beautiful lake Couchiching. The excursion train will leave Orillia to return, at 6 p.m., and Lindsay, at 7.30, reaching home in good time. Thus will be the best managed and most enjoyable excursion of the season. Fare from Peterborough and return—to Sturgeon Point 85 cts.; to Orillia, $1.10, children, half price.

A Foundling.

On Sunday morning between 2 and 3 o'clock, P. C. Adams encountered a small boy about 9 years old wandering along Geo. street. The boy gave his name as Chord, and stated that he had come from Stirling. He was looking for a relative who lives in Douro. The p. c. gave him a bed on the couch in the police station, where he remained till morning. He was called for in the evening.

The Coming Holiday.

On Thursday next many citizens are going out of town and a considerable number will doubtless take in the cheap excursion to Toronto. Train leaves 8.30 a.m. Return fare only two dollars, the tickets being good for two days. Alex. Elliott, C. P. R. agency, George street, will supply intending excursionists with tickets, and as only a limited number will be issued, early application is desirable. No crowding, promptness, and civility will characterize this excursion. Parties who prefer doing so can leave by the morning express, 5.30 a.m. No better chance for seeing your friends or for doing business in the Queen City will offer itself for some months to come. Therefore, be on hand on the Civic Holiday, Thursday, August 19th, and start on your pleasant journey by the well-known C. P. R. road, having a ticket in your pocket and a dollar or so for "incidentals." Return tickets, $2; children, half price.

Runaways.

On Saturday evening when the streets were well crowded with pedestrians two horses caught the runaway contagion and made things lively for a time. A horse driven by Mr. Thos. Mann, of Bridgenorth, bolted out of the Croft House yard, ran down Water street, around the market and out to Simcoe street via the alleyway between China Hall and Flavelle's feed store, thence to George street and straightaway, taking in all the posts that lay in the route. It was caught near Hamilton's foundry and brought up street. The barness and shafts were wrecked, the hitcher only holding the horse and rig together.

While Mr. Crafte was driving up Hunter street, near George, in reining up his horse to prevent it running down persons who were crossing the street, the bit broke and it bolted, and would not be controlled until it turned up Chambers street, where it was brought to a standstill. Mrs. Crafte, who was in the vehicle at the time, fainted, but recovered in a few minutes. No damage was done to the horse or rig. It was almost a miracle that some person was not run down on George street, as it was thronged at the time.

Hamilton Company's New Catalogue.

The William Hamilton Manufacturing Company have just had issued from the EXAMINER printing and binding establishment their new illustrated catalogue. It is a handsome octavo pamphlet of 92 pages, well printed on fine calendered paper, and the illustrations, (over sixty fine woodcuts) are exceedingly clear and correct giving correct ideas of the numerous machines built by them. The machinery illustrated and described in this catalogue embraces every kind of saw mill machinery, engines, boilers, etc. Their principal machines and appliances consist of all the improved machinery in demand in the modern saw mill, and all the apparatus connected with and incidental to the lumbering business, from the stump in the forest to the finished lumber ready for the piling grounds. Not only does this great firm build their machinery containing the most recent improvements, but the details of manufacture are so carefully attended to, their work is characterized by such strength excellence of material and perfection of workmanship that their products of the same class or article are superior in all points to those of most, and excelled by none, of the establishments of a like nature on the continent. The reputation they have now is not local or sectional or even provincial—it is continental. A glance at their new illustrated catalogue shows numerous testimonials to the excellence of their machinery for all parts of the continent, from British Columbia in the west to Quebec in the east. The machinery of this firm suits the milling requirements of every section of the country. Making the manufacture of saw mill machinery a specialty for thirty years a degree of perfection and accuracy has been arrived at which accounts for the great success it has achieved. In all parts of the United States as well as Canada their machinery stands in high estimation, and they are frequently in receipt of orders from great distances—in convenient proximity to more local establishments—but so highly do they still men value the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company's machinery that, in their determination to have the best, they will order it in the face of a high duty and heavy freight rate knowing that if the immediate cost is greater the extra value, extra strength and extra adaptability to intended purposes, makes the investment in the long run a paying one. Every mill owner or person interested in the lumbering business should see the new illustrated catalogue of the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company.

SPORTS

Mr. Geo. F. Masters, of Ennis, returned to-day from a trip to England.

Mr. Geo. Martin, of Toronto, formerly of the EXAMINER staff, is in town on a visit.

Rev. Henry Edmison, of Rothsay and Moorefield, who is visiting in town, the guest of his brother, Mr. Geo. Edmison, conducted the services in St. Andrews church yesterday evening.

Mr. Samuel Jamieson, of Toronto, an ex-member of the EXAMINER staff, is in town on a short visit.

Bellegham's Forward Movement.

D. Bellegham's new Corliss engine, built for him by Cowan & Co., Galt, has arrived. It is 25-horse power, beautifully finished, and it is being placed in position. It is intended to supply power to the new machinery and the present machinery which his recent additions to his manufacturing capacities render necessary. His new building is largely completed; it is continuous with the old one and is of solid brick, 40x28 feet, and three stories in height. It is to be devoted to workshops and furnishing department. The lower story, continuous with the boiler rooms, will be used as a drying kiln, the exhaust steam being utilized for heating as well as drying purposes. With his increase [illegible] will make great advances in manufacturing. He needed more room and more machinery—his increasing business demanded it and he has it supplied. As soon as the premises are ready for it, new machinery of the latest improved designs will be put in. Bellegham is bound to keep up with the procession, and in the furniture business to lead it.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

When we say McGregor's Speedy Cure is the only perfect cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion and Impure Blood, we are telling plain facts, of which hundreds upon hundreds can testify who have been restored to perfect health by its use. We would therefore advise you strongly if you are a subject of any of the above troubles to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial and be convinced. It is sold in 50c. and $1.00 bottles at John McKees Drug store. d30-eod-w33

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 28th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 20 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two spurious trusses made in York State, costing me $30. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it is required, that never come down, it holding perfectly between under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. S. KANE.

This new Spiral Spring Rupture Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; do guaranteed, to hold the very worst rupture that the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure a child new-born; and is out of every list of adults. DELEGATES O'BRIEN, DEARY AND REDMOND AT NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The delegates to the Chicago Irish National League convention, Messrs. O'Brien, Deary and Redmond arrived from Europe on the steamer Servia this morning. The Servia was sighted off Sandy Hook at 3 a.m., but could not cross the bar on account of the low tide until after 5 o'clock. The news of the steamer's arrival was received at the barge office shortly before 6 o'clock.

Gen. Kerwin, M. D. Gallagher, Rev. George W. Pepper, Dr. T. O'Reilly, Edward Rowe, Rev. Father McKenna, P. J. Brennan and Michael Dwyer were the only members of the Reception Committee on hand. They went on board Commodore Starin's fast steamboat the Sam Sloan, accompanied by the reporters. The Sam Sloan steamed rapidly down the harbor to quarantine station.

As the boat left the barge office Hugh McCaffrey, T. J. Donnelly, Councillor Delany, Thomas J. Barton and Patrick Costello appeared on a run. They were too late. A band of music also came up. Mr. Costello had a large Irish flag wrapped around his arm. The party breathed vengeance upon their friends for leaving them in the lurch, and taking a tug which was near by, started down the bay after the Sloan.

The Servia got under weigh shortly after 5 o'clock and crossing the bar, slowly steamed up to quarantine station. The Sloan put out from the station and drew alongside the Cunarder. Gen. Kerwin mounted the steps of the companion ladder of the Servia, followed by the committee and the reporters. The delegates were not on deck. They had awakened a few minutes earlier and soon emerged from their stateroom. A general hand shake ensued and then the visitors were taken on board the Sam Sloan with their baggage and the boat headed for the city.

Gen. Kerwin introduced, in a few well chosen words, Rev. George W. Pepper, who said: "GENTLEMEN—The committee appointed by the league to receive you, upon your appearance, regard this hour as amongst the proudest of their lives. Never in the history of Ireland were her prospects so bright or auspicious; never were her people so thoroughly united, and never were there so many reasons for congratulation. The attention of the whole civilized world has recently been drawn to the condition of Ireland."

"The following is the sense of this committee:

Resolved, First—That we are grateful for the grand and masterly vindication of the cause of Ireland by England's greatest living statesman, Mr. William Ewart Gladstone, and that we hail his great measure as a noble instalment of justice to the Irish people.

Second—That although the bill has suffered temporary defeat, we believe that its ultimate triumph is among the certainties of the near future.

Third—That we have the fullest confidence in the wisdom, ability and chivalrous patriotism of Ireland's mighty leader, Charles Stewart Parnell.

Fourth—That we hail with proud satisfaction the dawn of that day when Irishmen of all religious persuasions shall be united in a vindication of that cause for which Grattan pleaded and Emmet died.

"The committee appointed to receive you is composed of Protestants and Catholics. Here stands Rev. Father McKenna, a Catholic priest, beside Rev. George W. Pepper, a Methodist clergyman. Such a unity is a splendid augury of the time when Ireland shall lift up her scarred but stately brow among the commonwealths of the world."

Mr. Wm. O'Brien responded for his colleagues. He said: "For my friends and myself I will say that we are delighted to receive such welcome, but are not surprised at the warm greeting." Mr. O'Brien said he was much pleased with his reception on American soil, and thanked the committee on the part of Mr. Parnell, whose unworthy ambassadors they were. The other delegates spoke in the same strain.

In conversation Mr. O'Brien condemned the utterances and letters of Lord Churchill and Mr. Chamberlain as the direct cause of the riots at Belfast and other places. He thought there would soon be trouble in Ireland over the rent question. The people, he said, would refuse from sheer inability to pay rent, and wholesale evictions would follow. It would be impossible to govern them by coercive method, as they were already driven to the wall. He said Lord Churchill's county board plan would not be satisfactory. Less than Mr. Gladstone's measure was now impossible—more was certain. Mr. O'Brien said there would be a collapsing of the Government on the Irish question inside of a year.

The delegates did not wish to talk about the Chicago convention, saying that the action of the convention will largely be determined by the work of the committee on resolutions.

The Convention at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—The delegates to the Irish National League convention, which is to be opened Wednesday morning, are arriving slowly. Not over half a dozen came yesterday, but larger numbers are arriving today. The convention will be a large one, in fact the largest ever held—it being estimated that 1500 delegates will be present.

The first skirmish will be over the election of a temporary chairman. President Egan will call the assembly to order and will read his report. Then will follow the election of temporary officers, and afterwards the appointment of committees. The national committee will hold a meeting Friday evening when a temporary chairman will be decided upon. His name will be presented to the convention the next morning, and it is expected that the opposition will then show its hand by nominating a man from their own ranks. The vote on this will likely prove a test.

It is more than probable that John F. Finerty, of Chicago, will be selected by the national committee for this position. As to the election of the president, it is not easy to say who will be the man. Mr. Egan positively declines to serve another term, and says he has no choice for his successor. As far as can be learned Mr. Davoy's followers have not yet settled on a man for the office. The eastern delegates are united on Maurice Willbore, of Manayunk, Pa., but it is not known whether he will accept. Mr. O'Neil, of St. Louis, and Thomas Brennan of Omaha are also spoken of; the latter, however, will not take the office; neither will Alex Sullivan. It is also doubtful whether Mr. Finerty will allow his name to go before the convention as his election would necessarily prevent him from taking any active part in politics. Messrs. Davitt and Egan received large numbers of visitors to-day.

The British Columbian, New Westminster is now issued as a daily and is a splendid newspaper.

Vaseline is very commonly used at present; but it should be confined to the outside of the body. Cases are reported of poisoning caused by its administration internally for sore throat.

THE BELFAST RIOTS.

OCCASIONAL SHOTS IN THE STREET BUT NO LOSS OF LIFE.

Magistrate Burke Receives a Severe Bayonet Wound in Sunday Night's Riot—What the Singing of a Song Led To—The Pitiable Prisons of Belfast and Dublin.

BELFAST, Aug. 16.—Occasional shots are fired in the city throughout the day and evening. The men from Queen's Island while marching home sang "No Home Rule For Ireland," a parody of "God Save Ireland." This maddened the Nationalists, one of whom broke through the military cordon and charged upon the Island men, yelling his defiance. He was seized by the police and carried off to jail. Had it not been for their prompt action his life would have undoubtedly been sacrificed. It has transpired that the military in charging the mob last evening bayonetted Magistrate Burke who was assisting a wounded rioter. Mr. Burke was in plain clothes at the time. He was subsequently taken to an hospital. He may not recover.

A man named Jackson, who was wounded in Sunday morning's riot, is dead.

There was some stone throwing last night, but no one was seriously injured. There are signs that the authorities fear attempts at reprisals to-night on the part of the mob. Public houses are being closed and other precautions are being taken. Scores of persons are being sent to Kilmainham jail at Dublin to await trial, the local jail being full.

The Catholic newspapers here accuse the Orangemen of commencing Sunday's attack, while the Protestant papers say the Orangemen acted in self-defence.

It Spreads to Dungannon.

DUBLIN, Aug. 16.—At Dungannon to-day bands of Nationalists paraded the Protestant quarter of the town shouting for Home Rule and cursing the Queen. A riot broke out and and several persons were injured. The police had to force their way between the Protestants and the Catholics, thus preventing a desperate fight. One Nationalist was arrested with a knife in his hand. A renewal of the rioting is feared. Party feeling is intense.

Parliamentary Points.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Mr. Gladston is busily employed preparing for the new session of Parliament.

The Queen held a council this morning at Osborne Castle with the members of the Ministry.

The terms of the Queen's speech to be made at the re-assembling of Parliament were agreed upon.

Lord Salisbury returned to London after the council.

ARCHBISHOP WALSH WHISPERS

Michael Davitt's Land Scheme Preferable to Henry George's.

DUBLIN, Aug. 16.—Archbishop Walsh, in an interview, said he believed that the land purchase question would never be settled except on Michael Davitt's nationalization principle of just compensation to the actual holder, rather than on the principles of Henry George. He commended the scheme of Dr Dale as set forth in the Contemporary Review of June, accepting Mr. Gladstone's bill as a minimum starting point for the establishment of a statutory parliament in Dublin and to leave it an open question with the people of England, Wales and Scotland to decide whether there shall be one, two or three parliaments. Archbishop Walsh declared that the statement that the Pope disapproved of the attitude of the Irish clergy towards the Nationalists was founded upon malice. It was only necessary, he said, to read the Moniteur di Rome and the Observatore Romano to see that the Irish cause is safe with the Pope.

SPREAD OF THE PLAGUE IN AUSTRO-HUNGARY AND ITALY.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The Austro-Hungarian cholera returns for to-day are: Trieste, 16 new cases, 3 deaths. The Italian reports are: Barletta, 60 new cases, 30 deaths; Ruvo di Puglia, 21 new cases, 7 deaths, Bologna, 13 new cases, 5 deaths; Padua, 13 new cases, 4 deaths; Treviso, 18 new cases, 10 deaths; Verona, 6 new cases, 2 deaths; Legnago, 12 new cases, 3 deaths; Venice, 7 new cases, 2 deaths; Bisceglia 13 new cases, 2 deaths; Acquaviva, 14 new cases, 2 deaths. The geographical area affected by cholera exhibits the capricious behaviour of the disease. Thus it is worst in Barletta, which is far away to the south, where the coast district between Monte Gargano and Brindisi is more or less affected. Thence it makes a clear leap of 300 miles to Ravenna and Bologna, then turns northward, extending, though in a less virulent form, through Venetia, including the Island of Caloggia, and reaching as far east as Verona and as far north as Castel Franco, at the foot of the Alps. It is a noteworthy fact that the places most seriously threatened lie in the centre or on the edge of marshy plains formed by the alluvial deposits of rivers or the shifting of the sea, which always induce more or less malaria at this season of the year.

THE POISONED TROTTERS.

The Devilish Work of "Texas Tom"—Excitement in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—The arrest of Thomas Redmond, alias "Texas Tom," for alleged complicity in the attempt to poison Ed. Corrigan's mare, Lizzie Dwyer, is liable to lead to startling developments. "Texas Tom" now confesses that the report of his meeting Charles Price at Englewood was correct, and that Price gave him $400 to bet on Brunette against Lizzie Dwyer.

Price had obtained the money through Mamie Hunt defeating Pearl Jennings on July 17, where the latter was a very strong favorite. It is almost certain Pearl Jennings was drugged and thus prevented from winning. Many who saw the behavior of the mare at the post that day were convinced that something was wrong with her. "Texas" is still silent as to his confederate, and refuses to divulge the names of the people who were at the back of the transaction.

There is a strong suspicion directed in certain quarters, and it is more than probable that the officials are on the right scent. When the attempt was made to poison Lady of the Lake at St. Louis, two years ago, Sam Bryant, the owner, forced "Texas Tom" to to produce the bottle of poison which he had intended to give the filly. He then told Redmond that if he would give the names of the people who employed him he would not deal harshly with him. Redmond consented, and in the presence of Detective Browning, of St. Louis, gave the names of two bookmakers. The detective for some reason best known to himself told Redmond that it was of no use giving up these names, as it would not help him in the least, whereupon Redmond said he would take the whole statement back, and that what he had said was not true. The names of these bookmakers are, however, known, and as one of them has been doing business during the Washington Park meeting, though he was not there the last few days, it is expected he may know something of the business. It is further claimed that money was sent from Chicago to St. Louis to defend Redmond when he got into the Lady of the Lake trouble, and that some Chicago gamblers are implicated in Redmond's work.

THE COLONIAL CONCLAVE.

Notes and Sentiments of the Great Exhibition at London.

From the London (Eng.) Canadian Gazette Aug. 4.

The Marchioness of Lansdowne, accompanied by Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice, visited the Canadian section on Wednesday of last week, and, under the escort of Sir Charles Tupper, made a careful inspection of the exhibits, with which she expressed herself highly pleased.

Hon. Sir Adolphe Caron, Canadian Minister of Militia, visited the exhibition on Monday. He was conducted over the Canadian section by the Executive Commissioner. Sir Adolphe expressed great satisfaction with the Canadian display.

It is understood that Professor Wm. Saunders, who recently returned to Canada, is making good progress in preparing for the shipment of autumn fruit to the exhibition for display, and also for the colonial market. He is arranging to obtain from local exhibitions and fairs throughout the Dominion specimens of the choicest fruit and vegetables for the purpose. Inquiries are also on foot in regard to the cold storage of the fruit during the ocean transit. An exhibition of the new fruit will, it is hoped, be made about the middle of October, in connection with the show of the Royal Horticultural Society, which is to be held in the conservatory of the exhibition, and from that date to the close of the exhibition it is intended to make a continuous display.

There also seems reason to anticipate a permanent extension of the export fruit trade of Canada from the efforts that are now being made. Reports show that the apple crop will be poor this season in Great Britain. On the continent accounts from Hamburg, Rouen, St. Malo and parts of Holland state that the season will be under the average, excepting, perhaps, in Spain and Hungary. The opportunity is therefore considered an exceptionally favorable one to extend the European market for Canadian apples beyond its present limits of London, Liverpool and Glasgow. With this object in view we understand that Mr. C. R. H. Starr of Nova Scotia, who is now in charge of the fruit display at the exhibition, will shortly visit the principal business centres of the United Kingdom and endeavor to promote the shipment of the fruit direct to those markets.

The past week has been an important one in the way of conferences at the exhibition. Mr. Hubbard's paper on Thursday evening was as all interest as those who know Mr. Hubbard's store of information regarding the future of the Northwest anticipated it would be. The audience was an appreciative and representative one, and by all—especially by those desirous of seeing British sportsmen more frequently, and in larger numbers, visit the hunting and sporting regions of the Northwest—the hope of Captain Clark will be re-echoed, that the paper may be put in permanent form for general information.

On the previous evening (Wednesday) Andrew Robertson, of Montreal, presided conference before which Mr. Stephen Bourne took up the question of colonial tariffs. Mr. Bourne's views as to a customs bond of union between the mother country and her colonies are well known. The colonies had, he said, progressed so rapidly in the production of food, materials for clothing, etc., and they possessed such capacity for expansion as to banish the fear that we should, under such a customs' union, long be destitute for the supply of our wants. A very limited survey of the fields open for our farming operations would convince the most sceptical that with very little delay we might be put in a position to defy the whole world, and to trust to our children to provide, not only the means of sustenance, but very nearly all our existing enjoyments. On the afternoon of the same day Sir Charles Tupper presided at the reading of a paper on Ceylon by Mr. J. R. Moose.

Another interesting paper was during the week contributed by Mr. J. S. Jeans on "Railway Extension in the Colonies," the Right Hon. A. J. Mundella presiding. Mr. Jeans rightly insisted upon the material services of railways in the development of the countries. The immense development of the trade of the United States he largely attributed to railway extension, and expressed the opinion that England should in her own interests endeavor to assist the colonies to take the place of the United States in the import trade of Great Britain. Comparing the railways of the various colonies, he showed that the railways so far built in Canada were equal, on the basis that a railway contributed to the opening up of country for twenty square miles on each side, to opening up about 460,000 square miles, or little more than one-ninth of the whole. The railways of India provided for opening up about half a million square miles, or rather over one-third of the whole; and the railways of Australia provided facilities for 280,000 square miles, or one-eleventh of the whole continent. The freight rates of our colonies were generally higher than those of Europe, but in India and China they were lower.

The dull sky and frequent showers that characterized the early part of Bank Holiday brought a great crowd to the Colonial Exhibition. The total attendance reached no less than 31,516. On no previous occasion have so many passed through the turnstiles. Last Whit Monday was the nearest approach, and then the total was 1,223 short of the present number. The attendance last week was 156,622, making 2,160,080 up to that time since the opening day.

SETTING A BULL DOG ON AN OFFICER.

The Unpleasant Experience of a Hamilton Detective.

HAMILTON, Aug. 16.—Two young men named Henry McGrath and Martin McGann were arrested for drunkenness. They were also wanted for assaulting, without any provocation, two lads named Henry McKenrick and James Hoyle. McGrath was handed over to Detective McKenzie and Sergt. Venatter, and went along with them a short distance down the street, Hawkins being about a block ahead with the other prisoner. Suddenly McGrath refused to go further and kicked McKenzie several times, at the same time urging on his bull dog, which attacked McKenzie from behind. The officers had quite a fight with the man and his dog before McGrath was subdued. This morning he and McGann were fined $10 each or 60 days in jail for assaulting Hoyle and McKenrick. For assaulting the police and urging his dog to his aid McGrath was sent to the Central Prison for eighteen months.

SEEKING SHELTER AT GEORGETOWN

American War Ships Protecting Their Fishing Fleets.

HALIFAX, Aug. 16.—Advices from Georgetown, P.E.I., say a number of American fishermen arrived there on Saturday for shelter. Several from West Cape report about 100 American seiners there making good catches. They also report four American warships at West Cape and the north side guarding the fleet there. The schooners left Georgetown Sunday morning. The Island fishermen are said to be indignant at the manner in which the fisheries are protected.

A Stevedores' Strike at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—The men discharging coal from the steamship Fleury at the Hochelaga wharf, to-day struck for 20 cents an hour. They were receiving 15 cents. Work was stopped for a couple of hours, when a fresh gang of men were engaged.

The Victoria Rifles, Montreal, are to have a new armory, the building and land to cost $25,000.

THE CAUSE AND CURE.

One would have thought that the so-called Loyalists of Ulster, being on the winning side at the late elections, would have refrained from murderous rioting. If rioting had occurred in the south of Ireland where the warmest hopes of the people were, at least, dampened by the result of the electoral contest, there would have been less of explanation demanded. Justin McCarthy gives an explanation of the phenomenon. He points out that the Ulsterites, exasperated at the evidences the elections furnished of the spread of the principles—of Home Rule for which the Nationalists are contending. In West Belfast the Nationalists gained a seat, and historically "loyal" Derry came within three of electing another Home Ruler. The "loyalists" of Belfast appreciate the importance of these signs of the times, and are, therefore, exasperated. They see that the trend of public opinion is irresistibly inclined towards a home government for Ireland, and that, instead of the defeat of Gladstone and his scheme being the end of the agitation, it is but a pause in the conflict, which will, ere long, be renewed and with greater hopes of success. Following the counsels, therefore, of the present leader of the Tory party, Lord Randolph Churchill, they bring to bear upon the crisis the prejudices, passions and heartburnings of centuries, and bloodshed and strife of the most unseemly character is the only opposition offered to the onward progress of a great constitutional movement. The "loyalists" of Ulster are degenerating. At the close of the last century—in 1791, in the city of Belfast Irish Protestants originated an organization for the purpose of securing for the Irish people, irrespective of religious faith, the blessings of civil and religious liberty. But their decendants have not so firm a sense of justice; they are led away by there artificially and artfully fostered prejudices and animosities and take the mistaken mood of brute force wherewith to combat a principle that must triumph in the end. Home Rule is a principle grafted on the British constitution. If the pig-headed advisers of George III, had read the signs of the times, the country now known as the United States, would have been given home rule and would have remained a colony of the British Empire. Half a century ago Canada got home rule, the rebellion of a few misguided patriots only precipating what was rapidly hastening to accomplishment by constitutional methods. And Ireland will yet have home rule, it is her right, and right must triumph. Through home rule only can the Union between Great Britain and Ireland be made a real one—a tie of affection and interest and not a bond that galls. Home rule has not made Canada disloyal. No more loyal and yet no more politically independent colony of the British Empire exists today than Canada. And yet "loyalists" pretend to seek to make Ireland happy and contented by the withholding of the liberty which every British possession of any extent, save that unhappy country, enjoys to-day.

The "Scott Act."

A Minature Steamer that Plys on Paterson's Creek.

During the past week the waters of Paterson's Creek, have been troubled by the "Scott Act," a small steamer built by Mr. W. Logan, which plys between the dam and Brock street. The minature boat is the curiosity of the neighborhood and great is the excitement when Commodore Logan starts it off on a trip. The steamer is only 2½ feet long and is supplied with a small brass engine and boiler geared to little paddle wheels which propel the boat along at a lively rate. The "Scott Act" is after the style of the lake tugs. The owner of the craft carved the hull out of a solid piece of wood, procured the boiler and attachments, which he, with the precision of an experienced boat builder, placed in position, cabin, deck,—with railing—pilot house, smoke stack and all complete. The hull is painted a bright red, while above the water line the craft is white. She sits in the water like a duck and obeys the rudder as a well conducted boat should do. The whole mechanism of the boat is very fine and displays a great amount of skill and ingenuity on the part of the builder.

The "Scott Act" is not as temperate as its name would imply. Although it uses water in the boiler, it is heated by spirits.

Capt. Logan proposes building a steamer on a larger scale—probably large enough for two passengers. A line of steamers for Spaulding's Bay may be looked for.

Advertising the Town.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR:—In this age it is well known and generally acknowledged that the use of printer's ink, judiciously employed, is of great benefit to business men and places. Owing to this constant fact, shrewd firms put forth on all sides to secure patronage in the way of advertisements, and novel methods are launched daily to catch the attention of the thousands who know "advertising pays."

The Mail has struck a new line and every fortnight presents its readers with a sketch of some town, and with the scenery letter-press, description and otherwise, a number of what are by courtesy called engravings or lithographs of the chief business houses and public buildings. Last week we had Cobourg "done up" in this way, and the gentlemen who paid for the privilege of seeing their stores or residences in print, must have been highly gratified when they saw the crude, miserable, hastily-executed, inartistic daubs put forth by the big Toronto daily.

In another fortnight I hear we will have Peterborough appearing in the same grand(?) style, and I suppose some of our civic officials and enterprising citizens imagine this will advance the interests of the town and spread its fame.

If properly done no doubt such a method of advertising would be extremely beneficial, but I submit this Mail plan is very ineffectual if not almost useless. What I would suggest is, that the citizens get up a neat, well-written illustrated pamphlet containing matter about the town and its advantages, showing its manufactories, public buildings, etc., and circulate these at the various provincial and county fairs in the fall. If well gotten up, such a method of advertising would do infinitely more for the town than any article in the ephemeral newspaper. The cost would be largely met by advertisements and the town might grant a donation. The photos already prepared might be made the foundation of lithos, but the engravings should be well done, not rough daubs such as the Mail produces. Who will act on this suggestion?

Yours, &c.,
A BELIEVER IN PRINTER'S INK.
Peterborough, Aug. 16, 1886.

Keene.

The annual financial meeting of the Campbellford district of the Methodist Church will be held at Keene, on Wednesday, the 18th of August. A public meeting will be held in the interest of the Sunday School in the evening, in the proceedings of which three or four of the ministers of the district and others will take part. A closing address will be given by Rev. J. S. Clark, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference. The public are cordially invited to be present.

A little daughter of Mr. Jno. Neish, of Otonabee, was severely bitten in the face last week, by a dog belonging to the family.

Mr. Burnett's steam yacht, with flag flying, was lying at the end of the bridge here, last Sunday, when a horse attached to a buggy belonging to Mr. James Graham, took fright at the flag and dashed forward, coming in contact with Mr. Peter Gillespie's double carriage, turned it over on the bridge, throwing out all the occupants, three ladies and a child—besides the driver. Nothing short of a miracle seemed to have saved them, as fortunately no one was seriously hurt.

The steam yacht, "Dot," owned and commanded by Commodore John Millar, took a party of thirteen excursionists and made a raid upon Idyl Wild, where all took dinner. After the pleasant repast the staunch little craft steamed round by Gore's Landing, doing the lake generally, and returned home in good time.

Keene is full of visitors. We are certainly becoming noted for our attractive surroundings and social qualities, as the visiting list is something wonderful for a hamlet of this size.

Frazerville.

The Autograph quilt which has been in preparation for some time, is almost completed, and is truly a beautiful one. We believe the ladies of the Methodist Church, Frazerville, intend selling this quilt at the residence of Mr. John Lightfoot, about the 1st of September. A grand garden party will be held in connection. As this will be the garden party of the season, to conclude with the selling of the most beautiful quilt ever offered in this part of Ontario, we anticipate a good time. Posters will be out in a few days.

We are pleased to learn that two of the pupils attending Mr. Strike's school were successful in passing the entrance examination in Peterborough. The successful ones are Miss Hannah Campbell, 442, and Master Eben Laing, 139. We believe throughout the Province 1 passed of 7. In the Frazerville school 2 passed out of three. During the 6 years which Mr. Strike has acted in Cairo school, it has ranked as one of the first in the county.

A Baptist Minister and His Son.

GRETNVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 12.—Thomas Bundy, son of a Baptist minister, to-day attempted to whip John Davis, a young farmer, for visiting his sister. Davis crushed Bundy's skull with a stone and the father of Bundy interfered. He and Davis fought with knives and both were mortally wounded.

Earthquake Shocks in Quebec.

MONTREAL, Aug. 12.—Early on Wednesday morning a sharp shock of earthquake was felt at Ste. Marguerete, Ste. Adele and St. Sauveur. A barn belonging to Mr. Godmer, farmer, of Ste. Marguerete, was thrown down, and other lighter buildings were slightly damaged. The shocks lasted about six minutes. A violent wind and hailstorm followed.

The Brant Memorial.

BRANTFORD, Aug. 12.—A procession of Indians and chiefs preceded the laying of the corner-stone of the Brant monument yesterday afternoon. President Cleghorn made a speech and Chief Smoke Johnson laid the stone. This chief was a companion of Joseph Brant, to whose memory the memorial is erected, and fought under his son. Chief Johnson's age is 94.

The Cowboys are Coming

A large delegation of genuine cowboys appear at every exhibition of the combined Wild West and Forepaugh Shows, with their bucking broncho ponies, genuine herders, lassoists, ranchmen and scouts, among the latter are Arizona Joe, Sandy Lewis, Shanghai Bill, Jake Lawson, Colorado Charley, Dick Curly and their associates. All magnificent specimens of the pioneers of civilization of the far west; they will give illustrations of plainsmen's life sports and labors, introducing their bucking ponies, one of the most hazardous and at the same time most amusing exhibitions of wild west dare-devilry afforded to the frontiersmen in their border homes. The terrors of a stampede will also be illustrated, presenting the reckless riding and wonderful command of the horse displayed by these wonderful cattle herders. They will also engage in elk races, buffalo hunting, lassoing and other exciting games practiced in the wild west and among the Rocky Mountains. At Peterborough, August 21st.

LOVE'S VICTORY.

CHAPTER XLI.

LOVE AND SORROW.

The beautiful golden summer came round, and Darrell Court looked picturesque and lovely. The tints of foliage and flush of flowers, the magnolia trees were still in bloom, the air was full of their delicious perfume, the chestnuts were in bloom, the limes all in blossom. But summer had scattered her treasures with no niggard hand; and Lady Darrell had lived to see the earth rejoice once more.

Under the limes, where the shadows of the graceful, tremulous, scented leaves fell on the grass,—the limes that were never still, but always responding to some half-hidden whisper of the wind—stood Pauline Darrell and her lover, Sir Vane St. Lawrence. They had met but once since their hurried parting at Omberleigh. Vane had been to Darrell Court—for their engagement was no secret now. They wrote to each other constantly.

On this fair June day Sir Vane had come to the Court with news that stirred the depths of the girl's heart as a fierce wind stirs the ripples on a lake.

As the sunlight fell through the green leaves and rested on her, the change in her was wonderful to see. The beautiful, noble face had lost all its pride, all its defiance; and pride, the light in the dark eyes was of love and tenderness. Time had added to her loveliness; the grand, statuesque figure had developed more perfectly; the graceful attitudes, the unconscious harmony, the indefinable grace and fascination were more apparent than ever. But she no longer carried her grand beauty as a protest, but made it rather the crown of a pure and perfect womanhood.

Something dimmed the brightness of her face, for Sir Vane had come to her with strange news and a strange prayer. His arm was clasped round her as they walked under the limes where lovers' footsteps had so often strayed.

"Yes, Pauline, it has come so unexpectedly at last," spoke Sir Vane. "Ever since Graveton has been in office, my dear mother has been unwearied in asking for an appointment for me. You know the story of our impoverished fortunes, and how anxious my dear mother is to retrieve them."

Her hand seemed to tighten its clasp on his, as she answered:

"Yes, I know."

"Now an opportunity has come. Graveton, in answer to my mother's continued requests, has found for me a most lucrative office; but, alas, my love, it is in India, and I must shortly set out."

"In India!" repeats Pauline; "and you must set out shortly, Vane? How soon?"

"In a fortnight from now," he answered. "It is an office that requires filling up at once, Pauline. I have come to ask if you will accompany me? Will you pardon the short notice, and let me take my wife with me to that far-off land? Do not let me go alone into exile—come with me, darling."

The color and light died out of her beautiful face, her lips quivered, and her eyes grew dim as with unshed tears.

"I cannot," she replied; and there was a silence between them that seemed full of pain.

"You cannot, Pauline!" he cried, and the sadness and disappointment in his voice made her lips quiver again. "Surely you will not allow any feminine nonsense about dress and preparations, any scruple about the shortness of time, to come between us? My mother bade me say that if you will consent she will busy herself night and day to help us to prepare. She bade me add her prayer to mine. Oh, Pauline, why do you say you cannot accompany me?"

The first shock had passed for her, and she raised her noble face to his.

"From no indolence, Vane," she said. "You should know me better, dear, than that. Nothing can part us but one thing. Were it not for that, I would go with you to the very end of the world—I would work for you and with you."

"But what is it, Pauline?" he asked. "What is it, my darling?"

She clung to him more closely still.

"I cannot leave her, Vane,—I cannot leave Lady Darrell. She is dying slowly, hour by hour, day by day—and I cannot leave her."

"But, my darling Pauline, there are others beside you to attend to the lady—Lady Hamilton and Miss Hastings. Why should you throw up your life thus?"

"Why?" she repeated. "You know why, Vane. It is the only atonement I can offer her. Heaven knows how gladly, how happily, I would this moment place my hand in yours and accompany you; my heart longs to do so. You are all I have in the world, and how I love you you know, Vane. But it seems to me that I owe Lady Darrell this reparation, and at the price of my whole life's happiness I must make it."

He drew her nearer to him, and kissed the trembling lips.

"She has suffered so much, Vane, through me—all through me. If I had but foregone my cruel vengeance, and when she came to me with doubt in her heart if I had but spoken one word, the chances are that by this time she would have been Lady Aynsley, and I should have been free to accompany you, my beloved; but I must suffer for my sin. I ought to suffer, and I ought to atone to her."

"Your life, my darling," he said, "your beautiful bright life, your love, your happiness, will all be sacrificed."

"They must be. You see, Vane, she clings to me in her sorrow. His name—Aubrey Langton's name—never passes her lips to any one else but me. She talks of him the night and the day through—it is the only comfort she has; and then she likes me to be with her, and soothe her, and she tires so soon of any one else. I cannot leave her, Vane—it would shorten her days."

He made no answer. She looked up at him with tearful eyes.

"Speak to me, Vane. It is hard, I know—but tell me that I am right."

"You are cruelly right," he replied. "Oh, my darling, it is very hard! Yet you make her a noble atonement for the wrong you have done her. Pauline, my darling, is this your only chance of reparation ended—is the greatest sacrifice a woman could make?"

"Your love has saved me," she said, gently—"has shown me what is right and what is wrong—has cleared the mist from my eyes. But for that—oh, Vane, I hate to think what I should have been!"

"I wish it were possible to give up the appointment," he remarked, suspicously.

"I would not have you do it, Vane. Think of Lady St. Lawrence—how she has worked for it. Remember, it is your only chance of ever being what she wishes to see you. You must not give it up."

"But how can I leave you, Pauline?"

"If you remain in England, it will make but little difference," she said. "I can never leave Lady Darrell while she lives."

"But, Pauline, it may be four, or five, or six years before I return, and all that time I shall never see you."

She wrung her hands, but remembered her past sin, fancying it was her fault—all her fault—the price of her sin.

"Vane," she said, "you must not tell Lady Darrell what you came to ask me. She must know that you are here only to say good-bye. I would rather keep her in ignorance; she will be the happier for not knowing."

Was ever anything such like that love and that sorrow—the love of two noble souls, two noble hearts, and the sorrow that parting more bitter than death brought upon them? Even the bitterness of parting did not know until long after the Vane was gone of the sacrifice Pauline had made in the brave endeavor to atone for her sin.

She never forgot the parting—how the Vane stood there, pale and worn, and how she clung to him, praying him all—care for his darling, for Lady Darrell, the frail, delicate woman, whose feeble stock of strength seemed to be derived from Pauline, he gave many charges.

"It will be so long before I see her again," he said; "but you will keep her safely for me."

"I almost wonder," said Lady Darrell, "why you do not ask Pauline to accompany you, Sir Vane. For my own sake, I am most selfishly glad that you have not done so—I should soon die without her."

They looked at each other, the two who were giving up so much for her, but spoke no word.

Sir Vane was obliged to return to London that same day. He spoke of seeing Pauline again, but she objected. It would only be a renewal of most bitter and hopeless sorrow. So they bade each other farewell under the lime-trees. The bitter yet sweet memory of it rested them for life.

Miss Hastings understood somewhat of the pain it would cause, but with her gentle consideration, she thought it best to give Pauline for a time. Hours afterward she went in search of her, and found her under the limes, weeping and moaning for the atonement she had made for her sin.

Be a Hero in Strife

says America's favorite poet. All very well Mr. Longfellow, but how can you, when half your time you feel sick, and do not feel well the other half. Men of noblest principles and highest aims find their efforts thwarted by disease. Night-sweats, a hacking cough and other symptoms only too plainly say consumption. Heed good advice. Try Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and the bloom of health will return to your cheeks, soundness to your lungs and you will be a hero yet. w33-1t

The Raw Chilling Winds

Of winter bring to the surface every latent pain. It is one of the strange things associated with our physical well being that the very air, without which we could not exist, is heavily laden with germs of disease. Rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago and, other complaints of a similar character hold revel at this season of the year amongst human nerves and human muscles. There was a time when fortitude alone could make life tolerable, but now with the advent of powerful, penetrating and nerve soothing remedies pain becomes a thing of a moment. The best, the most powerful and most certain pain cure is Polson's Nerviline. Nothing equals Nerviline for penetrating power. Nerviline is beyond comparison the greatest discovery for the relief of pain offered to the public. LOCAL NEWS.

Carpets.

50 new designs in Tapestry and Brussels Carpets to select from, at R. FAIR'S.

Oysters

Now on hand at the C. P. R. Restaurant, served up in the best styles.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. Geo. J. Gumpricht is in town for a few days. Orders may be left at Mr. Thos. Menzies' book store, or at Messrs. Taylor & Macdonald's drug store. d-tf.

Scott Act Seizures.

Chief Cooper to-day served Messrs. W. Snowden, W. Kennealy and R. N. Roddy with distress warrants, to secure the penalties imposed for violation of the Scott Act.

A Pick-up.

Chief Cooper picked up a man's pea-jacket at the corner of Park and Gilmour streets when on his way home late last night. The owner may have the article by calling at the police station and proving property.

The Fruit Canning Season.

Housekeepers will find the finest and cheapest stock of sugars for the preserving season, at Morrow, Tierney & Co's, as well as a splendid stock of the best groceries.

The Webb Property

in English town is to be offered for sale in three lots on Friday, 20th August, at 7 p.m. on the ground. The lots are large; the soil is good, and the situation is good. There is a small house on one lot. See posters.

Fresh White Fish, Trout and Bass, arriving daily at Ostrom's, George St.

Shooting Affair.

The usual Monday pop of the Gun Club was dispensed with on accountof the rain. To make up for lost practice the club will meet at Riverside Park on the morning of Thursday next (civic holiday) when shooting—ten rounds each—at blackbirds will be in-ged in.

Ashburnham's Rate

The Ashburnham village council last night struck the rate for municipal taxation, fixing it at 13 mills on the dollar. This is a mill higher than last year. The increase is accounted for by the loss of the revenue from licenses through the Scott Act going into operation.

Monstrosity.

As the season for monstrosities advances, every new article brought to light eclipses its predecessor. Mr. J. P. Eastwood now comes forward with a giant gooseberry that that measures four inches in circumference. Mr. Eastwood's gooseberry was a fruit one—not a third person singular--and was of the finest flavor.

Band of Hope.

At a meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. rooms yesterday evening, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., a Band of Hope was formed. There was a fair attendance of children notwithstanding the unfavorable weather. Mrs. Jones, of Ottawa, organized the society and addressed the meeting with regard to its workings.

A Coming Lecture

Mr. Arnold Haultain, we hear, is to deliver another lecture in Peterborough in aid of the Zenana mission. His subject is "Woman; Her Rights and Duties" The date has not been definitely fixed, but Thursday, the 26th inst., will probably be the day chosen. Particulars in a few days.

Y. M. C. A. Convention.

Mr. Geo. E. Williams, secretary of the local branch of the Y.M.C.A. is arranging for a district conference of the association to be held at Peterborough on September 23rd and 24th. In addition to the representatives of the several branches throughout the district, representatives from the International Committee of New York, and of the Provincial Committee will be present. Young men from places where there are no branches of the association will be made welcome.

Ginghams.

Fine Scotch Ginghams, former prices, 20 and 25 cents, at R. FAIR'S. | now 12½c.

For the A. C. A. Camp.

Col. H. C. Rogers, Mr. [illegible], Simpson, captain of the R. H. C., Mr. [illegible], Mr. W. Langley, of [illegible] and Mr. [illegible], of Toronto, left town this morning for the A. C. A. camp at Grindstone Island, taking canoes, etc., along with them. The party will go by train to Gananoque, and will then paddle or sail to the camp. Col. J. Z. Rogers will join the party on Friday.

A Cup Contest.

It is stated on good authority that Mr. W. Simpson, of the Sturgeon Point hotel, has offered a $30 cup for competition between four-oared crews of the Peterborough Boating Club, the race for possession of the cup to be rowed on Sturgeon Lake in front of the hotel. Stroke H. W. Kent says he will enter his crew if another four will oppose him.

Favourable Intimations.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, Secretary of the Peterborough Driving Park Association, has received a card from M. T. J. Vail, of Hartford, Conn., Secretary of the National Trotting Association of the United States, asking for a premium list for the meet to be held here on the 26th and 27th of August, and for regulations, etc. It is expected that a number of fast American horses will participate in the races, which will add to the interest of the occasion.

Charged with Insanity.

A middle-aged and one-armed man, giving his name as Clark and Petty, claiming to be a former resident of St. Thomas, who has been doing the town for the past week, on Saturday morning was committed to jail on a charge of insanity, preferred by Constable Craig, of Ashburnham. The unfortunate man had plenty of money which he spent freely on useless articles. He was perfectly harmless and the town police force allowed him to walk the streets in peace.

Civic Holiday Attractions.

Civic Holiday is designed to be a day of recreation and enjoyment, and to secure this to the fullest extent, the P. A. A. A. excursion to Sturgeon Point and Orillia presents the grandest opportunity. A day at Sturgeon Point with brief travel, or by going a little further, Orillia is reached with its delightful day's boating on one of the most beautiful inland lakes of the country. Keep this excursion in mind. The rates are exceedingly low, train service first-class, time rapid, and the comfort and enjoyment of every excursionist guaranteed.

A Too Sleepy Passenger.

Last evening, on the arrival of the Toronto express at the Midland station, a big, burly, black-bearded Yankee landed on the platform, rubbing his eyes and slowly awakening. When he became fully aroused he began to pour forth voluble profanity at a great rate, directing his remarks to nobody in particular, but generally anathematising the fate that had made him sleep from Toronto, when he should have taken the train that would have landed him in Cincinnati last night. His violent speech made him, for the time, the observed of all observers.

Bargains that are Bargains.

The firm of Giroux & Sullivan to be dissolved on 31st August, is now offering unprecedented bargains in new and fashionable dry goods in order to clear out their entire and magnificent stock before the above date. The entire stock has been gone over and marked down to profoundly low prices, and an opportunity is thus offered to the public of purchasing the best goods at surprising low figures, which it behooves all to take advantage of. During the great dissolution sale the terms will be cash. Now is the time to lay in a stock of choice goods at astonishingly low rates.

The P. A. A. A. Excursion.

In tending excursionists and those who are almost persuaded, are reminded that the train leaves at 7.30. On the arrival of the train at Lindsay, at 9 a. m., the steamer with barge will start for Sturgeon Point. This will give excursionists a long day for the enjoyment of the pleasures of the Point. The train, continuing will reach Orillia, at 10.15, giving abundant time for the enjoyment of the boating and scenery of the beautiful lake Couchiching. The excursion train will leave Orillia to return, at 6 p.m., and Lindsay, at 7.30, reaching home in good time. This will be the best managed and most enjoyable excursion of the season. Fare from Peterborough and return—to Sturgeon Point 85 cts.; to Orillia, $1.10, children, half price.

Au Public Canadiens Francais.

Nous invitons cordialement nos amis Canadiens Francais a venir au grand magasin a Bon Marche, afin de voir combien il est etonnant que l'on puisse vendre a de si bas prix toutes sortes d'effets de famille sont vendus a peu pres a moitie prix, que l'on paye ailleurs, let des centaines de clients sont servis tous le jours et s'en vont satisfaits—des thes groceries, bottes et souliers, marchandises seches, bardes faites, etoffes a robes etc—le tout a des prix excessivement bas. Venez voir le grand magasin a Bon Marche et juges pour vous-memes. Nous voulons que tous nos amis Canadiens Francais beneficien de cette grande et rare occasion. N'y manquez pas car il faut que le tout soit vendu sans reserve et immediatement.

Attention!

We would call attention to the offer made by Joseph Griffin that during the next thirty days he will sell the whole of his summer stock of boots and shoes at cost. A few lines will actually be sold below cost. Look at the following quotations:—

Women's Pebble Oxford Shoes,	70c.
" buff do do	80
" pebble—tie or buttoned	90
" India kid shoe	$1.00
" patent Oxford	1.20
" polished calf tie shoe	1.25
" do do Oxford	1.25
" do do buttoned	1.35

All the above goods are solid leather. All other goods will be sold equally cheap. Now is the time to secure bargains.

Personal

Mr. H[illegible] left this morning on a [illegible] trip. He will be absent from Peterborough for a few days and is taking as well as when he left.

Mr. W. B. Watkins, of Brighton, formerly with Mr. John Erskine, is town. He is about to remove to Cobourg.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Stubbs have returned to town from Detroit after an absence of a little over five months. The former is considerably improved in health by his few months' release from the confinement of business.

Mr. F. D. Moore, of Lindsay, brother of Mr. W. H. Moore, was in town to-day.

Mr. D. C. Edwards, travelling agent of the Northern Insurance Company, of Glasgow, was in town to-day, in the interests of the company. Mr. W. H. Hill is local agent for the Northern.

Miss Tote Hartley is visiting in Quebec, the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. R. Russell.

Mr. W. H. Hill, agent of the Queen Insurance Company, has been promoted, and has now the general oversight of the district for this company.

Mr. J. B. Ashley, of the Deaf and Dumb Institute, Belleville, was seriously injured by being thrown out of a buggy in Adolphustown.

Mr. W. R. Galloway, district passenger agent of the C. P. R., was in town yesterday.

Mr. Alex. Elliott has returned to town from a business trip to New York.

Mr. W. Sherin, late with Mr. J. R. McCrea, druggist, left this morning for St. Paul, U. S., for a visit to his brother.

Messrs. J. W. Fitzgerald and John Corkery left for Chicago last evening to attend the meeting of the Irish National League. Dr. O'Sullivan goes thither this evening. Mr. O'Meara, the other representative of Peterborough, is now in Chicago.

Police Court.

Bound Over to Keep the Peace.

Mr. Wm. Whitehair, who on Monday morning had his son arraigned before police magistrate Dumble, charged with trespass, was himself brought before the court later on in the day, charged by his wife with using threatening language toward her. Under oath she stated to the court that her husband had threatened to take her life and she feared he might carry out his threat.

Whitehair was bound over to keep the peace in the sum of $1,000 and two sureties of $500 each. He was remanded to jail for the present.

Ladies' Jerseys.

30 different styles in Jerseys to select from, at R. FAIR'S.

One Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty People are upon the pay rolls of the Wild West and great Forepaugh Shows, which are to exhibit here on the 21st August.

C. P. R. Telegraph Line.

Mr. Homer Pringle, route agent of the C. P. R. Telegraph Line, was in town yesterday on business connected with the opening of the new line. it is expected that the wires will be run into the Dominion Express office, George street, within a fortnight, and that an office for business will be opened there.

Port Hope vs Lindsay.

If the date can be agreed upon and ground secured, the tie game of baseball between the Lindsay and Port Hope clubs will be played off on the Riverside Park, on or about the 25th instant. Representatives of both teams will meet in town this week to make arrangements. Should the proposed arrangements be agreed upon a lively game of ball will be the result.

A Little Polar Expedition.

This morning Messrs. Joseph Curran, of the train despatching department of the Midland, Robert Hamilton, of the Hamilton Manufacturing Company, D. McMillan, conductor on the Midland, and Alex. Hamilton, the latter's running mate, started for Colling-wood, where they will embark on the str. Pacific, of the Northern Transit Line, for a six days' voyage through Georgian Bay to Mackinac straits, Sault Ste. Marie, etc. As the party is well provided with antidotes to the mal de mer, they expect, therefore, to make a pleasant voyage.

The Coming Holiday.

On Thursday next many citizens are going out of town and a considerable number will doubtless take in the cheap excursion to Toronto. Train leaves 8.39 a.m. Return fare only two dollars, the tickets being good for two days. Alex. Elliott, C. P. R. agency, George street, will supply intending excursionists with tickets, and as only a limited number will be issued, early application is desirable. No crowding, promptness, and civility will characterize this excursion. Parties who prefer doing so can leave by the morning express, 5.30 a.m. No better chance for seeing your friends or for doing business in the Queen City will offer itself for some months to come. Therefore, be on hand on the Civic Holiday, Thursday, August 19th, and start on your pleasant journey by the well-known C. P. R. road, having a ticket in your pocket and a dollar or so for "incidentals." Return tickets, $2; children, half price.

Norwood.

DEPARTMENTAL EXAMINATIONS.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 20th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two spring steel trusses made in York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my liberate. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. H. KING.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child held the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child born of rupture; and in one of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address,

CHICAGO'S MEETING.

ONE THOUSAND DELEGATES ALREADY ON THE GROUND.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—The delegates to the Irish National League convention arrived in great numbers during the day, and to-night fully 1000 are on the ground. There was active canvassing about the hotel lobbies respecting the election of officers, but neither element laid bare its hand. That there will be a sharp passage on the convention floor appears to be assured. John F. Finerty's name is favorably mentioned as President Egan's successor, while others are combatting his nomination in view of his recent physical force utterances.

Mr. Finerty himself says he does not desire his name to be put forward. With regard to his speech in Ogden's Grove, he made the following explanation to-day: "We have no desire to force the hand of Mr. Parnell, or to drive the Irish people into war [illegible]. All that we demand is this (and we will be satisfied with nothing less), that no leader of the Irish people who is supposed to speak for them shall consent himself or them to accepting as a final settlement bills of relief unworthy of the dignity of Ireland's national demand. We are perfectly willing to see them accept such bills as that of Mr. Gladstone as settlement on account, but that must not be accepted as closing the transactions. We see no wisdom in it. It lowers the tone of the Irish cause. It lowers the spirit of the true people. To ask them to subside to a species of mere provincialism is an outrage on their struggle of seven hundred years for liberty."

The Delegates.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Aug. 17.—John E. Redmond, William O'Brien and John Delaney, the Irish parliamentary delegates to the Irish convention, arrived here at 8.15 this evening. They were met by the reception committees from Chicago, headed by John J. Finerty. Mr. Finerty delivered a short address of welcome, to which Mr. O'Brien responded briefly. The delegates were then taken to Chicago by special train

On the Eve of the Great Gathering

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug 17.—Arrangements were about completed in and around the Central Music Hall to-day for the Irish National League convention to-morrow. Old camp chairs have been placed at the back of the stage for invited guests and prominent individuals. The press will have fair accommodation and telegraph wires have been put in the hall to cable news to England while the convention is in progress. The decorations are simple and yet [illegible] Back of the stage on the hall entrance are placed the American and Irish national colors, supported by eagles, etc. Some inscriptions on the banners read as follows: "Irish evictions are sentences of death." "We [illegible] Irish liberty peaceably if we can, and otherwise if we must." "Undying hatred and deadliness of English tyranny to the blackguardism and baseness of the world before the history of the Union—W. E. Gladstone." "Always keep hammering at the Union.—Henry Grattan." House Rule or else——."

The National Committee held a session to-night and decided to name Judge James Fitzgerald of Cincinnati for temporary chairman. Judge Fitzgerald is regarded as a conservative, and it is expected the nomination will meet with the approval of all the elements represented in the convention. Owing to some delay of the arriving delegates the convention will not be called to order until 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. The names of John Boyle O'Reilly and P. A. Collins were suggested for the presidency, but it is stated that neither would accept the position. The "opposition," therefore, has not as yet decided upon anyone to support for president. The Chicago delegates were working for recognition for John Finerty to-night for appointment as temporary chairman of the convention. On the surface it looked at a late hour as though the league's present officers would cast their strength for Maurice Wilbere of Pennsylvania, the present vice-president of the league for president.

The Loyalists Want to Keep Posted.

DUBLIN, Aug. 17.—The Irish Loyal Patriotic Union has requested agents throughout the country to send to headquarters accurate and detailed accounts of the doings of the National League, "which is evidently resolved by all possible designs with which the British public ought to be acquainted."

AN INSINUATION THAT IRELAND IS RULED FROM AMERICA.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Mr. Gladstone will neither initiate nor prolong a discussion with reference to Ireland in the debate on the address in reply to the Queen's speech. His followers will acquiesce in this decision.

Although the speech from the throne will not indicate Lord Salisbury's Irish policy, it is understood that either Lord Randolph Churchill or Sir Michael Hicks-Beach during the debate will intimate that a measure will be introduced next year dealing with the Irish local government and land questions. The Gladstonians will accept such intimation as a sufficient pledge of the present, but the Parnellites appear to be determined to press for details, in which event a discussion will probably ensue. As soon as the address has been adopted, the Government will move that the supply bills have precedence.

It is believed that, notwithstanding the expected action of the Parnellites, the House will be prorogued on Sept. 10 until the first week in November, when, unless some untoward events should occur, it will be further prorogued until the beginning of February. The Government whips have advised the Conservatives that it will be useless to give notice of the introduction of new bills in the present session, and that no private business will be [illegible].

Lord Churchill's Scheme Accepted.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The Government intend to introduce at the next session of Parliament a measure giving local government to Ireland on a basis of the plan proposed by Lord Randolph Churchill. Lord Hartington's party will support the scheme.

Edmund Yates' Views.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Edmund Yates says that the statement that Lord Churchill has drawn up a scheme dealing with the question of Irish Government is absurd. The framing of such a measure will be with Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, but the Government have not yet approached the question in detail, and will not do so till November. The great majority of the Liberals are anxious that the session which begins on Thursday should close as soon as possible. But for the Irish party the House would be up in the first week of September. While Parnell and his friends will do what they can to add a fortnight to the session, some of the best of his men are not available. The Speaker and the Chairman of Committees will have to adopt drastic measures in order to get the business through.

AFGHAN COMMISSION

SATISFACTION AT THE PROPOSED RECALLING OF THE BRITISH SECTION.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The Pall Mall Gazette says it is glad the Afghan commission has been recalled as it will hasten a settlement of the question of ownership of Khamiah, which Russia claims by direct negotiations between London and St. Petersburg. The St. James Gazette says the question is as far from settlement as it was fifteen months ago. Russia claims Khamiah. The Afghans refuse to give it up. A conflict is likely to occur at any moment and it rests with England to say what it will and can do to prevent its allies from being plundered. The task of Lord Iddesleigh, the Foreign Secretary, will be easier when he is relieved of this useless and embarrassing commission.

The Globe says nothing would suit Russia better than to keep the Khamiah question open and relieve it when it suits her.

The Cabinet met to-day from noon until 2 o'clock. The Queen's speech was considered and approved. The Afghan difficulty was also discussed. It is understood that Col. Ridgeway, of the British Afghan commission, has been recalled because he felt that the difference between Russia and England had better be dealt with by the Foreign Office.

The Situation.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The report that the Government had decided upon an immediate withdrawal of the Afghan Boundary Commission is officially denied. The Government is awaiting Russia's reply, respecting a small portion of the Afghan boundary, not yet settled in the Oxus district. Until the reply has been received no decision will be taken respecting the date of the withdrawal of the commission, but whatever may be the nature of the reply, the commission will return to India before winter. In spite of the official denial, it is believed in well informed circles that the Standard is virtually correct in stating that the Government has asked Russia for yes or no in reply. It is not likely, however, that such a reply will be given.

Will Return in September.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—A despatch from Simla says the British Afghan commission will return to India in September via Cabul.

FORESTERS AT FOREST CITY.

Annual Meeting of the High Court of the Independent Order.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 17.—The High Court of the Independent Order of Foresters met in Foresters' Hall, over the Federal Bank, to-day. Bro. W. W. Fitzgerald, H. C. R., was in the chair. Other officers present: P. H.C., R. E. Botterell, House of Commons, Ottawa; H. V. C. R., J. Culbert, Ottawa; H. Sec'y, J. B. Hackett, Ottawa; H. Treas., T. G. Davey, London; H. Conn., J. W. Frost, Owen Sound; H. S. W., A. B. Milne, Kingston; H. J. W., W. Gerry, London; H. Mar., Geo. Paris, London; and H. Mess., A. Orombyatekha, London. The delegates were given the High Court degree and instructed in the unwritten work of this branch of the order.

The High Chief Ranger presented his annual report, showing the order to be in a very prosperous condition.

The High Secretary, Bro. Jas. B. Halkett, reported as follows: Membership in good standing on July 1, 1885, 2084; initiated during the year, 1427; total 3511. Less, suspended 2676; deceased 12. Total 279. Members in good standing on June 30, 1886, 3332.

The High Treasurer, T. G. Davey, of London, in his report gave a statement of the receipts and disbursements for the year ending June 30, 1886, as follows: Receipts, $3858.98, disbursements $3393.65, balance on hand $467.31.

MURDER AT BRADFORD.

A Farmer Goes Out to His Barn and is Brutally Done For.

BRADFORD, Ont., Aug. 17.—On Monday night about 9 o'clock Mr. Andrew Sloan, one of the most respectable farmers of the Township of West Gwillimbury, County of Simcoe, met with his death in a mysterious way. It seems that a few minutes before 9 o'clock Mr. Sloan went out to the barn to tell Kelly, a hired man, to extinguish a light which he was using. A few minutes afterwards Kelly entered the house and told the servant girl to tell Mrs. Sloan to go out and see her man, at the same time making the remark, "He won't trouble me any more." On going out Mrs. Sloan found her husband near the barn making efforts to get up, but was unable to do so. With the assistance of the servant girl, Mrs. Sloan carried him into the house, the blood gushing out of his ear. Medical attendance was at once sent for, but before he arrived the man was dead. The young man Kelly was in Mr. Sloan's employ over twelve months, during which time the best of good feeling existed between both employer and employed. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Kelly, and also for a young lad named Joseph Craig, who was in the barn a few minutes before Mr. Sloan was found.

THE ARMY IN MONTREAL.

The Salvationists Roughly Used by the Police of the Lower City.

From the Montreal Herald, Aug. 16.

The police seem determined to put down the Salvation Army. They have arrested six of their members on two separate occasions. The first arrest was made on Saturday night. The account which Lieut. Middleton gives of the affair was that the Army was marching up Craig-street, and when near the cab stand, near St. Lawrence Main-street, one of the cabmen drove his horse into the procession, endangering the women. One of the soldiers seized the horse's reins to prevent the girls from being hurt. He was immediately arrested by the police patrol, one of whom, it is alleged, struck him on the back of the head with his baton. Another soldier of the army, Sergt. Fraser, was arrested, and a third man, Butters, whose only offence was to advise Mr. Fraser to go to the station quietly, was also taken prisoner. Butters had no connection whatever with the Army. On the way to the station it is alleged that one of the policemen struck Fraser on St. James-street with his club.

The second arrest was made on Sunday morning. The Army, as it has been doing for some time past on Sundays, was holding a prayer meeting on the slip near Allan's wharf. They had never been interfered with by the authorities before and on Sunday they say there is no thoroughfare on the slip. The water police have often witnessed these open-air meetings, and when it was necessary have interfered to protect them from annoyance. On last Sunday Capt Marshall was in the act of praying, the soldiers being grouped around him, when the police patrol broke in upon them and caught hold of the Captain's hands as they were raised and slapped the handcuffs on his wrists. Besides captain Marshall, Col. Sorel, Thomas and Major Margetts were arrested.

All six men have been released on bail, and the Army officers are determined to test the case in the courts. In the meantime, they do not intend to march through the streets or to hold open-air meetings in the city. The Salvationists complain that the flag and tambourines which were taken from them when they were imprisoned have not been returned.

Toronto Tought at Hamilton.

From the Times, Aug. 17.

Toronto sent a good many undesirable visitors to Hamilton yesterday. More drunken men were seen on the streets than any day for years past. The rain prevented any outdoor amusement and the result was the consumption of more liquor than some of the visitors could stand. Few of those who wore the uniform of the Pioneers or the Prentice Boys misbehaved themselves and the disorder was caused by others who came on the excursion. The uniformed men were in line for their procession about 4 o'clock and made a fine parade. Several fights occurred on the streets, one at the Palace and another at the station. Three young women who stopped at the Delmonico Hotel for dinner carried off a pair of gold bracelets and a pair of shoes. Saunders' saloon is minus a box of cigars and a silver-plated water jug. Drunken, boisterous men, who seemed to think there was no authority outside of Toronto, roamed the streets, but few were arrested.

REPRISALS ARE FAR REACHING.

The Toronto Board Refused Per Diem Which the Men Previously Drew.

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., Aug. 17.—The Canadian excursion steamer Frances Smith was seized yesterday as she landed at the dock with her weekly excursion from Collingwood by Collector Watson of Grand Haven. The last two trips of the boat she neglected to go to St. Ignace and take out her papers before clearing. So to-day, as was expected, the collector and Deputy Warren of St. Ignace were on hand and took charge of her, removed her engine bars and put her in charge of two custodiens. The Canadians are badly worked up over the affair, and the passengers take another boss for home to-day. The excuse of the captain and clerk was that under the former collectors they were not compelled to obey the strict letter of the law.

Burglary Will Out.

Fourteen months ago several burglaries were committed at Unionville, one on the Midland Railway. Morrison's store was entered, among others, and several hundred dollars' worth of tweeds were carried off. The other day a sale of tweeds was advertised in an auction room in this city. Detective Brown was there, and discovered that Morrison's tweeds were among them. Yesterday he arrested John Meany of this city, who left the cloth at the auction room to be sold. Meany was sent to Unionville for trial last evening.

Poor Cricketers From the West Indies.

MONTREAL, Aug. 17.—The cricket match between the West Indies club and the Montrealers was concluded to-day, the Montrealers winning by forty-eight runs on the first innings. The Montrealers concluded their first innings to-day with a score of 110, when the West India men went in and scored sixty-two runs. Good bowling and fielding did this for the Montrealers, in which department they have improved greatly of late. The Montrealers again went in and scored 130 runs. The West Indies team play the Halifax club to-morrow.

The West Indies scored 101 runs for the loss of four wickets in their second innings, when time was called.

The Bard Again Beats Dewdrop.

MONMOUTH PARK, N. J., Aug. 17.—There was an immense gathering at Monmouth Park to-day to witness the contest for the Choice in Stakes which The Bard and Dew Drop were to prove which was entitled to the blue ribbon of the turf, as a three year old for 1886. The Bard settled the question by winning by a short head. The race itself was really a one-horse affair for from the start to the finish The Bard was held steadily in hand for the great final struggle. When the horses entered the straight, McLaughlin, who was on Dewdrop, tried one of his strategic movements by forcing the pace in the last furlong, but The Bard went past the judge's stand a winner in the time of 2.30¼. There were 69 entries and the time was a ½ sec. slower than the best previous record for the distance.

MONMOUTH PARK, Aug. 17.—First race, ¾ mile—Backstone won, Mink second, Pericles third; time 1.16. Second race, the Meet and Phandon Stakes, ¾ mile—August Belmont's b. f. Lady Primrose, by The Ill-used Lady Rosebery, won, with False Step second and Montrose third; time 1.17. Third race, the Choice Stakes for three-year-olds, 1¼ miles—Mr. Cassatt's The Bard won, Dwyer Bros., Dewdrop second, J. B. Haggins' Ben Ali third; time 2.30½. Fourth race, 1½ miles—Bon-Anna won, Hidalgo second, Heel and Toe third; time 2.11¾. Fifth race, ¾ mile—Marsh Redon won, Queen Esther second, Edgefield third; time 1.30½. Sixth race, 1½ miles, over six hurdles—Mentmore won, Endover second, April Fool third; time 2.50.

R. W. MUNCASTER,

The Daily Examiner.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 18, 1886.

SIR JOHN preaching piety as he did in British Columbia, is not unlike a certain old gentleman of free and easy morals quoting Scripture.

During the first conference Sunday of the General Conference of the Methodist Church to be held in Toronto, Rev. I. Tovell has been selected to preach in the Dundas Street Church.

PREPARATIONS are being made to give Messrs. Blake and Mowat a hearty welcome at all parts that they will visit on their tour through Eastern Ontario, towards the close of the present month.

The Hamilton Times says that "plunder is the link by which Tory leaders are bound together." Linked stealings long drawn out, would be, perhaps, more Miltonic and meet.

OUR Dominion finances are going on in true Conservative methods. While the revenue for July is $170,362 in advance of July of last year, the Finance Minister redeems the credit of his department by showing an increase of expenditure of $646,919.

WHAT the Tory papers print with a chuckle—"The Dominion revenue for July shows an increase of $170,362 over July of last year." What they don't print at all, but which is the truth—"The expenditure for July, 1886, shows an increase of $646,919 over the July of 1885." Balance, charge to Corruption Fund, $476,057.

WHEN with Roman Catholics, Sir John says that he "never set foot in an Orange lodge; when with Orangemen he can point to the fact that he was "made" a member in Kingston and that he is away up in the black, for he was sent as special delegate to the General Conclave of Royal Black Knights of the Orange Order, at Ballykilbeg in 1867. If Sir John should ever repent and be baptised, an appropriate name to give him would be Sir James (Macdonald).

THE object of the N. P. was to foster home industries and at the same time not increase prices to the consumer. It has fostered the cotton industry, but just at the time when the people expect to get cheaper cotton, the cotton lords combine to put up the price, by shortening production. Protection protects the manufacturers by excluding cheap cotton and permitting them to conspire together to keep up the prices. Manufacturers get rich, but it is at the expense of the people, out of whose pockets directly the money must come.

The Hamilton Times thinks the Reform party ought to win in the Dominion elections next summer. Confederation will then be twenty years old, and the Tories will have shown what it means to have them manage the country. The gross public debt will be about $300,000,000 (for Sir John Macdonald has one session left in which to round off the figures), and what is more than three times the amount of the gross debt in 1867. Nova Scotia, Quebec and Manitoba have had their fill of Toryism. Ontario, Liberal at heart, has the Gerrymander to contend against, and it is not impossible that subsidy-seekers will subscribe a large sum of money to be used on the Tory side in the elections. Yet Ontario will give a good account of herself, and the probability is that the Macdonald Government will be defeated.
